Frost Announces School Project, Cost $80,000,000

Trade Schools Will Be Built at Three Centres

TORONTO (CP) — A sweeping $80,000,000 program involving construction of new trade and technical training facilities spread over the next two years was announced Wednesday by Premier Frost and Federal Labor Minister Starr.

The program — 75 per cent of which will be borne by the federal government and 25 per cent by the province — with be started in the early autumn and completed within two years.

Trade schools will be established at London, Ont., and Ottawa to accommodate 1,200 students each, and at Sault Ste. Marie to accommodate 600 students. In addition, the Provincial Institute of Trades, Toronto, will be enlarged. Estimated cost of these projects will be $12,000,000.

The Provincial Institute of Technology will be expanded and completed to accommodate 2,000 students and new facilities to house the Eastern Ontario Institute of Technology at Ottawa to accommodate 700 more students and a new Institute of Technology at Richland Lake will be constructed. Including the recently enlarged Western Ontario Institute of Technology at Windsor, estimated cost of that portion of the program is $8,200,000.

TRAINING FROM SCHOOLS

Some $40,000,000 will be spent for the establishment or enlargement of training facilities for technical and vocational training at the high school level, included in which $12,000,000 for Ontario College of Arts and $276,000 to the Lakehead College of Arts, Sciences and Technology.

Education Minister Roberts said the program would provide an estimated 30,000 new jobs in industry and allied fields during the next two years.

For the first time, in many years, Ontario, he said, technical and vocational training will be "directly available to our young people," Mr. Roberts said. "At the same time commercial courses will be expanded, upgraded and redesigned in order to give large numbers of students the opportunity to fit themselves for the world of work."

He said young people now will be able to choose between an academic education for eventual university training or a commercial education for the field of business administration.

Mr. Roberts said the department will "vigorously" embark in search of new technical teachers for the province. The present tuition fees at the Ontario College of Education, starting a new two-year course next September, will be paid by the Ontario government and a subsistence allowance of $30 a week will be provided.

WON'T SEND MESSAGE

WELLINGTON (AP) — New Zealand's Prime Minister Keith Holyoake did not send a message to President Charles Swart of the new South African Republic on the inauguration of the republic, Holyoake told questioned at a press conference, Holyoake said only "I do not intend to send a message."

U.S. Watches For Dominican Trend Clues

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. policymakers watched anxiously today for clues on whether the post-Trujillo Dominican Republic will move toward democracy or erupt in revolution with dangerous results.

The United States wants to be able to throw its weight behind a reform Dominican regime dedicated to democracy, economic improvement and anti-communism. It doesn't want an oppressor of either right or left who would further torment hemisphere relations, and it hopes to avoid links with such a rule.

Scant information on Tuesday's assassination of strongman Rafael Trujillo seeping out of the tightly censored Caribbean land so far suggests the new leaders of the time may be carryovers from the right-wing Trujillo regime.

State Secretary Dean Rusk put off his trip to Paris for the Kennedy-de Gaulle talks to take charge of-U.S. strategy in the Dominican situation.

Informed sources said both President Kennedy and Rusk had the recent Latin American fiasco in mind and were determined to avoid any mistakes on the neighboring island. They feel the outcome will affect the whole of U.S.-Latin American affairs.

Some U.S. authorities foresaw a struggle for power, both within the Trujillo group and between it and the large elements of Dominican society that have detested the dictator's 31-year rule. A continued harsh right-wing regime without Trujillo's personality, they reasoned, would set off revolt — perhaps pro - Castro the next time.

Senator George Smathers (Dem., Fla.) — a man who on Wednesday night that American marines be landed in the Dominican Republic at once to prevent a Communist takeover.

But George A. Ahern (Rep., Vt.), a member of the Senate foreign relations committee on Latin American affairs, said the U.S. administration should "get all the facts" before acting on the turnover.

150 Stitches Taken in Child Bitten by Dog

HAMILTON (CP) — An 11-year-old Hamilton girl is in fair condition in hospital after she was mauled by a German shepherd dog Wednesday night while delivering newspapers.

Ella Hixon required more than 150 stitches. Hospital officials said she was bitten over her entire body and plastic surgeons worked over the child more than two hours.

The girl said the dog broke its chain and jumped at her. Two passersby had to beat the animal off with bricks and sticks.

Shortly after the incident, the dog attacked Michael Geer, 16, and bit him several times. The boy's father was also attacked when he went to see the owner. He leaped to the roof of his car to escape.

OPP SQUABBLED OVER 'SPLITS' COURT IS TOLD

Witness Posed As Crooked Cop

TORONTO (CP) — Squabbles between members of the provincial police over the split of bribe money from gamblers were related in court Wednesday in an OPP case which was supposed as a crooked cop on orders of his superiors.

Constable George Scott, consulting a detailed diary, went through his second day of Supreme Court testimony against a former fellow officer and two other men charged with conspiring to bribe a policeman.

The accused are Robert Wright, 36, formerly of the OPP at Toronto and Belleville; Joseph P. McDermott, 46, of Port Credit, and Vincent Feeley, 37, of Toronto.

Constable Scott said Wright and two other OPP constables quarrelled over the division of spoils with McDermott trying to act as mediator; that Wright told him he had made $2,000 in tipoffs on gambling raids; that he had passed many tipoffs to McDermott with the superiors' knowledge, and that one constable said he was "looking after" three bookies but found them not paying off.

An ironic twist to his testimony was that McDermott contained a number of times of police questioning of patrons of the New Parrot Tavern at Niagara Falls on the grounds they could drive off business.

The constable said he provided tipoffs to McDermott of impending raids or "nothing do.

Venezuelan Rebels Hunted

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Romulo Betancourt's government today hunted fugitive leaders of a rebel band it said plotted an uprising backed by an old enemy—slain Dominican dictator Rafael Leonidas Trujillo.

Venezuelan authorities said 21 political prisoners were seized Wednesday in dawn raids but some of the leaders got away and mounted a military "threat of desperation."

The government said the revolutionists were armed by Trujillo, who Betancourt charged had fled to the Dominican Republic in June 1960. The Venezuelan police chief escaped but was badly wounded.

Trujillo was assassinated Tuesday night when his motorcade left the capital city of Ciudad Trujillo.

Venezuela's uneasiness over the interior said the latest plot to overthrow the Betancourt regime grew out of the former lieutenant-colonels who served under ousted dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez.

He said they were Martin Paredo, former personal pilot of Perez Jimines who now lives in the United States, and Oreste Tamayo, former chief of the national guard. He was not known whether Paredo and Tamayo were among those captured.

Kennedy, de Gaulle Agree On Strong Berlin Stand

PARIS (AP)—President Kennedy and President de Gaulle began their second day of talks on world issues today agreed that the West must stand firm in Berlin but still divided on France's demand for an equal voice with Britain and the United States in the direction of allied policy.

Kennedy arrived at the Elysee Palace shortly after 10 a.m. for the first of two extended conversations today with the French president. De Gaulle was on the steps of the palace, waiting to greet this American guest.

Delivering his toast to Kennedy at a state dinner Wednesday night, the French president said if France is to help carry out Allied policy, it must have the fullest possible voice in making that policy.

Our common enterprise, peace with liberty, requires from both of us a reciprocal recognition as complete as possible in the conception of policy as well as in its execution."

Kennedy, speaking earlier to a group of members of the French Parliament, had said that "the way to have consultations is to consult." Diplomats considered that his answer to de Gaulle's bid for a greater voice for France in Allied policy-making. Kennedy in effect was saying that all the machinery necessary for consultation already is in existence.

After two hours and 35 minutes of talks Wednesday, the two presidents announced "general agreement" to stand firm against Soviet threats to West Berlin. French officials indicated they were confident Kennedy would take a firm, noncompromise line on this issue

Housing Strike Will Likely Spread to Commercial Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — The possibility that Metropolitan Toronto's violence-riddled labor dispute will spread to commercial projects loomed today as the strike entered its fifth day.

The possibility arose with the firing Wednesday of three cement truck drivers, members of the Teamsters Union, who refused to take their loads through a crowd of 300 strikers surrounding an apartment project.

The Toronto Building Trades Council, co-ordinating body of the 20 - odd construction unions involved in the strike, was to consider the move today.

The recently-renewed alliance between the teamsters and the construction unions raised the possibility that union members on commercial construction would refuse to accept readymix concrete to be delivered to projects involved in Wednesday's disturbances.

The move came after a day of violence at construction sites in the Metro area Wednesday as striking immigrant workers continued their efforts to stop all house building.

The strikers, most of them from Italy, were grim-faced as their flying squads swept through the suburbs—sometimes in cavalcades of as many as 30 cars—in a campaign to get non-striking workers to lay down their tools.

The union claim the contractors are not living up to the terms of agreements forged in

Premier Frost Promises Support to U.S. Law Men

TORONTO (CP)—The sky is the limit as far as Ontario's support of United States law enforcement agencies is concerned, premier Frost told U.S. federal government and New York state police Wednesday.

Mr. Frost said the complete co-operation of the provincial police is as near as the telephone.

"I want to assure you, you don't need to stand on protocol," he said. "You can feel you are discussing these matters with friends."

Mr. Frost was addressing the law enforcement officers from Metropolitan T'o r o n t o Police, Ontario Provincial Police, the RCMP and police and federal officers from the United States at a banquet-held by the Metro Toronto Police Commission. The officers are attending a three-day conference on crime and ways and means of combatting it.

He said he hoped the conference will be one of a continuing

TRADE DEFICIT FIRST QUARTER IS $22,500,000

Decline in Exports To U.S. Reason

OTTAWA (CP) — Continued export weakness in United States trade has offset strong gains in shipments to Britain and the Commonwealth to leave Canada with a $22,500,000 trade deficit for the first quarter of the year.

Total exports in the January-March period declined to $1,265,600,000, two per cent less than $1,291,500,000 a year earlier, the bureau of Statistics reported today.

Imports declined even more, down 2.9 per cent to $1,288,100,000 from $1,326,200,000 in the first quarter of 1960.

Thus the trade deficit—excess of imports over exports—dropped to $22,500,000 from its year-earlier level of $34,700,000.

A decline in exports to the United States was the main factor in the deficits.

In the first quarter, exports to the United States showed a year-to-year decline of 12.5 per cent, in the same period there were gains of 13.8 per cent in the United Kingdom and 31.7 per cent in other Commonwealth countries.

Gunmen Ambush Car On Highway Near Capital

Strongman's Followers Seem to Hold Control

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rafael Leonidas Trujillo promised his portly, well-groomed image up from the ranks to make the Dominican Republic a private domain for himself and his family.

The 66-year-old dictator began life on his father's small farm, became a hand in a sugar mill, then a telegrapher. He quit school as a teen-ager but continued to study on his own at night.

National turmoil during his youth, with government following government, faded in 1916 as U.S. marines came to the Dominican republic under a plan to pay the country's debts and prevent any chance of foreign intervention.

Trujillo was 25 then. He became a cadet, then a lieutenant and finally a major in the national constabulary set up by the marines. When the marines left after eight years, Trujillo was the head of the constabulary.

His long and powerful sway began in 1930. He was elected president that year after he had been promoted to brigadier-general and organized the army.

2 Mournful Whistle Blasts Mark End of Canada's Oldest Coal Mine

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP)—Two mournful blasts from the whistle at Caledonia colliery here Wednesday signalled the end of production at the country's oldest coal mine.

There was little evidence of bitterness. But veteran miners expressed concern for their younger comrades in the jobless.

Peter Bazan, who has worked at Caledonia since 1914, said "I feel that part of my life has disappeared. Caledonia was a good mine but my thoughts are of those young men who have no prospect of obtaining employment in other pits." Under a company - union agreement signed in 1947, miners get the "bumper" of $6 per month.

Michael MacNeil, who worked in the pit for 51 years, said he was "broken hearted" when he reached the surface after his last shift Wednesday.

The mine, opened in 1866 and producer of about 20,000,000 tons, closed at the end of the night shift Wednesday. Dominion Coal Company said the pit had to be closed because of the poor quality of the coal and loss of markets. It employed nearly 700 men.

Trujillo's Death Solves Nothing, Dominican Problem Still Remains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The problem with the Dominican Republic is just beginning for the United States. The assassination of dictator Rafael Leonidas Trujillo solved nothing.

The 66-year-old Trujillo, after 31 years of tyranny, had outlived his particular time.

He served as long as he did on sheer muscle at a time when the revolutions were sweeping not only Latin America but the world. What is left behind is this:

While all around him the peoples of Latin America were demanding greater gratification of their desire for a better life, and a better part of it, he kept his so-called republic frozen in the old ways.

Fidel Castro in Cuba is no less a dictator, with the same contempt for democratic processes. But, besides Trujillo, he looks extremely modern with his promises of a richer life and a sense of belonging for the Cuban masses.

The U.S. misunderstood this and learned to its dismay, through the disaster of the April invasion, that many Cubans considered Castro a living, support Castro without question, cent concern whether he's left or right.

It's an old lesson being relearned painfully around the world: Democracy to people who never really had it means nothing. What they want is to live longer better.

Trujillo, his family and his friends got rich and fat off the republic. It's unlikely Trujillo's fall ends all control to some other outlaw, perhaps even without a strongman. So there may be bloody days.

If they triumph and set up another tyranny without broad reforms, it will be only a matter of time before they too are smashed. The sweep toward a richer life for Latin Americans is too strong for standstill reaction.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

RESIDENTS WARNED TO USE CAUTION

Fire Chief Gerald Vance has issued a warning to residents using the city dump or garbage service to use extreme caution in disposing containers in which poison or chemicals of an explosive nature have been stored or packaged. During a recent fire in the dump one fireman narrowly escaped injury from an exploding container, whilst attending the fire.

Chief Vance recommends that any container to be discarded should either be punctured or the top removed so that no bulkhup or explosive fumes can occur.

MAY LITTLE UNDER MEAN AVERAGE

During the past month the maximum temperature recorded at the filtration plant was 79 degrees. The minimum was 29 degrees with the mean temperature being 52.8 degrees. There was 3.57 inches of rain.

During May of 1960 the temperatures were, maximum — 79; minimum — 30; mean — 58.0 degrees. Rainfall was 3.35 inches.

Over a ten-year period the city's average maximum temperature is 77 degrees, the average minimum 30 degrees and the average mean 54.3 degrees. Average rainfall over the same period is 2.30 inches.

Census Takers Start Making Rounds in City

Today is June 1st and marks the commencement of the 1961 census taken every five years across Canada.

In Belleville as in other parts of the Dominion, the census takers were scheduled to start their rounds calling on every house in their specified areas.

In the city there are a total of 33 census takers, divided almost equally into East Hill and West Hill areas. Census commissioner for the West Hill area is Mrs. Harry York, while in the East Hill area the commissioner is George Olan who has taken over the duties of W. Harry Rollins, who is seriously ill in hospital.

EXPECT CALL BACKS

The census takers are expected to work eight hours per day but with so many married women now working it is expected a great many call backs in the evening will be necessary to obtain the required information.

Three years ago the mailman delivered a copy of the questions which will be asked at each household, along with the additional questions to be asked at every fifth household.

When the census takers have completed their areas, they will turn their data over to their commissioners for checking before it is sent on to Ottawa.

Urban census takers have two weeks to complete their jobs, while in the country a three-week period is being allowed.

The permit for the new shopping centre was for $1,-500,000.

Also included in the month's building list was a permit for a new front at the New Queen's Hotel valued at $6,000.

Scouting activities

By CHRIS F. LEGGAT

The Salvation Army Citadel was the scene of a father and son banquet when well over 4 scouts, cubs and Scouts joined with their fathers in an evening of good food, good fun and good fellowship.

The newly - formed Scout Troop capably carried out the flag break and following the singing of the Queen everyone sat down to a superb meal. From the tomato juice through the main course of roast turkey to the last piece of cake and ice cream it called for nothing but praise of the efforts of the Cub and Scout mothers who prepared and served it.

The head table personnel were introduced by William Taylor, the group committee chairman. They included Sheila Lee Brooker; Mrs. Brooker, who is one of the A.C.M.s (Baloo); past president of the District Council, Frank Lancaster; Lt.-Col. Gennery, divisional commander of the Salvation Army and Mrs. Gennery; the local commanding officer of the Salvation Army, Capt. and Mrs. John Carter, and his two sons, Lawrence and John, Major Carter; the group committee Belleville Group and is a Gilwell leader in his own right. Other guests were Mrs. Velma Taylor, C.M., her son, Keith Taylor, acting A.S.M. and Mrs. Mary Gauthier, A.C.M. (Bagheera).

The ladies were warmly thanked by Mr. Gennery and then Bagheera led in a read spirited cheer including the Cubs "favorite "Worms," a splendid sequel to any good meal.

Lt.-Col. Gennery who is the divisional commander of the Salvation Army in charge of youth work for this area, presented Cub Rodgers as follows: toymaker — John Curwain and Donald Downey; team player— Eric Lane, John Erwin and Lawrence Carter; house orderly — John Curwain and David Erwin; cyclist — John Parker and John Curwain; collector — John Parker and Donald Downey; observer — Lawrece Carter, Richard McMechan. Eric Lane, John Parker and Donald Downey.

Major Carter was introduced as guest speaker. He remarked that the dads come not only because of their boys but as a tribute to the leaders who devote so much of their time in the character training of those same boys. He praised the work of the group committee under the direction of chairman Bill Taylor and suggested a possible camp out at Sagonaska this summer.

He stated that Scouting is intended to develop body, mind and spirit and if proper emphasis are given to all aspects of the training the boy will be able to meet all the challenges of life. Without duty to God Scouting would accomplish only two-thirds of its objective, but when the boy is taught the importance of duty to his God, then the threefold development of the body, mind and spirit is accomplished. He illustrated his talk with a circle which commenced as a triangle, gradually rounding out each of the three sides until a circle or wheel was produced which would roll smoothly along.

The evening closed with the singing of the colored film of the wild life in the Kruger National Park, Africa. It was presented by courtesy of Canada with the compliments of Coca Cola.

Mr. Podge thanked the speaker and Mr. Charlton and then ended a memorable evening.

King Terry, Hillier Twp., Missing Since Tues. Night Found Drowned in Lake

WELLINGTON — (Special)— The body of King Terry 68-year-old Hillier township farmer who has been missing from Consecon Lake seven miles north of this village this morning.

The body was found about 50 feet from the shore by Mr. Terry the lake in seven feet of water by three members of a 100-man searching party.

Mr. Terry had arrived at his home five miles north of this village in the third concession of Hillier at midnight Tuesday, residents and combed the countryside.

Mr. Terry's car was found just off the road near the spot where the body was found. The keys were in the glove compartment. He had left his homeby side which is his bedroom.

Police and search revealed no trace of the missing man but about seven o'clock this morning Mrs. Terry, daughter, Mrs. Alyea and Harry Alexander discovered and found the body of Mr. Terry on the lake bottom.

Mr. Terry was a well-known resident of Hillier and the surrounding district. He had farmed most of his life but of late years his son-in-law had taken over the farm operations.

The dead man had been a township assessor and recently was appointed a census enumerator for Hillier. His duties were to have started today.

He was a prominent Mason and a warden of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Wellington. His wife died about ten years ago.

IODE Wants Red Ensign National Flag

By EDNA BLAKELY
Ontario Press Bureau Staff Writer

A resolution from New Brunswick asked the federal government to make the Red Ensign the national flag while making preparations for 1967 centennial celebrations.

During final day sessions, committees of the I.O.D.E. elected Peter L. Robinson of Toronto as national president. Mrs. R. D. Cole of Toronto and Mrs. D. W. McGibbon of Toronto were elected first vice-president and Mrs. G. Chant of Toronto was named secretary and Mrs. A. Neil Gordon national treasurer.

Additional executive members appointed Wednesday included: Mrs. W. H. Blake, Kingston; Mrs. D. Sherwood, Ottawa; Mrs. R. Merritt, Chatham; Mrs. C. E. Reynolds, North Bay; Mrs. Ross Ralph, Brockville.

Delegates agreed to extend their work to the Canadian Indian.

Dr. Fisher Steps Down As Primate

LONDON (CP)—Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the archbishop of Canterbury who holds to 400-year-old tradition by going to Rome to visit the Pope, stepped down Wednesday night as primate of England.

The new archbishop, Dr. Michael Ramsey, now archbishop of York, will be enthroned as 100th head of the Church of England June 27.

During his 16 years as primate, Dr. Fisher, 74, conducted the funeral services of King George VI in 1952 and crowned Queen Elizabeth the following year. He also conducted the services when the Queen, then a princess, married Prince Philip in 1947.

His first public statement on becoming archbishop of Canterbury in 1945 was an appeal for the ending of racial prejudice throughout the Commonwealth.

GOES TO VATICAN

The high spot in his work for better relations among people and churches came last year when he visited Pope John in the Vatican. It was the most interesting between a pope and an English primate since Henry VIII and Clement VII broke with Rome in the 16th century.

Remembered for his outspokeness on issues, Dr. Fisher has been active in life as well as religion, holding membership in the House of Lords.

"I am not a natural writer," says the man whose sermons are written and spoken — have often brought him to the centre of controversy during his years as spiritual head of the Church of England. Roughly quoting, my memoirs would be gossip and one of the evils of the world is gossip, private and public."

Despite his reputation as an efficient and tireless organizer in church affairs, he could not find time for a personal diary.

"I have kept a diary," he said genially after presiding at the final Canterbury meeting. I started it on the day I became archbishop. It lasted about a fortnight."

Pull Air Cadet Unconscious From Pool

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Robert Johnston, 16-year-old air cadet, died early today in hospital here a few hours after he was pulled unconscious from an indoor swimming pool.

The youth had told a friend he was going to hold his breath under water for two minutes. Lifeguard Ann Thompson said she rescued him. He was unconscious. Wednesday night from boarding house in Niagara Falls (N.Y.) Memorial Hospital.

Niagara Falls Boys Club, operators of the pool, said they will investigate the circumstances.

Dr. Donald Johnston slipped and dislocated his right shoulder on Wednesday night while hurrying to his son.

Says Canada Must Have U.S. Investment

OSHAWA (CP) — The president of the Royal Bank of Canada said Wednesday night Canada must depend upon foreign investment to survive.

W. Earle McLaughlin of Montreal, addressing Oshawa, business and professional men at a dinner honoring him, said "that Canada can not grow without United States investment.

"Canada is 40 to 50 years behind the U.S. in development and accumulation of wealth. The welfare state, with its high taxes has hit us while the United States had 40 to 50 years to accumulate wealth."

He said the government should not take action that would discourage foreign investment in Canada. The situation would take care of itself. At the same time, Canada should not reduce its standard of living by trying to live within itself.

T. L. Wilson, publisher of the Oshawa Times, was host for the dinner.

JAMES ADAMSON MILLER

In failing health for the past four months, James Adamson Miller, 81 St. Charles Street, retired CNR engineer, died in the Belleville General Hospital early Wed. this morning.

He was born in Stirling, Scotland, 75 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Miller, and had been a resident here for the past 47 years. He came from Scotland direct to this city. He enlisted in the 1914-18 World War and served with distinction with the Canadian forces for four years. On his discharge he joined the CNR as a fireman, and eventually was a an engineer and for 37 years was a valued employee of the organization. Mr. Miller was well known and highly respected by a wide circle of friends. He retired from active employment in 1950.

Mr. Miller was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and fraternally was a life member of Moira Lodge, A.F. & A.M., No. 141, and a past grand.

He was at Grant Funeral Home, North Front St. The funeral arrangements appears elsewhere in this edition.

ASA (Ace) LLOYD

The funeral of Asa (Ace) Lloyd, Consecon, Ont., farmer, who died suddenly in Windsor, was held from the John A. Bush Funeral Home on Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Gordon Woodcock conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites at Belleville cemetery.

Small Beagle Mothers Five Wolf Pups

A trapper from Black Donald Mine located a wolf den near the Madoc-Eldorado Drive, and with the aid of two other trappers, managed to extract seven young wolf pups from their rouge den forty feet deep in the den.

At first a female black labrador retriever which had just weaned her pups was used but with refusal.

Close at hand was a small beagle with a number of pups which were taken away by hand fed and the five wolf pups placed in their stead. The beagle adopted them without the slightest hesitance.

Saving the pups will be of great importance to the Research Branch of the Department of Lands and Forests in their wolf study program. The wolf pups were taken to Algonquin Park where they will be kept and observations made to gain further knowledge on movements and behavior of wolves generally.

The trapper will be paid an additional $20 for each pup under the regular wolf bounty for the effort expended in bringing the animals to the Department alive.

West Berlin Gripped by Air Of Uneasiness

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BERLIN (CP) — An air of tense uneasiness is evident in West Berlin since the deep in Communist territory on the eve of the Vienna meeting between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

The uneasiness is not confined to West Berlin. It apparently has affected many persons in Communist East Germany, causing a sharp increase in the flow of refugees from East to West Germany.

West Berliners clearly are worried that Khrushchev may issue a new ultimatum that could again cut the city's communications links between Berlin and other Western nations.

Bishop Otto Dibelius, Protestant leader for both East and West Germany, expressed the views prevalent in the Western sector and warned that the Communist must not be allowed to grab the city.

"If the Americans cannot stop the Communists in Berlin and Germany then Europe is lost for sure," he said in an interview with a group of Canadian correspondents.

IN MEMORIAM

CASEY. — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Sadie Bernice Casey, who passed away June 1st, 1952.

The golden gates stood open wide,
When Jesus said "Well done,"
With farewells left unspoken,
And work on earth undone.
Within our hearts we will always keep her memory dear.

A special place she'll ever have,
And no one can take it from us.
As time goes by we miss her more,
And memories are all we have left us.

Sadly missed and ever remembered by husband Russell, daughters and families.

CASEY. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Sadie Bernice Casey, who left us two years ago today, June 1st, 1959.

Two years have passed since that day,
We thought our hearts would break,
To say goodbye to one so dear,
Was more than we could take.

Deep in our hearts there's a pain,
That will never heal or fade,
We miss her,
As we journey along life's way,
But a voice seems gently calling,
Dear ones, weep not for me,
For the end of life's journey is near,
I'll be waiting with patience,
For you dear.

—Sadly missed and ever remembered by husband, Mothers and sisters and families.

FRY.—In dear memory of a loved one and brother, William (Bill) Fry, who passed away June 1st, 1955.

Two years have passed since that day,
Time cannot change them, it's true,
Years that may come cannot take away,
Our loving remembrance of you.

Lovingly remembered by wife Flora, son Bill and daughter Joan.

FRY. — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, William (Bill) Fry, who passed away June 1st, 1955.

Two years have passed since that day,
We thought our hearts would break,
To say goodbye to one so dear,
That we do not think of you.
—Lovingly remembered by Lela and Stew.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to take this opportunity to thank everyone for cards, gifts and visits during my stay in the hospital. A very special thank to the nurses and staff of Dr. Dougan, Dr. Hartt and Dr. Bell and for their very kind attention, also for the many attendants, gifts and cards received from friends.
Anabel Sarcovich.

The family of Lloyd Rose, Pembroke, Ontario, wish to express their appreciation and thanks to the many friends and neighbors for their kindness, sympathy and floral tributes during their recent bereavement. To Rev. Gordon Woodcock for his comforting words of assurance and also to Bowerman's Funeral Home for their kindness and help.

On behalf of my wife and family I would like to express our sincere thanks to neighbors, friends, Horne, the nurses and attendants of Third South, for the great care they rendered to my wife during her stay in the Belleville General Hospital; also thanks to Rev. Gordon Woodcock for his visits and letters and wishing him a speedy recovery.
—Fred Savage.

Foreign Trade Commissioners Visit District

Seven representatives of the Foreign Service Branch of Canadian Department of Trade and Commerce will visit the Quinte District and Trent Valley today and Friday when they will meet with local government officials and visit the industrial community of the Bata Shoe Company. They visit here is largely the result of a recent visit of 25 Bata managers from 17 countries who toured North American industrial centres and spent a day in Ottawa, where they were greeted by Mr. Lee Grillin, M.P. for South Hastings; Prince Minister Diefenbaker, Hon. George Hees, Minister of Trade and Commerce; Hon. M. Starr, Minister of Labor and senior members of the Trade and Commerce with whom they conferred on international trade. Mr. Thomas Bata, president, and Dr. C. K. Herz, vice-president and managing director of Bata Shoe Company, invited the trade commissioners to visit this area as part of their trans-Canada industrial survey tour.

While in this district they are being entertained at several social functions where they will meet members of industrial commissions, boards of trade and chamber of Commerce. The visitors will be assigned to their offices in various countries of the world and diplomatic ambassadorsgoodwill in their positions as assistant trade commissioners.

In Belleville they will meet Mayor Haig, Mr. Lee Grillin, M.P., and industrialists of the Belleville area. They will be luncheon guests in Trenton and dinner guests at Quinte Hotel on Friday.

One of Ontario's Oldest Holstein Herds Sold

One of Ontario's oldest Holstein herds went under the auctioneer's hammer at Oakville on May 30th, when the late Nelcrest herd of N. Craig Nelson, Campbellford, bought a total of 818.- 695 for 55 head, a general average of $339 each. The herd was founded over 45 years C. Nelson in 1905. Several times the Nelcrest herd has been the Grand-junior Breeder and Premier Exhibitor banners at the Northumberland County Fair and Winter Day.

The Birds Hollow School, Birtle, Manitoba, paid the second highest figure of $900 for Romandale Governess, another "Very Good" cow, whose dam is also in the herd.

Francis and Kenneth A. Baker, Kingston, paid $725 for a six-year-old daughter of the noted "Excellent" sire, Willowslope Man-O-War Pabst, while H. H. Campbellford, bought a heifer calf, the daughter of the $925 cow for $375.

Other good prices included $500 paid by Carl Thompson and son, Dunnville, for a milking female; $450 paid by A. C. Nelson, Campbellford, for a milking female; $425 paid by R. H. Pierson, Culloden, Ga., for a milking female; $410 paid by Ralph I. Ford and son, Milton, for a milking female, and $425 paid by R. C. Laning and son, Waterford, Ont., for a milking female.

Twenty-four milking females averaged $389 each; four bred heifers $238; 19 open yearlings $234; five heifer calves $285.

Belleville Livestock

District Firemen Receive Plaudits at Banquet, Praise Mutual Aid Plan

TRENTON — Commendation for the mutual aid system of area fire-fighting and for firemen from the various municipalities which participate in the scheme, was the keynote struck by speakers at last night's annual banquet held in honor members of the Trenton fire department.

Mayor D. James MacDonald of Trenton said that he wanted to "thank personally all those who helped at the time of the fire at the Canada Creosote plant", in the last local and out-of-town firemen had "fought to the bitter end", and that this was an indication of the mutual esteem with which members of area fire departments regard each other.

The mayor commented favorably on the public relations work which has been carried out by members of the Trenton department. He said that the firemen were beginning to realize just what the town and the townspeople meant to the department and that the citizens were becoming aware of the intrinsic worth of the department.

"If all town departments would put into practice what the fire department is doing to do, Trenton would be a better place in which to live", said the mayor.

Councillor Ross Burtt said that he echoed the mayor's praise for members of the Mutual Aid Association. He said that when he was first connected with the department as a volunteer fireman, there was little in the way of equipment. He said that a common experience was that the firemen managed to save the foundation".

Councillor Burtt said he hoped that council would pass a by-law restricting car fires had big fires. He said that with a modern bridge separating the town it was essential that motorists make way for fire trucks. "It's my way anyway."

O. W. Larry, town clerk-treasurer, said he had heard that in the 1961 budget which Councillor Burtt made reference, a common argument at the time of a fire was, "It's my turn to have the axe. You had it last time."

Fire Chief Gerald Vance of Belleville, who serves as coordinator of the mutual aid system, said it gave a municipality security to know that its neighbor was ready to assist when needed.

Group Capt. D. J. Williams, commanding officer of RCAF Station Trenton, said that he was impressed with the spirit of friendship in Trenton. He said that the RCAF was a part of mutual aid and that it was a privilege and pleasure to work with members of the association.

Head table guests were: Fire Chief and Mrs. Cecil Ellis of Trenton; Mayor and Mrs. D. James MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Al Williams of Belleville, Group Capt. and Mrs. D. J. Williams, Miss Marjorie Gothard of Trenton, Fire Chief Gerald Vance of Belleville, Capt. and Mrs. S. Down, O.W. Larry, Councillor and Mrs. Ross Burtt, Mr. and Mrs. E. Boes of Brighton, Fire Chief and Mrs. Harmon Hall of Havelock, Mr. and Mrs. Hearnes of Trenton.

A special guest at the banquet was Mrs. Jesse Baker, whose husband was connected with the Trenton fire department for a number of years before his death last year.

Seek Workshop

TRENTON —Mrs. Betty McMurray and Terry Feduniw of the March of Dimes, Toronto, were in town yesterday exploring the possibility of setting up a workshop where disabled persons could be taught a trade. Miss Eva Morrison, area chairman for the March of Dimes, accompanied the committee members on a search for accommodation for the workshop.

wealth markets and 3.8 per cent in other countries.

IMPORTS CHANGE

Imports during the three months ended March showed changes. There were import declines of 4.9 per cent from the United States and 0.4 per cent from the United Kingdom, and increases of 5.2 per cent from other Commonwealth countries and 12 per cent from all other countries.

Detailed trade figures by main areas for the three months period this year and last, in millions of dollars:

EXPORTS
United States	$671.9	$768.3
United Kingdom	248.6	209.3
Other Commwlth	91.5	105.3
All Others	253.6	244.3
Total	1,265.6	1,291.5
IMPORTS
United States	899.8	940.4
United Kingdom	141.7	142.2
Other Cmnwlth	50.5	48.0
All others	196.0	195.7
Total	1,288.1	1,326.2

Canada's trade deficit with the United States in the first quarter thus rose to $227,900,000 from $172,100,000 a year earlier. For the same period, the trade surplus with the United Kingdom increased to $106,900,000 from $67,100,000. There were smaller increases in the surplus with the other two main areas.

illo was given extraordinary powers to cope with a hurricane that took 2,000 lives and devastated Santo Domingo (capital he renamed Ciudad Trujillo in 1936). He never surrendered that power, and in every election thereafter either kept himself in office or put his brother, Gen. Hector B. Trujillo, in as a figurehead.

Trujillo has spent a tightly dead seven days a week, working in shirt sleeves and piling up personal wealth in the multi-millions for himself, his family and his associates. The Trujillo clique dominated—and profited from—virtually every phase of the country's economic life.

Trujillo insisted he had to be a strongman if the country was to be lifted out of poverty. The Dominican Republic did make great economic strides. The national income rose to $500,000,000, from $7,000,000, the peso stood at par with the dollar and the country stayed clear of foreign and internal debts.

Trujillo was a strong opponent of communism for years. He also made enemies among his Latin American neighbors, with Fidel Castro of Cuba being among the latest. And his iron rule involved the jailing of external plots and threats.

His repressions and slightest internal criticism and his endless arrests finally made the Roman Catholic Church in his largely Catholic country an enemy, too.

A plot last year resulted in the arrests of thousands and stories of his cruelties multiply. Most were released, but at the same time Venezuela's president Romulo Betancourt was accusing Trujillo of masterminding a plot that nearly killed him. The organization of American states broke off with members for political and economic sanctions against the dictator, and Washington broke diplomatic relations, along with most Latin American states.

More recently, as active exile groups in Cuba, Puerto Rico, New York, Venezuela and Colombia talked of invasion, Trujillo agressively: "Brains and beards will fly like butterflies."

a will campaign last summer.

Police arrested 19 persons Wednesday after punching-and-shove scuffles that threatened to turn into riots, bringing to 15 the total arrests since the strike began. The arrests include two contractors on firearm charges.

In one area two construction superintendents were punched and kicked as they tried to get carloads of strikers arrived on the scene.

A barrage of stones was hurled at men working at a development in another suburb.

CLOSED ONE

The raids on housing and apartment building sites were launched by leaders of the walkout after 100 men succeeded in closing a development project in Etobicoke Tuesday. Apartment construction was also halted or slowed in other parts of Etobicoke and in sections of North York and Scarborough.

Spokesmen for the builders, however, maintain that only a small part of the $150,000,000 field has been affected.

A union official said 90 per cent of the workers who walked off the job Monday received less pay than the contracts called for.

Union leaders say many laborers are receiving 90 cents an hour, bricklayers up $2.25 and carpenters $1.40 to $1.90; while top union rates are $2 for labourers, $3.05 for bricklayers and $2.70 for carpenters.

WANTS FEDERAL HELP

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick said in an interview Wednesday night flooding in New Brunswick is "a national catastrophe" and the federal government should come to the rescue." The New Brunswick Disaster Fund has estimated flood damage at $5,000,000. Rivers have caused $7,000,000 damage.

Sales and Ad Club Wins Cup Second Time in Five Years

For the second time in the past five years, the Belleville Sales and Ad Club has won the Canadian Advertisers' trophy for the most outstanding project featuring advertising as an important and essential part of the Canadian economy.

The trophy was presented to the Belleville club at the National Sales and Ad Club convention held last weekend in Ottawa. The club previously won the trophy in 1955-56, and last year was in the runner-up position.

Clubs from Calgary on the west to the Maritimes on the east, representing a membership of over 9,000, attended the convention.

Belleville Sales and Ad Club member Jerry O'Connor, seen above with the trophy, headed up the local campaign which resulted in the win for the Belleville club. During the year the Belleville club had nine speakers representing firms of national importance, address their club while newspapers, radio, television and direct mail were used in the advertising section.

Western Delegates Determined To Discuss Laotian Ceasefire

GENEVA (Reuters) — Western delegates headed into another session of the 14-power conference on Laos today determined to discuss a Laotian ceasefire.

Communist delegates, meanwhile, prepared for the resumption of the conference bent on discussion of a Soviet plan for Laotian neutrality.

The United States, France, Britain and Thailand spent an inconclusive four hours of argument Wednesday stressing that the cease-fire issue must be settled before the conference moves on to other questions.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Georgi Pushkin countered that the neutrality of Laos should be discussed because Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko introduced this proposal on May 17, the day after the conference began.

DANGER OF COLLAPSE

Chief American delegate W. Averell Harriman warned Wednesday that the conference was in danger of collapse if the Communist Pathet Lao forces continue to violate the cease-fire agreement in the Southeast Asian kingdom.

"I submit that it is no longer possible to deny the fact that the implementation of the ceasefire has not been effectively carried out," Harriman said.

But a U.S. delegation spokesman said the United States had no intention of leaving any part of the conference.

The Laotian cease-fire violations were reported Wednesday, making a total of 40 violations by the Communists since the ceasefire was agreed upon last month, the spokesman said.

A Showpiece?

The recent addition of a vintage fountain of rather delightful character to the decorative features of Victoria Park has helped considerably to spruce up the appearance of the entrance to what is probably this city's most delightful showplace during the summer months. A new plank walk on the east side is also a decided improvement. Not only is the park enjoyed by many local citizens but also by many who enter this community over the waters of the Bay of Quinte.

There has been an interesting number of visitors arriving by yachts and boats during the summer. In fact we would venture to say that a very large percentage of our tourist visitors arrive through this medium. It behooves us, as hosts, to be hospitable to these visitors and attend to their wants and needs if we can. This social obligation is paralleled by a commercial aspect, which is to see that those who visit find such facilities as will increase their desire to come again or prolong their intended stay.

To this end we would suggest that it might well be worth while to have electrical and water outlets available at regular intervals along the public docking area for the convenience of our guests.

We would also suggest that the roads in Victoria Park be improved, not only because the road surface at present is in such deplorable condition with innumerable potholes and crevices, but also because the traffic problem is considerable. Last Sunday several over-grown infants, who were old enough to qualify for drivers' permits, proceeded to demonstrate this aspect by "dragging" their autos down the length of the park, raising such a dust cloud as to cover the entire harbor and generally to make very unenjoyable for those who were taking their leisure in the park.

The various conveniences for the benefit of yachting and sailing visitors are also overdue, and should be installed before the summer season wears on, especially with the Lake Ontario Yacht Racing regatta being here in the near future.

The Parks Board is certainly to be complimented for its efforts so far this year in starting to bring Victoria Park up to that condition where it could be the showplace of the community, as it well should be. It is to be hoped that this initial action is but a prelude to greater and better things.

Politics and Politicians

Four Federal byelections were held Monday. The Progressive Conservatives had won all four of these seats at the last general election. In Monday's byelections they held three of the seats, but lost the fourth, in Leeds County, our neighbor a couple of houses removed to the east.

What conclusions are to be reached from these results? Let us listen to the experts, the spokesmen for the three parties represented in the House of Commons.

Said Senator G. S. Thorvaldson, national president of the Conservative Association': "This is the first time in Canadian political history a government in power has won three out of four byelections on the same day." Senator Thervaldson appears to be jubilant. No mention is made of the fact that the Conservatives held all four seats before, that a similar trend in a general election would reduce PC strength in the House to a fraction, that in the three seats the Conservatives did hold their margins of victory were sharply reduced, to the point where in one riding less than a couple of hundred votes separated victor and vanquished.

Said Lester Pearson, national leader of the Liberal party: "The outcome of these byelections cannot be viewed as anything but a heavy rebuff to the government." Mr. Pearson also appears jubilant. No mention is made of the fact that the Conservatives did win three out of four, despite the traditionally recognized fact that byelections, under circumstances such as those pertaining to these contests, provide supporters of the government with an opportunity to register a protest vote without endangering their party's hold on power.

Hazen Argue, CCF leader in the House, said the voting gave no indication of a swing in political sentiment, that the returns were "typical byelection" results. Is Mr. Argue presenting an unbiased view? Possibly, for he was only a fourth as interested as Conservative and Liberal spokesmen, there being no CCF candidates and only one New Party aspirant for a seat in the Commons.

On the whole, though, we are tempted to conclude that these results and the comments they have provoked tell us more about politicians than they tell us about politics.

Letters to the Editor

Says Public to Pay For School Addition

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

"$10 Room Addition to Moira Secondary School Approved to Expand Technical Training at No Cost to Taxpayers."

I feel confident that it was not the intention of The Ontario Intelligencer to convey to its readers the erroneous impression that residents of this community will be receiving something for nothing. The article indicates that the cost of this school addition will be paid by federal and provincial grants. In other words, instead of paying for the construction, which, presumably, is taxes, the taxpayers will be paying for it through income tax, sales tax and other sources of federal and provincial revenue.

This school construction is a necessary and worthwhile addition to our educational facilities, but it is important to recognize that we are paying for it in one form or another.

Public opinion is best influenced to a great extent by the press. Unfortunately, many people do not take the time to read more than the headlines nor to analyze government financing. The press, therefore, has an obligation to ensure that it does not contribute to misleading thinking. I would urge that greater care be exercised in the wording of headlines of this nature.

Gerald J. Hartwell,
45 MacDonald Gardens.

Editor's note—The heading merely implied there was no direct local tax. If the building addition had not be located here, undoubtedly it would have been built elsewhere and Belleville taxpayers would be contributing their share just the same. The city benefits through having the addition here and the residents which we would say is quite an asset.

Wants Life Guard Hired for Fountain

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Along with many other citizens of Belleville, I have been admiring the lovely old fountain which has been reconstructed at Victoria's Park. It was nice to notice also, that a money-saving idea has been developed to circulate the same water and, after observing some of the city's workmen, I met two gentlemen who were enjoying the fountain view. I wonder, to suggest that this money which will be saved, be used to hire a life guard for the next few weeks for that time of the day when the boys have moved down from the home of Ed Thomas' to enjoy their "siesta and appreciation period" before returning to whatever it is they go, at sunset.

Citizens like these are hard to find, and I feel the city should assume the responsibility of seeing that the safety of one of them should happen to fall in while enjoying the view, that he will be rescued to carry on his useful life as one of Belleville's "Day Dreamers".

Some of Rich Cheat, Too

Windsor Star

It is customary to think of crooks as small-time operators who try to live by their wits at the expense of more honest and innocent people. Yet the cheating, on the huge scale, is done by some of the prominent and the wealthy, the most eminent incidents above.

Latest in the line of guilty by Bernard Goldfine, the New England manufacturer who was prodigal with his money with people in high places in Washington. He admitted evading of $700,000 in income taxes.

Here was a man who didn't need to cheat. The magnitude of his income can be deduced by the amount of the evasion of taxes on it (and one can presume he did pay some taxes). Goldfine was living in the way of life to him, and it customary to consider such people be amassed his fortune.

His cheating was not simply taking advantage of loop holes in the law, loopholes the administration is now moving to close by closing the loopholes. The curtailment of deductions belonging to the lower income bracket), I think we should look at the system when it comes to spending or donating sums as large as the above mentioned.

As far as I am concerned, the donation to the Y.M.C.A. is a complete waste of money, as my children will never be able to get to the new site, unless the helicopter becomes a public means of transportation.

What is done with the taxes I will not discuss, but question with me. Each year I pay the amount specified on my tax bill, and I have yet to ask myself: "Would I pay the total amount by cheque without asking him how he arrived at that total?" I think it's time we had itemized bills showing what we are paying for—so much for education etc. etc. And speaking of education, why are thousands of dollars spent on drapes for the school windows when our children are using work book made of paper definitely better, than the cheapest toilet paper. My son brought four of his workbooks home the other day, and there isn't one that I could send to his grandmother without feeling ashamed, ashamed that in this city where we can give away a $75,000 we can afford only the cheapest material for our children to work with. I will conclude with a plea to those responsible for the finances of our city finances. Please supply the necessities, before surrounding us with the luxuries.

Worried Taxpayer.

OUR ONLY HOPE

Almost the last words Jesus uttered to his disciples were, "All power hath been given to me in heaven and on earth." Christianity is power. It is not power, it is not Christianity. Creeds have their place. Certainly Christian service is mandatory for all believers. But above everything else, faith in Jesus Christ gives men power. It gives them the power to surmount their difficulties. It gives them power of mind so that they can live as it is. It gives them that daily uplift and sustenance which causes them to walk with a more sure step than those who have no Christian faith.

Illness lays hold upon a believer. Even a stalwart one sometimes bears up under the grading and paying will soon be completed; the result will be a great improvement, Britton Bros., who are experts in concrete work, are doing an excellent job of their part of the work.

The Pessimist Enjoys Trouble Says Sydney

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Person Prejudices:

It is interesting that Winston Churchill's most famous quotation is almost always given as "blood, sweat and tears," when he really spoke of "blood, toil, tears and sweat." Why has everyone dropped the all-important "toil" out of the memorial phrase?

People often refuse to read serious books because they want to avoid thought; while some others read serious books in order to avoid thought. It is the motive, not the book, that is important in the case of reading.

No man works harder than a woman who has to make up excuses to keep herself busy; a napkin can be exhausting if one has no more consequential object in the day.

The chief reason dictatorships always fail was succinctly put by Disraeli a century ago, when that shrewd Prime Minister observed: "Vote governments ever so long secure without a formidable opposition."

It is mistake to believe that pessimists are melancholy; essentially is the reverse. The pessimist gets more pleasure out of his pessimism than the optimist out of his optimism.

Egotism is never more damaging than when it parades as philanthropy.

When a bad writer wants to characterize the speech of an upper-class Englishman, he has him say "weally" — never yet outside the music halls, I have never heard an Englishman say "veddy".

In our evaluation as statesmen, Wilson and Roosevelt, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, we tend to forget the slimness of their margins of victory.

"Impecably righteous" is a high editor have done more damage to the world than the most "impecably wicked" dictators.

There are optical illusions in time as well as in space; for instance, ask any dozen persons when Joan of Arc was canonized as a saint, and when the "Star-Spangled Banner" was officially adopted as the States' national anthem (The correct answers are respectively 1920 and 1931 for the US national anthem)

The people most careful about not getting their feet wet are invariably those with the driest personalities.

The most difficult and most essential task in a marriage is learning what qualities must be ignored and accepted in the other partner; most unhappy marriages are created by trying to change what cannot be changed.

Everybody has the blood of kings and slaves flowing through his veins; and it is ironic that genealogy, which is the most democratic of subjects, should have become the most aristocratic of pursuits.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DEMOCRACY

Democracy is not a form of government, or a mere series of laws, or an expression of opinions. Democracy is a feeling, a sort of universal expression of the spirit of man, by which a body of heart all beating rhythmically as one.

Where there are those who think considerately of one another, democracy will find democracy.

Every great religion has always had for its basis the idea of democracy; every nation that has contributed notably to history has always given from its success in democracy and in the lasting fame of men or women must rest at last upon their faith in democracy.

The more that you — as an individual — think and act in the interest of others, the more democratic you are sure to become.

Democracy has the power to shine its way around the world. Democracy is the principle of civil stops to add a smile, wherever sympathy is stirred, wherever the principle of peace and the value of human character is exalted, democracy breeds. Having nothing to do with dollars or blood or conflict, democracy for its appeal is universal — to you.

Never will the power of democracy just as soon as, you in your place, in your home, in your community and in the various affairs of life, work with the principles of the interests of everybody — no sooner.

Do you want democracy? You have a big vote in the matter.

To Your Good Health

It's Easy to Rid Dogs And Cats of Pesky Fleas

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My neighbor has been keeping dogs in his basement for the last five years. Last summer she kept the windows open and there were fleas all over my walls. Her cat sat on the mat on my porch and there were so many fleas they even got in the house.

"I was told that 'dog fleas don't get on people,' but according to my health book, 'Although the dog and cat fleas prefer certain hosts, they will attack several hosts, including man. They are dangerous parasites as they are bearers to man of a disease of rodents, the bubonic are around until the weather gets cold, and I dread the coming summer.—M.M.S."

Bubonic fever, a terrible disease, is rare in our part of the world. Fortunately it has a cure for typhus. The common dog and cat fleas are not important carriers of these diseases, but the "Indian rat flea" in India is.

However, the way we keep these diseases under control is by persistent suppression of fleas — and if bubonic fever or typhus ever threatens, we can attack it with everything in our power.

I'm not worried about bubonic plague in the current case but neither will I ignore the presence of a colony of fleas. There are plenty of ways of suppressing them — chlordane, DDT, sodium fluoride, naphthaline, kerosene spray, and bathing of dogs with flea soaps, and keeping basements clean.

Specifically, if trouble occurs this summer, M.D. should write to (or call) the Department of Sanitary Engineering. This happens to be in my territory, and as results, write me. In other cities health organizations will be equally helpful. Don't let things down a buggy condition before it becomes a public health threat. You know: An ounce of prevention . . .

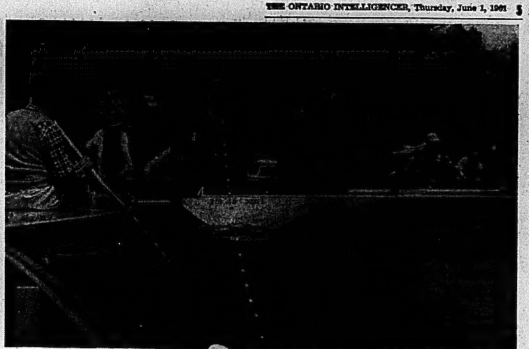
"Dear Dr. Molner: I have read your answers about prostate trouble. I am a man in my casionally for three years. When it is severe, I pass blood. After that I feel better. Is that a sign of cancer? Can it be detected without surgery? — Hank."

Cancer can be a cause. So can stones deep in the interior of the urinary tract. A cystoscopic examination, not a cutting procedure, helps determine the cause, or may tell the whole story. Don't guess—it's a doubt, other investigations which may or may not include surgery, can be made.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Last fall I was told I had slight cataracts. Later one doctor said I should have an operation very soon on one eye, and on the other one a few months later.

"Another doctor said I had "incipient" cataracts, and prescribed drops which he said would retard the spreading and might even diminish it since it is so slight, and that I would not need an operation for at least a year. Both glasses I can read all but the bottom line on eye charts. I am 58. Which diagnosis is correct? — Mrs. M. E. P."

Cataracts develop at different rates in different people. Some cataracts progress so slowly that over a long period they never reach the point of being a problem.



Therefore I am totally unable to guess "which prognosis is correct." For instance, in this instance, the patient can read with glasses, and he says doctor has labelled "incipient", it would seem reasonable to wait and see how far—if at all they become cloudy.

I know of no way to judge the rate of progress other than to have periodic examination of the eyes, as effectiveness of medication for "drops" varies. For some people the drops delay cataracts; for others, there may be scant benefit. It comes down to a matter of how far-sighted for which patient will some delay in the operation be preferable to doing it done soon? I wish there were some concrete answers to such questions, but there isn't.

band was army Gen. Juan Tomas Diaz, who was believed to have had a personal grudge against Trujillo.

Dominican exiles in Mexico City said Diaz was a career soldier whose sister and her husband fled to Brazil last year. But Diaz continued as army commander of the country's central zone, at least until last January.

Communications were broken with Ciudad Trujillo most of Wednesday but were restored Wednesday night. Dominican citizens apparently were banned from leaving the country, and planes from Ciudad Trujillo had many empty seats. A light censorship also appeared to be in force.

Trujillo—hated by the Communists, fighting with Roman Catholics and bitterly denounced by Liberals—has been a storm centre of inter-American relations in recent years.

Cuba's Fidel Castro once charged him with financing an invasion to overthrow his regime but the two dictators were reported lately to have been drawn together by the U.S. opposition to both of them. For years Trujillo enjoyed U.S. favor because of the stability of his regime and later because of the strong anti-Communist stand. But in recent years the U.S. government bowed to the world-wide anti-dictator sentiment in the Americas.

Neighboring Haiti, which shares the island of Hispaniola, put its army on full alert and closed its laterior border. Relations have been bad between the two neighbors since Dominican forces in 1937 killed several thousand Haitians in an invasion.

Trujillo died as he prophesied he would—still a dictator. A little over a year ago he told a reporter:

"You'll know I'm retired when you hear I'm dead."

"We can be the place to which people engaged in crime can perhaps come if they are stirred up in other places", he said.

He said the government was determined that Ontario will never become a haven for those who are in international and interstate violation of the law.

Mr. Frost said that after discussing crime with the states of New York and Michigan he had concluded that Ontario is not a problem to its neighbors. However, he said, the province will never become complacent.

Ontario had close relations with the police forces in those states and no barriers of protocol or precedent need arise since "time is of the essence in these matters."

"We can't afford to go through the diplomatic approach. We're as close as the telephone," he said.

REMOVED STRIKERS

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Two hundred soldiers and policemen occupied the telegraph building early today and forced out 300 operators on strike for higher pay. The strikers charged the occupying force wounded several strikers with bayonets and clubs and arrested between 30 and 40.

A BEAUT — Bob Ramsbottom of the Lands and Forests Department holds up a record-sized large mouth bass (about six pounds) caught during the fish survey, as Peter Littekman pulls another from the trap net. All were returned to the water once their weight, length and scale sample had been taken.

Fish and Game Clubs Shown How Lake Survey Is Made

Close to 50 executive members of some eight Hastings County fish and game conservation clubs were given a first-hand look at, and account of, how the Fish and Wildlife Division of the Tweed District of the Department of Lands and Forests conducted a survey yesterday morning and afternoon on Weslemkoon Lake.

The purpose of the demonstration was to give conservation club members a chance to see exactly how an ichthyological survey of a lake was carried out. Under Russ Whitfield, district supervisor of the fish and wildlife branch, an explanation of the various aspects of the practical procedure involved in a survey was given, as those present were shifted about by boat over the lake to view the various operations at first hand.

The relationship of the various species of fish seen, both to each other and to the environment which the lake has to offer, was explained by Mr. Whitfield. He noted that the information gathered was interpolated to determine the productive potential of a lake for certain type of fish.

NET 7-POUND BASS

Weslemkoon Lake, it was stated, was known as a lake trout lake and, during the afternoon, a number of specimens of excellent quality lake trout were shown those present, as taken from the survey's gill nets. Small and large mouth bass are also to be found in Weslemkoon, however. During the examination of a night's catch in the trap nets a number of both small and large mouth bass were to be seen. The largest was a large mouth bass of 21 1-2 inches in length and slightly over seven pounds in weight. A number of others of the same species ranged around six pounds. The return of these beauties to the water, following a scale sample being taken on each by Peter Littekman, who was in charge of the survey, was accompanied by many groans from the sportsmen present.

The large mouth bass are a predominant species, Mr. Whitfield explained, because of the favorable environment. A large number of small rough fish were also to be noted during the day's activities. It was explained this is due to the fact that no pike or pickerel exist in Weslemkoon to feed on these smaller fish.

Other aspects of a lake survey, a number of which are to be carried out through Hastings County lakes, were also explained. Such factors as a chemical analysis of the water to determine its suitability for various species of fish; a vertical temperature survey to determine the level at which fish are to be normally found, and a survey of the contour of the lake bottom were amongst the procedures described. The various units of equipment used for these operations were also explained and a number were demonstrated.

Amongst the various clubs and areas represented were: The Bancroft District Fish and Game Protection Association; the Marmora Rod and Gun Club, the RCAF Trenton Fish and Game Association, the Frankford Fish and Game Club, the Trent Valley Club, the Old Folks Home Club of long standing, and the Belleville and Madoc clubs.

Those present were welcomed, on behalf of the department, by District Forester Jim Taylor at the beginning of the survey demonstration.

Rare Bird Sighted Near Huff's Island

A heron - like bird (over 20 inches) of nearly pure white plumage with yellow bill and yellow legs and with a pinkish or buff colored streak on top of its head and part way down its back, has been seen on several occasions near Huff's Island in Prince Edward County.

Although there are several birds belonging to the heron family called egrets that resembles this, the only one that fits the description is a "Cattle Egret", a bird of southern climates in the Eastern hemisphere.

Several reported seeing this bird including two well known naturalists. It is hoped that further proof may be obtained from some photos taken of the bird as it fed and rested among some young cattle along the edge of a marsh.

Where it came from no one knows. The Lands and Forest Department, together with other naturalists, are interested in knowing where it has gone.

KENNEDY

in his meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Vienna this weekend.

Kennedy reinforced this impression with a statement Wednesday night that "American forces will remain in Europe as long as they are required, ready to meet any threat with whatever response is needed."

He did not amplify what he meant by response to any Communist threat, but his words implied that the United States would use nuclear weapons if it felt compelled to do so.

CAN'T IGNORE

Kennedy also said that both France and the United States know that "neither ally would ever ignore the alliance" to go off on its own course.

"There is no reason for either nation to dwell on our differences or our disagreements. We have so much that unites us and so great and dangerous a challenge to face together."

Khrushchev has threatened to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany this year, giving control of supply routes to the Allied garrisons in West Berlin to the German Communist regime which the Western powers do not recognize as a valid government. Any East German attempt to interfere with the Allied traffic would produce a showdown on the Allies' rights to remain in West Berlin.

Britain Wednesday joined Kennedy and de Gaulle in their determined Berlin stand. The foreign office reiterated that Britain "cannot and will not acquiesce in any unilateral Soviet action purporting to change the status of Berlin."

West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano, winding up a visit to Ireland, said he expected Khrushchev to make new moves on Berlin soon. He expressed confidence that at Vienna "President Kennedy will put to him in a clear, realistic and serious way the American attitude toward the problem."

HILTZ — DONALD

On Saturday, May 20, at 2.30 p.m. a quiet, but pretty springtime wedding was solemnized in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, by the Rev. R. D. McLean, pastor of the church, when Katherine Donald, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Donald and the late Mr. Donald, became the bride of Reuben Hiltz, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Hiltz, of Hilton Hill, Ontario.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Colin Donald, was attractively attired in blue nylon in street-length with corsage of red roses and matching headdress.

She was attended by Mrs. Mary Lawlor of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, while Mr. Ralph Hapke, also of Belleville, attended the bridegroom. Ushers were Mr. Gordon Abrams, both of Belleville, ushered the guests.

A reception following the ceremony was held in the church lower auditorium where the wedding dinner was served by the church Guild.

Guests were present from Brampton; Hamilton; Coe Hill; Belleville; Eldorado; Halloway and Pembroke.

Prior to marriage, the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Guy Stickle, when tea was served by Mrs. Marion Green and Miss Jean Stickle.

ROBITAILLE — BERRY

Yellow snapdragons and yellow and mauve baby 'mums formed a lovely background in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, on Saturday, May 27, at 11.00 a.m. when the Reverend William McGee, P.P. united in marriage Shirley May Berry, of Halloway, Ontario, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Berry, to Paul Lionel Robitaille, of Belleville, son of Mr. Adelard Robitaille, of Belleville, and the late Mrs. Robitaille.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of nylon over taffeta, featuring a long torso bodice and three-length sleeves, and round neckline outlined with seed pearls and sequins. The skirt was gracefully full and bell-line-length. Her shoulder-length veil of bridal net was held by a pearl and sequin encrusted crown headdress and she carried a bouquet of red roses. A crystal cross pendant completed her ensemble.

Mrs. Fern Donovan of Rossmore, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, was gowned in ballerina-length yellow chiffon over taffeta, featuring a tiered skirt and fitted bodice having a rounded neckline and short sleeves. Her headdress was of white corded ribbon in bow style, with matching nose veil. Her accessories, white, and her gloves in elbow-length. She carried a bouquet of yellow baby 'mums.

The bridesmaid, Miss Judith Robitaille, youngest sister of the bridegroom, wore a ballerina-length gown in mauve silk organza, with full skirt and short sleeves, the bodice having a square neckline. Her headdress was a bow type of white corded ribbon, with nose veil. Her accessories were white, and she carried a bouquet of yellow baby 'mums.

Mr. Jack Donovan of Rossmore, brother-in-law of the bride, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Wayne Miller, of Belleville, was usher.

A reception was held for 50 guests at the home of the bride's parents, which was decorated with pink and white streamers and wedding bells. The bridal table was appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom, and flanked by tall white candles in silver holders. The bridal bouquets added a lovely nuptial touch. Father Mc-

Kinette Club Names 1961-62 Officers

The regular meeting of the Belleville Kinette Club was held at St. Thomas Parish with a good attendance.

The secretary read her report and the treasurer's reports were read by Kinette Ray Brain.

After a nice sing-song two raffles were held. Helen Wilbur won the first with Kinette Ray Brain winning the second.

Following a lengthy business discussion with the main topic being the convention which district convenor Norma Bacon and Kinette Ray Brain are attending the 1961-1962 executive was announced as Norma Bacon — president; Heather White — Secretary; Marilyn MacDonald — treasurer; Rosemary Belanger — registrar.

Kinette Lorene Henderson will be moving to Toronto and will be greatly missed by the club.

President Thelma Stefan reminded everyone that next meeting being the last until fall would be a pot-luck supper held at the home of Kinette Flo Fitchett.

Geo proposed the toast to the bride, to which the bridegroom replied.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a grey & delphanium blue with a full skirt, short sleeves and rounded neckline with white trimmed hat, white gloves and corsage of pale yellow 'mums.

She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Elva Morris, of Pembroke, who was gowned in a pale mushroom shade of linen sheath style with small embroidered flowers, having a fitted bodice with short sleeves and rounded neckline. A dusty-rose hat with matching silk sleeves highlighted by three large matching roses on the crown; matching gloves and corsage of pink carnations; completed her ensemble.

For travelling to Niagara Falls, Wasaga Beach and Penetang, the bride chose a peacock blue tailored street-length dress of velvet, with white hat and gloves, shoes and bag, and pink carnation corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Robitaille will reside in Belleville.

The bride, previous to her marriage, was honored by two miscellaneous showers, one at the home of Mrs. T. C. Young, Bettes Street, with Mrs. Young as hostess, and the other at the home of Mrs. Thomas Wilson, Victoria Avenue, with Mrs. Wilson as hostess.

Holloway St. United W.M.S. Blossom Tea Most Successful

The lower auditorium of Holloway St. United Church was a flower beauty system one afternoon when the Women's Missionary Society spent a delightful hour at "Blossom Tea," under the convenorship of Mrs. Willies Johns, with Mrs. Fred Harrison and Mrs. G. Coulter.

Miniature flowering lilac and apple-blossom trees surrounded by multi-colored tulips in shades of golden yellow, deep rose, pink and white adorned each window ledge; while lovely baskets of the same mingled with white and mauve lilacs, and backed by palm-like Solomon's seal with its pendant white bells, made a pretty background against the pink-beige wall with its vaulting arch to "on the Way, the Truth, and the Life." At the entrance to the tea room, with its wide-open gate and white picket fence, two lovely baskets, one of large yellow chrysanthemums, accented by a wide yellow satin bow, and one of Chinese-pink gladioli, mingled with mauve lilac and white tulips, and flanked by rose-toned candles in crystal holders, while at each end were the gleaming silver services.

Arranged at pleasing intervals were the six-place dark oak tables, each one appointed with pink plastic placemats and centred by a bowl containing a single pink carnation, resting on a rosebud-bordered doily and blue and white insignia of the WMS, which was also repeated by means of cut-out letters in pink adding a further emphasis that this was the WMS tea.

Into this fragrant atmosphere the guests were welcomed by Mrs. W. C. Coleman, Mrs. G. Bertrand, Mrs. T. F. Townsend and Mrs. G. Coulter.

The tea room hostesses were Mrs. F. Harrison and Mrs. W. Johns.

Mrs. W. Phillips, Mrs. P. Parliament, Mrs. J. Corder and Mrs. Willsien Johns acted as treasurers for the afternoon, while Mrs. Ad. Rick and Mrs. C. Smith were convenors of the tea room.

SERVING

Those who served included Mesdames: E. Parker; S. Lough; R. Tobias; C. Ketcheson; Prentice; D. Cook; F. Elgie; A. Campbell; MacDonald; Cavanaugh; F. Westover; Austin; E. Hubble, and Miss I. Reid.

Replenishing the dainty sandwiches and fancy cookies, were Mesdames E. C. Moyse; J. D. Robertson; T. Ketcheson; H. Dixon; W. Oliphant; E. Van Alstine and W. Cameron.

Those who presided at the silver services were: Mrs. D. Way and Mrs. R. Welbourne; Mrs. M. B. Weese and Mrs. E. Titmuss. Those who poured behind the teapots included: Mrs. O. Weese; Mrs. B. Moorman; Mrs. N. Brown and Mrs. E. Bush.

Mrs. F. Wilson was convener of the kitchen, while Mrs. F. Scott, Mrs. Wiley, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. C. Green were engaged in making tea.

DELICIOUS CONFECTIONS

The homecooking table, convened by Mrs. A. Mitchell, assisted by Mrs. H. Grills; Mrs. D. Kingston; Mrs. F. Reed; Mrs. F. Bedell and Mrs. O. White, was adorned by a centre arrangement of pink flowering almond, white lilacs and yellow, white and rose-colored tulips in a green container. Around this in tempting style were the delicious high-meringued lemon-cream pumpkin and juicy cherry pies, square walnut-topped chocolate cakes; raisin-filled cup cakes; dainty tea biscuits and mouth - watering homemade bread and buns; jelly, jam, berry and butter tarts, orange and date bread; and one box of maple cream which became the possession of one-lone man with a sweet tooth. There were also little jars of marmalade, relishes and pickles.

On the variety table there were several African violets in shades of orchid, mauve and deep purple, one of which had heavy, serrated edges, glossy green, resembling those of a begonia. Mrs. Fred Cook and Mrs. R. Joss were in charge of these.

Appreciation is extended to the conveners for a delightful "Blossom Tea," with special thanks to Mrs. K. Parks for a most attractive floral arrangement.

Contact Club Holds Season's Final Meeting

Monday evening the Contact Club held its final meeting of the season in the form of a "Husband and Wife" bowling party. A large group turned out to bowl with the prize winners being: ladies' high single — Irene Fisher; men's high single — Keith Bertrim; ladies' low total score — Mary Duck; men's low total — Don Fisher; ladies' hidden score — Irene Weatherstone; men's hidden score — Herb Ford. Other prizes went to the Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Creegan.

Afterwards, all returned to the parish hall for a delicious supper of salads, cold cuts, cake and coffee.

The tables were tastefully decorated with spring bouquets of lilacs and tulips. Following grace, said by Archdeacon Creegan, president Joan Ford welcomed the members and their husbands.

The traditional "going away" cup and saucer was presented to Shirley Stephens by Dorothy Sinclair.

Don Cresswell expressed everyone's thanks for an enjoyable evening.

Laura Bird and her group merit special thanks for all the careful planning and effort which were necessary to make the final meeting such a success.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. H. B. — My granddaughter's as bad as my daughter — boy crazy!

Gretel W. — She's no boss over me. My mother is, and she lets me out.

Mrs. H. B. — I'm at my wits' end with Gretel. She's 13, and my daughter left her with me four years ago when she and her husband separated. Although Marcia, Gretel's mother, is 32 she acts like 13, herself. I don't know who needs help most, Gretel, Marcia, or me.

My daughter throws off all responsibility. She works a while, then runs through her money wasting it on men. She goes miles to meet her present flame — once or twice a week. money wasting it on men. She She hates me. Three times she took an overdose of pills and almost died.

She pays no attention to Gretel. What am I supposed to do?

Gretel W. — My grandmother has no say over me. My mother's the one, and I only have to do what my mother tells me.

Grandma's forever nagging me to help with the work, to come to church and to go to Sunday School. But it's enough I show up at junior high every day. My mother's satisfied. I don't think she'd care if I flunked, hooky once in a while, either.

I may try it. Some of my boyfriends in the Marines will be in town soon and why waste good time? Since my mother's hardly ever home, why must I be stuck there so much? Grandma scolds from morning to night.

The Council — In defying her grandmother, Gretel is saying in effect, "I'll obey the little man who isn't there." Scorning the pained solicitude of Mrs. B., the child considers herself "directed" by a mother who's irresponsible, disinterested and obviously destructive. We advise Mrs. B. to set the wheels of rescue in motion for Gretel.

For all practical purposes, this adolescent is a neglected child en route to a delinquent ward minor. Her legal guardian, Marcia, seems to have abdicated and is 100 per cent wrapped up in her own sordid and cumulative problems. Past obligations mean nothing to her. And both Mrs. B. and Gretel are "past obligations."

Rescue for Gretel may arrive in various ways. But first and foremost is need for family counselling to show Mrs B. how to "toughen up" and bring her daughter to heel.

It's too bad that "little" problems, with Marcia first and now with Gretel, were permitted to slide until they've mushroomed into complex cases which are explosive and hard to cope with. Working now with Gretel, the social worker may have to consider psychiatry for her. Also, a decision is to the residence and guardianship must be reached in terms of this teen-ager's best interests.

A grandmother can help out when there are targets to set the course. But Mrs. B. can't possibly fill this parental vacuum. And Gretel, torn and confused, can't fill in either. Here is where society, in the form of professional family counselors must step in.

Mrs. B. is alert to the fact that her granddaughter teeters on the brink of disaster. Wisely, she will cease arguing with mother and child and enlist outside aid. Perhaps with strong direction, good examples and progress when the father Gretel has overcome the handicap of a give-birth-and-run mother.

European Inspired Gourmet Dinner

By Mary Moore

With my lovely new daughter-in-law helping me in the kitchen, we prepared a dinner party. Our guests were a married couple — both doctors — who were fellow Internes of Pete's at one point in his career. Lucy, the wife, is an excellent cook of Hungarian food. When we entertain the night I try to steer a middle course, serving food that I know they like, with a European touch.

This was the menu:

Glazed Chicken
Stir-Fried Noodles
Minted Green Peas
Toasted Greens with Sour Cream Dressing
French Coffee Custard
Coffee

This is an attractive meal and sufficiently different to have a few surprises but also enough items familiar enough to you all to entice you to reproduce it.

SUNDAY (Guests)

Glazed Chicken (see Thursday); Stir-Fried Noodles (see Thursday); Minted Green Peas (see Thursday); Toasted Greens with Sour Cream Dressing; Liverpudlian Fruit Tarts (see Wednesday); Coffee.

GLAZED CHICKEN (serves 6 generously):

Simmer two 3-pound frying chickens in 4 cups water. 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 small bay leaves, until tender but not falling from bones. Lift chickens onto a tray and allow to cool sufficiently to handle. Remove the 4 breasts, keeping each in 1 piece. Slip other large portions of meat from thigh and leg bones, keeping each in one piece if possible. Dip 1 cup of broth from the stewing pot into a long shallow baking dish. Arrange pieces of chicken overlapping in broth, neatly. Spread top with this glaze: 2-3 of a 6-oz. can apricot (baby food) puree, 1-3 cup tomato juice, 1-3 cup water, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons arrowroot flour (or cornstarch), 1-3 teaspoon sugar. Mix together arrowroot or cornstarch, and salt and sugar. Stir them into the combined apricot puree, tomato juice and water and cook stirring until thick. Spread smoothly over surfaces of chicken. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes to heat through. Do not allow glaze to brown or dry out by overbaking. With 2 large lifters (and a strong assist from your helper) transfer without disturbing the glaze, if possible, to serving platter and garnish with parsley.

STIR-FRIED NOODLES (serves 6 generously):

These were a smash hit with me.

In very large frying pan melt 2 tablespoons butter and add 1 sliced clove of garlic and one 12-oz. package fine egg noodles — the kind that are the size of a piece of string. Stir over medium-high heat until noodles begin to brown and all are soaked with butter. Add 3 cups of the leftover chicken broth (above) which contains sufficient seasonings for these noodles. Cover and cook until all broth is absorbed. A new and delicious accompaniment for noodle lovers.

SWEETS SWEET FEAT

Use this method for 2 pounds new green peas or 2 packages frozen. Put one of the peas with 1-3 cup hot water, 2 teaspoons sugar and 1 teaspoon salt. Bring just to boiling point if frozen peas are used. Cook about 2 or 3 minutes if fresh. Drain. Add 1-4 cup finely chopped fresh mint and 2 tablespoons butter.

Next week I will give you the recipe for the French Coffee Custard.

W.I. Holds Grandmothers' Meeting

MADOC — The May meeting of the Madoc Women's Institute was held at the library with a good attendance.

The president Mrs. George McCrimmon, was in the chair.

As this was the "Grandmothers" meeting, the roll call was aanse oictures of grandchildren that were placed on a table. If members had no grandchildren they brought pictures of nieces or nephews.

Mrs. A. Balley gave the treasurer's report and Mrs. A. Empey gave some interesting current events. Mrs. E. Moore gave a report on the C.A.C. papers.

Some Stephen Foster songs were sung which brought back fond memories to the grandmothers.

During the business period, it was decided to give a donation to the library and have a cup and saucer shower for the library to be used for the meetings.

The program conveners were: Mrs. E. Moore and Mrs. Emil Wannamaker. Mrs. Moore gave a reading, "Peace Plan". The motto "Count Your Blessings," was given by Mrs. Wannamaker. Mrs. Naylor gave a reading, "Precious Mother", and Mrs. B. Tanner, "Life in Grandma's Day".

Each member was asked to give something they remember of their grandmothers, the answers ranged from grandma's style of dress to grandma's cookie jar. Some grandmas even considered it a sin to whistle on Sunday.

Mrs. Moore gave a reading, "Great Grandmother" and told of women's groups in Alaska which are similar to Institute groups here.

Mrs. Robert O'Riordan, Sr., won the prize for the most grandchildren, she has 17. Mrs. Murphy won the prize for contest.

Mrs. Moore closed her program with a prayer for busy women.

It was decided to apply for the "millinery course".

One new member joined the Institute. After the meeting closed a social half hour was enjoyed with light refreshments and tea being served by the hostess and lunch committee, Mrs. George McCrimmon, Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. O'Riordan.

Miss Eaddie and Miss Julia Lane, Country Home Economist, joined the ladies for tea.

MODEL RELAXES

MONTREAL (CP) — A high-fashion New York model wears slacks and flat heels during her off-hours, even when she dines out. Joan Friedman, interviewed while on assignment here, said the long periods of standing in modelling are hard on the legs. Besides, she said, "I get my fill of dressing up every day at work."

Report Cheating?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—This is really a mess. I had spent the night at a hotel in town with an out-of-town friend whose mother had died in one of our hospitals.

As we left our room to go down to breakfast, the door of the room opposite opened and my brother's wife stepped out with a man. She was supposed to be spending the weekend with a sister who lives in Y——. She looked me right in the eye but didn't speak.

I've seen her twice since, once in my own home, but she simply ignores my knowledge. Should I tell my brother or let her go on cheating? I didn't tell even my husband.—SHOCKED.

DEAR SHOCKED:—I wouldn't touch it with a 10-foot pole.

Anyone who can brazen it out like that can put on innocence and say you were mistaken. Your brother will only dislike you for trying to start something. If she persists in her cheating, it will come out without you being involved.

DEAR DORIS:—I am very fond of a fellow, but there is one thing about him which I do not appreciate. He has a terrific body odor and wears his clothes until they practically rot off his back. Whenever he puts his arms around me, I nearly die from the odor. This makes him feel I don't like him.

How can I tell him this without offending him? Sometimes I feel like saying, "Why don't you take a bath and put on some deodorant, and change your clothes?" I get cold feet every time. I'm so afraid of losing him—DESPERATE T. C.

DEAR DESPERATE T. C.—Do something before you get asphyxiated.

In a salon in London the beauty experts tell the girls frankly: "If you don't bath, you smell!" It's just that simple. People don't smell themselves, so they just have to be told.

As a thank you gift for a special outing, or for a birthday present, if his birthday comes soon, give him a nicely perfumed bath tablet, and a man's deodorant. Tell him you want him to enjoy his daily bath and avoid B.O. The gesture should tell him that you do like him.

St. Andrew's L.A. Sponsors Lilac Tea

STIRLING — On Thursday afternoon May 25th the Sunday School room of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church were artistically decorated with an array of spring blooms.

The tea and bazaar was convened by Mrs. A. Greenley and Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh and was sponsored by St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid.

The entrance was a picture of lovelliness as a large trellis was entwined with lilacs and apple blossoms.

The guests were received by Mrs. K. J. Rooney and Mrs. Earl Fox. Miss Gena Spry was treasurer for the afternoon.

The decorating of the tea room was in charge of Mrs. Don Rodgers and Mrs. E. Cain. The tea table was covered with a linen cloth and centred with spring blooms. At each end of the table were copper tea services with matching candelabra and mini dishes.

Mrs. Roy Eggleton invited the guests to the tea room. Those who poured were Mrs. L. Munroe, Mrs. George Sarles, Mrs. Blanche Reid and Mrs. Duncan Montgomery.

Those serving were Mrs. Carl Bateman, Mrs. Don McIntosh, Mrs. Clarence Rollins, Mrs. Walter Rodgers, Mrs. Robert Cooke, Mrs. George Haggerty, Mrs. James McIntosh, and Mrs. Don Rodgers.

The kitchen duties were in charge of Mrs. Carman Fitchett and Mrs. Cameron Montgomery, and the plates were replenished by Mrs. L. Stevelings and Mrs. E. Cain.

Many guests were in attendance from the village and outside points. The weather was ideal for the lilac tea.

The bazaar was also a success as the guests made their various purchases. The sewing table was convened by Mrs. Norman Ray, Mrs. Harold Jeffs and Mrs. Don Fargey and here were displayed lovely aprons as well as knick knacks.

The candy booth with its variety of delectable goodies was in charge of Mrs. Duncan Montgomery, Mrs. Lloyd Dafoe and Mrs. George Sarles.

The bake table laden with cookies, pies, tarts buns and various other baked good was in charge of Mrs. Percy Craighead, Mrs. George Heasman,

Casual Charm

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The one-piece dress with a two-piece, overblouse look, crops up in many a summer collection.

The dress has a self sash.

Scholarships, Bursaries Totalling $60,000 Approved

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY (CP) — Scholarships and bursaries totalling $60,000 have been approved by delegates attending the annual meeting of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

Bursaries of $1,000 each were approved for 30 students—sons or daughters of deceased or disabled Second World War veterans—entering Canadian universities next fall.

Six scholarships of $2,000 were approved for overseas post-graduate studies by graduates of Canadian universities.

The bursaries from the Second World War Memorial Fund have been offered since 1946 and will continue until 1965. The scholarships perpetuate.

At earlier sessions, delegates approved scholarships totalling $18,000 from the First World War Memorial Fund for nine graduates of Canadian universities for overseas study. Since 1920, 205 such scholarships have been granted. Bursaries from the fund ended some years ago.

GOT THEIR START

"Many prominent Canadians got their start through IODE scholarships and bursaries," IODE War Memorial Secretary C. D. Bennett of Toronto said. Among them are former Immigration Minister John Pickersgill; Dr. A. E. W. Trueman, executive-director of the Canada Council; Dr. Watson Kirkconnell, president of Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., and the late BBC commentator Matthew Halton.

During the 1960 - 61 school term, the order assisted 91 undergraduate students in Canadian universities and four post-graduate overseas scholarships students, Mrs. Bennett reported.

In other sessions, delegates agreed to extend their work to Canadian Indians. A special committee headed by Mrs. R. Douglas Jennings of Toronto is to give an interim report at a national executive meeting in November.

Mrs. Jennings told delegates a degree of segregation does exist between Indians and non-Indians and is based to a large extent "on prejudice and on contempt for the real or imagined educational and economic backwardness of the Indian, rather than on racialism."

COURSE REDUCED

WINNIPEG (CP)—The home economics course offered at the University of Manitoba will be changed to replace the present four-year curriculum leading to the degree of bachelor of science in home economics. Instead, a three - year general course leading to the degree of bachelor of home economics, and a four-year, honors course will be offered.

Large Number View Films Of Africa

MADOC JUNCTION — A good number was in attendance at Eggleton United Church on Friday night, when Mr. H. Putman showed the pictures, which he had taken while in Africa last summer.

The pastor, Mr. G. Dyson was chairman for a program, which opened with the hymn, "In Christ There is no East or West," with Mrs. Bruce Slagry, pianist.

Members of Eggleton Mission Band took part in presenting an interesting little play, telling of the contributions, that people of other lands have brought to Canada.

Mr. Dyson introduced Mr. Putman, who showed the first portion of his films.

Following this, Miss N. Tompkins and Miss Matthews favored with two lovely vocal duets and Mr. Putman continued with the remainder of the films.

The W.A. president, Mrs. William McMullen on behalf of all present voiced appreciation and thanks to Mr. Putman and to all others who assisted on the program.

Mr. Putman had on display several souvenirs, which he had brought home from Africa.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Every generation gets the name it deserves. This one, quite properly, has been labelled the "beat generation." Truth is not final, the good life unattainable because idealism is an empty, trumped-up, phony illusion, so the beatniks proclaim. Therefore, follow us, they shriek: Eat, drink and drive a sports car!

Some of the physical stance of the beat tribe are odd, but revealing: You wear a beard, or what passes for one; in warm weather you must be sure to be wearing gloves and a scarf: a beret is optional, but if balmy; for no good reason, you must spend important hours listening to raucous sounds, pretending to enjoy what passes, these days, for music.

The marks of the tribe are clearly intended to achieve one major purpose: to attract attention in dramatic, non-conforming ways. But the attraction is not too attractive.

The beatniks have turned their backs on society because they are too busy looking in the mirror. Of course, they would deny this, maintaining that if they seem to be looking in the mirror, it is simply because there is nothing to see through the window. The angry young men seem not to be really interested in what is going on in the world. They have lost taste for mankind and are derisive of those who speak of issues largely their own self-seeking.

Most of our beatnik friends have really lost hope in the power of ideas. They refuse to go along with the mob; so they make their own mob and go along with them. Their music is cacophonous, discordant — full of the frustrations and the tragedy of men who have little to say when they should be saying much. Their language is esoteric — invented but inarticulative. They are not really communicating and they don't care if they don't, for no ideas or ideals are really worth transmitting. They show disdain or unconcern for morality, preferring the anarchistic nihilism of "who cares, anyway?" In the name of personality we are witnessing the moral decay of a large number of young people.

The tragic element in all of this is the fact that rebellion, of itself, can be made into a sacred instrument. When this happens, men are liberated from their bondage to others and from self-debasements, as well. But when you refuse to pour moral content into your meaning, you are no longer capable of becoming free. On the contrary; such rebels without a cause are but slaves to their own selfish passions. For the many imperialisms of society they have falsely substituted the dictatorship of the self. When they proclaim that God is dead, all truth vain, idealism a hollow fraud, they are really saying that only they are alive, and only their momentary passions meaningful.

But the morning dawns after the night, and in the clearer light of day, the shadows are dispersed. And that which appeared lovely in the dark, is ugly and sordid in the shining light. The sun also rises.

Too many of our younger people are living without a commitment in the world — to the world. They have no desire to give back to society some of the things they have taken. They lack a vision and a hope. They are rebelling against the world without contributing to it.

We need rebels — rebels with a vision and a social passion. We need idol-smashers — iconoclasts who do not stubbornly cling to their own feet of clay for the gods of clay. We need healthy realism; clear-eyed vigorous criticism, open-minded self-assessment.

But we can do without the vanities and morbidities, the anarchies and confusions of the bleating beatniks. They cry out against the world. But they have not yet learned the meaning of pain. Their hearts are not really aching: they have a belly-ache, and not much more.

They need to grow up, to learn how to sacrifice; what not to sacrifice. They are thinking of today. They should be planning for tomorrow.

Problems, Policies of Post-War Germany Discussed at U.S.G.

Members of the Women's Study Guild, who usually furnish their own programs, were treated to a talk on "Problems and Policies in Post-war Germany" by Mrs. R. G. H. Cunningham, recently returned from a three-year sojourn in Bonn, Germany. The meeting was held on Monday evening at the home of Miss J. Tickell, Church St.

During the business session, under the chairmanship of Mrs. K. A. Fleming, a donation was made to the Unitarian Refugee Fund and plans were made for the club's annual out-door meeting in June.

Mrs. McDowell led a worship service on the "messages of the lily", stressing those of beauty and of God's love and care.

The program talk given by Mrs. Cunningham was so informative and interesting that, without the aid of pictures or other properties, the Guild members were held spell-bound throughout a resume of geography, characteristics, politics and problems of post-war Germany.

FEDERAL REPUBLIC

The speaker pointed out that West Germany is a federal republic and as regards Germany was united only in 1870 by Bismarck's policy of "blood and tears", there are definite distinctions in the nine lander or districts.

In the north are Schleswig-Holstein; the great cities of Hamburg and Bremen; Lower Saxony and Westphalia the latter being the industrial centre along the Rhine and Ruhr Rivers. Soest, where the R.C.A.F. is stationed is in a fascinating and historical agricultural district within this industrial zone.

North Germans are inclined to be "dry". South Germans are much gayer and more friendly.

The southern is the picturesque part; magnificent with the Rhine, the vineyards, the castles, and Oberammergau.

Personal characteristics have resulted from adaptation from training to respect authority, military power and education. A great love of children and strong family ties and a love of the land are also noted.

A love of tradition with its celebrations does not however keep the people bound by tradition. New churches, for example, may be of extremely new architectural designs, but the rebuilding of a church with a historic significance follows faithfully the exact style.

"Hard-working" is an understatement in describing the people. Work seems to be an obsession or attitude of mind. The materialistic attitude seems a dangerous trait.

The speaker missed a certain freedom in the people. It felt the people to have all the negative features. They showed a terrible conformity in manners, clothing and houses.

The political situation was explained by discussing four strong men, Chancellor Adenauer, Professor Erhardt, Franz Josef Strauss, and Willy Brandt.

Under Adenauer, Germany emerged from a conquered nation to complete acceptance in the family of nations in six years. He is a middle-of-the-road party, Christian Democrat both Roman Catholic and Protestant, with definitely Christian ethics. Adenauer has Realpolitik; is a convinced democrat who does not believe in war. For reason he is called the "Old Fox". He really wishes for a close European union but in 1933 this prospect was thrown out by France. Under Adenauer, Germany has paid enormous sums to Israel for refugee reparations.

ECONOMIC RECOVERY

Professor Erhardt is the man most responsible for the marvellous economic recovery of Germany from a ruined nation in 1945. Fifteen million refugees from East Germany have entered the country. There is no unemployment. The standard of living has risen, though housing is still a serious problem. Welfare services come in one packet, such that out of a wage of 100 marks, 30 marks are paid for social services. The Volkswagen enterprise has been denationalized and shares sold to ordinary persons. Krupp works are still much in operation.

Franz Josef Strauss is much feared in France as a probable successor to Adenauer as head of the Christian Democratic Party. He has built up the army and is inclined to be more belligerent and aggressive.

Willy Brandt, mayor of Berlin, has accepted alliance with the west. He has courage, conviction because during the war he went to Denmark and became a citizen there.

"How deep is democracy in Germany?" Because of present prosperity there is political apathy among the people (as in Canadians).

"Can democracy stand any pressure?" The great emotional pull of East Germany tends of course towards the unification of west and East Germany.

After this comprehensive talk, many questions were asked and informally discussed.

ATTENTION TO DETAILS ASSURES CALM WEDDING DAY

I have attended three large, formal weddings in the past two weeks. My only reaction has been to wonder why so many things are done the hard way, with resultant confusion to the bridal party itself, and to the guests.

The following are a few warnings to the brides who will walk down the aisle during the month of June. They are small details, but if they are not planned ahead of time, your wedding will not be the perfect thing it should be.

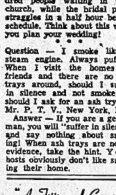
It is very important to make sure that the time element is carefully planned. For example the Sexton of the church should be ready at least an hour and a half before the service is to start. The florist should have the bridal bouquet, those for her attendants and the boutonnieres for the men at the church at least an hour early. One of his assistants, or the florist himself, should stand by to make sure everything is complete.

Why is this so important? I well remember one wedding where the florist found, to his horror, just before the bridal party started down the aisle, that he had neglected to make a bouquet for the little flower girl. He did show fortitude in the emergency, however! He rushed around and grabbed a posie here and another there from the bridesmaids' bouquets, snipped a piece of ribbon off one and made a passable bouquet for the child. But, as a result, everyone started down the aisle thoroughly disturbed by the uproar.

Another pitfall to avoid, is not getting the ushers "to the church on time"! They should all be there one hour before the ceremony is set to begin. Many of the invited guests will arrive early, to be sure of getting a good seat. It is extremely bad if no one is there to escort them. The best man, who of course is with the bridegroom, should appoint a "head" usher to make sure there is no slip-up here.

Another "little" detail that means a lot, is arranging well ahead of time for the arrival of the cars that are to take the bridal party to the church, and from there to the reception. The drivers should be briefed as to the exact time they should be ready and waiting.

To fall in with this, someone (a relative or friend) should be designated to make sure the bridal party is ready to get in the cars when they are supposed to! Not an easy job sometimes, in all the excitement.



Why do I stress these points? To avoid keeping several hundred people waiting in the church, while the bridal party struggles in a half hour behind schedule. Think about this when you plan your wedding!

Question — I smoke like a steam engine. Always puffin'! When I visit the homes of friends and there are no ash trays around, should I suffer in silence and not smoke, or should I ask for an ash try? — Mr. P. T. V., New York.

Answer — If you are a gentleman, you will "suffer in silence" and say nothing about smoking! When ash trays are not in evidence, take the hint. Your hosts obviously don't like smoking their home.

Scholarships, Degrees Awarded

MADOC — With the end of the college year, many fine results to some Madoc and surrounding neighborhood students, have been noted.

Douglas Rollins Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson of Queensboro, has graduated from Queen's University with a Bachelor of Science degree, and first class honors in physics. He received a $1,800 scholarship from Shell Oil Company to continue his studies along these lines and to work for a Master's degree.

Mr. and Mrs. George Moorcroft of Sidney are being congratulated on the accomplishment of their son Mr. Boyd Frederick Moorcroft of Belleville, who received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Queen's University. Mr. Moorcroft is at present on the staff of the Brentnor School, at Trenton Air Station.

Miss Pamela Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Baker, received her B. Sc. degree in nursing at the University of Toronto. She received first class honors.

E. B. Burnside, a member of the Animal Husbandry faculty at the Ontario Agricultural College has been awarded one of the three scholarships presented in Canada by the Agricultural Institute of Canada. The scholarship, which is valued at $3,000, is given to outstanding young Canadian agriculturists to enable them to continue their studies outside of Canada.

Mr. Burnside who is an O.A.C. graduate of 1959, will study animal breeding at North Carolina State College under Dr. J. E. Legate, a well-known specialist in this field. He obtained his Master's degree at O.A.C. in 1960 and will be working toward a doctorate at the American College. He has also been awarded an assistantship at the

Mrs. Kennedy Gets Hair-Do For Banquet

PARIS (AP) — A leading French hairdresser gave Jacqueline Kennedy what he called a "gothic Madonna" look Wednesday night, clipping more than an inch from her locks and pinning a tambourine-shaped wigpiece and a dazzling diamond high on the back of her head.

For tonight's state dinner in the Hall of Mirrors at the Palace of Versailles, the hairdresser, Alexandre, said he would style Mrs. Kennedy's coiffeur in keeping with the scene, a style of the period of Louis XIV.

Four diamond flame clips will give her a "fairy-like air," Alexandre said.

Mrs. Kennedy changed her wardrobe plans and appeared Wednesday night in the pink and white straw lace gown she had originally intended to wear to Versailles.

North Carolina College.

Three Art Club members of the Madoc Art Centre who had been chosen to display their pictures at the Toronto Central Library Exhibit have received scholarships to continue their art studies. They are Margaret Connor, first prize; Margaret Wright of Ivanhoe, second; and Vera Burnside, third. Their scholarships entitle them to attend the Summer Art School held every summer at the Madoc Art Centre, Highway No. 7.

WILL PROBE WATERS

KINGSTON (CP) — Thirty-five Toronto skindivers from the Underwater Club of Canada will probe the waters of Deadmans Bay this weekend for relics from British warships sunk off Kingston in 1917. The search will concentrate around the remains of two known wrecks, believed by some to be the Prince Regent and the Princess Charlotte, part of the British fleet of the War of 1812 sunk under terms of the Rush-Bagot agreement which prohibited the keeping of large naval forces on the Great Lakes.

FROST

Mr. Frost said the new accent on technical and vocational training arose from the fact a large proportion of young people have "spluttered in technical and business things." He described the situation as trying to fit "square pegs in round holes."

Mr. Frost said the program could amount to an expenditure of $100,000,000 during the next two years. Although the federal agreement does not expire until March 31, 1963, he said school boards have been advised they must complete their plans by the end of 1962 so "we'll have three months to pay the bills."

A new building, now on the drawing boards, will be constructed to train the additional teacher staff needed to teach in the trades schools.

Mr. Frost said the new and enlarged technical and vocational facilities will provide up to 30,000 additional places for students.

Mr. Starr said only 15 per cent of the students who enter high school complete Grade 13. He added that industry is having difficulties in finding young people trained to suit modern jobs and skills.

Expansion of Toronto's Provincial Institute of Trades, including facilities on a new site, is estimated to cost $4,000,000. The trade schools in Ottawa and London will cost $3,000,000 each and the school at Sault Ste. Marie $2,000,000.

Estimated cost of the expansion at Ryerson Institute, Toronto, is $8,000,000; the Eastern Ontario Institute, Ottawa, $2,000,000 and the Northwestern Ontario Institute, Kirkland Lake, $200,000.

Mr. Roberts said applications have been received from more than 50 communities for establishment of new technical and vocational training facilities in connection with high schools or enlargement of existing technical schools to accommodate. About 30 of these communities have now previously established technical courses.

Specific approval has been given already to the following:

A new Marlborough High School, Port Arthur, for 1,200 students, costing $2,170,000; Ontario Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, for 150 students, costing $254,847, and a new Wilsonia High School at Baldwin, for 980 students, costing $1,346,- ing tonight" for the Niagara Falls club, the Vets Club at Cooksville and an unnamed establishment at St. Catharines, all in phone calls with the use of code names.

OPP SQUABBLED

He said there had been haggling over bribe money among Wright and Constables Cergan, Lawrence and Kenneth Leonard, the alleged middling scene to which Scott is attached. The two latter officers resigned from the force shortly after Wright was arrested about a year ago. No charges have been laid against them.

Lawrence particularly, he said, had complained that Wright had no business getting part of what at Belleville since he no longer was on the gambling squad.

He said McDermott told him he could "cut Lawrence and Lamarsh of without a nickel if they continued to be so aggressive." McDermott said he owed a debt to Wright for past work and "we just don't cut a guy off like that."

The double agent said he received his payoffs from Wright. He told of $1,002 in installments —and that McDermott, at one time had suggested "perhaps Wright was not giving me all I was entitled to."

Besides saying that Wright told him he had made $50,000 which said the police officer told him last year he still had at least $30,000 of the money. He also told of sending a suitcase to a bank vault in Toronto.

"I said I'd like to make $30,000," Scott testified. "He said, 'you'll make it.'"

Scott said McDermott in one rambling phone conversation got into a discussion of a "plan" which appeared to have no connection with the case but which McDermott described as a syndicate that fixed horse races and "turned in bets all over the United States and Canada on the fixed races."

FEARED INQUIRY

On another occasion, he said, McDermott "expressed his fear of a royal commission on payoffs." In this connection, he quoted McDermott as saying:

"I'm getting too old and don't want to spend any five years in jail."

In another one of almost daily phone calls over a period of weeks, McDermott had told him that "one of our officers was looking after Wright's matter" described only as Flamingo, Sammy Balzam and Petrych-enko.

Later, Scott said, Lawrence had told him he and Lamarsh were "were supplying protection to Wright's gambling patches (police - protected bookies) at Fonthill."

Lawrence had told him he and Lamarsh were getting $200 - a-month apiece for gambling club spots but "had some difficulty getting money from the patches."

Feeley's name barely entered into Wednesday's evidence except at the close when Scott told of finding mining literature and materials in Feeley's Toronto apartment. McDermott's home and the Cooksville club.

Also the officer told of searching the home of a David Romkowski — otherwise unidentified —and finding a group picture of McDermott, Wright and Felix Borelli, whom he "had seen more than once at the Niagara Falls club.

TO OUR FUTURE CUSTOMERS:

Having been employed in the car business for several years, one fact has been established foremost in my mind, the repeat customer is the most important asset any business can have. To get and keep a customer is probably one of the biggest problems any business is faced with in today's competitive markets; but it is a must.

The competitive market I mention is a fast moving market and most businesses find it hard to meet. We think we have the answer and it is simple. The average buyer wants the best car at the best price and at terms his budget will meet; and that is what we are out to do. Ninety per cent of our cars will come from the larger cities but every one will be bought on its individual merits and we will be able to retail it at a price and with terms that will still give us the profit every business needs and after all profit is necessary.

We hope, as does any new business that we will be successful, and we fully realize that our future depends on our reputation. We will strive to build our reputation on sound business practices with fair and honest dealings.

When in the market for your next car, we will appreciate your dropping in and giving us a chance to serve you and allow us to look forward to you as a repeat customer of the future.

Yours Sincerely

C. M. BURNHAM

MELROSE

Mrs. M. English Heads Census Takers in South

MELROSE — Preparations are now about completed in District 534A of Hastings South for the 1961 Census of Canada, which begins June 1. Mrs. Muriel M. English, Melrose, is the census commissioner for the area, which includes the townships of Thurlow, Hungerford, Tyendinaga, the Indian Reservation, the town of Deseronto and the village of Tweed.

The enumerators for the township of Thurlow are: Mrs. Pearl Clasie, Mrs. Bertha Atkins, Mrs. Helen Priest, Mrs. Zorza Bough, Mrs. Margaret Ketchenon, Mrs. Marjorie Gray and Mrs. Kathleen Ewing. In Hungerford the canvassers will be Mrs. Doris Lawrenson, Mrs. Elsie Elliott, Mrs. Alberta Purvis, Mrs. Margaret Young and Mr. William Marsh. with Mrs. Ruth Crawford and Mrs. Phyllis Thurston enumerating the village of Tweed. In Tyendinaga township Mrs. Marion Harvey, Mrs. Mary Scott, Mrs. Myrtle Vivian, Mrs. Lois McMechan and Mrs. Dorothy Glass will be collecting the required facts. Mr. Albert Maracle will enumerate on the Tyendinaga Indian Reservation and Mr. Sidney Brown and Mrs. Eleanore Schell in the town of Deseronto.

When these census takers call on you this June, they will carry credentials in the form of a card issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and signed by the census commissioner of the census area.

Each of the enumerators is under oath not to reveal any information about any individual, under penalty of fine or imprisonment or both.

The farmers have received, through the mail, a copy of Form 6. If they would complete this form or leave the necessary information at their residence, much valuable time would be saved for themselves and the enumerators. Please co-operate.

Business Leaders Present Views on Tariff Bill Now Being Studied in Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—Two of Canada's biggest electrical manufacturers said Wednesday they are prepared to move into new lines of production as the strength of the federal government's controversial "class or kind" tariff legislation.

This was disclosed by the Canadian General Electric Company Ltd. and United Northern Electric Company Limited as the Senate banking committee began detailed examination of a provision in the bill granting the national revenue minister arbitrary powers in certain tariff decisions.

The committee heard briefs by the Canadian Exporters Association opposing the legislation and submissions by the Canadian Manufacturers Association and the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association supporting it.

J. H. Smith, president of Canadian General Electric, and G. Sarsfield, managing manager of Northern Electric, told the committee of production plans they hope will be realized on the basis that they will be able to receive favorable tariff protection under the "class or kind" legislation.

CHANGES DEFINITION

The bill would change the definition of imports considered to be of a class or kind produced in Canada. On many types of imports, especially machinery, higher tariff rates are levied if they fall within this class. Such definitions now are made by the tariff board, with its decisions subject to appeal by importers.

Under the bill Revenue Minister Nowlan would have the final say in some factors in deciding whether competing imported goods are approximately of a class or kind already made in Canada. He would be able to make such a decision, subjecting such goods to a higher tariff rate, with his ruling not being subject to appeal.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Samis were members of a delegation representing the Electrical Manufacturers Association. Its brief to the committee in support of the legislation proposed for the minister was similar to one presented by the manufacturers association.

The two briefs complained about the length of time it takes industry to obtain decisions from the tariff board.

Mr. Smith said Canadian General Electric and other firms are going to move into production of steam turbo-generators priced from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 each.

WANT PROTECTION

But, he said, his company could not move into this advanced new technology without protection of tariff legislation.

Mr. Samis said his company has plans to produce a product not being made in Canada and was prepared to build a $6,000,000 plant that would employ some 2,000 workers. He said he could not disclose the nature of the product in front of competitors or reveal where the plant might be built.

He indicated the project would not go ahead without approval of the tariff legislation. Northern Electric hoped it could receive the legislative minister that the product was of a class or kind not made in Canada.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Samis said they were prepared to accept the risk that the minister might decide that a product he then planned to make were of a class or kind made in Canada. This would mean that imports of similar goods would not be subject to the tariff rate.

They made this statement after the association's president renewed their objection to the lack of an appeal from decisions of the revenue minister.

The exporters association opposed the bill on grounds that it will lead to increased rates of duty on a substantial volume of goods now imported duty-free.

R. D. L. Kinsman of Montreal, president of the legislation will result in other countries boosting tariffs against Canadian imports.

Sir John A. Macdonald's Home to Be Historic Site

OTTAWA (CP) — Sir John A. Macdonald's old grey stone Victorian home will be declared as a national historic site next Tuesday, the 70th anniversary of his death, an informant said Wednesday.

The house, now owned by the United Kingdom government as the home of its high commissioner to Canada, stands high on the banks of the Ottawa River a mile down - river from the Parliament Buildings.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker is scheduled to unveil two plaques, in English and French, recalling the greatness of the man which was bought by the British government from private sources in 1890.

The house and its wooded grounds, known as Earnscliffe, were bought by Canada's first prime minister during his later years. He died there in June, 1891.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who has made a notable collection of Macdonald papers and mementos, is expected to say he proposed a new boundaries. The seats became vacant last year with the death of two Progressive Conservative members.

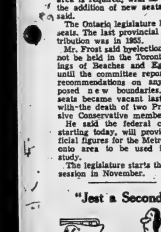
He said the federal census starting today, will provide official figures for the Metro Toronto area to be used in the study.

The legislature starts the next session in November.

Redistribution Of Seats Will Be Studied

TORONTO (CP) — A legislature committee will be established to study the redistribution of seats, Premier Frost said Wednesday.

He told a press conference all areas of the province will be considered in relation to population changes since the present study would be made of the Metropolitan Toronto area, representing about one - quarter of Ontario's population.



"It is very obvious that a complete redistribution of the area is required, with the addition of new seats," he said.

The Ontario legislature has 98 seats. The last provincial redistribution was in 1953.

Mr. Frost said byelections will not be held in the Toronto ridings of Beaches and Eglinton until the committee reports its recommendations on any proposed new boundaries. The seats became vacant last year with the death of two Progressive Conservative members.

He said the federal census starting today, will provide official figures for the Metro Toronto area to be used in the study.

Lions Vote To Join Int. Association

KINGSTON (CP) — Delegates to the annual convention of Ontario Lions Clubs, Ontario-Quebec, voted Wednesday to withdraw membership in the International Association of Lions Clubs (Canada).

Canada and Mexico are the only two nations with separate charters to govern Lions' activities within their borders.

The vote was cast after the majority of delegates expressed the opinion the Canadian association was getting too "high hat."

The Canadian group has been clashing over policy with the international organization for years.

Under the laws of the Canadian charter it was impossible for the international to revoke it. This left the decision with the 34 members, whose district is the only one to have its boundaries completely within Canada.

Delegates elected Trio Coffin of Sudbury as governor. International directors as sessions ended. He succeeds Fred William Tweney of Toronto and Jammie Johns of Frankford.

Assoc. Requests Canadian Probe Of Drug Prices

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. A. Wilson Plumptre, president of the Consumers Association of Canada, said Wednesday the price of drugs in Canada is one of the highest, if not the highest, in the world.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Quebec English-speaking branch of the CAC, she urged all members to write individually to the department of national health and welfare asking for a full-scale investigation of drug prices in Canada.

Mrs. Plumptre also urged members to request the control and drugs d'ere to rate to increase its staff.

An increase would permit enforcement of legislation — now lacking in adequacy because of lack of staff—requiring household products containing harmful ingredients to have this fact clearly stated on their labels, and would also permit stricter control of food additives.

Delegates adopted a resolution requesting the federal government to form a committee to "ensure standardized labelling of textiles . . . in order that the consumer be furnished with accurate in f o r mation regarding their use and care.

No Standard For Police to Judge Drivers

NORTH BAY (CP)—There is no standard by which a police constable can distinguish between careless driving and impaired driving at the time of the offence, the annual convention of the Ontario Provincial Constables' Association was told here Wednesday.

Without a standard to judge the drinking driver, the police constable can only make a decision that could well be "erroneous," Chief Constable John D. Burder of Sudbury said.

Delegates u n a n i mously approved a suggestion by Chief Constable John Scrubb of Fenelon Falls that convicted drivers of two offences, even if they concern one of drunk and one of impaired driving, be considered a second offender.

Under present legislation, a man must be convicted twice on either charge before being considered a second offender.

The proposals will go before the executive of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police when they meet in Halifax later this month.

About 250 delegates attended the convention.

Chief Constable Garnet McGill of Cookville, president of the association, praised Magistrate Johnstone L. Roberts of Niagara Falls for his work in the establishing a police college in Ontario and also expressed the association's gr i tude for the work of the police training committee which includes John Fatrick of Kitchener.

Attorney-General Kennedy Intercedes for Riders After Being Stranded in Alabama

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)— Attorney - General Robert Kennedy interceded on behalf of "Freedom Riders" after they became stranded in Birmingham, a bus company official testified Wednesday.

However, a Kennedy aide, John Seigenthaler, denied that the justice department was working with or helping sponsor of the rides.

This testimony Wednesday preceded a request for a temporary restraining order that will prevent several pro - integration groups from interfering with interstate travel. The motion was filed with U.S. District Judge Frank Johnson who is hearing a justice department demand for an injunction to order directing Montgomery police officials to provide protection for interstate bus passengers.

Earlier, Greyhound Bus Lines and one Klan group were discussed in Montgomery federal court.

Delegates elected Trio Coffin of Sudbury as governor. International directors at sessions ended. He succeeds Fred William Tweney of Toronto and Jammie Johns of Frankford.

Unemployment Not Beyond Control of Man, Director Of Congress Tells Council

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment is not a "natural affliction beyond the control of man," the Canadian Welfare Council was told Wednesday at the opening of its annual meeting.

Max Swerdlow of Ottawa, director of education for the Canadian Labor Congress, said its solution called for a "bold break with old philosophies and present practices."

He did not think that lack of education was a problem because of lack of staff—requiring household products containing harmful ingredients to have this fact clearly stated on their labels, and would also permit stricter control of food additives.

Delegates adopted a resolution requesting the federal government to form a committee to "ensure standardized labelling of textiles . . . in order that the consumer be furnished with accurate in f o r mation regarding their use and care.

WAR SPREADS

INGERSOLL (CP) — The Western Ontario gasoline price war spread Wednesday to Ingersoll, where dealers dropped the price of standard grade gasoline to 31.9 cents a gallon from 39.9 cents.

Four Albanians Are Executed At Belgrade

BELGRADE (Reuters)—Four Albanians, including a soviet-trained former vice-admiral of the Albanian navy, have been executed for trying to overthrow the regime of Communist leader Enver Hoxha. It was reported today.

Radio Tirana, from the Albanian capital, announced that the four were executed Wednesday. Appeals for mercy had been rejected.

They were former vice-admiral Temo Seiku, 39; Tahir Demi, former chairman of a district Communist committee; Avdyli Resuli, 50, described only as "official," and Maiti Mane, 46, an "ex-officer."

The Albanian Supreme Court last week sentenced the first six other men guilty of belonging to an anti-state conspiracy that planned an armed uprising last autumn with the aid of Greece, Yugoslavia and the United States Sixth Fleet.

They received prison sentences of 15 to 25 years on five.

It passed no sentence on the 10th who was said to be ill.

New Party Wants Byelection in Toronto-Beaches

TORONTO (CP)—A telegram was sent to Premier Frost Wednesday demanding a provincial byelection be held in Toronto Beaches to fill the vacancy created by the death of Conservative MPP Dr. Dana H. Cowling.

The telegram was signed by Fred Drake, chairman of the Beaches New Party by-election committee, following a speech by Premier Frost Tuesday night to his campaign workers.

Mr. Drake said he spoke of a delay in the Toronto - Eglinton riding following the death of former Conservative MP William J. Dunlop.

"The intervention of Premier Frost has reached a new high in the contemptuous manner he has treated the people in previous elections in Beaches and Eglinton," said Mr. Bullock.

"His excuse that the byelections are being postponed because of the Dominion census and the redistribution of electoral seats is as phony as a $4 bill."

Mr. Bullock said the premier is "scared stiff" to call the byelections "after brooding on the New Party victory in Peterborough and the trouncing the Tory candidate took in Leeds yesterday . . ."

Explosion Rocks Paris Suburb, 10 Are Killed

PARIS (Reuters) — A huge bomb opened up in the ground in a Paris suburb today, wrecking more than 25 buildings and killing an estimated 10 persons.

Many more were injured and several were still buried in the rubble.

An area of about three-eighths of a square mile was rocked in the suburb of Clamart. The subsidence was accompanied by a violent explosion but officials did not know whether it preceded or was caused by the collapse.

Twenty-five houses, a ceramics factory and a three-storey building were destroyed. About a dozen workers were feared buried in the rubble of the factory.

HOUSES CRUMBLED

One worker at the factory, Georges Chalmin, said "there was "a terrible rumbling in the ground" and the houses around me began to subside and fall to pieces."

A cavity appeared in the ground. It stopped only a few feet from me.

Hundreds of rescue workers tunnelled feverishly to reach the entombed men while priests comforted relatives held back by police lines at the fringe of the area.

Many persons clambered to safety just as their houses fell apart and collapsed into the 80-foot-deep hole in the ground.

Want Vessels To Put Waste In Containers

HALIFAX (CP) — Canadian municipal officials don't like vessels to dump waste in inland waters. He said they could be backed to dump at metal containers.

Some 700 delegates at the annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities Wednesday passed a resolution asking the government to change the Canada Shipping Act to that effect.

The conference also asked the government to:

Force Crown corporations to pay municipal taxes instead of making grants.

Exempt municipalities from sales and excise taxes.

Assume full financial responsibility for homeless and uncomployable indigents.

Mayors and municipal officials also voted to ask the board of Broadcast Governors, the CBC, and the big farm football union to televise Big Four games on the CBC network.

Games this year are scheduled to be televised on a private network.

Brendan Behan Again in Jail

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Irish playwright Brendan Behan was in an isolation cell at police headquarters accused of disturbing the peace.

Officers picked up Behan, 38, after a fracas Tuesday and Wednesday after Manager Jerry Hentzel ordered him out of a beer, Brentari told police he arrested the playwright after he started carousing and acting disorderly in the restaurant.

Patrolman Jack Brown said he was beaten by Behan after he was ordered out of the restaurant.

Said Brewer:

"He acted like a character out of one of his plays."

Car Hits Bridge, Five Are Killed

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP)— Five young people were killed Wednesday when their car ran out of control and smashed into a stone bridge over the Black River.

Two other persons in the car were injured.

The St. Clair County sheriff's office said the car was overturned out of an S curve just ahead of the bridge about 12 miles northwest of here. Police said the car plowed into the bridge.

The group was reported on the way home from a dance or a party.

MAY TAKE VOTE

BRANTFORD (CP) — Brantford may soon have a referendum to decide whether a municipal arena should be built, Mayor R. B. Beckett said Wednesday. A special civic centre committee has been unable to agree on a decision.

26 Canadians Catapulted Into Ranks of Well-to-Do By Holding Winning Tickets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three horses flashed across the finish like at Epsom Downs Wednesday catapulting at least 26 Canadians into the ranks of the well-to-do.

The big-money winners, scattered from Nova Scotia to British Columbia, were among more than 1,000 Canadians who will share in an Irish Sweepstakes jackpot of $5,208,000.

Temporarily h i d d e n behind pseudonyms, most a p p e a r ed calm when questioned about the windfall. A few said they would quit their jobs. Some spoke about extended vacations. But most had their minds on paying off debts and providing for their children's education and their own retirement years.

Not all the lucky ones could be reached. Friends or relatives explained that a few were avoiding the s e s s a r e b e s i e g e d and fan-seeker friends.

Five will collect $137,500 apiece for their winning tickets. Fieldum, the chestnut - colored 7-year-old gelding.

Bill Pickerill, a Vancouver jeweller's mechanic, will receive $137,500 because he bought a ticket from Mrs. Elsie Howarth and Olive Dobson with whom he jointly held a ticket.

Ross Douglas Campbell, a retired 77-year-old Vancouver man from Dartmouth, N.S., said he and his wife will travel a bit but would not start spending hastily.

WILL QUIT JOBS

Two Ottawa area winners said they would quit their jobs. Athlete Mooney, 31, a Ottawa court clerk, will retire if he receives $15,000 more. He and a Hull lawyer offered him $5,000 Tuesday for the ticket but he refused.

An Ottawa working mother, Mrs. Betty L. Hoyle, 35, said she has given notice to the treasury department where she is a bookkeeper.

The $50,000 second-place money will enable each of the 20 winners in this category to receive $2,500. Mrs. Rita Lefebvre, Avagelos Bardouniotis, a 31-an-hour bouseman at a London, Ont., hotel, said he will share his relatives, then try to become priest of the Greek Orthodox Church.

Joseph Russe M a z k o f f, 51, said he will continue to operate his snack bar at 's farmers' market in Toronto in the mornings and work as a beverage room waiter afternoons.

News of the win came to Mrs. Sally Phillips of Keswick while she was in Toronto for a regular cancer check-up. Her husband, Stanley, is a construction worker.

One Torontonian remained incommunicado after getting the news. A daughter of George Evans, 58-year-old machinist, said he "went mooning" with his wife, saying only that he would "keep in touch."

Violence, Terror Worst In Portuguese Colony Of Angola in Africa

By DAVID GANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The Portuguese colony of Angola has been racked by a reign of violence and terror dwarfing anything yet produced by the seething African cauldron.

Portugal is faced with a full-scale—national uprising, probably encouraged and assisted from the outside. She is responding with an unequivocal program of ruthless repression and reprisal.

Diplomatic reports reaching London suggested that a chunk of northern Angola — an area bigger than Portugal itself—is gripped by a chaotic lawlessness, even worse than that experienced in The Congo.

The International Red Cross at Geneva reports that at least 40,000 persons have crossed the Angolan border for the dubious sanctuary of The Congo.

CASUALTIES HIGH

No official figures are available on the number of dead and injured in this secrecy-shrouded conflict. Published estimates are that at least 1,000 Europeans and between 30,000 and 50,000 Africans have been butchered since the fighting erupted more than two months ago.

This is only the beginning. Now that the spring rains have ended, the Portuguese campaign can be expected to gain in intensity.

Portugal has flown or shipped between 15,000 and 25,000 troops into the colony, to quell the rising. Rebels will be tightened, resources will be diverted, in a desperate bid to crush the insurgents as quickly as possible.

The government of strongman Premier Antonio Oliveira Salazar is determined to use all measures at its command to hang on to the colony the Portuguese settled before Canada was discovered.

"We are facing a terrorist action which cannot be dealt with by classic methods of defence," said Professor Adriano Moreira, Salazar's recently-appointed overseas minister.

"This will require the mobilization of the entire population."

RICH TERRITORY

More than a sentimental attachment to Angola motivates the Portuguese determination to hold on to the colony.

Angola is the economic backbone of Portugal. This land of plains, equatorial swamps and semi-desert elephant grass produces coffee, diamonds and other minerals. These bring in the money that underwrite the homeland's marginal economy.

Without Angola, the Portuguese would be plunged into a poverty more acute than that the majority now know.

What caused the current wave of terrorism?

The Salazar government took many steps to ensure that its rule in the territory would not be imperilled. The surprise is not that the trouble came at all, but that it did not come sooner.

Angolan Africans who worked in South African and Congolese mines brought back new ideas. These spread, but the authorities did little to meet these newly-acquired desires of the Africans.

BLAME AGITATORS

When this reporter visited Portugal several months ago at the time of the Santa Maria incident, Portuguese officials invariably blamed the troubles on agitators and criminal elements operating from The Congo.

Many, recently, British newspapers quoted officials as reporting that Russian and Czech arms—along with Ghanaian soldiers—had been captured.

But the extent of the revolt and the fact that the invaders frequently are joined by sympathizers inside the territory suggest that the African wind of change, fanned a little from the outside, is starting to rip through Angola.

Until recently, repressive measures seemed to be the whole of Salazar's African policy. Now there are reports of hastily-drafted social and economic reforms designed to increase the opportunities for the Africans' personal advancement.

The proposals are not believed to include any political or constitutional measures that would give Africans any greater say in running their own affairs.

At home, as in Angola, the 72-year-old Salazar is trying to stick to the motto that has guided him through three decades of rule.

REMAINS STRONGMAN

"Stand firm," he has been in the habit of saying in times of trouble.

He did this when some of his ministers were plotting a palace coup, and it crumpled like tissue paper. Salazar still seems to be firmly in control.

The ministers of defence, the army and other leaders of the armed services presented the prime minister with an ultimatum to hand over power to a junta. Salazar, who had wind of this, in turn gave them all 24 hours to resign.

This they dutifully did, thus discounting the idea that the army was the one power capable of overthrowing the Prime Minister.

This leads some observers to conclude that the chief threat to Salazar now comes from the small and immensely wealthy group of businessmen and financiers who have gained most from his regime.

ENEMIES JAILED

No public opposition party is allowed. The press is heavily shackled; the secret police ferret out those who publicly express dissent and all members of the Assembly support the government.

The Communists have a tightly-knit organization with an unknown amount of support, but it is considered unlikely that they could in the foreseeable future whip up enough support to oust Salazar.

This leads to the conclusion that if it becomes evident the present Angolan policy will bring disaster, the business men who now support Salazar might move against him.

The experts, however, don't shrug off the idea that such a development would produce the crack that would shatter the whole of Salazar's system.

'New Look' in Penitentiaries Aimed at Reducing Number Of Repeaters in Prison

By KEITH KINCAID
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DORCHESTER, N.B. (CP)—An ex-convict in for a new stretch behind the cold stone walls of Dorchester penitentiary might have trouble recognizing the place three days. But he probably won't complain.

Aim of a new look being given Canada's penal institutions works out as well as its designers hope, he won't be back for a third term.

Instead of facing the depressing routine which long has marked life in a maximum security institution, he probably will learn a useful trade by day and spend his evenings watching TV or engaging in recreation.

Or he may be chosen for a minimum security farm camp soon to go into operation outside the walls, or a minimum security training camp at Springhill, N.S.

Similar changes, announced last fall by Justice Minister Fulton, are under way in all federal penitentiaries. Penal authorities hope in this way to prepare prisoners better for life on the outside and ultimately to cut down on the number of repeat offenders, more than 50 per cent by the latest available statistics.

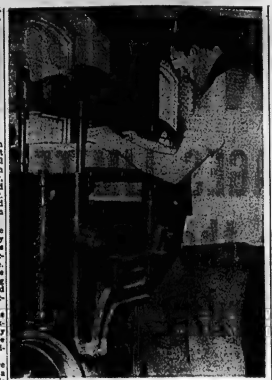
NEW APPROACH

The John Howard Society, a prisoners' aid organization, says the program shifts the emphasis from punishment to reform and rehabilitation.

The chief innovation is that prisoners spend an eight-hour day in a controlled training program. Previously a prisoner was occupied, for example, in the prison shoe shop where he performed virtually the same task daily. Now he learns the entire trade.

One result has been that employers have visited the penitentiary looking for trained help. One manufacturer of orthopedic shoes has offered jobs to anyone who can learn to make these shoes.

Equally important, says Warden C. E. Deslrosiers, is that prisoners are learning to work for a full day—as they are expected to do on the outside.



CHANGE FOR CHARACTER

Inside the walls a large industrial trades building is being built. Scheduled for completion this fall, it will house a sheet metal plant, a carpentry school and painting shop. Trades such as tinsmithing, tailoring, cooking, drafting, bookkeeping and plumbing already are operating. But new facilities are needed to handle the new emphasis on vocational training.

A farm camp outside the walls also will be completed by fall. It will house 100 prisoners selected on the basis of character and interest in agriculture. They will work on the 600-acre prison farm, eat in a dining room, sleep in dormitories and be free of many of the restrictions of life inside.

Warden DesRosiers says the public's attitude towards ex-convicts is changing, largely because of the work of the John Howard Society and similar organizations.

"We find that more and more employers are willing to take a chance on a convict but it is important that the man be prepared for what he will face outside. We feel that our new program goes a long way towards doing this."

PRISONER LEARNS TRADE — In the shoe shop of New Brunswick's Dorchester penitentiary a prisoner learns a trade. Canadian penal authorities hope such training will better prepare convicts for their release and decrease the number of repeaters. (CP Photo).

REDUCED VOTING AGE

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)—Denmark in a referendum Tuesday reduced its voting age by two years thus giving votes to about 125,000 citizens aged between 21 and 23. The vote was 481,360 to 478,882 in favor, but only 37.2 per cent of the total electorate turned out.

GETS NUTRITION AWARD

GUELPH (CP)—The Borden Award of $300 for research into nutrition was presented Tuesday to Dr. Donald Fraser of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto. The presentation was made at the annual meeting of the Nutrition Society of Canada.

CRUELTY CHARGED

NASHVILLE (CP) — Bryan Cain, 23, was charged Tuesday with causing unnecessary cruelty to animals in the death of 27 cattle. Humane society officials found two bulls, 19 cows and six calves dead in his barn near this community about 30 miles northeast of Toronto.

Creative Arts Flourish In Area of Busy Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Hemmed in between a busy traffic artery and two big hospitals in the heart of Toronto lies a tiny area where the creative arts flourish.

The Village has been home and workshop for decades for painters, sculptors and craftsmen in many fields.

Squeezed between Bay Street and University Avenue with its towering hospitals, it is an area as different in temperament and outlook from the rest of the city as oil is from concrete.

A straggling collection of gaily painted houses and shops, it occupies two 4-flat blocks on the north side of Gerrard Street.

Junk dealers', horse - drawn wagons trundle across it. Motorists chafe in traffic jams trying to get through it. Window - shoppers stroll along its narrow sidewalks, peering at landscapes, costumes by dress designers, antique furniture and coffee shops with pottery on display.

At one corner is a sculptured figure entitled Mother and Daughter, standing outside the studio of Pacline Fellow, who has lived and worked in the Village since 1945.

BEING CROWDED OUT

The Village has gradually shrunk in size as new buildings and parking lots encroached. And its existence is threatened now by tentative expansion plans of the Toronto General Hospital and the Hospital for Sick Children, its big neighbors.

The two institutions are reported to be considering taking over part of the Village's territory next year.

Does this mean the end of the Village as an entity?

Many of the 30-odd families who live or work there, or for whom it is home as well as workshop, hope not.

"We knew the Village was reported doomed but we moved here in early spring anyway," said Mrs. Solveig Westman, who runs a handicraft studio with two associates.

"For 10 years I've wanted a store here—just because of the atmosphere. It's like no place else in Toronto."

STREET OF CONTRASTS — A piece of sculpture and a junk dealer's wagon provide a sharp contrast on Gerrard Street in the heart of Toronto's so-called Village area. The Village is a straggling collection of houses and shops in the mid-town Gerrard-Bay area. A mecca for artists, The Village may disappear in 1962 when several blocks are taken over for hospital expansion. (CP Photo).

Sculptor Pauline Fellow is too much the same. Here—— diagnosed an early death for it echoed that view. "I don't like —and live on to flourish in the suburbs," she said. "Everybody the economic doctors who have born. The Village may yet surprise shadow of its hospital neigh-

Danny Thomas Mentioned

New Owner for Chisox?

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Ta comedian Danny Thomas is a prospective owner of Chicago White Sox of the American League? Public statements on the question differ.

Thomas said Wednesday night he and a group of associates have acquired an option to buy controlling interest in the White Sox from Bill Veeck.

But Veeck, in Chicago, said he has no knowledge of any option. A denial was also issued by A. C. Allyn, Jr., a director stockholder of the White Sox who said "no option was signed."

Thomas, advised of these reactions to his announcement, indicated strongly that he wasn't kidding.

"It was supposed to be confidential. I was told by my associates in Chicago that the option was signed, but I have not seen it."

Thomas added that he felt a premature release of the story would not hurt his chances of buying stock in the club. But he said it would hurt Veeck if said.

The initial announcement by Thomas, here for a nightclub act, said Veeck was ill and planned to take a rest of six to eight months.

The comedian expressed admiration for Veeck and said the would be welcomed back to the White Sox if he wanted to return upon regaining his health.

Thomas said the plan was to acquire 54 per cent of the Sox stock from the Veeck group.

"I can handle it alone," Thomas said. "But I'm actually in this for the romance . . . everything started for me in Chicago."

Chicago lawyer Bernard Epton was mentioned as one of Thomas' associates.

"There's so much money being thrown in, it's funny," he

Now There's A Little Grey Cup

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian Rugby Union and the Shriners' Al Azhar Temple has established the national junior football final as a Little Grey Cup with games alternating yearly between East and West.

Ted Brooks, potentate of the Al Azhar Temple, told a press conference Wednesday the Shriners plan to hold the finals played in the West at Calgary, site of Al Azhar headquarters.

First junior final under the agreement will be held here Nov. 25. The Grey Cup game will be played in Toronto Dec. 2. An alternating pattern will be followed on the junior final, as in the Grey Cup game, so the two games are not in the East or West the same season.

BURNS DOWN $1,200,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Trainer-breeder Jack Price said Wednesday he had rejected an offer of $1,200,000 for Carry Back, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness favorite to become the ninth triple crown winner in Saturday's Belmont Stakes. "A syndicate he won't identify came to me this morning with the offer," said Price. "I told them what I've told the others. Carry Back is not for sale at any price."

Mayors Will Make Request

Ask CBC Grid Coverage

HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities will ask the Board of Broadcast Governors, the CBC and the Big Four Football League to telecast Big Four football over CBC stations.

In a resolution approved during the annual conference, the federation, the BBG and CBC were asked to make "whatever facilitating arrangements" may be necessary to telecast the games.

Games this year are to be shown over a private television network.

The resolution said there are many regions, served only by the CBC, which will not see the games.

Delegates also passed a resolution asking the federal government to investigate reasons for deficiencies in Canadian international competitive athletic endeavors.

The same resolution asked the federation executive to discuss with the federal government the feasibility of creating a fund which would provide facilities and training for athletes taking part in international competition.

PLAN RETURN BOUT

LONDON (AP)—Johnny Caldwell of Northern Ireland, new holder of the European version of the world bantamweight boxing title, agreed Wednesday to a return fight with France's Alphonse Halimi in London next fall. Promoter Jack Solomons announced the bout will be at London's Wembley indoor stadium Sept. 26 or Oct. 31. Caldwell took the title from Halimi with a points victory over 15 rounds Tuesday night.

First Interform Event

Moira S. S. Track Meet

Yesterday saw the close of athletic activities at Moira Secondary School with some 220 boys taking part in the school's first interform track and field meet.

Eleven events were run off in four different age groups as all boys vied for individual honors and to add points to their class total.

High aggregate winner in the juvenile group went to Steve Wentits, as he posted second place finishes in the 100-yard dash; 880-yd. run; 1-mile run and the hurdles for a total of 29 points.

Ron Faulkner was the junior winner, collecting 28 points with first places in the 100-yd. dash; 440-yd. run; 880-yd run and broad jump. Right behind Ron was Rod Glen who picked up a total of 26 points.

The intermediate winner was Rod Bisker who also posted a perfect score of 28 points by placing 1st in the hurdles; 440 yds. run; high jump and hop, skip and jump.

Closest race of all for individual aggregate winners was in the senior division as Bob McMartin nosed out both Larry Potter and Bill Vermilyea for top honors. Bob picked up a total of 22 points, 1 ahead of both of the other boys. Bob gained his win by placing 1st in the hurdles; 1st in the hop, step and jump, 2nd in the hop, skip and jump and tying for 2nd in the pole vault.

Juvenile — 9H — 56 points; 9C — 45 points; 9C — 27 points.

Final standing in the Junior School were 10C — 53 points; 9H — 56 points; 9E — 49 points; 10D — 42 1-3 points.

Final senior school standings were G12B — 112 points; T11C — 57 points; G11A — 37 points; G12A — 33 points.

Sullivan Likes New Boss

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — George (Red) Sullivan, New York Rangers' captain, Wednesday welcomed the signing of Doug Harvey as the National Hockey League club's playing coach.

Sullivan said here that Harvey, all - star defenceman with Montreal Canadiens, "has enough of the ball to do both jobs and will be an asset to the team. He still has two of three years left as a player."

The Tracks

Conn Smythe's colt managed to defeat Cut Steel by only a head and his time of 1:39.4 for the mile was more than three seconds off the track record for the distance.

Corporal Bingo finished third. Two other highly - regarded Queen's Plate candidates — Flashing Top and Tumbling Wreck — finished fourth and last, respectively, in the five - horse field.

Jammed Lucky paid $3.40, $2.80 and $2.30. The winner combined with Cut Steel for a quinella of $22.

The daily-double paid $34.30 as Hot Decree and Grand Passion won the first two races.

WINS FOOTBALL CUP

BERN, Switzerland (Reuters) — The Benfica soccer team of Portugal broke the Spanish stranglehold on the European Football Cup when it beat Barcelona 3-2 in a final here Wednesday night. Benfica is the first team outside Spain to win the cup.

500 Winner Picks Up $117,975

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)— Young A. J. Foyt picked up an extra $6,575 today — a personal gift from owner Tony Hulman of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway that rounded out the total purse for Tuesday's 500 - mile race at an even $400,000.

The total purse was a record, and so was Foyt's winner's share, hiked to $117,975 when Hulman announced his gift at the victory dinner Wednesday night.

The prize list originally had stood at $392,925, but an Indianapolis meat packing firm added $500.

The first place winnings topped by $7,975 the money won last year by Jim Rathmann. The total purse was $30,850 more than the $369,150 paid out in 1960.

The total purse included $30,000 in lap prizes at $150 a lap, raised by private subscription, and $67,825 posted by accessory firms. The driving crews received merchandise prizes worth thousands of dollars.

ELDORE WINS FIGHT

MANILA (AP)—Flash Eldore of the Philippines, world junior lightweight champion, won a unanimous decision over Giordano Campari of Italy in a non-title, 10-round bout Wednesday night. Both weighed 134 pounds.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Trim, ready and champing at the bit, Canada's unlimited hydroplane world champion "Miss Supertest III" will defend her Harmsworth Trophy laurels on Prince Edward's Long Reach next August.

Out of the fog of withdrawals, arguments, $40,000 bets and whatnots has emerged at least one volunteer United States challenger.

JIM THOMPSON

Chuck Thompson, of Detroit, owner and driver of "Miss Detroit," winner of the President's Cup last year, is the first of a list of twelve Allison-powered American hydroplanes to signify an intention to attempt to bring back the Harmsworth to the United States.

Thompson is the first to answer a questionnaire sent to American hydroplane eligibles by the Yacht Association of America.

"I can assure you we can meet all the Harmsworth requirements regarding ownership, construction and power plant and I agree, if selected to represent the United States over a course of competing dates, to have "Miss Detroit" and the best crew available, ready to challenge for the Harmsworth Trophy in Picton on August 5, 7 and 8th," said Thompson.

Meanwhile Jim Thompson, owner of "Miss Supertest III" is not letting any barnacles develop on the sleek hull of his world champion.

"We have no idea what the Americans will come up with, or what they plan to do, but you can rest assured 'Supertest,' Bobby Hayward and the crew will be ready to defend the Harmsworth for Canada," Jim told me via long-distance telephone this morning.

And as an afterthought he added "Successfully."

"Supertest III," her mighty power-plant motivated lovingly by Rolls-Royce Scottish engineers a short time ago, is being tuned and exercised by her crack driver Bobby Hayward.

At the moment the world champion with her elder sister "Supertest II" are undergoing tests and trials at Sarnia. "Supertest II" is being readied to race in Detroit on June 24.

"Will 'Supertest III' be the same mechanically as when she defended her title last year," Jim was asked.

"We are planning to test two minor mechanical changes in both the champion and 'Supertest II'," he said. "If they improve the boats, they will be used. We won't know until certain tests are made."

Jim, a crack hydroplane driver in his own right, will help test the craft. "We cannot afford to take any chances regardless of what the experts say, or what the Americans bring over as a challenger," he said. "We must eventually meet all conditions. Above all we want to retain the Harmsworth."

Bobby Hayward went to Scotland where the Rolls-Royce Griffons were overhauled by the parent company's expert, engineers. Their terse comment at the finish was "She is ready."

While it looks as though the Harmsworth Races will be more or less a certainty for Picton's International Regatta on Civic Holiday, it should not be taken for granted "Miss Detroit" will be the challenger.

The Yacht Association of America will probably receive more applications from eligible craft and it will be up to it to make the first selection of the United States representative. They will probably defer a final decision until after some topflight American hydroplane events have been held.

They realise with "Supertest III" as good if not better than last year, any American challenger faces a terrific task. For, as Roger Harvey J. McFarland said once, "We have the boat, the driver, and the centre."

Commodore Jay Sprague of the Prince Edward Yacht Club, and his International Regatta committee, especially the Harmsworth division, cannot be blamed for not acceding to earlier American requests to change their original dates.

For years from 1910 to 1959 the Harmsworth Mahomets from England and other nations have been coming to the American mountain.

It is the prerogative of the Harmsworth Trophy holder committee with the approval of the British Gift Trustees, to set dates and make arrangements, course, etc., by which challenging nations must abide.

The Prince Edward International Regatta Committee set the Civic Holiday dates for the Harmsworth Races unaware of the fact the Seattle Sea Fair was scheduled for the same time.

However the cooler heads of the Yacht Association of America, knowing the prerogative of the holder nation, is co-operating to the fullest extent and it looks now like the famous "rooster tails" of international hydroplane competition will again are their lacy sprays above the placid waters of the Long Reach come August.

HAVE NO WORRIES

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts, one of the richest clubs in Canadian professional football needn't worry about red ink this year. Officials of the Big Four League club announced Wednesday that the season ticket subscriber list has reached 18,000, an all-time high, with nearly 2½ months to go before the 1961 schedule opens. The previous high was 16,537 last year.

SAXTON-JUDGED SANE

MAYS LANDING, N.J. (AP)—Former welter weight boxing champion Johnny Saxton was adjudged Wednesday sane enough to stand trial for criminal charges against him. The 30-year-old Saxton has been in the state mental hospital since April, 1950. A few days before he was committed, he was charged in a burglary at an Atlantic City store.

Double M Homer Heat Fires Yankees

Mick Hits Round 14

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

It's still "Dial M for Murder" with New York Yankees.

Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, one-two in the American League home run race when the New York ran off with the flag last year, have come alive again, powering the Yankees along for seven victories in their last 10 games. And with the front-running Detroit Tigers suddenly gone cold, they couldn't have picked a better time to get hot.

Between them, Mantle and Maris have hammered 10 home runs and have driven in 20 runs in those 10 games. Maris has had only nine hits in 32 at bats in the 10 games, but six of them have been homers. Mantle, 9-25 while dogged by injury in the same span, has hit four home runs—good for seven RBI—in the last three games.

They were at it again as the Yankees regained third place, 1½ games behind Detroit, with a 7-6 victory at Boston Wednesday night. Maris drove in three runs with a homer. And Mantle put it away zapping a five-run double in the 9th and taking the AL lead with his 14th home run.

Fifth - place Kansas City spilled Detroit 6-4, handing the Tigers their fifth defeat in seven games and giving their lead to two games over rain-idled Cleveland. Chicago White Sox dropped Baltimore to fourth place, beating the Orioles 9-4, but played in the earlier as Los Angeles Angels after losing 13 in a row set Minnesota 5-3 in 12 innings at Washington.

STOKE THE TIE

Maris, who edged Mantle for the 1960 most valuable player award by three points after hitting 38 home runs to Mantle's 40, reached 32 place in the third inning off Elder Billy Muffett (9-3). He then drove in two runs in the fourth ahead of Mantle's winning shot.

Rookie Leland Sheldon won his first in the majors, although he gave up a homer by Frank Malzone, who drove in three runs for the Red Sox, and needed late relief by Luis Arroyo and Danny McDevitt. McDevitt nailed it with one pitch, fanning Vic Wertz to hit into a game-ending double play with the tying run on third.

The As made it two in a row over the Tigers and handed ace Frank Lary his second straight setback to boot. Joe Pignatano had four of the As' 13 hits, a homer, a double and two singles; drove in their first three runs, and scored the go-ahead run on Dick Howser's double when Kansas City broke a 3-3 tie with three in the seventh. Joe Nuxhall (3-1), like Pignatano a Tiger discard, was the winner with relief help from Bill Kunkel after giving up home runs by Chico Fernandez and Steve Boros.

Al Smith's one-on homer triggered a three-run third inning rally wrapped up the White Sox first victory over the Orioles in seven tries. Jim Landis also homered for the Sox, who had managed just one run in their last 24 innings while losing nine of 10. Frank Baumann (2-4) was the winner with his first complete game of the year, Chuck Estrada (2-4) was the loser, giving up five runs on four hits and four walks in 2 2-3 innings. Both clubs had 10 hits.

The Angels, whose only other road victory was a 7-2 decision at Baltimore in the season opener, finally beat the Senators on a walk and Ken Aspromonte's tie-breaking double in a two-run 12th. The Mets had tied it 3-3 with an unearned run in the eighth after blowing a 2-0 lead. Southpaw Ted Bowsfield (1-1) of Penticton, B.C., was the winner and Marty Kutyna (3-1) the loser, both in relief.

Beat Dodgers, Giants Win

Cincy Red-Hots Steaming Along

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

What has put Cincinnati on top in the National League race? It boils down to a matter of pairing relievers Jim Brosnan and Bill Henry with one of the Reds young starting pitchers. When each does his job, the other does.

The Reds have won six in a row at the moment for a share of first place with San Francisco and Henry, a 32-year-old lefty, and Brosnan, a 31 - year - old righthander, have combined to save four of those six victories.

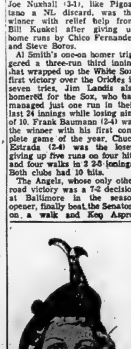
They did it again as the Reds pulled out an 8-7 victory at Los Angeles Wednesday night as Henry sautling out one Dodger rally, in the eighth, and Brosnan nailing it in the ninth for starter Joey Jay's sixth straight success.

That matched the Giants' 3-2 afternoon victory over St. Louis and kept the two far first, while dropping the Dodgers a full game behind in the three-way scramble for the lead.

Pittsburgh shook off a slump with a 9-1 victory over Milwaukee and Warren Spahn and Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia 5-4.

The Reds blew three leads at Los Angeles before Henry and Brosnan moved in. A two-out single by Leon Wagner became the winning run in the ninth, after home runs by Gene Freese and Don Blasingame and Frank Coleman had cracked 2-2, 3-3 and 5-5 ties for the Reds.

Freese's second homer, a two-run shot off losing reliever Dick Farrell, made it 7-5 in the eighth. But Jay then gave up a run-scoring single by John Roseboro in the bottom of the eighth. The Dodgers next sent up left-handed batter Dick Sisler, but when Henry koped in, they countered with Joe Pignatano and switched horses, replacing Snider with righthanded hitter Frank Howard. It made no difference, Pignatano recury. He tanned ckward.



In the ninth, Henry gave up a single and two walks that loaded the bases with none out. That's when Reds manager Fred Hutchinson scored as he got Tommy Davis, Wagner and Howard to hit for the Dodgers runs, to hit into a double play. But with the tying run at second base, while Sisler lined to Coleman who made a diving stab for the final out.

The Giants, coming from behind with two unearned runs in the ninth inning of the game, with two out in the ninth when Joe Amalfitano beat out a dribbler down the third base line with the bases loaded. Curt Simmons took the loser, while Stu Miller won it with three innings of scoreless relief. It was the first victory in five games for the Giants, who had lost six in a row then.

Southpaw Joe Gibbon gave up five hits, one a homer by Hank Aaron in the eighth inning, for his first complete game in the majors of the year. He ended their losing string at five.

The Bucs collected 14 hits, eight of them doubles. They swung for nine hits and six runs off Spahn chasing the southpaw ace in a four-run fifth inning. Dick Stuart's two-run double settled it in the first inning.

Don Santo drove in the deciding run with a ninth - inning single for the Cubs as winless Robin Roberts, once a leading ace in the majors for the Phils, lost his seventh in a row. The only other time Robin had that many a slump was in 1957, when he was 10-12. Bob Anderson was the winner for the Cubs in relief with help from Don Elston in the ninth.

Would Create Boxing Czar

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Louis, former world heavyweight champion, says it is high time for federal action to drive racketeers out of professional boxing in the United States.

His views were in a letter made public by the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee, which planned to call him to the witness stand today.

Louis has been in trouble with the U.S. government over income tax payment. The subcommittee left unclear whether this would figure in the hearings.

Louis was billed as an expert witness in the hearings on a bill by Senator Estes Kefauver to place professional boxing under tough federal policing.

The bill would create a boxing commissioner armed with broad licensing and other powers to fight underworld influences.

Louis' letter said "nothing in the sports scene could be more timely than your planned corrective legislation to give the proper assistance to and clean up boxing."

Perhaps when you are through people will again refer to the boxing game as the "manly art of self-defence" instead of the "fight racket."

The hearings started Wednesday with words of approval for Kefauver's bill from such witnesses as Rocky Marciano, former heavyweight king, Gene Fullmer, recognized by the National Boxing Association as middleweight champion, and Tommy Loughran, former light-heavyweight champion.

Loughran said the bill "possibly the only thing that will save boxing from going on the rocks."

'ABSOLUTELY ESSENTIAL'

Marciano said he considers creation of a federal boxing czar "absolutely essential."

Wings Dump Leafs 16-6, Marlins Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ray Washburn is a thrifty person.

For one thing, he is proving his worth...having cost the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League $80,000 in bonus money last year when he was signed off the Winchendon (Wash) College campus, as the leading pitcher of the Charleston Marlins.

For another, he has an earned run average this season in the International League of 1.91, one of the best in the IL after tieing up his fifth straight victory Wednesday night, 9-1 with a two-hit job on the Jersey City Jerseys.

The victory kept the Marlins two-games in first place as the Rochester-based Red Wings won, beating Richmond 9-2. Rochester went on an offensive binge in beating Toronto 16-4 and Buffalo held off the Syracuse Chiefs for a 4-3 victory.

Washburn gave a fifth inning single by Ulrico Alvarez and a homer in the ninth to Larry Novak while facing only 28 batters. He has allowed only 33 hits and 12 runs in 47 innings. His mates clubbed 12 hits off loser Orlando Pena and relievers Jim Grant and Bill Hoover.

Columbus benefited from three wild pitches from relievers Hal Reniff in a six-run eighth inning against the Virginians.

EIGHT IN FIRST

Rochester's 16 runs marked the most in one game by a single IL club this season, getting eight in the first inning and five in the sixth. Ellis Burton, Chuck Tanner and Lou Jackson homered off winner John Anderson, while Dave Pope tagged Art Kay for one. John Powell, Ray Barker and Ron Kibbie also homered, for the wings as Barry Shetrone had five hits and Fred Valentine four.

Buffalo's seven runs in the first two innings wrapped up the game against Syracuse, though Jim Chiels outhit the Bisons 14-12. Tony Curry and Woodie Smith each hit three run homers for the Bisons.

Kidd Breaks Another Track Mark

TORONTO (CP)—Bruce Kidd, 17-year-old Toronto track sensation, broke the Canadian senior open and native record for the 1½ - mile at Varsity Stadium Wednesday night with a time of 4:09.5.

The previous record, 6:39.4, was set in 1956 by Selwyn Jones of the Hamilton Olympic Club.

Kidd also broke the Canadian junior record of 6:58.8 set last year by Toronto's Chris Murray.

Kidd was competing in an inter - club competition during the half-time period of an Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League game.

WILL PICK ALL-STARS

MONTREAL (CP) — Tom Richardson, president of the International League, announced Wednesday that the clubs' managers again will select the starting IL all - star team which meets Cleveland Indians at Buffalo June 26 in the sixth annual all-star game. Each of the eight managers will pick a 10 - man team, including one right-hander and one left-hander as pitchers.

Second Win In Three

Joyces Defeat Picton

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Joyce Real Estate, coming up with a fine all around effort in all departments, scored a 2-1 victory over Picton Wells for their second win in D. D. softball league play in three games at Picton last night.

The Joyce win made tonight's first big meeting between Bobcats and Joyces, at the Fairgrounds at 8.15 a battle for first place.

The winners scored two runs in each of the third and sixth innings and added another for insurance before Picton potted two eighth-inning markers.

Rookie Doug Ellis pitched a five-hit ball for his second victory. He did not allow a bit until the sixth, fanning only one batter and also walking but one in a steady performance. He received errorless support featured by the sharp fielding of shortstop Jackie Elliott who handled nine chances flawlessly as well as starting two key double plays.

Singles by Austin and Carr set up the first two Belleville runs. Faulkner slammed out a hard triple off McGuire's shins back in the third. Faulkner was out at home trying to go all the way and in the next inning the Walls got out of a tough spot by trapping two runners off base in a rundown double play.

Faulkner and Kingston banged base hits in the sixth and an error, a passed ball and a delayed steal got them home for a 4-0 score. Coyer doubled and later rode home on Elliott's long fly in the top of the Sam Mulholland accounted for the Picton runs when he hit a terrific home run following a single by MacDonald. That came with two out in the eighth.

For the Real Estaters Bert Faulkner had a triple and single, Chuck Kingston a double and single, Guy Austin and Claude Carr two singles apiece. Gary Coyer and Pug Keller also hit safely.

Keith MacDonald was the only loser to get two hits. Mulholland homered to Denny Heffernan tripled and Bob Heffernan singled.

KENMOR BEES 6 5

stallying for three runs in the last inning, the Kenmor Bees captured their third consecutive victory by squeaking out a 6-5 win over Canniftor in a South Hastings Baseball League game last night at the Fairgrounds.

The winners took a two-run lead in the second inning. Both teams scored singletons in the third; Canniftor, however, went two up with a four-run outburst in the fourth. The Kenmors bunched together 2 singles, a walk and a two-run error to salt away the game in the last of the fifth.

Bill Latchford started for the Bees but was relieved by Glenn Dalnard, who took the win in the fourth. They allowed only three hits, whiffing three and walking eight.

Defoe toiled for the losers, being touched for ten hits, striking out three and walking one.

Doubles by Muir and Latchford and Morris' single accounted for Belleville's first two runs. A walk, a single, an error and a stolen base brought in Canniftor's run in the third.

Back-to-back singles by Clarke and Clapp and an error put the Kenmors two up in their half of the third.

Harvey and Clapp singled in Canniftors' half of the fourth; a passed ball and a stolen base brought in four runs, but it was not enough.

Clapp had two hits for the losers while Ken Harvey collected a single.

The teams:

Kenmors: Forsythe, Harvey, Clapp, Cole, Urch, Middleton, Petrie, Empey, Defoe.

The score:

Kenmors	001 40- 5 3 2
Canniftor	021 03- 6 10 1

Signs for Three Years

Harvey Gets Those New York Blues

By AL COLLETTI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — The signing of Montreal defenceman Doug Harvey as player-coach of New York Rangers makes one thing certain—the 1961-62 version of the Rangers will be different.

Harvey, considered the best rearguard in modern hockey, signed a three - year contract with the National Hockey League club Wednesday and gave prompt indication he would change the Rangers' style of play and bring a few new faces into the lineup.

General manager Muzz Patrick promised Harvey a free hand in the revamping job designed to make Stanley Cup contenders out of the perennial also-rans. Although the salary for the cagey defensive strategist was not disclosed, it was estimated Harvey will get about $27,000 annually under the pact.

Harvey takes over from ex-Ranger Alf Pike, who coached the club for a season and a half. Pike, dropped last March as coach, will remain in the Ranger organization in some unannounced capacity.

INDICATES PLANS

At a press conference following the signing, Harvey indicated what he plans for the Rangers.

"I hope to introduce some changes in playing style. I'd like to see the Rangers do more forechecking and backchecking and work it up and all back together better. That's the style I was brought up on with the Canadiens."

Harvey said the Rangers would use the same power play as the Canadiens, and it could turn into a deadly weapon with Harvey himself running it from point. Last season he was a chief contributor to Boom Boom Geoffrion's scoring spree when he tied Rocket Richard's 50 goals.

If he could do that with Geoffrion what will he be able to do with Andy Bathgate, the Ranger forward considered by many as the best shotmaker in hockey? Harvey figures to give Bathgate the direction he needs.

At 36 Harvey feels he still has plenty of hockey left in him. "I plan to play full time"—for Harvey this means about 40 minutes a game—"I don't feel I am finished. I was hurt a couple of times last season, but when I was on the ice I didn't feel that I had reached the point where I had to pace myself."

Although he does not plan a sweeping change in Ranger personnel, Harvey said he is looking for some new faces, possibly one or two of his former teammates.

Harvey, with the Canadiens organization since he was 12, played 14 seasons with the club. He won the Norris Memorial Trophy for the league's outstanding defenceman six times and was picked for the all-star team nine times.

He is the first NHL player-coach since Sid Abel handled the dual assignment for Chicago Black Hawks in 1952-53.

In return for Harvey's release, the Canadiens asked for Lou Fontinato, the fiery Ranger defenceman. Patrick indicated Fontinato would go to Montreal, but said negotiations would not be completed for another few days.

SHIPOWNERS COMPLAIN

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's new policy on subsidies for freighting and shipbuilding will do nothing to revive Canada's ocean - going merchant fleet, the Canadian Shipowners Association complained Wednesday. The association, representing owners of ocean vessels, said the new policy does not solve the problem of the high cost of operating ships of Canadian registry. Only Canadian-registered ships qualify for aid under the proposed policy.

Maureen Forrester Talked Into Singing by Brother Interested in Teacher

By JANET WILSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Maureen Forrester, internationally known Canadian contralto, was talked into taking singing lessons by a brother who "just wanted to meet the good-looking teacher."

Today, the statuesque blonde describes herself as "basically a housewife who sings as a hobby." But she admits the hobby has carried her far beyond early expectations.

Youngest of four children of a Scottish cabinetmaker and his Irish wife, Maureen grew up in the low-rental northeast section of Montreal, left school at 15 and drifted through several jobs.

The most interesting, she recalls, was sending lumberjacks to the Baie Comeau, Que., bushland.

BEGAN AT 17

She was 17 when her soldier brother came home from overseas and talked her into taking singing lessons.

"My voice had changed the year before," she says. "He kept saying how wonderful it was I turned out to be an alto. This was very rare. I must take music lessons. He would pay.

"I didn't know until much later he just wanted to meet the good-looking teacher. I have yet to collect the first payment from him."

She kept on with the lessons anyway, paying for them with daytime office work. Her first important concert was held in 1953 in Montreal YWCA.

This was followed by a recital at Manor Park high school outside Ottawa. Scanning the audience, her attention was caught by a slim, lithe man with dark, steady eyes.

"THAT'S THE MAN"

"I had never wanted to get married before, but when I saw him in the audience, I thought 'That's the man I want to marry.'"

She met him after the recital and learned he was Eugene Kash, conductor of the Ottawa Philharmonic. It took another meeting a year later in Montreal before she was able to make a noticeable impression on him.

"I chased him," she says. They were married the following year in London.

In the meantime Maureen Forrester's career soared. Her mother's comment: "Wouldn't it be wonderful if you could sing at Carnegie Hall with Bruno Walter conducting the Ninth [Beethoven] symphony."

That came in 1960 and she drew rave notices.

IN 17 LANDS

Miss Forrester, who has performed in 17 countries on three continents, is looking forward to this summer's tour of Russia.

However, international acclaim has disadvantages, too—keeping her away from home for half the year. Now 30, she is determined to retire at 40.

By then Paula, 5; Gina, 3; Daniel, 2, and Linda, four months, will be of an age where they need a full-time mother.

She is undecided on whether she would like her children to make careers of music.

"I don't really know. Such a small percentage of those who have talent even manage to make a living out of it. I want to put in their way lots of things to interest them — languages, painting, pottery, as well as music."

Already the three older children speak some French and German in addition to English. Their Jewish father—born in Toronto of Polish immigrant parents and brought up in Montreal — speaks six languages. Their mother and German nurse speak four languages between them.

Miss Forrester dotes on children and plans someday to teach breathing to asthmatic or epileptic youngsters.

She is also warmly interested in singers starting out. Her one problem of advice: "Relax."

"If you didn't like what you were doing, you wouldn't be doing it. If you're nervous, you will make your audience nervous."

She injects a little of her philosophy:

"Try to think: This is the best I can do. Maybe next year I can do better. But in the meantime, this is my best.'"

SINGS AS HOBBY

Contralto Maureen Forrester of Montreal, who has performed in 17 countries on three continents, says she's basically a housewife who sings as a hobby. The 30-year-old singer, mother of four children, is looking forward to a tour of the Soviet Union this summer. (CP Photo).

THE GORE — The Masonic hall in Consecon was the "mecca" for a capacity audience on Friday evening when the annual music festival by the children of the public schools under the direction of Mrs. Kerr was held. The children are receiving wonderful training and it is a joy to the parents and friends to have their talents developed.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Puiver were hosts on Sunday to a birthday dinner party honoring Mrs. Melvin Puiver. Guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Price, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Price, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Puiver, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pringle and Miss Lois Pringle, all of Selby; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Warren, Lansdowne and Mrs. Cora Price of Napanee.

Centre and Victoria W.A's catered to a turkey dinner in the Masonic Temple, Belleville, on Monday evening. Guests present were members of the teaching profession of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Hara of Port Hope, spent the weekend with their aunt, Mrs. Orton and Mrs. O'Hara.

Mr. Harold Hoyes is building an addition to his home.

The Rev. and Mrs. Wragg, of Cannington, attended the funeral of Mr. John Waterhouse of Belleville and called on friends, here.

FROM BOX OFFICE TO STAGE — Barbara Collier, who spent two seasons selling tickets at the Stratford Shakespearean Festival, now has her chance to appear on stage at the festival. Here, she discussed her role in Henry VIII with director George McCowan at rehearsals. Miss Collier, a soprano, will play a lady-in-waiting to Queen Katherine in Henry VIII and sing in two other plays. (CP Photo).

AT THE PARK — "Ma and Pa Kettle at the Fair", starring Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride, their funniest comedy opens tonight at the Park Theatre. On the same program the added comedy brings to the screen "Bud Abbott and Lou Costello when they "Meet the Invisible Man", and for added laughs a Three Stooges Comedy is also shown.

Movie Column

Andy Griffith Meets Another Challenge in Western Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's not often that a movie actor gets applause from his fellow performers at the end of a scene.

That happened to Andy Griffith at a ranch, and all he did was gallop a horse up to the camera.

The others on the Star in the West set knew what acting this entailed. For although Andy had the look and sound of a cowboy who fits the Prairie, his acquaintance with horses has been all until this movie.

Andy slipped off his steed and came back grinning. "It was the most comic performance I ever gave," he said. "I was supposed to wave my arm but I was afraid to raise it too high or I might fall off the horse."

LIKES CHALLENGES

It was another of a long series of challenges he has met. Despite that lazy - sounding drawl, he's not against challenges nor is he allergic to hard work. He proved that by going directly from a full TV season into Star in the West. He'll take a two-week breather, then jump into another TV season.

"I'm learnin' all the time," he said.

Andy started learning his trade in North Carolina, where he did skits at community affairs. One of them was a rube's description of a football game and it clicked as a record.

"My managers told me to go out in night clubs and learn how to entertain people, so I did."

Then came the exacting work of a Broadway play, No Time for Sergeants, which he had previously done on TV. He later made it into a movie, scoring hits in all three mediums.

Rex Reason Will Quit Show, 'The Roaring 20s', This Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Rex Reason, the hero-type actor with the unlikely name, has asked for—and received — permission to quit The Roaring 20s at the end of the season.

Reason said he wanted out because he understood the show next season would go in for more "Western" type plots of which he wants no part.

CBS - Radio will discontinue June 18, its Gunsmoke, the voice-only parent of the popular TV series. It will be replaced by Suspense, a half hour series. The latter existence on the network was discontinued last fall.

The radio show was probably a victim of the TV show's popularity. This fall the televised program will be expanded to an hour's length and reruns of 60 half-hour shows will also be shown weekly in the network's prime-time hour after the 6 o'clock Marshal Dillon.

"I guess it's a question of how much Gunsmoke the audience can take," suggested one radio network executive.

Singer Helen O'Connell starts work June 12 as hostess on the CBC daytime hour, Here's Hollywood . . . ? The Crosby boys, Phillip, Dennis and Lindsay, will be the first guests on Person to Person when it returns for a summer run June 23 . . . Maybe the lavish rewards of the quiz shows disappeared after the scandal broke, but some of the prizes awarded on the night time shows are ridiculous. Some of the audience participation shows are pretty fancy and pretty valuable.

Probably because Lucille Ball has been in poor health during much of this season, plans to make Carol Burnett a Broadway during the summer have been abandoned. . . .

Summer Sports Spectacular, CBS 1.30-8.30 EDT —Parachute jumping, as a sport, will be the subject.

REASON GIVEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial Police Director Joseph Brunet announced Wednesday that Sgt. Gaston Arcand, acting head of the QPP homicide squad, has been suspended for "conduct incompatible with the force." Paul Desrosiers, assistant director of the QPP, said Sgt. Arcand, a 45-year-old veteran of 16 years on the force, was suspended because he engaged in political activity during the provincial election a year ago.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RICHTER

Friday, June 2, 1961

General Tendencies: The morning finds you very much concerned with getting your basic interests worked out in a very sober, solid and secure manner. Then the afternoon and evening brings some very startling and dramatic change to advance swiftly and with good judgment toward the mental, intellectual, social objectives that are yours! Action.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Do everything in your power at this time to increase prestige and good will in the business world. The remainder of the day and evening are then ideal for meeting with good comrades to work out any new ambitious projects. Work.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Important that you seek the information you require during a.m., and get into new interests that appeal. The latter part of the day is then free for you to discuss them with the right key people and highest-ups who can assist you to be successful.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Get all monetary affairs handled properly and come to a better understanding in personal matters with others. You will be inspired later in the day and evening as to the best ways and means by which to get ahead faster in the future.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You are better able to understand what partners desire from your association and you can make your policies understood more clearly, also. P.M. set all minutiae connected therewith in order and swift operation. Work methodically.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You can accomplish so much during a.m. that it behooves you not to make a precious moment of time. Remainder of day and evening are best utilized by finding out what it is your associates expect from you in days to come. Be courteous.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Get your appearance improved here and now, and make plans for recreation tomorrow. The latter part of the day is best for delving into whatever work is at hand and clearing the decks for a busy week coming and a happy weekend.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Get all fundamental affairs, especially concerning property and holdings, in fine order during a.m. You can then begin the weekend early by going directly to the hobbies or fun you most enjoy. P.M. fine for romance.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Get all your paper work done in a.m., if possible; then off to buying and selling, planning necessary trips, etc. P.M. bring home little thoughtful gifts to loved ones and enjoy the comfort of your own home. Be kind, loving.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Any business matters of importance are best handled in a.m. Also, concentrate upon having a greater knowledge through intelligent planning or possibly getting into some new outlet, during P.M. set with good friends. Get their support.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Do whatever is necessary to improve your appearance and health during morning hours. Afternoon is best time to confer with clever associates and plan the future more wisely. Be sure to get out tonight for recreation. Be gay, witty.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 20) — Get into the so-called Spence for a while today and think out your true desires and ambitions are. Then get busy and see the persons who can help you to attain your aims. You will find them receptive and eager to assist you.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Kind and serious associate proffers excellent advice in a.m., which should be followed to the letter. Be sure to sit down to-night and plan your future wisely, then relax with the one you love, watch television or go to the theatre.

If your child is born today—he, or she, will be one of those delightful young people who will be most serious about study and beginning a career early in life, and there will be very little desire for play. Earning power starts early and then the personality changes in middle life, when your progeny will seek many friends, lots of amusement, want to travel, etc. Social service work will also become very absorbing, so be sure to give a good education.

DECLINING INDUSTRY

In the period 1950-1960, employment in Canada's primary textiles industry declined from 97,000 to 84,000.

Wants Britain Not to Exclude West Indians

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain should continue to grant free entry to West Indian migrants until a massive new development plan creates new jobs in the islands, the West Indian Federation premier said Wednesday.

Federation Premier Sir Grantley Adams made the statement at the opening session of a constitutional convention aimed at setting an independence date for the federation of 11 Caribbean island governments.

Adams urged Britain not to "slam the door" on the entry of migrants—largest of right wing criticism in Britain—and said a new development program would be submitted that would create enough jobs in the West Indies to slash migration drastically.

Colonial Secretary Iain Macleod told the 73 delegates and advisers from the 1,000-mile island chain federation that independence would be granted as soon as possible.

CHESS AT ITS BEST — Mikhail Botvinnik, 49-year-old Soviet grandmaster, prepares to move in a game against Mikhail Tal, 24-year-old Latvian, during the world chess championships in Moscow this year. Botvinnik regained the title, winning 10 games, losing five and drawing six, from Tal who had dethroned him in 1960. The engineer from Leningrad is the oldest man ever to win the championship and the first to regain it twice. (CP Photo).

Soviet Engineer Performs Unprecedented Feat, Wins Third World Chess Title

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In the rarefied atmosphere of world-class chess, where genius is commonplace and where mental agility and stamina meet their severest test, a scholarly Soviet electrical engineer has performed an unprecedented feat.

Botvinnik, who prepares so carefully for major competition that he once had a friend blow cigaret smoke in his face while practising for a tournament against several heavy smokers, won over his youthful opponent in 21 games in Moscow.

In all, he won 10, lost five and drew six with Tal, who wrested the title from him a year earlier with a pyrotechnic display of unorthodox chess strategy. The number of decisions was high for a world championship in which draws usually predominate. A year ago Tal won six, lost two and there were 13 draws.

TRULY AMAZING'

"This is a truly amazing performance for a man of nearly 50," said C. H. Alexander, former British champion, writing in The Sunday Times.

"A world championship match, the best of 24 games in a series of five-hour sessions over a period of eight weeks and requiring constant unremitting concentration — a single lapse of attention will cost a game — one of the most severe tests of nervous stamina to which one can be submitted."

Much is made of the age of the champion who has been winning chess honors since he was 14 and who became a master at 16.

Botvinnik first won the world championship in 1948 in a tournament to name a successor to the late Alexander Alekhine. He lost to countryman Vasily Smyslov in 1957 but returned the next year to regain the title.

Up to that time Alekhine had been the only champion to make a comeback, regaining the championship from Max Euwe of The Netherlands. Alekhine was 45 at the time, the oldest man ever to become champion until Botvinnik did it at 47.

AMONG THE GREATEST

Harry Golombek, international master from London who was judge of the latest match, said Botvinnik played "with a subtlety that could hardly be rivalled by any other master at the present time and by few of the past."

Alexander describes Botvinnik's victory as "at least as much a triumph of character as of intellect: he succeeded—something he failed to achieve last year—in imposing his style of game on Tal."

"Tal it's tactician of genius: he is at his best in very complicated positions, where he shows amazing insight and imagination; he is unequalled in his ability to build winning attacks in such situations.

"Botvinnik is a profound strategist: he excels in long-range planning and in subtle manoeuvring to create and exploit weaknesses starting from quite ordinary-looking positions; his judgment in such positions is superb.

"So the decision rested largely on whether Tal would be able to get the complex situations that suited him or Botvinnik would succeed in keeping the games in quieter channels and then outplaying Tal strategically. And this struggle was won by Botvinnik."

QUEENS EXCHANGED

Vyacheslav Ragozin, Soviet grandmaster and editor-in-chief of the magazine, Chess in the USSR, who was Botvinnik's coach for 15 years, said the latest match revealed "Botvinnik's superior training both in theory and psychology."

He noted that in 10 of the first 14 games, queens were exchanged early in the struggle, posing a disadvantage for Tal, to whom the queen is the main and most dangerous piece.

"Our family of Soviet grandmasters with their scientifically substantiated approach to the game has been shaken up by Tal's tempestuous and daring style but we wonder whether Tal will be able to recover from this reverse. He recalls that Smyslov, his years younger than Botvinnik, never regained his form after losing in 1958.

He takes note of the fact that Soviet players today dominate the world of chess and suggests the only possibility — and a doubtful one—that a non-Russian will take the championship lies with Bobby Fischer, 17-year-old from Brooklyn who has won the American championship for the last four years.

Son Of Dictator Named Head Of Armed Forces

Took Military Course In the United States

CIUDAD TRUJILLO (Reuters)—The playboy son of Gen. Rafael Trujillo prepared today to take over command of the Dominican Republic armed forces following his father's assassination.

Rafael Jr. was named Thursday night to the new post of chief of staff or the combined armed forces. He will take up the post as soon as the necessary last-minute changes are pushed through.

Meanwhile, the dead dictator, gunned down by a band of kidnappers in a car-rally - timed plot Tuesday night, was buried today at nearby San Cristobal, his birthplace.

The government arranged to have his body lie in state for three hours here before the funeral service.

HAS HUGE FORCE

At head of the armed forces, Rafael Jr. will have under his command an army of 100,000 men, the third largest navy in the Caribbean and an air force equipped with Vampire and Sabre jet fighters built up by his father to maintain control of the country.

Rafael Jr. took a military course in the United States in 1956 but did not complete it—largely because of his activities outside the military field.

Congressmen charged at the time that American flesh-and-blood was being used to finance lavish spending by flashed in the U.S., but he denied this.

Despite his failure to complete the military course, his brother Leonidas described him as the joint chiefs of the Dominican armed forces on his return home.

The decision to make him chief of staff of the combined armed forces was taken Thursday night at a meeting presided over by President Balaguer, the man handpicked as head of state by the dead dictator.

TELLS OF SHLING

The meeting followed a communique disclosing how Trujillo's attackers killed him.

It said Trujillo's car and the Dominican dictator was hemmed in by three cars at a crossroads as he drove to visit his 36-year-old mother.

The occupants of the cars and other attackers stationed at the roadside opened fire with submachine - guns, killing Trujillo and wounding his driver.

Trujillo was machine-gunned in the

WORK STOPPAGES DECLINE

OTTAWA (CP)—In April there were 30 new work stoppages in Canada involving 6,285 workers and a total of 59,240 man days, a preliminary report by the labor department indicated Wednesday.

This compared with 29 new work stoppages in March involving 4,428 workers and a duration of 47,240 days. Of the April stoppages, 21 were in Ontario industries.

Bloody Election Riots in Zanzibar Leave 9 Persons Dead, 145 Injured

The 640-square - mile island with a population of more than 165,000 is located off the southeast coast of Africa. Together with Pemba and some smaller islands, the Zanzibar protectorate has a total of about 300,000. The islands produce most of the world's supply of cloves and clove oil.

One hundred riot police were flown from Kenya on the mainland to break up the fighting and 30 persons were in custody. Another 100 policemen were flown in today.

The demonstrations erupted into violence Thursday during the island's second inconclusive general election as five months under a new constitution.

The situation was reported deteriorating today, with further violence reported.

Britain has threatened to wreck an election for 23 seats on the 54-member legislative council. After an election in mid-January, none of the three political parties was able to form a government.

The new constitution provides for an elected legislative council and elected governmental ministers instead of a British-appointed governor.

Returns from Thursday's voting showed the Afro-Shirazi party and the Zanzibar Nationalist party each won 10 seats, with the remaining three going to the Zanzibar and Pemba People's party.

Zanzibar Governor Sir George Mooring issued an emergency call, for help after clashes erupted between backers of the two major political parties.

The rioting apparently was aimed at upsetting the electoral balance by forcing widespread voter abstention.

MINES MINISTER SAYS SUBSIDY IS NOT ENOUGH

Coal Industry In Bad Way

OTTAWA (CP)—The long-established policy of federal subvention help for Canada's ailing coal industry is "no longer sufficient," Mines Minister Comtois told the Commons Thursday night.

He said it is "open to question whether under the present rapidly - changing competitive conditions a sound basis can be found for a long-range basic solution."

Mr. Comtois said $13,244,000 in emergency assistance payments during the current fiscal year is calculated to assist to the market every last ton of Canadian coal that can reasonably be sold with subvention help."

Until a new long-range approach to the coal crisis is found, the present and 3½cent - a - ton subvention support will be continued, he said. Such payments cover part of the freight costs for coal shipments.

J. J. Bigg, Conservative (L — Bonavista - Twillingate) commented that in 1957 Prime Minister Diefenbaker had gone through Nova Scotia promising more help than this. This amounted to deception of the people, he said.

Urged twice by the chairman to withdraw the remarks in an otherwise unexcitable exchange, Mr. Pickersgill said the prime minister had been misled about the coal industry to realize what he had been promising, which flew in the face of economic facts.

It had been another irresponsible election promise.

CCF Leader Argue said Mr. Comtois' statement held out little hope for the industry. The government was "damning and condemning" the industry to complete disaster instead of the assistance it deserves.

"Why should coal miners be put on the street while the government makes up its mind?" he asked, and Mr. Pickersgill said the government had published the report of the Rand royal commission on coal in two committee studies instead of acting.

Mr. Comtois said the interdepartmental report on the impact of the proposals of the Rand commission had been received for government consideration.

The report was not made public—analyses the far-reaching recommendations of the royal commission report, which suggested that the subvention system should be scrapped and replaced with direct subsidies to the coal industry.

Subventions have been paid on coal shipments since 1938. The assistance on coal moved into central Canadian markets in competition with United States coal.

However, Mr. Comtois said the period of help isn't enough because the big competition is no longer from American other fuels, such as oil and gas.

The competition from natural gas is becoming more and more severe and as coal-burning railway engines are replaced by gas, the opportunitiae to promote the movement of Canadian coal continues to decrease."

Bribery Trial Hears High Policeman Tipped Gamblers

TORONTO (CP) — A police inside agent, under cross - examination, said Thursday he had been told that James Barlow, deputy commissioner of the provincial police, once tipped off a gambler to a club raid.

The agent also testified that two other members of the anti-gambling squad — Constables Carman Lawrence and Ken Lamorie—admitted to him that they had taken bribes. Const. Lawrence, he said, "had a piece of", a downtown Toronto gambling club.

Const. George Scott, the undercover man, was testifying at the trial of Robert Wright, former provincial policeman, and Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley. The three are charged with conspiring to interfere with the administration of justice by bribing Const. Scott.

The agent testified also that there was ill - feeling between Wright on the one hand and Lawrence and Lamorie on the other. At one time, he said, there was a suggestion that Lawrence and Lamorie be squeezed off the anti-gambling squad in "protect the interests" of Wright and Const. Scott.

The deputy commissioner's name came into the case during cross-examination of Const. Scott by John Brooke, counsel for McDermott.

The policeman testified that, while posing as a tipoff man to collect evidence for his superiors, he telephoned McDermott May 3, 1960, to tell him of a raid planned for the Ramsay Club in Niagara Falls.

He said McDermott told him he was already aware of the impending police action.

Unions' Motorcade Virtually Halts Building in Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Motorcades involving about 1,600 strikers from 17 unions virtually halted a partial construction in Metropolitan Toronto Thursday at the price of a total of 18 arrests in two days.

The latest flare-up in the dispute, in which immigrant construction workers seek union benefits, still has not started. So many contractors are involved that union leaders find themselves with no representative body to approach.

Housing subdivisions were also hard hit as teams of union organizers kept up pressure to impose a shutdown of all housing and apartment construction in the area.

After fights and the arrest of five men Tuesday on malicious damage charges, police in suburban Scarborough warned strike leaders they would conduct themselves in an orderly fashion or face arrest. Most of the strikers, they were told, will be classified as an unlawful assembly.

One crisis was averted when Teamsters Union drivers who had been threatening to take their loads through a crowd of 200 picketing workers, Their dismissal raised the threat that construction unions would refuse to accept ready-mix cement from the firm on commercial projects.

Charles Irvine, international vice-president of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons International Association (CLC) said Thursday in a radio broadcast he is willing to negotiate with any reasonable group.

The construction workers, most of them Italians, say contractors have not lived up to terms of agreements signed last summer.

Many labourers are reported receiving 90 cents an hour, bricklayers $2 to $2.25 and carpenters $1.40 to $1.90. The union rates are $2 an hour for labourers, $3.05 for bricklayers and $2.70 for carpenters.

REDS U.A.R. FEUD

BEIRUT (AP) — Bitter newspaper exchanges have revived the old feud between the United Arab Republic and the Communists. The Cairo press Thursday sharply assailed Lebanese Communists and the Rome Communist newspaper L'Unita for alleging that two Arab Communist leaders had died in U.A.R. jails.

WEST ONTARIO HEAVILY HIT BY THUNDERSTORM

TORONTO (CP) — A sharp thunderstorm lashed Western Ontario Thursday and left in its wake a trail of wind - whipped debris, flooded streets and basements, a burned-out barn and one fatality.

While the northeastern United States battened down after a forecast of impending tornadoes, winds in Ontario played up sheet metal like tinsel, tore down overhead wires and uprooted trees. Similar conditions were reported in sections of western New York State.

In Windsor John Durack, 68, died of a heart attack believed to have been brought on when lightning struck his home.

Almost an inch of rain fell in half an hour in Windsor, flooding storm sewers and backing up in the streets. Minor accidents were widespread but there was no immediate report of crop damage.

London, Ont., reported similar flooding, minor power failures and a $20,000 barn fire near Harrision.

Metal sheets were torn from a downtown department store roof in London and scattered in the street. Traffic was held up for an hour.

Chatham reported more than an inch of rain in the first 30 minutes of the storm. The post office floor was covered with inches of water and hundreds of basements were flooded.

In Welland the storm took only 10 minutes to flood streets and basements, topple trees and disrupt overhead wire services. Power was cut off in parts of Stratford.

Around Buffalo, N.Y., several hundred homes were without electricity for as much as two hours.

English-Owned' Filly Wins Epsom Oaks

The English-owned filly, unbeaten in her three previous starts this year, strode away from another English-owned entry, Ambergris, to win by three miles, add-a-half race handily.

French - trained Anne La Grace was third.

Sweet Solera was backed down to 11-to-4 favorite in the betting after she was quoted at 15-to-2 and Anne La Douce at 8-to-1 by bookmakers before the start.

The white-faced filly led by 1½ lengths at the finish for her fourth consecutive victory in as many starts this season, including the 1,000 guineas classic.

Rickaby pushed Sweet Solera into the lead at the three-furlong mark and she was never headed afterward.

Paris Gas Main Blasts Kill 18

PARIS (Reuters)—The known death toll in the collapse of 25 houses here in the Latin Quarter when rescue workers recovered another body and a woman died in hospital.

Workers had rescued 35 persons injured in the underground gas explosions that wrecked half a square mile of suburban Clamart.

But a woman rescued Thursday died today in hospital of injuries.

It was feared more victims were lying dead or seriously injured under the ruins.

The 25 houses collapsed in a few seconds Thursday after a series of explosions. Several of the houses slid into a hole 60 feet deep. A factory and a

Several speakers emphasized that engineering is as art as well as a science, and mathematical formula would not replace engineering sense.

S. D. Lash, head of the department of civil engineering at Queen's University in Kingston, said:

"As civil engineers we must be careful not to be inflicted by the disease known as physicomaticosis. The ability to apply scientific principles is the hallmark of a successful engineer and the heart of an engineering school is applied science, but science and mathematics are concerned essentially with abstractions. The engineer as such never is concerned with real objects, with men and with money."

W. F. McMullin, engineering personnel manager at Canadian General Electric Company Limited, said in the public mind developments of the space age are attributed to the scientist and the engineer's role in such developments is not realized.

Pressure Causes Increased Use Of Alcohol

KINGSTON (CP)—The pressure of society, forcing people to conform, is the cause of the increased use of alcohol today, Thomas A. Knott, field secretary of the Ontario Temperance Federation, told the Rotary Club of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada Thursday.

Mr. Knott said young people would not care about alcohol if conformity was not thrust upon them.

Dr. William Lockington of Waterloo, Ont., one of a group of laymen who toured Angola and the Central African Federation last year, told the conference Portuguese in Angola were "completely oblivious to the truth and feeling which were boiling there."

He quoted an overseas mission committee report which indicated the whole Protestant movement in Angola was under submission and missionaries have been severely restricted in their activity.

Engineering Students Lack Time To Exchange Ideas With Fellows

VANCOUVER (CP) — Engineering students, especially in their early university years, are not given enough time to think and to exchange ideas with fellow students and professors.

This was one of many points put forward today in an extensive study of engineering education at the annual meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

At the same time, it was stated, the fast-moving world of technology faces the engineer with the danger that he will be out of date within 20 years of leaving college.

Dean D. M. Myers of the faculty of applied science, University of British Columbia, said: "One of the greatest difficulties facing students is the need to adjust themselves, sometimes in four to five different environments in a single morning. This requirement is barbaric."

8,000 Men Take Posts To Guard Two Leaders

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

PARIS (AP)—President Kennedy said today the United States is determined to strengthen its force in Europe to guard the freedom of this part of the world.

The United States of America intends to bear its full part," Kennedy told several hundred officers and civilians standing in the rain outside NATO military headquarters (S.H.A.P.E.) just outside Paris.

Referring to U.S. participation in the two world wars and in the North Atlantic alliance, the president said the United States three times in this century had demonstrated that its own security "must inevitably be linked with the security of a free Europe."

"We are determined to maintain and strengthen the forces of this country and across Europe to defend this part of the world, because security reflects the security of our own country."

VISITS NORSTAD

As they visit drew to a close, Kennedy and de Gaulle had identified the Allied unity on the issue of his talks today with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

The U.S. president flies to Vienna for a two-day conference with the Soviet leader. He intends to emphasize to Khrushchev that the Western Allies want to improve East-West relations.

PARIS TALKS PAGE 7.

The youthful American president is flying in Saturday morning fresh from his Paris talks with French President de Gaulle. Both men are being accompanied by their wives and advisers.

The Austrians arranged the biggest security precautions in their history to safeguard both men. More than 8,000 police, detectives and gendarmes are taking up their posts for the two arrivals and the K-K talks Saturday and Sunday.

Khrushchev's rail trip here from Czechoslovakia provokes involved three major security measures:

1. An Austrian police helicopter hovering low over his special train as it made constant radio contact with the ground.

2. A special locomotive, with armed security men aboard, running ahead of Khrushchev's train on its Saturday trip from the frontier village of Marcheg to Vienna's Aspern station.

3. Armed police guarding the rail line and posted about 270 yards apart.

Many observers said gloomily that little of lasting value would emerge from their 10 hours—only four hours each—of the time for translations is deducted.

The Americans say they will not be drawn into any negotiations while the Russians add it would be unthinkable for two days of talks to clear up all the problems accumulated during the long years of cold war.

During his stay in Bratislava, Khrushchev, 67, said he was sure the American and Russian peoples shared a desire for peace and the relaxation of international tension.

Kennedy, 44, has said he is coming to Vienna to meet the Kremlin leader because "this is a dangerous time for us all."

Soviet Space Boss Is Dead

Khrunichev, 60, was chairman of a state committee to co - ordinating scientific research and played a major role in developing Soviet rocket triumphs.

He came from a worker's family and had served in several important government posts during a long administrative career.

He was a member of the central committee of the Soviet Communist party and a deputy to the Supreme Soviet.

His death was announced by the Soviet news agency Tass.

about it?" Mr. Brooks asked.

"Jimmy Bartlett?" was the constable replied.

"Was it Jimmy Bartlett?"

"The deputy commissioner of the DPP," Const. Scott said.

The other two officers came into the testimony during cross-examination of Const. Scott by Joseph Sedgwick, counsel for Feeley, who questioned the officer's duties in Belleville.

"I am actually counselling Lawrence and Lamorie in their method of taking bribes," the lawyer quoted, "What does that mean?"

"That reason I reported that was that Lawrence and Lamorie had found out . . . that Wright had suggested they be pushed out of the gambling branch," Const. Scott said.

REPORTS ANGRY

"They were quite mad with Wright. It came to light that gambling at the Earl French Club. Lawrence made it quite clear to Wright that he had no interest any more since he had left the gambling squad."

Wright was transferred from the anti-gambling squad, based in Toronto, to duties in Belleville.

Const. Scott said he subsequently became friendly with Lawrence and Lamorie and, during a drive to visit a Niagara Falls bookmaker, they mentioned him about bribes.

"I was put in the position of counselling them," Const. Scott said.

At another point, Mr. Sedgwick asked:

"Carman has a gaming house near the King Edward Hotel."

Const. Scott said that Carman Lawrence, a member of the provincial police anti-gambling squad, had a piece of a gaming house behind the King Edward Hotel in Toronto."

"Yes, sir," the constable replied.

The constable, still under cross - examination, said there was once a suggestion that he and Wright get Lawrence and Lamorie "out of the way" by "getting publicity" for a mistake at Preston where we kicked in the wrong door" during a raid.

Not One Single Bricklayer Available for Work Here; 20 $125-a-Week Jobs Open

If all occupations were in the same happy position as bricklaying there would be no unemployment problem in the Belleville area.

That is the story told this week by the employment service in Belleville which stated today that there was not one single bricklayer available in Belleville.

Yet a firm currently erecting a new office building for Northern Electric this week had placed an advertisement in The Ontario Intelligencer for 20 bricklayers who are being offered $2.50 per hour for a 50-hour week.

"I don't know where they are going to get them," commented Mr. Cecil Hisner, manager of the local employment office. "There just aren't any bricklayers available in Belleville."

OTHERS JOBLESS

But if bricklayers are in demand, that is not exactly the position which other building trades and service people find themselves in.

At the end of May there were 1,943 persons, 1,359 men and 584 women, looking for work in the Belleville area. This compares with 1,983 at the same time last year, a reduction of 40 persons or about two per cent.

On the whole the construction industry is a bit brighter this year than last, with a total of 272 construction workers now looking for jobs as compared with 288 a year ago.

There are now 84 carpenters out of work as compared with 105 a year ago, while the plastering, painting and truck drivers are looking for jobs. Last year at this date there were 105 drivers out of work.

TWO DULL SPOTS

Dull spots in the furniture are the lumber industry with 123 men out of work as compared with 75 a year ago and the metal working industry with 72 out of work compared with 51 a year ago. The difference here was said to have resulted from the closing of the Deloro Smelting plant at Deloro.

More projects underway have resulted in more job placements being made this year — 490 this year as compared with 304 last year.

The benefits claim — load-is down nearly 300 from the same time last year with a total of 1,136 now receiving benefits. A this year ago the total at this time was 1,362.

Kennedy's final meeting with de Gaulle was a two-hour morning meeting at the Elysee Palace. Their main subject for this session was the North Atlantic alliance, about which the French and U.S. presidents are known to hold some sharply different views.

U.S. and French officials said Kennedy and de Gaulle probably pleased with the results of their talks. Diplomats reported that the 70-year-old French president obviously was favorably impressed with the young American.

It was understood the two leaders decided Kennedy would make clear to Khrushchev that the Western powers will protect West Berlin and defend fully their rights of access to the city across Communist East Germany.

Soviet Union's Venus Rocket Now Silent

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's Venus rocket presumably is silent orbit around the sun and may never be heard from again.

The rocket, launched Feb. 12, was to have passed within 62,000 miles of Venus between May 19-21. It was scheduled to automatically release a radio antenna and relay data back.

But Soviet scientists failed to receive signals called to respond to radio signals sent from earth after Feb. 27 and it now is presumed they no longer have contact with the rocket.

British scientists at Jodrell Bank, England, said on May 20 their giant 250-foot telescope picked up vague and indistinct signals which might have been sent out by the rocket. Tape recordings of the signals, received on the supposed frequency band, were sent to Soviet scientists but Moscow has yet to make any announcement concerning them).

Venus, smothered in mist, has never been seen. The Soviets said their rocket carried no photographic equipment. They calculated the rocket would sail within 62,000 miles of Venus each 584 days, relay back information and then go into orbit around the sun.

Man Given Seven Days

A 22-year-old Belleville man, Fred Walter Curtis, was sentenced to seven days in jail today when he pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court to a charge of driving while disqualified by reason of a legal suspension of his driver's licence last September.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills levied the fine, who asked for a fine instead of a jail sentence, on the responsibilities of persons who get behind the wheel of a car. Mandatory suspension of all drivers help to protect the public, he said, and anyone who drives a car while not in a financial position to do so, should not drive.

Court was told that Curtis, who is unemployed, had no insurance on a car he bought in the middle of May and that his licence had been suspended on September following conviction of a charge of driving without a permit. At that time he was charged following an accident.

Don't let a dog to a child under six. This can prevent one-fifth of all dog bites.

Don't wake a dog suddenly.

Don't interfere in a dog fight. Don't pet a strange dog. Don't take his food away from him. Don't run with a dog if it excites him, and don't ride a bicycle near an excited dog.

FOR TENDER TOES

Stretch socks may be harmful for children, a podiatrist says. In many youngsters between the ages of two and 12, ingrown toenails are caused by tight socks and in some instances by ill-fitting shoes. He advises against stretch socks before the age of 13.

SIDE EFFECT OF BEER

Beer may affect the clotting of the blood in persons between men and women were given a pint of beer to drink and in two hours, 72 showed a decidedly delay in clotting time. Whisky had no significant effect, but cider and white wine did. Blood returned to normal four hours after drinking.

HUMAN SEASONS

Some bacterial diseases seem to have seasons, causing outbreaks of respiratory illness at certain times of the year. But a Rockefeller University doctor wonders if the seasons are not human.

The germs are found in humans all year long, explains Dr. Henry Shinton Harvey. Yet the outbreaks of disease are seasonal, indicating there may be a seasonal change in people that makes them susceptible to influenza, streptococcus and pneumococcus diseases.

TO TRANSPLANT SKIN

The outer layer of skin spontaneously needs the layers of cells below it to keep its elasticity and sometimes its vitality.

Transplants of skin without the lower cell layers, and skin with the lower or connective tissues were made on 11 patients by National Cancer Institute scientists.

The transplants mimic the lower cells either died or began to act as scars, but the structure at the new site. Only one of the patients thus treated was included in the transplant did the skin survive and keep its original identity.

Farmers in South Hastings Hampered by New Rainfall

Already held up in their spring seeding operations by unfavorable wet weather, farmers in the southern part of Hastings County got another shock last night as 1.19 inches of rain fell over the Belleville area.

County Agricultural Representative Sidney MacDonald, of Stirling said today that farmers in the low-lying south end of the county had been held up by a wet soil, but that conditions in the northern areas.

"Practically all farmers have still a little bit of seeding to do, while in the south, particularly in Tyendinaga township, there is a greater percentage of sowing still to be done.

However, if farmers were able to complete their sowing within a week, Mr. MacDonald said, there would be still hopes for a reasonable crop of grain if fertilizer were applied to the soil.

EXPECT NORMAL CROP

While a bumper crop may not be expected owing to the late season of the season, there was still every expectation that somewhere above normal crop would be harvested.

Seldom, it was pointed out, did ideal weather conditions continue throughout the growing season. Of a normal crop that was completed early a dry summer often served to offset the advantage.

Filtration plant officials at Belleville said the May rainfall at 3.57 inches was "about normal."

The big trouble apparently was the showers were more frequent and just didn't give the low-lying fields a chance to dry up.

Arab Mufti of Jerusalem Worked Behind the Scenes

JERUSALEM (AP) — The prosecution claimed today in the Eichmann trial that the Arab Mufti of Jerusalem worked behind the scenes to prevent the escape of 5,000 Jewish children from Nazi-controlled southeastern Europe.

Attorney General Gideon Hausner said the Mufti, Haj Amin el Husseini, asked the Nazi authorities to do everything in their power to prevent the emigration project.

Hausner introduced in evidence a letter in which the Mufti, then a guest of the Nazis in Europe, told Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop that an "avalanche of Jews" was pouring into Palestine.

The Mufti warned that the Arabs, "loyal friends of the Axis, would be hurt and offended" if the Jews were carried out. He charged that the Jews were "agents of the British and Communists".

TELLS OF ORDEALS

Israel Guttmann, a tall, bespectacled man who now works in a communal farm in Israel, trembled as he told Eichmann his odyssey opened with the Warsaw ghetto uprising in 1943 in which he was wounded. Taken to Maidanek he fell ill and from a dispensary window saw a crowd of naked Jews herded into the gas chambers.

Guttmann was transferred to Auschwitz to work there. He joined a mutiny in 1944 in which he helped persuade Jewish girls at the I. G. Farben factory to put sand in explosives.

"Crematorium No. 4 was blown up. SS men were killed," he said.

Four Jewish girls from the factory were hanged, he said.

Bowling Notes

Before the first bowling in the Ladies' Summer League season was held on Thursday afternoon the members under Mrs. Mildred Smith, president, held a general meeting to discuss several problems before the directorate. The members also discussed the directive sent to section by the men's section of the club.

Following the meeting the members enjoyed bowling on the excellent greens with Mrs. Geneva Muir, Miss Winnie Smith and Mrs. Betty Vince winning first prize while Mrs. Winnie Terres Wardaugh, Mrs. Nora Kyle, with Mrs. Elsie Humphreys as skip and Mrs. Ethel O'Connor, Mrs. Edna Jackman with Mrs. Grace Clapp as skip tied for second.

At the tea hour Mrs. Anne Watkin, Mrs. Laura Hyde and Mrs. Cleia Gilbert were in charge at hostesses in a most enjoyable social hour was held.

On Saturday afternoon the first tournament of the season will be held at the Trenton Bowling Club. There will be a trebles tournament and at least two and possibly four rinks from the Belleville Club will be on hand. Reports from Trenton state the green is never in better condition and the recent rain would only add to the excellent. Entries from Kingston, Brighton, Campbellford and other district clubs have been received and although the season is young it looks like a quite keen for the splendid prizes that will be offered.

MINERS WILL STRIKE

ABERDEEN (Reuters) — Scottish miners Thursday unanimously approved an emergency resolution threatening to strike if the British government grants a licence to the Steel Company of Wales to import American coal. Union President Abe Moffat warned the resolution was "no idle threat."

lations and to negotiate a disarmament agreement but was fully determined not to yield to Communist threats or pressures on West Berlin or any other disputed point.

Kennedy's final meeting with de Gaulle was a two-hour morning meeting at the Elysee Palace. Their main subject for this session was the North Atlantic alliance, about which the French and U.S. presidents are known to hold some sharply different views.

U.S. and French officials said Kennedy and de Gaulle probably pleased with the results of their talks. Diplomats reported that the 70-year-old French president obviously was favorably impressed with the young American.

It was understood the two leaders decided Kennedy would make clear to Khrushchev that the Western powers will protect West Berlin and defend fully their rights of access to the city across Communist East Germany.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Financial industrials and Breweries fell, while the utilities, refining oils and uranium issues rose. Trading today dragged stock market down in moderate morning trading.

Industrial Acceptance Corporation, Bank of Montreal, Bank of Nova Scotia and Royal Bank all dropped by fractions.

Canada Cement and Aluminium were off, and Distillers Seagrams headed a list of losing liquor stocks.

On index, industrials fell 1.75 to 577, base metals 1.22 to 132.33 and western oils .52 to 97.47. Golds rose .23 to 82.15. The 11 a.m. volume was 535,000 shares compared with 569,000 yesterday.

In base metals International Nickel and Falconbridge fell heavily.

In golds Kerr Addison was off ⅛ to 10¼.

The market fell sharply Thursday in moderate trading.

Steels had a bad day and prices began to dip at the opening. Dominion Foundries and Steel, Steel Company, Algoma, Atlas and Dominion Tar all fell fractionally. United Steel also dropped in late-day trading.

In the liquors, Distillers Seagrams, John Labatt and Canadian Brewe

Robbed of a Birthright

President Charles R. Swart of the Republic of South Africa, in his inaugural address, said that the new republic claimed "the right to decide for ourselves on matters of domestic policy according to the expressed will of our own electorate, without interference from outside."

It is an understandable attitude and in taking it Swart and other South Africans are asking for no more than the sovereign rights accorded other lands.

It ought to be recognized, though, that during the past few decades there has arisen a widespread questioning as to whether the rights of sovereignty are absolute.

For instance, Hitler had a right to rule Germany as he saw fit, without interference from outside, but how many among us will say today that this right remained intact when he undertook to exterminate the Jews?

Most of the civilized world today believes that there is a limit to the sovereign rights of nations to treat their own nationals in any way they see fit.

In South Africa's case, though, there is another factor which may make even those who regard sovereign rights as inviolable ponder whether the new republic has a right to treat its native majority in any way it chooses.

Casually, in a subordinate clause in the second last paragraph of a long report, The Canadian Press mentions that until the proclamation of the republic on Wednesday the country's non-white citizens were British subjects. They were not allowed to vote in the referendum which robbed them of this status.

Would Rome, in its hey-day, have countenanced any arbitrary action robbing its subjects of the right to proudly state "Civus Romanus sum?"

Has not Britain, and the Commonwealth, still a moral responsibility to watch over the welfare of these millions of former British subjects who no longer enjoy that status?

Have not Swart, and other white Afrikaners, in taking a stand against outside interference, conveniently overlooked the fact that they have interfered with the rights of British subjects?

Of what value is the right to call oneself a British subject if one can be robbed of this status, without being consulted and without effective protest by any of the many governments of Her Majesty the Queen?

Farm Cash Income Up

The Ontario Government has reported that in 1960 the cash income received by Ontario farmers from the sale of farm products reached $883,000,000, the highest figure on record.

This is good news. Ontario's economy is no longer basically agricultural, but the prosperity of the province's farmers is, and will remain for many decades at least, among the most important single factors influencing the welfare and living standards of all of us. Moreover, it ought not to be necessary to point out that this important segment of our economy has not shared fully in the vast expansion of the past decade and a half.

While information in the factory has vastly increased productivity per man-hour, mechanization on the farm has followed in the same course but not at such a high speed. Moreover, a portion of the gains of productivity on the farm has been wiped out by lower prices, and this at a time when the general price level has been steadily rising. The 1960 figures for cash income among Ontario farmers are an indication that this trend has been reversed, urban dwellers ought to greet this development with elation rather than envy. If any urban dwellers fear higher returns for farmers may be reflected in higher food prices, we can only refer them to figures which show what a small proportion of the final price to consumers is accounted for by the cost of the "raw material" provided by the farmer.

Here, incidentally, is one fly in the ointment with regard to these figures on cash income of farmers. Life on the farm, like that in the city, has been changing. We wonder how many Ontario farmers produce as high a proportion of their own needs as was true even a quarter of a century ago. Cash income is not the whole of the remuneration a farmer receives, but we suspect that it is becoming a larger and larger percentage of his total income—and that the average farmer finds some increase in his cash income essential if he is to even keep running in the same place, let alone improve his real standard of living.

Red Propaganda Victory

By Harold Weir in the Vancouver Sun

I have been waiting vainly for someone better qualified than myself to point out that the Soviet feat of putting Major Yuri Gagarin into orbit, and bringing him back safe and sound was much more than a triumph of engineering and rocketry.

To shoot a man into space is much, in a manner that he is able to correlate clearly and intelligently his every journey is as much of a medical victory as it is a victory in applied science. Anything the Russians are pre-eminent, not just in one or two instances, but in all the sciences.

The feat may not cause the West to love communism more. But we should remember that it was not calculated to make the West love communism more. It was calculated to impress the new nations. It did impress them.

I find myself unable to appreciate the practical value of sending a man around and around the earth or to the moon or even to Venus and Mars. But the Russians certainly made this stunt to amuse or amaze me. They certainly did not want millions of lately primitive peoples who require to be shown, in concrete terms, what the Communist formula, rigidly followed, will do for a backward nation in 40 years.

On the home front I am fully aware that communism had nothing to do with the success of the project that had Gagarin and his superiors been Liberals or Conservatives, they could have done just as well. But the millions the stunt was intended to impress don't know it. The job of the Soviet propagandists will be to give the exploit political implications. I have no doubt they will do it very well.

The overpowering significance of the event lies, not in its utilitarian value, which is probably small, but in the concentration that will be drawn from it, which are immense. In 40 years, the Soviets will say, communism has made such to master space. In a long series of generations, they will continue, democracy has enabled the West to come up with a superman.

The primary mistake of the West in all this is in clinging to the delusion that the rest of the world wants to live exactly as we do. It is not only that our science, particularly the coordination of technology, has fallen behind that of the Russians, but that our anthropological sense has fallen behind that of the Russians.

The Russians are offering the new nations a quick and exciting road to prestige which is within their means more than anything else in the world. The West is offering the new nations all the fakery of Madison Avenue, the dreary suffix, armpit hygiene, depilatories, Hollywood raz-ma-taz, the philosophy of the have, and the romance of the Old West and all the rest of the junk. I am fully aware that communism had nothing to do with the success of the project that had Gagarin and his superiors been Liberals or Conservatives, they could have done just as well. Above is the scene at Moira Secondary School Thursday as 4-H Tractor Clubs from the three Belleville high schools held a competitive achievement day program. In the background is seen the school agricultural building constructed by carpentry students of the woodworking class. Thirty-seven boys from the three secondary schools competed.

Gary Townsend, Moira School, Best Driver in Tractor Event

Gary Townsend of Ameliasburg township and student at Moira Secondary School, was top point getter in the 4-H Tractor Club competitions held Thursday at the Moira School. He had a score of 463 out of a possible 500.

Thirty-seven boys from Moira Quinte Secondary and Belleville Collegiate participated in the tractor club event.

It was an all day affair at Moira Secondary School as tractor club members from the three schools demonstrated their ability in handling various types of farm tractors. They were required to guide their tractors hauling a platform wagon through a maze of upright poles. A touch of the wagon to any of the poles cost them a point. Points were also given for backing the wagon for hitching.

Identification of tractor parts and spotting defects also was part of the overall competition.

The competition was under the direction of Agricultural Representative Sidney MacDonald of Stirling.

MOIRA SCHOOL HIGH

First three club members from Moira school were Gary Townsend, Ameliasburg, 463; Clare Homan, Belleville, 461, and Bruce Coulter of Foxboro with 456. Seventeen members competed.

In the Quinte Secondary School Club with eight members competing, Kingsley Doolittle was top with a 321 total. Tom Sargent had 319 and Karl Losey 315 points.

Douglas Peck, Ameliasburg was high boy in the BCI club with 436 points, Ron Huston of Ameliasburg had 425, and George Fintland of Deseronto had 421. Twelve club members competed.

3 Motor Cars For Every Ten Canadians

The Department of Statistical Research of Dominion Automobile Association has just completed a survey which has found that with an automobile for each 3½ inhabitants, an increase of 6% over the previous year and an increase of over 200% in the past fifteen years, Canadians are quite securely ensconced in second place (behind the U.S.) in the number of motor vehicles per capita.

Like their American counterpart, the frequency of passenger car ownership is highest on the Pacific Coast. California leads the U.S. in this regard while British Columbia with a passenger car for every 3½ inhabitants is the leader for Canada.

Alberta, on the other hand, leads Canada in the total motor vehicles per capita with a frequency of 1.1 vehicles for each three inhabitants.

In volume, Ontario, of course, leads the field by a substantial margin. Nearly 40% of all Canadian vehicles are registered in Ontario, with Quebec coming second with approximately 21% of the national total.

The tax bite on the motorist as a class is a major factor in the balancing of provincial budgets. Gasoline taxes and vehicle licences, nationally, account for over a half billion dollars in taxes last year, with gasoline taxes accounting for about three quarters of this huge total.

Moira Students Have Own Experimental Farm

Thanks to the initiative of their agricultural instructor, Robert Phillips, agricultural students at Moira Secondary School have their own experimental farm in miniature.

In a small cultivated area at the rear of the school and adjoining the school parking lot, newly developed types of grain and grasses have been sown in marked plots where the students can watch their development.

New type oats and a special barley for fall planting are included.

Mr. Phillips noted that the land available in many instances was not suitable for the grain and grasses which have been planted, but in most instances the "crops" are doing well.

Water Safety Week Will Be Observed

The week of June 18th to 24th will be observed as Water Safety Week by the Bay of Quinte Water Safety Council it was decided at a recent meeting, which also saw Mr. Don Hickson appointed as council chairman for the current fiscal year.

Plans for the observance of water safety week, which has been planned in past years and aroused much interest on the part of citizens in water safety, are now underway. Demonstrations, films and distribution of safety pamphlets will constitute the bulk of the week's activities.

Those organizations which will be participating include the Quinte Aqua Divers, the Ontario Provincial Police, the Belleville Fire Department, and the St. John Ambulance. It is anticipated that the Search and Rescue Group of the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police will also be participating.

A program of films is to be selected by the Recreation Committee, many of which will be shown in the schools throughout this month. Safety pamphlets are also to be distributed throughout the schools.

Mr. Joe Ruddy of the YMCA reported that some 201 boys and girls had completed and passed their swimming tests following instruction at the local "Y" under the Council's public school learn-to-swim program. Another 48 boys and girls completed portions of the required test. It was suggested that not enough children at the elementary school level were taking advantage of the instruction which was available.

Mr. Hickson reported that several pamphlets obtained by the Kiwanis Club from the Red Cross, the St. John Ambulance and other sources had been distributed to school children, Boy Scouts and Girl Guides.

Appointed to the position of vice-chairman of the Council was Dr. Robert Allore whilst Mrs. R. Wright was appointed secretary-treasurer.

LITTLE — MOFFATT

MARMORA — A quiet wedding took place on Saturday, May 27, at 2.30 p.m. in St. Andrew's Chapel, United Church, when Mildred June, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Moffatt of Marmora, became the bride of Clifford Wesley Little, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Little of Millbrook. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. D. McLeod, minister of St. Andrew's.

The bride wore a dress of white silk organza over taffeta with lace bodice, featuring a pouffant skirt with cummerbund. She wore a matching floral headpiece. Her elbow length veil was held by a crown of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Linda Moffatt was bridesmaid for her sister and she wore a duplicate dress of the bride in mauve with mauve headdress of satin and organza and carried mauve carnations with white accessories.

A reception for the immediate families was held at the home of the bride's parents in Marmora township after which the couple left on a short honeymoon to Timmins and Northern Ontario. The bride travelled in a sheath dress of flowered organza over taffeta with navy blue blazer and white accessories and corsage of white carnations.

The young couple will take up residence in Peterborough. Previous to her marriage, Miss Joan Ferguson of Peterborough, was hostess to a miscellaneous shower for the bride at her home in Marmora township. Assisting the bride was Mrs. Vox, Miss Bonita Derry and Mrs. Maurice McFaul were hostesses for a miscellaneous shower. At both times the bride received beautiful and useful gifts.

Trenton Memorial Hospital and Belleville take part next week.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Reid, chairman of the Canadian Brighton Association for Retarded Children and also vice-president of the Ontario Association, was introduced by Mrs. A. Clayton.

Mrs. Reid opened her talk by thanking the group for their financial support, and gave a vivid picture of the problems of retardation and the efforts the association makes to deal with them. She pointed out that it was not an illness, therefore, there is no cure and that it knows no class, color or creed barriers. She stressed the necessity of patience, acceptance and training to fit the children for future independence. She mentioned the different activities of the Association's day classes, special classes, sheltered workshops, summer camps, research projects, parent counselling etc.

FIRST ASSOCIATION

The first association was a group of parents who got together in 1948 and now there are 178 associations across Canada. The Brighton and District Association was founded in 1959, telling some of its achievements and building plans.

Mrs. Reid was thanked by Mrs. R. Walker and a question period followed, showing the interest of the group.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Mcoytor.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wayne Wickett are shown following their recent marriage in Crofton United Church. The bride is the former Miss Lois Valerie Squire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Val Squire, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Wickett of Foxboro.

WICKETT — SQUIRE

Crofton United Church was the setting on Friday, May 19, for a lovely double-ring wedding when Lois Valerie Squire, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Val Squire, became the bride of Alfred Wayne Wickett of Foxboro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wickett. The Reverend R. E. Squire of Gananoque R.R. 2, uncle of the bride, officiated at the candlelight ceremony. Evergreens, white chrysanthemums, and baskets of pink and white carnations, snapdragons and pastel tulips, adorned the chancel.

Mrs. Harry Harrison of Plainfield rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Phillip Hall, Toronto. Two white candelabra flanked the bride's aunt, Mrs. Ernest Tregaskis, of West Cliff-on-Sea, Essex, England.

The bride was entertained, previous to her marriage, at the home of the Misses Pat Wood and Carol Cornish, of Belleville, when she was the recipient of many useful and lovely gifts from the choir of Calvary Temple, of which she is a member. Also at the home of Miss Elsie Soble, when her school-girl and nurse friends presented her with a crystal and linen shower, and kitchen utensils, contained in a "Wishing Well." A miscellaneous shower was also made by her fellow staff members of the Deloro-Stellite of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wickett are residing in Belleville.

The bride was attended by Miss Elsie Soble of Belleville as bridesmaid, who was gowned in pale blue organza over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice, having a rounded neckline. She wore a matching bow headdress and carried a nosegay of pink roses mingled with 'mums.

Mr. Lawrene Harvey of Wellington attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Paul Squire, of Concession R.3, brother of the bride, and Mr. Harold Jeffrey, of Belleville R.R. 6, cousin of the bridegroom, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, with Mr. William Soble as toastmaster. Those who served were the Misses Sandra Gray, Beverley Hinman and Dixi Kamlick.

The bride's table, beneath cascading pink and white streamers and wedding bells, was daintily appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tier, silvelite wedding cake topped by a tiny white basket with flowers and doves, and misted about the base with white tulle, pink roses and finished with candles; the bridal flowers adding a delightful support to the accord.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Val Squire, received in a powder-blue shantung ensemble with three-quarter coat, white accessories and corsage of white 'mums. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Alfred Wickett, attired in beige linen with three-quarter matching coat, and figured silk cummerbund matching the tints of the print. Her accessories were willow green and her corsage was of yellow roses.

For a brief honeymoon to Ottawa, the bride wore a navy striped cotton blend suit, with slim skirt, short, tailored box jacket with three-quarter sleeves, white accessories, and red rose corsage.

Guests were present from Trenton, Kingston, Melrose, Madoc, Foxboro, Prince Edward district, and Belleville. Congratulations and best wishes were received from the bride's aunt, Mrs. Ernest Tregaskis, of West Cliff-on-Sea, Essex, England.

Coronation WA to Fete Husbands

The regular meeting of the Coronation W. A. was held in the ladies' parlor of Big Island United Church on May 29.

The president, Mrs. G. Shaver, opened the meeting and welcomed new members.

Mrs. McGee's group was in charge of the devotional service, the theme of which was, "Life's Pattern." Appropriate readings were given by Mrs. M. R. Linscott and Mrs. Chaplin.

Mrs. A. Cunningham read the Scripture, and Mrs. B. Phils led in prayer.

During the business part of the meeting, plans were made for the "coffee party" to be held in September. In the absence of Mrs. R. Sherrin, Mrs. D. Maddocks read the report on "Christian Stewardship."

It was decided to send a contribution to the young people's union to help sponsor delegates to the North American Ecumenical Youth Assembly to be held in Ann Arbour, Michigan.

Members' husbands are to be invited to the final meeting of the season. This will be a pot-luck supper to be held later in June at Dr. and Mrs. Russell Bateman's cottage.

NEW ORGANIZATION

Following the business, a record was played, which described the new organization —"The United Church Women". This new organization will be established in 1962 and will be an amalgamation of the W. M. S. and the W. A. It is designed to include all United Church Women.

After the record was heard, Mrs. H. M. Davis answered questions and explained the purpose and function of the new organization. Fields of responsibility will be enlarged without overlapping work and all energy will be concentrated in one direction.

There also will be a new program for all youth and children's groups.

Mrs. Shaver thanked Mrs. Davis for her helpful talk, and brought the meeting to a close with the benediction.

Mrs. McGee's group invited the members to a buffet of delicious desserts and coffee and a social time was enjoyed by all.

Medical WA Hears Talk on Retarded Ones

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Society was held at the home of Mrs. S. Bailey in Trenton, on May 29th, 1961, with 16 members present.

The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. S. Morpey. Mrs. S. Miles presented the treasurer's report and Mrs. D. Horne reported on the correspondence.

Mrs. J. Hartt outlined the activities of the O.M.A. Convention which she attended as the representative of this branch.

Mrs. S. Bailey reminded the group of the "Fiesta Day Tea" organized by the W.A. of the Legion LA. Celebrates 10th Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD — The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion held its 10th anniversary banquet on Wednesday evening at the Legion Hall, when the Parish Guild catered for a lovely dinner.

Conv. Cousins Anderson welcomed the Silver Cross ladies, other members and guests. Com. President Ida Shaw proposed a toast to the Silver Cross mothers. Carolyn Towns accompanied on the piano for a sing-song and Com. Verlen Lloyd thanked the caterers to which Mrs. Jack William replied.

A short program followed, including the following numbers: duet, Misses Betty Eason and Janice Shaw; solo, Miss Dianne Towns; solo, Miss Jona Sharp and solo, Miss Betty Eason.

Com. Phyllis Hobbs thanked the entertainers on behalf of the Auxiliary. Com. Mary Hicks was the winner of the door prize, a lovely container of flowers.

Mrs. Don MacArthur received the birthday prize. Lucky cup and saucer winners were Mrs. Bun Forestell and Mrs. Alex Hartman.

Mrs. Ernest Abernethy thanked the Auxiliary on behalf of the Silver Cross ladies for the enjoyable evening.

After dinner several ladies went upstairs to play cards. The winner was Com. Mary Cooper, and Mrs. E. Abernethy won the consolation prize.

The rest of the ladies remained downstairs and took part in several games. The winners were: Mrs. Allan Tweedie, Comrades Dianne Ferrill, Joan Cousins, Nell Atkinson, Lillian Shaw, Verlen Lloyd and Mrs. Xen Martin. Comrades Queenie Anderson and Joan Cousins declared the Charleston.

Com. President Lillian Shaw mailed downstairs and took part in every corsage presented to her at the beginning of the evening. Birthday cake and coffee were served.

SUDDEN EXCITEMENT

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP) When two or three babies arrive at the same time and there's only one nurse in the case room, life is certainly exciting, says nurse Mrs. Shirley Hunt of St. Joseph's Hospital. "One nurse to a whole floor means there's little breathing space during a shift."

Members Seek Donations Of Books About Women

By Elizabeth McSpurren
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian men have never bothered to write books telling Canadian women how to run their lives.

That's the conclusion of Elizabeth Long, after studying 150 years of publications dealing with Canadian family life.

Miss Long, of Whitehorse, says books of advice by men, for women, from the rule in Victorian England and in the United States of the same era. But there was no similar situation in Canada.

She has been studying such books in her role as chairman of the Lady Aberdeen Memorial Library, Canada's first major collection of books by and about women. The library is a project of the National Council of Women, to honor its founder, the wife of Lord Aberdeen who was governor-general of Canada 1893-98.

"Apparently Canadian men thought the women did a good job on their own, or else they kept their thoughts to themselves," said Miss Long, here for a meeting of the library's advisory committee.

PROMINENT MEMBERS

The national committee included Mrs. John Diefenbaker and Senator Cairine Wilson of Montreal. Mrs. Diefenbaker's donation of books about women written by women "has made somehow achieved fame — or notoriety. As finally visualized, the library will be a complete record of the lives of such women.

"You'll even be able to find out what famous women had to eat," said Miss Long. Cook books will be included, along with the history of women's dress.

There now are some 1,500 books in Winnipeg as a start of a collection which eventually will be housed in Ottawa. The library is Canada's first book collection devoted to the chronicle of women. There are 42 such libraries in the U.S., and others in Australia including Britain.

"Canada has produced its great women," said Miss Long. "The time is ripe to assemble all we have and bring it into the realm of the spirit either in published or manuscript form."

While the emphasis will be on Canadians, the library committee hopes to gather books of all countries about women. Donations already have been received from more than 30 countries.

A section of the library will be devoted to pamphlets of Lady Aberdeen who, during her husband's term as governor-general, established the National Council of Women, the Victorian Order of Nurses and the charitable May Court clubs.

Interested in a desire to enter politics herself, she organized the world's then voluless women into forums for their views. She had a part in establishing both the International Council of Women and its outgrowth, the Associated Countrywomen of the world.

"Our library is the first living memorial to a woman who did so much for other women," said Miss Long.

Jacqueline Wears Paris Creation At Banquet

PARIS (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy, in a surprise personal tribute to her French hosts and their fashion industry, wore a Paris creation at a presidential banquet Thursday night.

Previous Kennedy's wife appeared in a gown of heavy white silk and matching coat made by Hubert de Givenchy, designer for Givenchy. The girls affair was held in the Hall of Mirrors of the Elysee Palace.

It was the only French creation worn by Mrs. Kennedy during her three-day visit. Already the toast of Paris, today she was even more popular because of her gesture.

Mrs. Kennedy's fashion surprise was a well-kept secret. A press preview of her wardrobe for the trip showed only American gowns, and reporters were told she would wear a pink and white gray lace number by New York's Oleg Cassini to Versailles.

Instead, she wore the Cassini number Wednesday night to the Elysee Palace, then Thursday night unveiled the ensemble designed for her seven weeks ago and secretly sent to Paris.

The sleeveless gown had a bell-shaped skirt, high neckline and bodice embroidered in jewelled rose, mauve and green floral design.

B.G.H. Class '36 Holds Reunion

Mr. George Hodgins, Crowbridge Avenue, Belleville, was hostess on Saturday evening, to members of the 1936 graduating class.

Reminiscing light and humorous incidents during the three years of isolation and relating family life to date, resulted in a most entertaining evening. A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Hodgins.

On Sunday afternoon the out-of-town nurses were privileged to hear the guest speaker invited by Miss Doris Smith, director of nursing of Belleville General Hospital.

A reception was held at the new Educational Building. The tea was in charge of Mrs. George Hodgins, Miss Doris Hagle and Miss Jessie Deans, the three Belleville residents. The tea poured by Mrs. (Dr.) Miles, Miss Hilda Collier and Mrs. Clifford Howie.

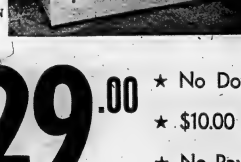
Sunday evening the class was entertained at the home of Mrs. James Dolan and on Monday, Miss Doris Hogle, entertained prior to the annual Anniversary Service at St. Andrew's Church. The class then attended the dinner in a body.

This long-to-be remembered celebration was concluded at the home of Mrs. Clifford Howie where a pleasant evening was spent in renewing old acquaintances.

The class '36 is proud and happy to have trained in the days when the entire student body was a closely knit family — when bedside nursing was the accepted — and to know that each nurse has taken her place successfully in this ever-changing world.

It was discovered, too that there is a family of nine.

If you have left your dreams behind,
If hope is cold.
If you no longer look ahead,
Then you are old".



Therefore, each nurse will be looking forward with anticipation, to the 50th reunion!

WRITE YOUR THANK-YOU NOTES PROMPTLY!

The following letter clearly voices a complaint that is becoming much too prevalent. The brides whose weddings will take place during this coming month should take note and make every effort not to find themselves in this category! I quote:

"Now that the wedding season is here, will you be kind enough to repeat to the brides that they make a greater effort to write their thank-you notes for gifts? It seems that in the last few years many of these young women wait months to write their notes, or they just don't bother at all! For instance, I have just received a note for a September wedding gift. I sent a very nice gift to a December bride who has not bothered to write yet. I have checked the shop where I bought it to make sure it was delivered. I realize that we are now living at a much faster pace than when I was a bride, but I do not feel that this is an excuse for rudeness."

You are certainly right! There is no excuse for not thanking those who have been kind enough to send you a gift. The bride-to-be should make a point of writing her thank-you notes as fast as the gifts arrive. Naturally, excitement mounts as the wedding day draws near. Friends are giving parties in honor of the bridal couple. There are many details to be settled to make the wedding day perfect. However, those letters should be written and time should be squeezed out of each day to catch up on the gifts that arrive and make sure that the thanks go out immediately.

However, during the week of the wedding, the bride does have an excuse for not writing immediately. If those persistent-ing gifts are so thoughtless as to neglect sending them until this late date, they should expect to wait until the bride returns from her honeymoon. After all, they have had more than a month to send the gift and, when they wait until the last minute, it is understandable that the bride does not have time.

A new idea came into being a few years ago, and it is a good one to cover this situation.

The mother of the bride may properly send a small, engraved card to the sender of a gift, acknowledging its receipt and saying that, after the honeymoon, a personal note will be forthcoming. This notifies the sender that the gift has been received.

Now, the important thing is that the bride follow through upon her return! Not months later. Somehow she must write these notes even while setting settled in her new home. It is extremely thoughtless and rude not to do so.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question — My daughter is to be married in June and I am in the middle of the most unpleasant experience I have ever had. The church in which the ceremony is to take place will only seat 150 people. Since both our families have lived here all their lives, there are many friends and business associates, aside from relatives, that must be invited. We want our list to the bone and now have 50 invited from our side of the family. The mother of the bridegroom has come up with a list two hundred and ten people! I have tried to be tactful and explain to her that the list has to be cut more than in half. She is highly indignant and will not listen to reason. What am I going to do? The way it's going, our family won't be speaking when the wedding finally takes place! — Mrs. L. R. B., Harrisburg, Pa.

Answer — The mother of the bridegroom is completely overstepping in this case. Knowing the capacity of the church, it is inexcusable for her to wish to invite double the number. Where does she think the relatives and friends of the bride's family are going? The only solution that I can see is for you to have a talk with the son of this selfish woman and ask him to explain to her that what she is asking is impossible and that she will have to cut her list to not more than sixty people, whether she likes it or not. I have no patience with relatives who want to take over when wedding plans are being made, and no loving arguments and unhappiness to the bridal couple.

LETTER:

I'm enclosing my recipe for Dad's cookies. These are very delicious. I hope this is what your reader was wanting . . . Mrs. H. T.

DAD'S COOKIES: (Courtesy Mrs. H. T.)

1 cup shortening, 2 cups brown sugar, 2 large eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups cocoa, cut (dessicated), 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-3 teaspoon soda, 2 cups oatmeal (rolled oats).

Cream shortening, cream in sugar and vanilla and eggs, beating after each. Mix all remaining ingredients and add to creamed mixture. Mix well. Drop from teaspoon or roll into balls. Place on greased cookie sheet. Bake in 350-375 deg. oven.

ANSWER:

Thank you very much and congratulations on your ingenuity in producing this reasonable facsimile.

LETTER:

After searching for weeks for a recipe for jam turnovers fried in deep fat (remember I wrote to you for help?) I finally found the original recipe, so thought I'd pass it on to you. It was in an old recipe book that Mom go, from the Canadian Home Journal. Mom substituted the jam for cheese and olives for the stuffing . . . Ellnore Van V.

JAM TURNOVERS:

2 cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup cornmeal, 2 tablespoons shortening, milk (about 2-3 cup).

ORIGINAL FILLING:

1 cup grated mild cheese, 1-2 cup chopped pimiento-stuffed olives.

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Add cornmeal. Cut in shortening finely. Mix in gradually sufficient milk to make stiff dough. Roll 1-3" thick. Cut into 4" squares. Place spoonful of filling (above) or jam on squares of dough. Moisten edges, fold and seal. Fry in deep fat (383 deg.) If using jam for filling roll in sugar mixture. Mix well. Other suggested fillings: well season. Add fish, cheese mixtures, curried or devilled meat.

ANSWER:

Thanks, Ellnore. This is excellent.

LETTER:

I'm sure this is the recipe Audrey R. is asking for but my grandmother called it "Prince of Wales" cake instead of "Royal George". It is an old U.F. Loyalist recipe from the old U.E.L. stamping grounds around Belleville, Ont. In those days there were no cake floors available and soda and cream of tartar were used instead of baking powder . . . Blanche A.

PRINCE OF WALES CAKE:

2 cups white sugar, 1 cup butter, 1 cup sweet milk, 2 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons cream of tartar, 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 5 eggs — reserving white of one for frosting.

Mix and beat in ingredients in order given.

Bake in three layers. To middle layer add: 1 cup raisins, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon allspice. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr.

FROSTING:

Beat egg white fairly stiff and beat in fine sugar to spreading consistency.

ANSWER:

Thank you too, Blanche. I have mailed a copy to the enquiring reader.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Eloise J. — He never told me he'd been in jail. He received mo.

Heather B. — I didn't want to lose her. I'm trying so hard not to.

Eloise J. — We've been married two years, and prior to both of us working we've saved up enough to make a down payment on a little house. I planned to quit my job sometime this year so we could start a family. But two months a go Sandy's firm closed down unexpectedly. They couldn't get steel because of the strike and the boss decided to go out of business.

When Sandy failed to get another job, even though most of his friends from the plant were placed, easily, he admitted to me that it was because he had a record. His previous employer took him during a rush-order emergency and didn't ask too many questions. Now I wonder where I stand and what will become of us.

Sanford J. — I can assure Eloise that Sandy and complete skeleton is now out of the closet, to stay. I'm sure you loved her so much and knew I needed her at my side for a good life, so you didn't tell her of my prison record. If the plans hadn't gone sour for both boss, she wouldn't know yet. I planned to confess it all to her Friday, after a few days and a few hours of happy marriage I could bear even closer to me.

But now that she knows, she mustn't go sour on me. If she forsakes me as his point, the future will be bleak. I'm determined to go straight.

The Council — This is a truly moving situation. We can understand Eloise's fears and bewilderment at learning that she has cast her fate with a specially "handicapped" man. All the while she had assumed that the man she loved was employed and not the fugitive he worry about, not the past. We can also appreciate Sandy's prayerful decision to delay the let-all session until the bond between them was emotionally strengthened.

To Eloise we recommend compassion and that special hypocrisy of lover solicitude. Sandy needs your love more than ever before. Let him know that you are one at his side who really and truly "cares" about what happens to him is a man to place a bet on. While employers condider the average married man a "steadier" than the average bachelor, they prefer that a married man whose wife is active, positive and constructive in her role in life.

As to Sandra's chances for another good job, they're excellent. Through his parole board he can contact one of the several firms or agencies which match up determined ex-prisoners with sympathetic bosses. There's one organization, Dismas House in St. Louis, Mo., which specializes in released murderers and bank robbers.

"These men want an opportunity to help themselves, to feel that they didn't have to escape from the darkness of prison," Thad Brown, executive, 114 E. 30 St., both in New York.

The outside world won't server relations with Sanford. How he "handles" the mockery of his "inside world," threaten to do so at this crossroad? When a lover asks for a friend, he certainly needs the wife he loves and counts on.

Township S.S. Elects 1961 Officers

WEST HUNTINGDON—On a recent Thursday evening the Huntingdon Township Sunday School convention was held at the Fuller Presbyterian Church. The program was presided over by Mr. Alex McCurdy and the worship service by Reginald Irvine and Laird Redcliffe.

Mr. Earl Wannamaker welcomed the gathering and, during the business period, Mrs. William Thomas read the minutes of the last annual meeting and of the other meetings held during the year.

The superintendents of the various Sunday School Departments gave their reports, and Mr. Kenneth Holland brought in the nominating committee report by Farrell presented the auditors report.

OFFICERS LISTED

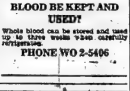
The above officers were duly installed by Mr. Earl Wannamaker.



The theme for the convention was "The teacher and his Bible" and the Rev. R. J. Mooney gave a fine address on this theme.

Following the address, Mr. and Mrs. Walton Reid rendered a duet and the Hammond girls also sang a duet, a musical number. The Misses Lois Johnston and Joan Orr rendered a duet.

At this time Alex McCurdy presented the Moira Sunday School with the trophy.

Mr. Stanley Prest, Miss Pearl White and Mrs. Frank Hammond led in the discussion groups and the resolutions committee report was given by Mr. Arthur Wilson.

The convention was well attended and the meeting of the Benediction brought this happy event to a close.

Recent Bride Feted by Gift Shower

A pleasant event took place on Thursday evening at the Canada Cement club house in Point Anne when Mrs. Harry Alexander (nee Sheila Insley) a recent bride, was guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower.

The early evening was spent in euchre games with the winners being Mrs. Gordon Chisholm, Mrs. Hannah Hull, Mrs. Robert Liddle; lone hands, Mrs. Peter Green, Sr.; lucky plate prize, Mrs. Glenda Finch.

Following the games, Sheila was called to the front and Mrs. Mike Whalen and Mrs. Charles Sedore presented her with many beautiful and useful gifts.

The bride expressed her thanks and appreciation to the hostesses and her many friends for the lovely gifts.

A delicious lunch was served and a pleasant social hour was spent in spite of the unfavorable weather conditions.

Mr., Mrs. R. W. Higginson Mark Golden Wedding Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD — On Sunday, May 27, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Higginson of Campbellford, were "at home" to their many friends on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

They were married on May 27th, 1911, Robert W. Higginson and Frances Bancroft, at St. Luke's Church, Skerton, Lancaster, England. They came to Canada in 1912 and Mr. Higginson was employed with the Cobourg Gas and Electric Company.

He went overseas with the 2nd Heavy Artillery in 1914, returning in 1919 and was then employed by the Hydro Electric Power Commission in Ontario from 1920 to 1956. He came to Campbellford in 1939 and is now retired.

Mr. and Mrs. Higginson have one son, Reginald of Cobourg, and a daughter, Mrs. Harry Cubitt (Margaret), four grandchildren and a niece, Ethel.

The celebrants were in receipt of congratulatory telegrams from the Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker, Mr. Ben Thompson, MP, and Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Agriculture of Ontario.

While living in Cobourg, Mr. Higginson brought two sisters and a brother from England and he and Mrs. Higginson brought them up. One sister returned to England, the other now lives in Toronto and the brother, Albert, was killed in Sqdt Sie. Maris. Mrs. Albert Higginson and her daughter now live in Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. Higginson also received many cards, flowers, and good wishes from their many callers during the afternoon and evening.

Visitors were present from Peterborough and Cobourg as well as the immediate vicinity.

RESCUES CHILDREN

CHATHAM (CP) — Mrs. Egbert Schipe, 38, was severely burned on both arms while rescuing her three youngest children Wednesday as fire levelled their home eight miles northwest of here.

Mrs. Schipe tossed her sleeping baby Frederika, 2, out a door into the yard and then returned to carry out Walter, 7, and Melvin, 4.

Successful Living

Feels Aged at 48

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I enjoy your column very much. It always helps to hear of some one worse off than yourself. I am 48 years of age and the mother of six children. Just lately I feel so depressed and feel my life is wasted.

My husband treats me like a child. He thinks I have no good ideas to give to anything. I just feel so old I wish I could die. Do you believe there is any real love in the world? Everybody seems so cold and cutting, so afraid of losing their money.

I have terrible headaches all the time. I would like to hear other opinions about what to expect when we get to be 48. Our youth is gone and our pace is slower. Does anybody care for the aged?—ANN MOOR.

DEAR DORIS:—What is the most intelligent way to approach having good help in the house, so that the result of my absence from home working will be the least disturbing to my young children and husband?

I see them off to school in the morning and am home when they return (though tired). I am a professional woman and find staying home so depressing that it is not, for me, a workable alternative.—MEDIC.

DEAR MEDIC—We no longer insist that home is the only place for mother. Having a family is no diploma in home management and it can indeed be depressing for some. If you can find your self-expression in words outside the home, and still be there when they need you, go to it.

Help in the house is not easy to get—the good kind, that is. You can find applicants through the National Employment Service, or through putting an advertisement in this newspaper. Do your interviewing patiently and carefully. It is a good principle to telephone or see personally all references, rather than accepting a letter.

Basic is to find someone who likes children. Also to pay well, to recognize that your household help is human and likes regular hours off. Give her holidays with pay and treat her thoughtfully.

DEAR ANN MOOR:—The depression and the terrible headaches suggest a reason which is at least partly physical for your gloomy outlook at 48. A visit to your doctor is urgent.

Once he has given you the physical lift you need, things will take on a little better complexion. Yes, there is much first rate love in the world. Alas, if you have raised six children, your life has been far from wasted.

To number yourself among the aged, at 48, is, to say the least, old-fashioned. And when you are aged, there will be people to care for you.

One of the secrets of success at 48 is to recognize the truth of your statement that the pace is slower. Don't protest the fact; just gear yourself to it.

How about other witnessing to what life is like at 48?

NOTE TO MISS M. A.:—Thanks for sending me your clipping entitled "To Be Successful in Life." It is too long to reproduce here, but I would say the ideas it contains might be summed up as Taking the Positive Approach, in many small things. Do you agree?

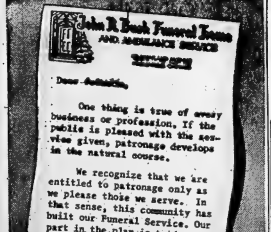
DEAR DORIS:—What do we mean when we speak of turning the table?—JONESEY.



DEAR JONESEY—This expression was originally used to describe the action of the hostess at table when, halfway through the formal dinner, she turned from talking to the guest of honor on her right, to conversing with the gentleman on her left.

Everybody else was supposed to switch and do likewise. Thus, the table was "turned." Actually today we are less artificial and chat with persons on both sides, in turn, throughout the meal. Much better.

But there is a modern use of the saying which means changing places with someone, or reversing roles—as in the song "I've Got My Captain Working For Me Now." (Usually the result is a surprise to the person on whom the table has been turned, and not always a pleasant one.)

Madoc

FINE CATCH

MADOC — Moira Lake is giving up some fine pickerel. Over the weekend a 8-1-2 pound pickerel was caught by Mr. Lon Jasiak, of Brockville, Ohio. He now leads in the Kiwanis Fish Contest, beating the 6-1-2 pound one caught last week by Col Edwards of Madoc. The Jasiak fishing party went back to Ohio well pleased and are returning in July.

CADET INSPECTION

The annual High School Cadet inspection had a fine spring day with sunshine and crowds of spectators. The parade, map using display, drill work, first aid, civil defence, rifle display, were excellent and the spectators were amazed at the proficiency of the students. The trainer, Lieut. Doug Sears, has done a magnificent job and is to be highly complimented and congratulated.

"OPEN NIGHT" HELD

The parents and friends of the Madoc High School students were invited to attend the annual Agriculture "Open Night", May 31. A large crowd toured the garden, barn, shop, science laboratories and home economics rooms. There was a parade of fashion, by the girls in sewing, a fine gymnastic display, and music by the girls' choir and the boys' Quartet. A most impressive evening it turned out to be, and everyone had a most enjoyable time.

CANAL TOLLS

Liquid Diets for Overweight Folk Assailed by Doctor as Only Crutch

TORONTO (CP) — Liquid diets, smoking and Canada's discriminatory immigration policies were criticized by doctors Thursday at the 41st conference of the Health League of Canada.

Dr. E. J. Roberston, associate physician at the Hospital for Sick Children, said liquid diets are a crutch for people who want to lose weight, and one brand she said is likely to reduce an individual to "a medical case at the end of two weeks."

"Certainly persons using it for lengthy periods would have to reform their whole eating habits," she added.

Dr. Robertson said one Canadian in every 16 is overweight and advocates a moderate, well-balanced diet avoiding fats and starches.

SEE CANCER THREAT

Dr. W. G. Cosbie of Toronto told the conference there appears to be a definite association between cigaret smoking and lung cancer—and last year Canadians smoked 34,000,000,000 cigarets.

He said smoking appears to be a major field for preventive health measures since, in the last 25 years, the incidence of lung cancer in Canadian males increased 50 per cent.

Dr. John E. F. Hastings, assistant professor of public health at the university of Toronto, urged that Canada should accept more skilled, educated Asiatic immigrants. He said they are excluded from this country while less-qualified Europeans are admitted.

Dr. G. E. Duff Wilson, medical officer of health in Kitchener, said older persons should engage in regular, though reasonable, physical activity. He said physical activity of a reasonable intensity—a phrase that requires individual interpretation—is a valuable antidote to worry, anxiety and mental concentration.

REFUSED VISA

LONDON (Reuters) — Capt. Henrique Galvao, leader of 70 insurgents who seized the Portuguese liner Santa Maria in the Caribbean in January, was refused a visa to visit Britain because he apparently wished to "advocate insurrection against our allies", a home office spokesman said Thursday. David Renton, undersecretary at the home office, was replying to questions in the House of Commons asking why a visa was refused.

Central Congolese City Of Luluabourg Now Going To Seed in Various Ways

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LULUABOURG, The Congo, (CP)—The air of a neglected bride hangs over Luluabourg.

Dozens of shops turn blank show windows to the partially-deserted streets and dry, tiered fountains. The diesel generator which supplies the city's electricity fails more and more frequently for lack of fuel or parts. The railway which crosses Kasai province, providing Luluabourg with its main freight artery, runs sporadically.

This central Congolese city was to have been one of the jewels of Belgium's African colony, a beautiful monument to Belgian resourcefulness and enterprise in the heart of the great African plain which forms most of Kasai.

For many years plans were drawn up to move The Congo's capital from Leopoldville to Luluabourg. The plans never materialized. Now Luluabourg is going slowly to seed.

A year ago, some 5,000 Belgians made their homes in the smart residential districts. They ran the modern stores and offices, supervised the small factories and kept the public services functioning.

But many felt the wind of anti-white feeling early in 1960 and left The Congo before independence last June 30. For the others, Luluabourg became a nightmare.

Long-repressed tribal antagonisms between Lulua and Baluba came to the surface and the Congolese army mutinied against its Belgian officers. In the ensuing havoc, whites sought refuge where they could, until convoys of planes took them out under the protective guns of Belgian paratroopers.

SOME RETURN

From an estimated dozen Belgians who remained—in a total population of 50,000—the number now has grown to about 100. Many are here on a wait-and-see basis, or to salvage what they can from former businesses.

Since the main disturbances of last summer, Luluabourg has experienced relative quiet. The worst trouble came in mid-February when about 200 refugees from Antoine Gizenga's Oriental province rode into town to a joyous welcome from the pro-Gizenga population.

They soon outwore the welcome and when the aroused citizens, tired of abuse by the soldiers, killed three of the "liberators," the Gizenga troops retaliated with a savage sweep into the native quarters that left about 40 dead.

The troops soon returned to Oriental. The 2,500 Congolese army soldiers in the area have since been kept in hand by about one-fourth as many Ghanaian troops serving with the United Nations.

The Luluas, meanwhile, live in dread. Baluba "king" Albert Kalonji, enriched by industrial diamond mines around his capital of Bakwanga 90 miles east of here, has visions of expanding his "autonomous state of South Kasai" in a wide sweep around Luluabourg. That would isolate the Luluas and leave them ripe for invasion.

HELPED LUMUMBA

Such an invasion would give the Balubas a chance to avenge last October's march on secessionist South Kasai by troops of the late premier Patrice Lumumba, in which probably 1,000 Balubas were slaughtered. The Luluas gave delighted help to Lumumba's troops.

Most of the Luluas now are unemployed. Hundreds have moved into the once-fashionable quarter St. Louis, which the Belgians had made an exclusive white residential area on Luluabourg's outskirts.

The smart shopping centre in the quartier is closed. The unpaved streets have become rutty trails. Fashionable homes are being overtaken by decay because the Luluas who occupied them after the Belgian flight have neither the money nor the knowledge to maintain them.

More than 1,000 cars were abandoned at the Luluabourg airport alone. They were quickly claimed by the Congolese and driven into the ground, to be stripped for parts and left at roadsides and in backyards.

Food prices and shortages encourage malnutrition. Eggs cost 20 francs (40 cents) each, potatoes are about 35 francs a pound and such staples as bread and fresh vegetables are scarce.

ESTABLISH A PROFITABLE CLOTHING BUSINESS

If you are looking for a guaranteed future in the clothing business, a suitable location in the new Shopping Centre is available. Canada's largest made-to-measure and ready-made house can help you establish a successful operation. We are very interested in opening a branch in your area and are looking for an ambitious, active person with clothing experience. Moderate capital required.

DECAYING CONGO CITY — Less than a year after The Congo gained independence and thousands of Belgians fled, the showplace city of Luluabourg in Kasai Province has gone to seed. Many streets are nearly deserted and shops closed. Shown here is a once-attractive thoroughfare with its grass boulevard growing wild. At the far end is the five-storey building taken over by Ghanaian troops as United Nations headquarters in Kasai. (CP Photo).

Rusk Promises Military Aid To Latin America

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States plans to provide increased military aid to those Latin American countries which are friendly to it, State Secretary Dean Rusk indicated Wednesday.

He told the Senate foreign relations committee the Kennedy administration is taking a "new approach" to internal security in Latin America, providing also the "the statutory bar to internal security programs for that region."

Under a new foreign aid bill, now before the committee, the administration would eliminate any fixed ceiling on the amount of arms and equipment that can be shipped into Latin countries, though Rusk said "the new program we have in mind will not require large or expensive equipment."

While Rusk didn't spell out details of the new plan, it appeared to involve a strong American move to support pro-American governments and prevent subversion by Communist-type regimes.

Answering opposse foreign aid, Rusk told the committee, 'must accept the consequences of their opposition.

"They must understand," he continued, "that if they succeed (in killing the program), they deny the peoples of underdeveloped countries their last great hope for independent development and thus help condemn them to the high probability of Communist servitude-with Communist world encirclement."

Mrs. Harry DeClair spent the week-end in Maple Leaf with her sister, Mrs. Ross Olmstead, who is ill.

LOW PRAIRIE PRECIPITATION —Precipitation on the Prairies was below normal for the nine months ended April 30.

This map, based on a report of the meteorological branch of the transport department, shows distribution of rainfall and snowfall across the grain-growing areas of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Precipitation in the southern sections of all three provinces was sub-normal. Generally, Saskatchewan had 18 per cent below average precipitation. Alberta nine per cent and Manitoba three per cent. (CP Newsmap)

The Prairie Grain Regions Enter Growing Season With Below-Normal Precipitation

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Prairie grain regions entered the growing season with a below-normal total of winter and spring precipitation.

Contrasting with the same time last year—when most sections had above-average totals—figures prepared for The Canadian Press by the meteorological branch of the transport department show all sections below normal, with Alberta, eastern and central Alberta.

At the end of April, the deficit from the 30-year normal in Alberta was nine per cent, in Saskatchewan 18 per cent and in Manitoba three per cent. Last year at this time Alberta had a surplus of five per cent, Saskatchewan 26 per cent and Manitoba 36 per cent.

Some improvement was shown in May, but not reflected in official tables. The department notes that during the first week of May precipitation was above normal in southern and western Alberta, eastern and north-central Saskatchewan and throughout Manitoba. In the second week of May many Alberta points reported more than an inch of precipitation, and above-normal amounts also fell in almost all of Saskatchewan and western Manitoba.

The nine-month totals from August to April, inclusive, show the figure improved in Saskatchewan from a 20-per-cent deficiency at the end of February to 18 per cent. Alberta's, however, increased to a nine-per-cent deficit from four per cent, and Manitoba's province - wide deficit of three per cent compares with two per cent after February.

AREAS VARIED

For the nine months as a whole the southern sections of all three Prairie provinces experienced sub-normal precipitation. The exception of a few stations in the Maple Creek region of Saskatchewan and the Birtle-Brandon area of Manitoba, which had small excesses.

At Estevan, Sask., for instance, an excess of 69 per cent helped relieve the severity of the prairie drought in that area.

There were also occasional excesses in the northern grain area of Saskatchewan, the Peace River district and at Biggar, but most stations had deficiencies, some up to 50 per cent.

In the central part of Alberta the range was from a deficiency of 39 per cent at Vermilion to an excess of 23 per cent at Mackenzie. Farther north in Edmonton area there were excesses averaging 20 per cent. In the Peace River district Reg River had an excess of 30 per cent, and three was a smaller surplus at Fort St. John, but other stations all reported deficiencies ranging from 10 to 30 per cent. Of the four main areas of Alberta, only the north central was average for the nine months.

DRY SPRING

Throughout the Prairie provinces, precipitation was light in March, a few stations registering merely a trace for the month. There were a few small excesses in the southern section of the Peace River district but elsewhere deficiencies ranged to 50 per cent at Beaverlodge.

Deficiencies were general throughout the remainder of Alberta in March, ranging to more than 80 per cent in Edmonton, 82 per cent at Calgary and 60 per cent in the southern section of the province.

Saskatchewan was very dry in the southern part in March, with many stations south of the Saskatchewan River reporting only a trace of precipitation for the month. Deficiencies ranged to about 80 per cent in the Regina area. In the extreme northern part of the grain area there were a few small excesses, notably Prince Albert which received more than twice the normal fall.

The grain areas of Manitoba in March had deficiencies ranging from 12 per cent at Gimli to 90 per cent at Neepawa.

On the Prairies, April was a cool, windy and fairly dry month. Temperatures averaged from two to five degrees below normal. There were two severe storms which produced abnormal snowfall. Calgary had nearly a foot of snow on April 18 and 19 and a week later in southwest Manitoba, Brandon had 18 inches of snow.

For, April as a whole, the deficiency ranged to 80 per cent in the Peace River district and the grain areas of Alberta and Saskatchewan. Alberta stations reported excesses—Calgary, typical of these, was 15 per cent above normal.

East-central Saskatchewan in April had deficiencies of 10 to 80 per cent. In Manitoba, precipitation was well above normal along the Assiniboine, most stations reporting excesses of about 50 per cent, but the southein fringe of the grain area had deficiencies of 10 to 30 per cent.

Sunday School Lesson

"Nothing Makes Sense"

By ROY L. SMITH

The book of Ecclesiastes, in the Old Testament, is one of the most baffling in all the Bible. As a matter of fact it came near being left out of the canon. Some of the most scholarly and devout among the ancient Jews believed it had no place whatever in the scriptures, and voted against including it, because of its low spiritual value. Actually it was not until the year 90 A.D. at the time of the Council of Jamnia (20 years following the destruction of Jerusalem at the hands of the Romans) that it finally made the grade. Even then it was admitted only because there was a wide-spread belief that it had been written by Solomon.

In the case of Ecclesiastes, the question of authorship is of relatively little importance for the ideas with which the book deals are all timeless.

The author is admittedly a skeptic, and a rather brilliant one at that. He had been schooled in the rabbinical rules of his time, and had absorbed the teachings of the great religious leaders. But simple candor compels him to admit that all this does not explain the mystery of life for him. He is cold, for example, to the idea that if he wants to be happy he must be good, but on the other hand upon the world about him he has seen many a good man who has died suffering terribly. Quite evidently the old maxims do not always be standing at the edge of a vast field of the unknown. We dare not assume that our religious experiences are a definition. Neither can we dismiss them, for they seem to be of the very essence of life.

The best explanation thus far offered is to be found in the first verse of the Book of Genesis: "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." Much of all the laws is a Lawmaker.

"Nothing Makes Sense"

By ROY L. SMITH

The book of Ecclesiastes, in the Old Testament, is one of the most baffling in all the Bible. As a matter of fact it came near being left out of the canon. Some of the most scholarly and devout among the ancient Jews believed it had no place whatever in the scriptures, and voted against including it, because of its low spiritual value. Actually it was not until the year 90 A.D. at the time of the Council of Jamnia (20 years following the destruction of Jerusalem at the hands of the Romans) that it finally made the grade. Even then it was admitted only because there was a wide-spread belief that it had been written by Solomon.

In the case of Ecclesiastes, the question of authorship is of relatively little importance for the ideas with which the book deals are all timeless.

The author is admittedly a skeptic, and a rather brilliant one at that. He had been schooled in the rabbinical rules of his time, and had absorbed the teachings of the great religious leaders. But simple candor compels him to admit that all this does not explain the mystery of life for him. He is cold, for example, to the idea that if he wants to be happy he must be good, but on the other hand upon the world about him he has seen many a good man who has died suffering terribly. Quite evidently the old maxims do not always be standing at the edge of a vast field of the unknown. We dare not assume that our religious experiences are a definition. Neither can we dismiss them, for they seem to be of the very essence of life.

The best explanation thus far offered is to be found in the first verse of the Book of Genesis: "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." Much of all the laws is a Lawmaker.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 4 is "A SEARCH FOR LIFE'S MEANING." Nehemiah 8 through 10; Ecclesiastes 1.12-18; 3:1-14;5.

But even good minds are up against stone walls, and there come times when even the best of scientists find themselves compelled to launch out on faith. Enrico Fermi did that on the campus of the University of Chicago that afternoon in December when he pulled the levers on the reactor and produced the first controlled fission of an atom.

There is not, probably, one great scientific achievement that does not represent the willingness of some scientists to walk out into the dark unknown ahead of the facts!

LAWS AND A LAWMAKER

Our author has been doing some hard thinking and has come up to the conclusion that everything is governed by law, and that no one can do anything about it — not even God (3:1-5).

He has come a long way who has arrived at the conclusion that life is orderly and that the universe is obedient to law. But every thoughtful man is aware of the fact that there are those great gaps in theory. The biologist, for example, can trace the development of life from the simple single-cell organism to the complex figure of a modern man. But the same point also has an amazing thing appeared in human personality — and in the face of that miracle the brainiest biologist stands helpless. He can only say, "I don't know!"

Added to all these solid facts is another: In the life of each of us there occur those spiritual experiences which cannot be explained on the basis of logic and reason. We seem to be standing at the edge of a vast field of the unknown. We dare not assume that our religious experiences are a definition. Neither can we dismiss them, for they seem to be of the very essence of life.

The best explanation thus far offered is to be found in the first verse of the Book of Genesis: "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." Much of all the laws is a Lawmaker.

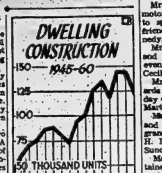
Cross-Canada Survey

Sales of New Homes Rising Across Country and Prices Stable or Sometimes Lower



By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Across the country house builders are optimistic that 1961 will be a good year—though not a record one—for the housing industry.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows sales of new homes are rising in many areas; booming in some. Prices generally are fairly stable and sometimes even lower.

Real estate firms give two reasons for their optimism: A sharp increase in the supply of mortgage funds, both government and private, and a series of National Housing Act changes that have made it easier to finance a new home.

Perhaps the most picture is in Metropolitan Toronto where nearly 45 per cent of October's home are built. Sales of new homes in the first quarter of the year are more than double the rate a year ago. Sales of lived-in homes are up almost one-third.

TERMS EASIER

Harvey Hall, president of the Toronto Real Estate Board, credits the increase to the lower down payments and longer repayment terms—now a maximum of 35 years — permitted under the recent NHA amendments.

There is one cloud on the horizon—a backlog of unsold houses. Federal government figures on 36 major urban areas show that such houses on March 31, one-third more than a year ago.

In Halifax a Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation official suggests a strong sales campaign before more homes are built. But in several other centres sales are booming up 50 per cent in Montreal, 20 per cent in Regina and 18 per cent in Edmonton.

While building crews are expected to start work this year on more new homes than last year, a federal government forecast is that the number completed will be roughly unchanged at around 134,000. Housing expenditures are expected to rise by only five per cent to $1,580,000,000.

This slow over-all growth rate is due to the delayed-action effect of last year's drop of nearly 20 per cent in housing starts to 100,000.

Housing starts in the first quarter this year rose 66 per cent from a year ago to 16,674. The 13,255 new NHA mortgage applications approved during January - March were almost six times more than a year earlier.

INTEREST RATE UP

But the comparisons can be misleading. More than half the NHA mortgages this year have been directly financed by CMHC, which last year didn't start lending until April. Moreover, a year ago the private NHA lenders were just reentering the mortgage market in a big way following the boost in the maximum NHA interest rate to 6% per cent at the start of 1960.

Federal officials indicate the supply of mortgage money will be adequate this year.

The prevailing rate is 6% per cent on NHA mortgages. Private mortgages are reported at around seven and 7½ per cent, a smaller margin than the usual spread between NHA and conventional mortgage rates.

The survey found changing trends in housing styles. In some centres builders say ranch-style bungalows and split-level houses are losing some of their popularity to the old-fashioned two-storey house. Costs of land, building and heating are given as reasons.

But tastes vary. Calgary real estate firms report a definite shift in favor of split - level homes for the same economic reasons — costs of the extra rooms on the lower level are less than for bungalows.

MORE STARTS

First-quarter housing starts were higher than a year ago in every province but New Brunswick. The number of units under construction, however, was lower at March 31 than a year earlier in all but two provinces, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Newfoundland 1,000 (241); Prince Scotia 437 (353); New Brunswick 40 (42); Prince Edward Island 8 (3); Quebec 3,141 (3,460); Ontario 5,677 (3,324); Manitoba 502 (403); Saskatchewan 401 (185); Alberta 1,386 (830); British Columbia 2,810 (2,300); all Canada 16,674 (11,118).

Units under construction at March 31 this year and last: Newfoundland 2,067 (2,081); Prince Edward Island 107 (111); Nova Scotia 1,433 (1,437); New Brunswick 1,551 (1,595); Quebec 14,106 (14,594); Ontario 24,077 (25,241); Manitoba 1,721 (2,798); Saskatchewan 1,551 (1,595); Alberta 3,246 (3,530); B.C. 8,023 (8,613); all Canada 59,882 (63,707).

In Prince Edward Island, a determine future availability of land.

In Nova Scotia, several large new apartment buildings. In the Sydney area, where three companies are scheduled to close this year, the outlook is less promising. But real estate firms there say sales likely will remain on a par with last year.

Prices Edward Island: A few new homes are being built on the outskirts of Charlottetown. Realtors say sales and prices are down this year, but point to a bad winter and the almost constant population of the capital. An average three-bedroom house is selling for $10,000 compared to $12,000 last year.

New Brunswick: Sales of new houses are ahead of the last year in Saint John and prices seem to have increased slightly. a CMHC official reports. Construction is proceeding at a fair 1960 "look very good." A few large builders have started to build smaller, low-cost homes to keep the down payment below $1,500.

Quebec: Housing starts in Montreal are up sharply, but not enough to make up the loss in March, last year, and the number of homes under construction still is below last spring. CMHC officials report a 50 - per - cent gain in NHA sales of new houses during the first quarter. New home prices have tended to fall in the $15,000 - $20,000 range of up to five per cent. Elsewhere in Quebec province building activity is higher than last spring. Prices in Quebec City, Trois-Rivieres, Hull and Chicoutimi lower.

Ontario: In Metro Toronto, sales of new homes in the first quarter rose to 1,643 from 715 a year earlier, and sales of lived-in homes increased to 4,400 from 3,700. Price of a new three-bedroom house has risen slightly to an average $18,400 from $18,250 last year, but is still less than in 1959. Building officials report a high rate of construction this year. In London, real estate firms say sales are down considerably from last spring with selling prices steady.

Manitoba: Housing officials say the rate of sale in Winnipeg is much the same as last year but homes is expected to pick up with warmer weather. Increased building activity is forecast.

Alberta: The Edmonton Real Estate Board reports sales of new and lived-in homes up 18 per cent. Handling of real estate companies indicates prices range from steady to lower by as much as five per cent. Construction prospects for the year are good. A pending shift in Edmonton zoning bylaws is reported having a depressing effect on the market. In Calgary, real estate people say optimistic about 1961 sales volumes. Prices there are up slightly. There are plenty of apartment vacancies and lower rents.

British Columbia: Greater Vancouver has seen a sharp increase this year in the number of new home buildings started, but starts on single-family dwellings are down. Building prices of new homes have not risen but prices of lots have gone up. Depending on area, the average lot costs between $1,500 and $7,000.

Vienna Is Fitting Place For Kennedy to Meet Mr. K.

By RICHARD O'REGAN

VIENNA (AP)—This is a city of light wines and heavy decisions. And it is a capital where a spirit of conciliation and diplomatic compromise has prevailed for more than 40 years.

It is a fitting place for President Kennedy to get together with Nikita S. Khrushchev.

One of the Soviet Union's most cherished retreats since the Second World War revolved around Vienna. For 10 years the Russians held out adamantly against giving Austria back the independence it had lost in the war. Then, six years ago, the Russians gave in. Austria became independent again — and neutral.

Peace came to Europe the last time the great leaders of Russia and the West met at the glittering Congress of Vienna in 1815. The kings, emperors and leaders of Russia, Prussia, Austria, England and France united right after night over nine months and celebrated peace after the Napoleonic Wars.

RESHAPED EUROPE

That last get-together of the Great Powers, in effect, shaped the map of Europe essentially for 100 years. France, defeated right after night over nine months and celebrated peace after the Napoleonic Wars.

"In Vienna, if we have an argument, we sit down and talk it over. After some time, we may agree. Then everybody leaves happy because we have made a point.

"Perhaps that will happen with K and K. If they do agree, then we, and the world with us, can go out and have a glass or two."

The Austrian editorial writers speak hopefully of a new "spirit of Vienna." By this they mean the idea of settling differences by diplomacy.

Composition is a second nature to the Viennese. The epitome of them all is Austria's president, Adolf Schaerf. Like his country, he straddles East and West and avoids problems of the cold war.

A devoted Socialist, Schaerf is both anti-Communist and anti-capitalist. He lives in an apartment in a middle-class district with no security guards except a solitary policeman.

He works, in contrast, in the great chandeliered and mirrored halls of the Hofburg Palace, where the Holy Roman Emperors ruled most of Europe for hundreds of years.

In this same 700-year-old palace, Schaerf probably will have Kennedy and Khrushchev to dinner.

Many tourists think of Vienna as a city of intrigue, espionage and kidnappings. Either player Anton Karas still plays the Third Man theme three times slightly in a wine garden in nearby Grinzing. But this is a relic of the Big Four occupation of Vienna.

The great white horses, the giant Spanish Riding School, the Prater Park, the memories of Vienna's imperial past and above all, its music, the Opera House and the wine from the Vienna woods—these are Vienna.

United Church Delegates Approve Resolution Calling For Union With the Kirk

TORONTO (CP)—The annual conference of the United Church of Canada, representing more than 600 congregations, has proposed the healing of a 30-year-old breach.

Delegates approved without debate a resolution calling for union with the 190,881-member Presbyterian Church in Canada. The two churches have been separate since 1925 when Methodist, Congregational and most Presbyterian churches combined to form the United Church.

The churches have not held official talks on union for 10 years though both are engaged in discussions on unity with the Anglican Church.

Rev. Ernest M. House, president-elect of the Toronto conference which represents more than one-third of the church's 1,616,879 members, said the suggested union is long overdue.

"The challenges facing Christianity in Canada are too great for harmful divisions," he said.

Mr. House said the churches share the same doctrine and their own areas.

Formal Request For Federal Aid Made by N.B.

FREDERICTON (CP) — Provincial government officials are waiting hopefully today for a reply to a formal request for $250,000 in federal aid to cope with financial responsibilities incurred as a result of disastrous floods that swept the province last weekend.

Premier Robichaud wired Prime Minister Diefenbaker Thursday that "the extent of such devastating losses is much heavier than the resources of the municipal and provincial governments can reasonably be expected to bear."

Losses have been estimated at far in excess of $7,000,000 by the newly-established disaster fund chairman, Ernest Anderson, a deputy minister of youth and welfare.

The premier's wire added that claims by individuals entitled to aid under the fund's terms will amount to at least $2,000,000 and that a minimum objective of $1,000,000 has been set. A total of $53,500 has been subscribed, including $50,000 by the provincial government.

The fund will make no payment for corporate or property damage caused by the floods.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in the House of Commons Wednesday it was presumed at that time that "the provincial government will do so again."

Compensation needed."

The flooding occurred last Saturday and Sunday in central rains. Scores of homes were inundated, washed away or smashed, bridges, culverts and rail lines were washed out and utilities disrupted.

CBC Rejects Suggestions For Study of Organization House Committee Is Told

OTTAWA (CP) — Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson strongly invited a Commons committee Thursday to recommend that the CBC's organization and financial operations be studied by an independent firm of management consultants.

Until this is done, he said, the CBC's plans for a $70,000,000 consolidation of broadcast facilities in Toronto and Montreal should be shelved.

Mr. Henderson also said the publicly - owned corporation should continue to get parliamentary grants on a one-year basis, instead of for longer periods, "in the light of apprehension over the manner in which the corporation handles money."

The auditor-general — Parliament's watchdog on public spending — was comptroller of the CBC for more than two years before he took over his present job in the last year.

He told the Commons broadcasting committee that its $1,000,000 budget for research has turned up evidence of economies and savings that could be carried out in the CBC.

REJECTED STUDY

He said the CBC management rejected a suggestion he made last year for an independent study of its organization and its wide management consultants.

He added, however, that "until these very fundamental questions of organization, management and internal control are settled" it would be difficult to make recommendations in other areas of CBC operations.

Such an independent investigation would be "only fair and just to the present management" who had given their best in "a terribly tough and difficult assignment."

Mr. Henderson said that in a report to the CBC's board of directors last June he had recommended the independent investigation, and also had said there were "weaknesses" in its system of internal financial controls.

SUGGESTS LONG TERM

Replying to a question by Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur), he said it probably would be helpful to the CBC to get long-term assistance from Parliament, over a five-year period for example, instead of the present system of annual grants. This would let the CBC "know where it is going."

This year, parliament is being asked to vote $19,000,000 toward CBC operating expenses and $9,540,000 for capital costs.

Mr. Henderson added:

"In the light of apprehension over the manner in which the corporation spends its money, I would be less than frank if I didn't say a case exists for it to continue getting its money on an annual basis."

France Must Play Greater Role in Western Alliance

Heiress Refuses To Surrender Trust Fund

NEW YORK (AP) — Heiress Diana Gullion Davis has refused to surrender a $5,500,000 trust fund to her father's knee, multimillionaire Percy Gullion.

Miss Davis, 28, is set today with her investment banker, Walter Shubay. Miss Davis, over the huge trust fund he set up for her, and which he protected in Princeton.

Davis set the meeting with Princeton officials to have his daughter sign over the trust fund. Diana didn't show up.

But Thursday she denied knowing about the meeting and said she was resisting "to be sure" to sign over the fund. She added:

'FOR HIS OWN GLORY'

"I called him and told him that after my marriage I would consider seriously what to do about the trust fund. He was so bitter that he set up on me. He's doing all this for his own glory, apparently."

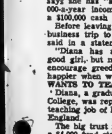
Diana also intimated that her parents are against the marriage.

Davis accuses his daughter of "unreasonable infatuation" and says she has "an assured $30,000-a-year income for life and a $100,000 cash gift."

Before leaving Thursday on a business trip to Europe, Davis said in a statement:

"Diana has always been a good girl, but money seems to encourage greed. We were far happier when she had to work."

WANTS TO TEACH



Diana, a graduate of Wheaton College, was engaged seeking a teaching job of her own in New England.

The big trust fund grew from $4,500,000 fund created at Diana's birth. With additional gifts and investment management by the father, it ballooned to its present stature.

Davis said his daughter's $3,800,000 fund was intended by him as a memorial for his father, George Henry Davis, Princeton 1886.

APPROVES PLAN

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — India Thursday approved a five-year development plan starting this year which is expected to cost 118,000,000 rupees (about $24,700,000,000). The plan called for foreign aid of 28,000,000,000 rupees (about $5,500,000,000).

"Jest a Second"

"Do you prefer the wrapped or unwrapped?"

By ROSS MUELLER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Paris meeting between President Kennedy and President de Gaulle may have a greater effect on the future of the Western alliance than at first appears.

The first encounter of the two presidents was on a most cordial note and apparently produced agreement on the West Berlin issue which may come up at talks between Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev in Vienna this weekend.

French anxiety that the Russians may launch a new move against the Western position in Berlin is behind Kennedy's meeting with de Gaulle before he goes to Khrushchev's mind about the determination of the Western powers to defend the interests in that city.

The United States president reinforced the Western stand by promising that American troops in Europe will be there as long as they are required, ready to meet any threat with whatever response is needed.

CLEARS AWAY DOUBTS

This promise should make the unofficial visit of de Gaulle and Kennedy a little clearer. It possibly will decide not to withdraw its troops rather than risk a crisis that has been partly responsible for de Gaulle's insistence on producing France's own atomic striking force.

But the agreement on Berlin is not the only important item on the agenda. Ways to keep its force in Europe were discussed by the leaders of Britain.

A more tricky problem is the one that divides de Gaulle's France from the rest of the allies.

It will be difficult to make NATO more effective unless France can be persuaded to play a more constructive role in the alliance. France is the chief force in the way of a fully integrated defence.

GIVE UP TESTS

France also has been blamed for the failure so far to bring an end to the disarmament talks in Geneva because of French nuclear tests.

Kennedy's task will be to persuade de Gaulle to give up France's nuclear tests, in the hope of obtaining an agreement on disarmament, but he will have to offer the general more inducements than a ban on his atomic plans.

De Gaulle is not likely to agree to cease nuclear tests without demanding equality with Britain by the exchange of the atomic secrets and nuclear bombs.

It is unlikely that mere words will move de Gaulle unless he is obtaining in return definite support for a proposal to set up a three-power directorate — consisting of France, Britain and the U.S. — that would tip nuclear policies within NATO.

IN FULL CONTROL

TEHRAN (Reuters) — Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi approved in full control of Iran Wednesday amid reports that new purges were planned in the government's campaign for social reform. Recent rumors which claimed a coup d'etat was imminent, government sources said, were planted here by wealthy landowners alarmed by the government's land reform program.

Cuban Press Blames States For Death

HAVANA (CP) — The Cuban press wasted no tears in condemning over public attention in French Quebec where a countries — old way of life is adapting itself to a fast-paced and expanding industrialized society.

Evidence that a political clash is shaping up first came this week. Antonio Talbot, leader of the traditionalist Union National party, accused the Liberal government of laying the groundwork for eventual state control of education and of giving comfort to radical Quebec elements sapping the foundation stones of Quebec's denominational system of public education.

He blasted the government for not leading an all-out attack against vocal factions demanding the establishment of neutral or non-denominational state schools for French - language Canadians who want them.

Rumbles of concern at the top of the Liberal administration are clearing the way for far-reaching reforms, were heard by legislature circles.

The legislation largely is designed to make education facilities accessible to a larger number of students and up to a higher level. The government wanted to avoid, if possible, a quarrel over religious questions.

MAKES IMPORTANT SPEECH

Premier Jean Lesage, making what many consider the most important speech of his career in provincial politics, spelled out for the first time how his government views Quebec at the present crossroads.

He said:

1. Quebec is coming out of the protective shell provided by its Roman Catholic clergy for 100 centuries, and facing a new kind of society.

2. The generations of soul-killing peasants have been transformed into an urban proletariat.

3. The Roman Catholic Church, critics notwithstanding, is not holding an iron grip over the province's social institutions like "a medieval feudal lord."

Laymen have taken over the Catholic labor movement. The teaching, co-operative, and hospital fields generally are being taken over by laymen.

4. The overwhelming majority of Quebec citizens are still Roman Catholics or are members of other religious confessions who want religious education in their schools. The government will not betray their right for the sake of those who want neutral school.

5. The neutralists are a noisy minority. They want a "laicist" school. The government will not be an accomplice in the propagation of atheism.

SAPS LEAGUE

In Montreal, Jean David, national president of the Young Liberal Federation of Canada accused Mr. Lesage of discussing demands for non-denominational schools in Quebec in the "same offhand manner as the Union Nationale."

In Quebec City there was a flurry of behind-the-scenes comments and reactions, both for and against Mr. Lesage's stand.

The feeling is that storm clouds are gathering over the legislature soon scheduled to study the government's sweeping education reforms. The eight key government measures are due for debate within two weeks.

The Union Nationale party, presiding a 40-man opposition in a 95-seat house and a majority in the upper house, apparently is getting set for an all-out fight with the government.

Union party's chief battle-line is over the bill giving the youth minister, who is responsible for public education, new powers in the administration of government grants to school boards. This function, normally in any case, is carried out by the superintendent of education, who holds a key position, technically above partisan political considerations.

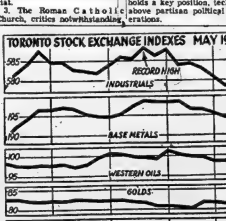
Walker Assails Lack of Interest In Ending Slums

HALIFAX (CP) — Federal Works Minister Walker Thursday criticized Canadian communities for their lack of interest in slum clearance and for expecting too much financial aid from the central government.

In a flying one-day visit here, Mr. Walker hit hard at lagging municipal interest in cleaning up of blight areas—and at too much municipal interest in the federal coffers.

He held an hour-long press conference, addressed the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities and opened a giant low-rent housing project—Halifax's first step in slum clearance.



He told some 700 municipal leaders that Canada was "not doing nearly enough" to progress in getting rid of slums. Some of our towns and cities are not even doing a good job of stopping the spread of blight to other residential areas."

NOT DESERVABLE

Under the terms of Confederation the federal government has no obligation to contribute financially to the municipalities, he said. It was a provincial matter.

But "despite this, the central government was chipping in $200,000,000 a year to aid provinces and municipalities.

Mr. Walker urged them to make better use of the programs already in operation instead of asking for more help.

Members Seek Increase in Price of Gold

OTTAWA (CP)—An increase in the government's gold price as a means of shoring up a faltering Canadian industry was sought in the Commons Thursday by one member from each of the three parties.

Armand Dumas (L — Villeneuve) asked the government to study the feasibility of increasing the gold price between $42 and $45 an ounce from the present $35. The $35 price in U.S. funds is used by the 40-member United States government price.

J. J. Martel (PC—Chapleau) said the present "artificial" (unchanging) supported similar views. Increased gold prices would mean a new price level. Mr. Martel mentioned a private engineer's suggestion of a price of $70 an ounce.

Frank Howard (CCF—Timiskaming) supported similar arguments. Increased gold prices would mean a new price level. Mr. Martel mentioned a private engineer's suggestion of a price of $70 an ounce.

Many Transport Heroin and Do Not Know It

TORONTO (CP) — Fantastic quantities of heroin are being brought into the United States and Canada by persons who do not know they are transporting it, a U.S. narcotics investigator said Thursday.

C. G. Ward of the New York office of the Bureau of Narcotics is here attending an international convention of law enforcement officers planning means to deal with Canada-U.S. gambling, narcotics and organized crime generally.

He said in an interview heroin comes into the two countries in false bottoms built into travellers' luggage, in cargo, in delivery. A travel agent was under arrest in connection with the smuggling of about 150 pounds of heroin.

"How much more, we'll never know," he said.

There is arrested in connection with the suspected ring, it was made known recently, include Vincenzo Cotroni, now being held here. A fourth is being sought.

All Rules of Summitry Will Go by the Board in Meeting

VIENNA (CP) — All the lessons learned in the postwar summitry will go by the board when John Kennedy and Nikita Khrushchev confront this weekend.

Up to now, statesmen have come back from top-level talks vowing never to do it again. Summit conferences, they keep saying, must be carefully prepared in advance and last long enough to permit serious discussion.

So what happens? The two leaders decide to get together, practically on the spur of the moment, without any advance preparation at all. Their talks are to last only five hours.

With the fate of the world hanging in the balance, it's virtually a case of hello and goodbye.

Yet it's a curiously exciting occasion. The brevity of this unusual get-together by the heads of the two most powerful governments in the world does not detract from the high drama of a moment that could be a turning point in history.

Now Vienna is making a comeback as a diplomatic centre, exactly 43 years after a few apprehensive glances over its prosperous shoulders.

This diplomatic "brief encounter" brings together an odd assortment of characters: the Boston Irishman, born to riches but critical of excessive private wealth; Khrushchev, the coal miner's son from the Ukraine.

Kennedy, some 26 years the younger man, is tycking with excellence. He has already shown a peasant shrewdness about wrapping up matters.

The Russian, convinced that communism is the wave of the future, appears to be overconfidence tables almost jocularly, eager to size up his younger rival, with things apparently going in Russia's favor for the time being.

Kennedy bears into battle with European colleagues who are calling a "tattered banner," a wave of enthusiasm greeted his first appearance in office. His obvious dynamism and willingness to tell it unconfronted in London and Paris with the heartiness of the outgoing American administration.

Recently, there has been a tendency to take another look at Kennedy. It is widely felt that he "climbed his tree" in Cuba and there is much misgiving about U.S. policy in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Only a little more drafting needs to be done.

Red Technicians Will Aid Cuba To Mine Nickel

HAVANA (Reuters) — Cuba and the Soviet Union Thursday signed an agreement whereby Russian technicians will aid Cuba in a bid to become the world's second largest nickel producer, after Canada.

Industries Minister Ernesto Guevara told reporters Soviet technicians will help develop 1,000,000 pesos which would be used to mine and process nickel principally at Nicaro, in Oriente province.

Guevara said the plan was aimed at making Cuba the world's second largest producer of nickel after Canada. He said the aid agreement included the development of the mining and processing of cobalt.

The agreement included the loaning of Soviet technicians to carry out research and survey projects, provision of mining machinery and the supplying of trained specialists to teach miners, engineers and others.

D. Decilliar, head of the Soviet trade mission, said new plants built under the agreement would produce 70,000 tons of nickel a year.

Cuba's 1961 production of nickel was estimated at 11,000 tons, and of nickel cobalt at 22,000 tons. Together, the two minerals account for 10% of Cuba's mineral production.

NEEDS REVENUE

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Symphony Orchestra, which ended its season with a $60,000 deficit, needs help from the province and the Toronto area population the annual meeting was told Thursday. T. S. Johnson, retiring president, said incoming costs will make it necessary to find additional source of revenue, and Ontario is one of the few provinces which does not contribute to organizations such as ours."

"Mine cost me three cents a yard," Sam Wicked said. "And that's funny, as I had to pay $468 too and my field is the same as yours."

Jake considered the matter for a moment or two. "Maybe they're different shapes," he declared. "My field's just a rectangle, but yours is square."

What were the dimensions of Jake's field?

Landscaping Adds Value To Property

When the landscaping of the home grounds is properly planned, it can substantially increase the value of the property.

Trees and shrubs increase in value as they grow, in contrast to many things purchased which deteriorate in value as time passes.

How do you plant your property to be more liveable and valuable?

The purpose of landscaping is to blend the home into the landscape, making it more pleasing to look at, and to afford extension of the living area from indoors to outdoor...

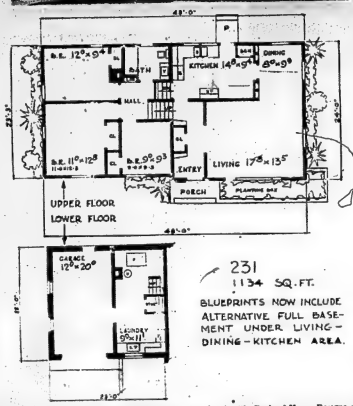
A garden living room may be planted for privacy and beauty, affording a delightful area in which to relax entertain and play outdoors. Evergreen trees and shrubs, roses and fruits and other plants are arranged for more gracious living for family and friends.

In landscaping, we think of planting a picture to frame the house. There are three main areas of any property.

First comes the front area, facing the street, which is continuously on view to neighbors and passersby.

Here we usually like to see a patch of open lawn. Trees may be planted off the corners of the house to form part of the landscape "frame". We need to connect these with a flowing line of plants, or "foundation" planting. Low-growing plants are placed along the front of the house at its foundation. These are better placed in flowing lines than in straight line. On each side of the entrance a higher-growing plant is planted to accentuate the doorway.

The "garden living" area is where the family lives. Usually it is at the rear of the house close to the kitchen door, for convenience.



Planted shrubs and at least one shade tree can be arranged to provide "privacy" and coolness in the hot summer months.

In the garden living room the home owner can indulge his wants with roses, camellias or any other plants that will grow well in his soil and climate. Since this area is designed for living, it can be decorated with any of the lovely plants found at nurseries. Nurserymen can advise what will best thrive what plants to use to screen off the area, and give other valuable "tips" that will save time and money.

The third area is the "working" area where fruits of your choice, berries and other plants may be grown.

HOME OF THE WEEK

Homcraft's designers and engineers have captured all the spaciousness of colonial styling and eliminated the inconvenience of long flights of stairs in this impressive home. With attached garage, the colonial exterior of fieldstone and woodsiding, this home could easily belong in an old eastern city as well as in today's sunny west. Again, the areas are divided for maximum convenience and utility. A partial basement and laundry are designed for the lower level with living, dining room and sitchen situated on the middle level. Upstairs are three bedrooms and a spacious bath with lots of closet space. Notice too the large living room that is so adaptable for furniture arrangadaptable for furniture arrangements.

Standard Builder's blueprints costing $9.75 a set are obtainable in Canada for this Design No. 231.

Now available at this Newspaper Office (or from address below) a new and enlarged Book of House Designs entitled "A New Selection of Low Cost Homes for Canadians" priced $1.00. Now Is Time To Check-Up On Roofing

An early spring inspection of the roof is a timely and useful operation, because the rigors of the winter months may have caused damage that would otherwise go unnoticed.

Slow and unseen leaks are among the principal causes of permanent injury to the roof structure, framing and sills. Long exposure to the sun will often cause a roof to become dry and porous, and sudden temperature changes are a factor in the curling of roof shingles.

Asphalt shingles, that have outlived their usefulness, will show the first signs of eventual roof failure by granules washing off, permitting the felt underneath to dry out, or crack.

Shrinkage will cause old wood shingles to crack and split. In extreme cases, they will curl, allowing sleet and rain to wash under them, thus weakening the understructure of the roof. When nails begin to pop out, this is usually a sign that the wood has rotted around the nail holes.

Faulty application and long wear can both contribute to failure of roll roofing. Over the years, the sun dries out this roofing and causes blistering and cracking.

Look for specific trouble spots around dormer windows and chimney flashings, vent pipes, valleys and gutters and on hip roofs.

Recommended by roofing experts is a good metal or felt flashing material to assure water-tight formers.

It is a good idea to examine chimney areas for any indication of corrosion or separation of the flashing.

Although not part of the roof area, gutters and leaders should get the home-owner's attention at roof inspection time. Failure of the gutters is sometimes due to the poor fit or a stopped-up condition of the leaders.

HANDY HOLDER

A strip of cellophane tape, sticky side up, holds any number of parts from small assemblies that must be saved for a short time.

Laundries Move Out Of Gloomy Basement

No longer is the basement considered the only logical location for the laundry. The appliances are moving upstairs to the kitchen, bathroom, hallway, garage or utility room. Even the linen closet is being used to advantage as a laundry centre by smart homemakers.

Actually, modern laundry equipment fits in wherever proper plumbing facilities are available.

Many homemakers are placing laundry equipment in the kitchen, since it's often the only upstairs location with both room enough and the necessary plumbing facilities. And too, the cabinet tops of the units afford extra work surface.

Another increasingly popular place to put the laundry is the bathroom, according to the Maytag Research department. It is convenient to the clothes hamper, linen storage and bedrooms. Soiled clothes can be popped into the washer directly from the hamper.

Clean towels and towels may be put away handily in the nearby linen closet. Clothes made of fabrics that require no ironing can be washed in a cold water wash, dried on hangers and returned immediately to the closets and drawers of the bedrooms close by.

The laundry-space problem in apartments has been solved by some homemakers installing a combination washer-dryer in a linen closet or large utility closet. Here the convenience of a completely automatic laundry is contained. The unit, which whose "unified controls" regulate both washing and drying.

A linen-closet laundry centre is easy to achieve. Simply remove a couple of shelves to make room for the combination, which needs no vent. Then, to keep the ironing board secure and out of sight, attach a shallow rack to the bottom inside of the closet door and a spring attachment at the top. The iron may be stored on one of the shelves.

No matter where the laundry is located, upstairs or downstairs, inside or outside the house, the results are the same. Modern laundry appliances certainly take much of the work and worry out of washday, for today's homemaker.

Carefully Assembled Forms Ensure Even Foundation

Concrete for foundation walls is poured in forms built of seathing lumber, plywood or steel panels. Panels are now more commonly used because they can be put up more quickly and can be used many times.

When the panels are erected the vertical joints should be flush, that is, the edge of one panel should not jut out past the other. Uneven panel joints produce ridges on the wall surface. If the panel forms are assembled carelessly and these are pronounced irregularities, no amount of parging later on will produce an even wall surface.

Basement window frames are attached to the inside of the outer panels before the inside panels are set up. They must be fitted firmly in place. If wooden frames are used they should be braced from within to keep them from twisting out of alignment with the weight of the concrete.

The foundation forms must be kept securely in position to maintain the correct wall thickness throughout. There are various ways of doing this. They can be tied together with heavy wire at regular intervals, using wooden blocks or spreaders to keep proper spacing. These spreaders must be removed when the concrete goes into the forms. If the builder is using one of the newer type combination tie-rod and spreaders this operation is not necessary, since ... sometimes the entire rough floor of the house is assembled before the foundation is poured. The flooring provides a platform from which the concrete carriers can dump the concrete mix into the forms. If the builder uses this method the voids of the joints supporting the subfloor should be treated with a wood preservative beforehand, as they will afterwards be buried in the concrete.

DISPOSABLE PADDLES

Wooden tongue depressors (available at drug stores) make excellent disposable paddles for mixing small cans of paint or other material and also can conveniently be used to spread glues or mastic adhesives.

Weeds?

spray WEED-B-GON — kill lawn weeds, roots 'n all!
Use the ORTHO Lawn Sprayer and simply spray lawn weeds away! Or use an ordinary sprinkling can. It's the easy way to wipe out oxalis, plantain, dandelion, chickweed, dock, thistle, wild onion... even poison oak and poison ivy. What's more, weeds don't grow back once they're killed with WEED-B-GON. Most die from the roots up with just one application.

Fir Plywood Planters Follow Seasons, On Wheels

Portable gardens—the answer to a busy family's prayer.

No more long weary weekends of weeding a demanding garden. You move the units into focus as the plants they hold reach their best flowering period, keep them out of sight before and after. And roll them out of harm's way when the lazy fever victim in the neighborhood stops by for coffee on the patio.

Clear way to beautify an ugly parking lot when K's not in use, or hide away from the barren aspect of a large area of cement.

Even the homely clay flower pot takes on a festive air, put together with several of its fellows, all offering lusty blooms, and all encased in an easily movable fir plywood cart.

Don't confine them to the garden. You'll find many fir places inside where the portable units will add their colorful touch. For instance, on the hearth or right inside the fireplace on warm evenings when you don't need a fire in the grate.

Moved up, at night, close to the living room window, they'll throw a beauty through the glass even if your garden doesn't boast outdoor lighting.

A wonderful idea for the sick room. Wonderful when you grow is a welcome pastime for the stay-a-bed. And the nurse won't have to bother the flower plants can be moved out at night when they tend to consume vital oxygen.

You won't find any 'how to' plans for these fir plywood carts, one reason they will be new and distinctive when you build them.

But here's a tip. Your local lumber dealer will come up with all kinds of ideas when you explain your plan to him.

And never fear the fir plywood. It's made with a completely waterproof glue if it has PMBC Exterior stamped on the edge.

The only dubious part of the whole thing is that it adds to the already-large list of things the relatives can borrow from you when they're having a 'do.' Grass, they can't take with them.

BE CAREFUL WITH THESE

Just because we are getting towards the end of May doesn't mean that we should rush out and plant everything. There is no hurry at all about those tender things like tomato plants, zinnias, melons, cucumbers and such. They won't stand any frost and they won't grow much either until soil and air are thoroughly warm. If the nights are still coolish it is best to wait until nearly June, or if we must plant them early then we should protect them at night with some paper or glass. Actually melons, squash, cucumbers and similar half tropical plants, love heat and moisture and there is no sense trying to convince them otherwise.

THERE — BUT NOT SEEN

Anything we use to support the taller flowers such as stakes, strings or hoops should look natural and be inconspicuous. For that reason the next gardener usually stains or paints these things brown or green and uses perhaps some greenish or grayish string or raffia in tying tall vines. And it is also a good idea to tie fairly loosely, so as not to bunch the plants that look best crowded or artificial.

Another plan is to fix brush, firmly in among the taller plants while they are still growing and encourage them to grow around and cover the supporting material. This is a particularly good way to handle delphiniums and other tall bushy plants.

Practically all big flowers, like cosmos, delphiniums, hollyhocks and climbing vines like sweet peas will benefit with some firm support. For the tall sunflowers and also tomatoes, figs or six foot stakes are handy. Firmly fix into the ground and the plants tied at intervals of about a foot. For this it is well to use green twine or special twisting material available at any seed store.

LOTS OF BOUQUETS

There is no question why we should not have all sorts of roomful of separate appliances, but a unitized kitchen with everything built in, well it is not.

Your oven can be up at eye level. Your refrigerator and freezer can be built in the wall, or installed in cabinets at eye level or under the counter.

There are space-saving range top units that move up against the wall when not in use, others that slide out like drawers. Some imaginative homemakers install two ovens — side by side, or one on top of the other.

CONVENIENT CABINETS

Many new homes have enough cabinet space, but much of it is hard to get at without a ladder. The new kitchen cabinets are more compact and the shelves are readily accessible.

For instance, you can get cabinets with Lazy Susan rotating shelves inside special drawers in which pots and pans go on their sides where you can see labels, space-saving but shallow drawers for linens, special flip-up shelves that pour out your flour into a rollaway serving carts that tuck into the cabinet base, disappearing towel bars, concealed slots to hold trays, built-in planning desks.

Best of all you need not do all of your kitchen modernization at one time. You can install a "starter" kitchen, and then add to it later as your needs dictate and your pocket-book permits.

Air Cooling Systems Come In Wide Range

Homeowners can now select from a wide range of cooling equipment for their homes.

Systems to suit each budget and different, air conditioning engineers have designed a variety of cooling systems so that air conditioning can be adapted to any style house.

Most cooling systems, says the Better Heating-Cooling Council, can be added to a house at any time Considerations in the choice depend more to the type of heating in the house.

In a warm air heated house, either combination heating-cooling systems or cooling systems that operate independently of the heating system may be installed.

Heating-Cooling Dual Systems, for warm air heated houses, use a furnace and a cooling unit, usually installed in the basement. Warm air and cool air are circulated through the same duct system. It's important, however, that ducts are accurately sized because those used only for cooling are usually wider than ducts used for heating.

In houses with hot water heating systems, combination heating-cooling systems or independent cooling systems may be selected.

CONSUMPTION SYSTEM

Heating - Cooling Convector System, for hot water heated homes has combination units installed in each room of the house but powered from a central source—a boiler and a water chiller, usually installed in the basement.

Hot water and chilled water are circulated to the units through the same piping system. Each convector unit has a fan, filter, cooling heating coil and a thermostat for room by room temperature control.

Separate Chilled Air Unit, for use with any type heating system, functions independently of the heating system. This central cooling system is suitable for new construction or modernization in small or medium size homes.

The cooling unit can be installed in unused attic space, garage, basement or a centrally located closet or hall, with fibre-type ducts distributing the cool air. Cooling registers, or outlets, are usually located in the ceiling of each room.

CHILLED WATER UNIT

Separate Chilled Water Unit, for use with any type of heating system, also functions independently of the heating system. This is a central cooling system that is best suited for serving a different area or different floor to the house. Each type of duty convector has an individual temperature control.

Home Safety Depends on You

Your home builder has used the safest possible designs to minimize the danger of household accidents. You now hold the key to home safety. It is usually the occupants of a house who cause — and suffer from — household mishaps.

Builders are constantly on the lookout for safer materials and designs, but no amount of planning in design can prevent such tragic accidents as a infant spilling scalding water on himself, or a housewife stumbling over a bucket carelessly left on basement stairs.

A little prevention education within the family, and proper observance of commonsense safeguards in use of home equipment, forestall most accidents. Vigilant families can enjoy more personal security and happiness by observing safety suggestions.

According to the National Safety Council, elderly people and young children are the two age groups most often the victims of home accidents. But by confining their living to one level areas, older people lessen the possibility of falls and physical strains. First floor bathroom, laundry and other service facilities make life easier for elderly members of the family.

REMOVE OBSTRUCTIONS

In all age groups, many fatal falls occur in sleeping areas and on cluttered steps or stairways. Proper lighting and removal of obstructions such as furniture or children's toys from traffic areas will help prevent spills. Form good family safety habits early by having a definite place for play equipment—and by teaching children to place it after use.

Cupboard and closet doors, if left ajar, can produce black eyes and painful bruises, and should be equipped with safety springs or catches.

CUT DOWN

KITCHEN ACCIDENTS

Despite the continuing improvements in kitchen design and layout, statistics show that the kitchen is still one of the most dangerous areas is the house — naturally enough, since the greatest amount of appliance and tool handling goes on here. To minimize potential accidents in your kitchen, good lighting for work surfaces is essential. Appliances should be located out of family traffic lanes, and out of reach of children. Cabinets should be situated, and provisions and equipment stored to cut down the need for frequent climbing.

Skid-resistant floor coverings help reduce accidents, especially in the kitchen. Counter surfaces handy to stove and refrigerator, and upper cabinet doors which open away rather than the counters below them, are also recommended. Cover guard should be used on all ventilating fans.

BE CAREFUL WITH ELECTRICITY

Your new home should have an adequate number of electrical outlets. Do not overload them with appliances. Keep cords stretched across floors or work areas invite accidents. Never use switches—on electricity while hands are wet or while working in water; a serious shock can occur. Bathroom light switches are properly located out of reach of the tub or shower for this reason. Check to see that pull cords on individual bathroom light fixtures are insulated.

Check frequently to make sure heaters are operating properly. Carelessness in the use of gas and carbon monoxide from automobiles in garages, cause many fatal accidents each year.

Careless handling or improper storage of firearms and ammunition invite trouble. Use caution while cleaning weapons and keep gun closets locked to lessen this danger — especially when there are young children in the household.

Accidents involving poison, which take a heavy toll of children's lives each year, can be largely prevented by keeping poisonous cleansers and other materials under lock and key, and by using cabinets with lock-up sections to store all medicines.

Matches should be stored in fireproof containers out of reach of children. Care should be used when smoking, especially in bed. Fires caused this way are shoulder undetected for hours before flaring up.

INFLAMMABLES SPELL DANGER

If you use gasoline for house cleaning you're asking for trouble, and inviting fire and explosion. Make sure that all inflammables are stored according to the manufacturers' instructions. Never store them in glass jars will screw tops; cork stoppers are out, also, for this purpose of inflammable material in which spontaneous combustion can occur. Soiled rags, paper and trash in metal cans and dispose of it regularly to avoid fires in the basement, attic or other storage areas. Stack newspapers and magazines away from the heating plant. When burning rubbish or leaves outdoors, use an incinerator or a shoot wire basket to prevent fiery particles from starting other fires.

Oily mops and rags are safe from spontaneous combustion if they are hung where there is plenty of ventilation. Otherwise, metal containers should be used to store mops, dust rags, painting equipment and other oil materials.

In the final analysis, home safety is just common sense. The application of a few simple rules for accident prevention can contribute to the many years of satisfaction and enjoyment which a new home brings to every member of the family.

New Decor And Utility Major Aims

Many a family will give the kitchen top priority in its program of home modernization, this spring. It's reflected in the fact that the kitchen has become an increasingly important and room of the home in today's scheme of things. Not only must it be practical and efficient, but it must be cheerful and pleasant and co-ordinate with the home's decorating plan, sporting new colors and warmth to accent the richness of the companion rooms.

To accomplish the feeling of spaciousness, so desired by today's house-makers, kitchen planners are turning to breakfast bars, appliance islands, room dividers and see-through shelving, all of which contribute to the effect of a truly extended living area.

BETTER LIGHTING

Proper lighting can do much to make kitchen easier and more relaxing to work in. Make sure you have an adequate general illumination fixture at, or near, the centre of the room. Local lights should be placed over the sink, in range and other work areas. Finally, if you have wall-type cabinets, illuminate the dark areas under them with special eye-saving, under-cabinet lights.

Today's kitchens (and modernized old ones) have a "built-in" look. Kitchen your appliances are built into your cabinets or "stacked" into your base cabinets or counter tops, you no longer have a

Quebec Govt. Puts Ban On Minnows

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec government is increasing its drive to discourage anglers using minnows in the province's game waters.

The government's most recent step: A complete ban on fishing with minnows in the rich salmon and trout - fishing areas in the eastern sector of the province and strict control of the sale of minnows at other dealer level in areas where waters are infested with perch, catfish, pike, and sunfish.

They were announced by Fish and Game Minister Gerard Levesque, who said he had been thinking of imposing a complete ban on fishing with minnows throughout the province.

The ban imposed in the game areas in the eastern part of the province is designed to maintain good fishing conditions and keep out fish species which would rapidly spoil areas considered among the best in North America.

Imposition of a similar ban in territories where waters already present mixed game specie and unwated fish was decided to be impractical and pointless.

The government instead has decided to control sale of minnows in these areas, situated north of Montreal, along the St. Lawrence River shore.

In order to avoid any complexity in regulations the government decided no person or persons may sell minnows for fishing except with a permit from the fish and game department. Each permit will be issued only after special study by department experts. Netting of minnows also will be controlled and will require a $2 permit.

Yvon Flops As Pro Wrestler

BUCTOUCHE, N.B. (CP)—Yvon Durelle and Emile Dupree bored from start to finish, wrestled a 45 - minute draw in the feature bout of a three - bout boxing - wrestling card Thursday night.

Dupre, of Shediac, N.B., is well - known wrestler in the Maritimes but has done some boxing. Durelle, of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., is former Canadian and British Empire light heavyweight boxing champion but has wrestled Dupre on numerous occasions.

Dupre took the first fall, Durelle the second. Both figures were out of the ring many times.

The sparse crowd of about 200 continually booed both wrestlers and called for local fighters. Durelle weighed 220 pounds and was cautioned several times by referee John Paul Jones of Halifax for fighting with clenched fists.

Lacrosse

CHICAGO (AP)—Sale of controlling interest in the Chicago White Sox baseball club for upwards of $5,000,000 to a 14-man syndicate including comedian Danny Thomas appeared imminent today.

A firm offer was made by the group Thursday for the 54 per cent of White Sox stock held by estate of president Bill Veeck's group. Veeck indicated a decision on the sale may be reached by early next week.

Bernard Epton, 36, a Chicago lawyer, told The Associated Press the bid for the 54 per cent majority holdings was made by Veeck, vice-president Hank Greenberg and Arthur C. Allyn, a member of the Veeck group.

"This afternoon we submitted a firm offer, to these men," said Epton, senior member of a Chicago law firm. "They will advise us yes or no as quickly as possible we hope."

Veeck consistently has denied reports he was willing to sell because of ailing health. Greenberg has said sale of the stock would be up to Veeck. Allyn, apparently the middle man in the negotiations, has denied any option to sell has yet been signed, although Thomas Wednesday night in Las Vegas, Nev., indicated such action had been taken.

Veeck, at his home, said he would discuss the offer with Greenberg and Allyn, adding a decision would not be made, probably, before next week.

SHAKES SLUMP

The German - born jockey from Calgary won the first race on the long - priced Jon's Mona; the fourth race on Trotwood; the fifth race on Azemus and the sixth race on Blue Light.

Dittfach now has a total of 47 victories in the first 22 days of the Old Woodbine meeting.

Pro Soccer

MONTREAL (CP)—The Beskas soccer club of Turkey, despite the absence of four of its best players, Thursday night held Montreal Concordia to a 1-1 tie in the second game of an International Soccer League doubleheader.

Centre - forward Senol Birol scored Besiktas' goal at 15:00 of the first half while outside right Jose Sanches notched Concordia's marker at 3:00 of the second half.

In the first game, Kilmarnock overpowered New York Americans to register a 4-0 victory in their first in three games.

Mann Cup champion Port Credit Saints came up with their highest - scoring spree of the season in defeating St. Catharines Athletics 17-5 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior A game Thursday night at Port Credit.

Brampton Excelsiors broke a three-way tie for top spot in the OLA junior A standings by defeating Whitby Red Wings 12-5 at Whitby.

Chubby Brown scored four goals to lead the Sailors attack. Bob Hannah added three with Larry Ruse and Brian Aherne scoring two each. Garry Moore picked up three goals for the losing Athletics.

In the Whitby affair, Tom Tonelli, playing his first year of junior lacrosse, scored half the Brampton goals with Bob Booth scoring twice and singles going to Ron Tettibone, Don Arthur, Bob Law and Norm Bignell.

Twins Swap Pair With Kansas A's

DETROIT (AP)—Kansas City Athletics Thursday traded veteran centerfielder Bill Tuttle to Minnesota Twins for infielder Rene Bertoia and relief pitcher Paul Giel.

It was a straight player deal with no cash involved.

"We need strength in the infield and we need relief pitching, and besides that, the players we are getting are younger," said Athletics manager Joe Gordon.

Tuttle, 31, is batting .308 in 26 games.

Both Tuttle and Bertoia are former Detroit Tiger players. Bertoia, 26, who lives in Windsor, is hitting .222 in 25 games with the Twins. In 12 games with Twins, Giel has a 1-0 record with all his work in relief. Giel, 29, is a righthander.

The Tracks

EPSOM (AP) — The Aga Khan's mare Petite Etoile, 2-to-5 favorite, soared in front of Sir Winston Churchill's colt Vienna over the last few yards Thursday and won the Coronation Cup for the second straight year.

Lester Piggott, Britain's champion jockey, kept the five-year-old gray mare in third place for almost the whole of the 1½-mile course and nearly made his bid too late.

The judges studied photographs of the finish before awarding Petite Etoile the verdict by a neck. Proud Chieftain was third, a length behind.

The victory was worth $10,960 and boosted Petite Etoile's total winnings to $182,170.

Marlins Bow To Jersey, Jets Zoom

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The only roadblock in newly-established Charleston Marlins have run into so far in the International League is one in the person of Sherman (Roadblock) Jones of Jersey City Jerseys.

Roadblock beat the first-place Marlins for the second time in three days Thursday, this time in relief. He hurled a five-hitter Tuesday in the second game of a doubleheader that broke Charleston's seven - game winning streak.

The only games the Marlins have lost since their transfer from San Juan have been to the Jerseys, who have beaten them three times in the 12 games Charleston has played under its new name.

Syracuse, in last place in the league race, and suffering from internal strife, beat Buffalo Bisons 10-4 under temporary manager Frank Verdi.

Verdi stood in for regular manager Gene Verble, who is considering his resignation after a run-in pitching coach Bob Porterfield. The latter was dismissed Thursday when club officials accused him of trying to take over the team.

Jones, second relief pitcher for the Jerseys, gave up only one hit in 2 2-3 innings. He came on with one man out, the tying run on third and the potential winner on first and shut the door.

Syracuse scored eight runs in the seventh and eighth innings to overcome a 3-2 lead. Woody Smith and Spook Jacobs each drove in two with doubles in the eighth when the Chief scored five times. Joe Allobelli drove in three runs for Syracuse and Tony Curry homered for Buffalo.

Columbus scored all its runs in the first inning and the first one caused a rumpus. Richmond manager Cliff Knox was ejected from the game by umpire Harry Shedd for disputing a call.

LEAFS SELL FORWARD

TORONTO (CP) — Norman Corcoran, 29 - year - old centre with Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League and owned by Toronto Maple Leafs, has been sold to Pittsburgh, new club in the AHL. It was announced Thursday. Terms were not disclosed. Corcoran, scored 22 goals in 68 games with the Aces last season. In 1955-56 he played 25 games in the NHL with Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks.

Quinte Mixed Wins Bowling Championship

Captain Peg Ronsky led her Quinte Mixed League to "Champs" to their fifth victory in the annual Mixed Bowling League championships at the Bowl-O-Drome Wednesday night.

It was the tenth time for Quinte Mixed Leaguers have won the title in 14 years of operation.

The playoff is held as a postseason event between the champions of the various mixed leagues of the city.

Eight teams of champions took part in the championship. These were Hydro Mixed; Mixed Commercial; International Hardware; Entomology Institute; Stewart Warner, Quinte Mixed; Fridey Mixed and Saturday Night Mixed. Northern Electric Mixed did not take part.

The new champions won the tournament with a pinfall of 3219, Saturday Night Mixed was second with 3197 and Mixed Commercial third with 3191. Then came Hydro Mixed, 3165; International Mixed, 3024; Stewart Warner, 2958; Fridey Mixed 2859 and Entomology Inside 2744.

The 1960-61 champions won the trophy and title under Peg Ronsky in 1954-55; 1956-57; 1957-58; 1958-59 and this season.

Other winners have been Corbin Lock (twice); Zomboles (twice) Head Pins; Downalls (twice) and Lawn Bowlers.

Philipino Is Star

U.S. Leads Cup Golf

DORADO BEACH, Puerto Rico (AP) — Simmnin' Sammy Snead put the United States into the lead of the Canada Cup matches but the man the experts were chattering about today as the golfers teed off for the second round was little Ben Arda of the Philippines.

Virtually unknown outside his island country, the five-foot-four Arda is the talk of the clubhouse on the 7,115-yard Dorado Beach course because of his picture swing.

In Thursday's first round he shot a 69, duplicating his final practice tour over the par 36-36 —72 layout. It gave him a tie for second place in the individual race with Al Balding of Toronto and Peter Thomson of Australia, behind Snead's spectacular five-under-par 67. Balding had nine-hole totals of 36 and 33.

Arda's 69 and the 70 of Celestino Tugot lifted the Philippines into fourth place in the team standings with 145, five strokes more than the Snead-Jimmy Demaret combination needed to give the U.S. a start in defending the cup it won last year at Dublin.

The Philippine team, pre-tournament favorite, moved into second place with 143 on Thomson's 69 and 74 by Ked Nagle, British Open champion.

Wales was third with 144. Egypt, Argentina, and Colombia had 146; Canada, Mexico, China, Ireland and Scotland had 147s.

Dickinson Tops Memphis

MEMPHIS (AP) — Advice from the top may finally be paying off for Gardner Dickinson, whose record - tying 63 made him the man to beat going into today's second round of the $30,000 Memphis open golf tournament.

Dickinson, from Tequesta, Fla., who hasn't won a tournament since the 1957 Insurance City Open, was a protege of the great Ben Hogan for several years. Then he took a tip from Jay Hebert and used it in fashioning Thursday's round of 30-33 that gives him a one-stroke lead over Don Whitt.

Four other men including defending champion Tommy Bolt were next at 66 as 24 in the field of 92 professionals and amateurs broke par over the 6,824 - year, 36-36—70 Colonial Country Club course.

"Jay told me during a practice round to stand closer to the ball." Dickinson said. "It looks as if it helped. If a few of those putts had gone in, I'd really have had a round."

Dickinson was great from tee to green in scoring seven birdies and missing four others by inches.

It was the second straight day Dickinson had tied the course competitive record. His 63 Wednesday was in a pro - amateur event, which doesn't count in the tournament.

While who won the tournament here in 1960, had six birdies, had an eagle incropping putts of 40, 25 and 20 feet. He went over par on two holes.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

READ IT AND WEEP, APPLE!

"For more than three hours . . . we took 70 walleyes between two an 4½ pounds out of that run. Now and then a big northern would come through and give us a tussle. Almost every northern we caught in that lake was scarred where a larger fish had left its teethmarks."

The above is a quote from a fishing story in Outdoor Life which relates the piscatorial adventures of a group of Americans who flew to Sabourin Lake in Northwestern Ontario for their fishing fun.

Sabourin Lake is about 300 miles straight north of Kenora, Ont., a few miles inside the Manitoba boundary and roughly 75 miles northwest of Red Lake, Ont. You have to fly in. There are no roads.

It is not often fisherman lose count of pike they catch, but this party of 21 anglers lost count of those under ten pounds they released. The biggest pike caught by the party weighed 18½ pounds. They saw another caught that weighed over 19½ pounds.

"In fact," the author writes, "the largest northern I saw in the lake came out of the depths to nail an eight-pounder I had hooked. I might have caught him if I had thought quickly enough to release the line and let him swallow my pike. When I tried to hold on and catch another of these weird northern doubles, the big pike gave up his grip and all I had was a mangled fish."

"Each day we kept only enough fish to eat," he writes. "All morning we'd try for northerns. . Then we'd locate a rocky point and gather in the walleyes (pickerel)."

The Americans claimed the big pike would grab a plug "like a dog grabs a bone" without brushing a hook and when they got near the boat would drop the plug and swim away.

It was the kind of a holiday a non-fisherman like me would dream of if I were a fisherman. None of this sitting around for hours with a hot sun wrestling for the bite that never comes; casting until you do it mechanically and coming home with an empty creel.

In the network of lakes in which Sabourin is a part, two or three parties would rendezvous after the morning hunt and eat a delicious shore lunch of fried golden pickerel fillets.

The story goes: "After a couple of days of the fried delicacies, one of the party came up with the idea of fish broiled in aluminum foil. The recipe produced such a delectable dish that I brought it back to Georgia to try on largemouths."

"The aluminum foil is laid on the ground and half-inch thick slices of potato lined up on it. A fish fillet is laid over the potatoes, salted, peppered and smeared with a patty of butter. Sliced onions are arranged on top of the fish and the foil is folded tightly to keep in the juices. Some of the gourmets added lemon juice and a slice of bacon."

"The package is set on campfire coals and cooked 10 minutes on each side. One package makes a complete meal but at Sabourin I always managed two."

The last afternoon, the author relates, he made a long trip to a corner of Barclay Lake adjoining and west of Sabourin. "We paddled and portaged from river to a falls and my first cast was nailed by a 19-pound northern. We caught another the same size and two 'snakes' (four-pounders.)"

Halfway down the river they came to a place where the river changed one of its channels under the left bank. The first cast brought a four-pound pickerel. The second cast got another the same weight.

Closer at home Charles Keegan, 34 North Park Gardens caught 20 pickerel in four days of sailing off the CPR bridge at the mouth of the Moira. Mr. Keegan said the best fish weighed four pounds, the rest ranged down to 1½ pounds.

Mr. Keegan said he used "Yellow Sally" to haul in the bigger part of the catch. As far as I can ascertain this is the best catch taken from this part of the Moira in some time. Legally, that is.

Pirates Have Indian Sign On Braves

First Spahn Now Burdette

By TED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Milwaukee Braves are still stumbling around in the National League maze. And after getting a tongue lashing from manager Charlie Dressen, they have been given the bum's rush by the umpires and Pittsburgh Pirates.

No more than two games over or under .500 this season, the Braves appeared to be on their way to victory Thursday night when they scored five runs in the first inning. But they wound up with an 8-5 thumping by the Pirates in a game called after seven innings because of rain.

It was the second straight Pittsburgh win over Milwaukee. The Bucs piled up 17 runs and 24 hits in the sweep while beating pitching Aces Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette.

Burdette was the busiest Braves Thursday night and was tossed out of the game after arguing with umpire Bill Jackowski. The flare-up came when Jackowski disapproved of a high, tight pitch to Roberto Clemente, the first Pirate to face Burdette after Dick Groat had hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning.

PUT THEM BACK

The defeat put the Braves three games behind the fourth-place Pirates and one back of the league - leading Cincinnati Redlegs. The Reds, idle Thursday, gained a half-game edge when St. Louis Cardinals beat San Francisco Giants 5-4 and knocked the Giants out of a first - place tie. Chicago Cubs walloped Philadelphia Phillies 10-3.

Groat and Smoky Burgess, who hit two homers, each drove in three runs as the Pirates staged identical 4-run first innings of their 10 hits. A sacrifice fly by Frank Thomas and a single by Joe Torre drove in the Braves' runs before southpaw Harvey Haddix, who is blowing right hits and striking out seven, started a run of six shutout innings.

The Braves, trailing 6-2, brought in Claude Raymond to pitch the seventh inning. Raymond, 26-year-old native of St. Jean, Que., who moved up to the Braves from Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League last month, yielded one hit and a walk. The runs charged with were scored runs.

In a possible development on Dressen's threat to shake up the club, Milwaukee traded utility infielder Billy Martin to Minnesota Twins for the American League Thursday night. Dressen told the Braves last weekend that "some of you guys won't be with us" after the June 15 trading deadline.

DIDN'T MENTION

The club made no mention of Dressen's remarks in announcing the Martin trade, in which the Braves obtained infielder Billy Consolo and shipped him to Vancouver. The Braves had Martin on the block since spring training after acquiring second baseman Frank Bolling in a trade.

The Giants, down 6-0, almost pulled out a victory in the ninth inning against the Cards. Felipe Alou and Willie McCovey hit solo homers off reliever Lindy McDaniel before Al Cicotte got Orlando Cepeda on a grounder for the final out. Cepeda had homered in the sixth off winner Ernie Broglio (5-5).

George Altman and Don Zimmer hit home runs and each drove in three runs as the Cubs won four straight games for the first time this year.

Bob Cleroux Miteff Meet In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Alex Miteff, the heavyweight division's trial-horse from the Argentine, has agreed to meet Montreal's ambitious Bob Cleroux in a 10-round bout here June 22, it was announced today.

Miteff, 26, is a second-choice opponent for Cleroux, who wanted a rubber match with Canadian champion Georges Chuvalo of Toronto. But Chuvalo's manager, Jack Deacon Allen, and Toronto promoter Jack Tunney deemed Cleroux's demands for $7,500 guarantee exorbitant. Promoter Eddie Quinn of Montreal said Miteff has agreed to terms and a contract will be signed in a day or two. The terms were not disclosed.

Dempsey, Tunney Urge Action

Rescue Boxing From Racketeers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former world heavyweight champions Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney urged Congress today to restore professional boxing in the United States from the clutches of racketeers.

They filed written appeals before testifying at hearings on an anti-racketeering bill to place boxing under justice department regulation.

The bill would create a federal boxing commissioner with powers to grant, deny or cancel licenses of boxers, managers, promoters and matchmakers and to ferret out any underthe-table deals with the underworld.

Senator Estes Kefauver, author of the bill and chairman of the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee conducting the hearings, testified Dempsey and Tunney to testify.

BOXING "IN A MESS"

Dempsey in a statement said he agreed with Kefauver that "the boxing game is in a mess" and racketeers got it there.

"Unless something is done through the Federal government that will control and regulate boxing, the game will die," the old Manassa Mauler said.

"There is no question but there are many unsavory practices connected with boxing who do not belong in any game."

Tunney said he believes the idea of inviting the federal government to do a police job he believes the states should handle, but that he sees no alternative.

"State boxing commissions will have to cooperate with each other in cleaning up the spot," he said. "A manager can be the worst kind of rogue and be allowed from activity in New York and be welcome in Pennsylvania, or Illinois, or California."

This was the third and last scheduled day of hearings. Kefauver said Thursday he wants to know more about the announced break between Sonny Liston, No. 1 ranked contender for the heavyweight crown held by Floyd Patterson, and Pep Bonavena, Liston's former manager.

Kefauver has called Barone an associated of racketeers such as Frankie Carbo, Blinky Palermo and John Vitale.

Kefauver said he will ask Barone whether these men will share in the $75,000 Liston is paying Barone to terminate the contract. Barone's duties gave the manager a top IK of anonymity and benefited to notify another former champion, Joe Louis, called Thursday for a fund for $250 of hoodlums and racketeers in boxing.

With the plea avidity that marked his long boxing career, Louis told the subcommittee he didn't know and objected upon by the criminal elements. Managers and promoters get nothing from the underworld, he added.

Louis said a lot of youngsters are staring out of boxing "because there are so many unsavoriable characters in the game."

'Carry Back', Belmont Favorite

Seeks Rare Triple Crown

NEW YORK (AP)—The $125,000-added Belmont Stakes will be run for the 93rd time Saturday. Carry Back is favored to capture the 1½-mile classic and become the ninth horse to sweep United States racing's triple crown for three-year-olds.

Post time for the event, which follows the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, is 4:30 p.m. EDT. It will be televised by CBS and carried in Canada by CBC-TV starting at 4:30 p.m.

Whether the odds on Mrs. Katherine Price's darling of the thoroughbreds are 4 to 5, 3 to 5 or less depends on the names of the opposition dropped into the hat.

Robert Lehman's Ambiopoise was the question mark that could cause a shift in the odds. The son of Ambiorix, whose 20th Century Fox gave an erratic tendency, won last Tuesday's Jersey Derby at Garden State by 10 lengths. Earlier in the season he won the Gotham Stakes.

WAS FAR BACK

But Ambiopoise was far back of Carry Back at the little Florida - owned brown son of Saggy Sarge in victory in the home stretch of the Kentucky Derby.

Lehman and trainer Tom Waller said they would make a last - minute decision as they did for the Jersey Derby, in which Ambiopoise breezed past pace - setting Globemaster and Crozier, the pair Lehman offered Carry Back a serious challenge in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness.

Canada will be represented by Flutterby, owned by Alberta Ranches and well heeled in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness. Flutterby is a 20-to-1 shot.

"Whether Ambiopoise is entered makes no difference to me," said Carry Back's trainer, Jack Price, after sending the favorite out for a five-eighths of a mile blowout with jockey Johnny Sellers in the saddle. "We have beaten him before and I see no reason why we won't be the winner. Carry Back is as fit as ever and the distance should be right down his alley."

The field received an unexpected increase on Thursday when trainer Harold Young took a look at the track and announced that Jacob Shea's Sherluck will be in the post parade before an expected crowd of 65,000.

Sherluck was a disappointment in the Derby and Preakness, finishing fifth in each. He was fourth in the Jersey Derby. Rounding out the field are Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Dr. Miller, King Ranch's Bal Musette, Ogden Phipps' Hitting Away and Mrs. R. L. Dotter's Gundalcanal.

EIGHT OF 'EM — A few samples of the 20 fine pickerel caught by Charles Keegan, 34 North Park Gardens, off the CPR bridge at the mouth of the Moira recently. Mr. Keegan's haul was the result of four days' fishing with walleyes going avidly for a Yellow Sally lure. The fish ranged from four pounds down to 1½ pounds.

South Hastings Baseball

Foxboro overcome a 3-0 deficit to defeat Shannonville 4-3 in a South Hastings baseball league game at Foxboro Wednesday night.

Shannonville scored two in the second and one in the third while the winners came back with singletons in the fourth and fifth and a pair in the sixth to get the nod.

Norm Stoliker and Jerry Mason, in the latter's debut for the winners, allowing half a dozen hits.

R. Lewis started and lost for Shannonville, Barberstock taking over in the sixth. They gave up six hits.

Milt Graham Will Stay With Riders

OTTAWA (CP) — Lineman Milt Graham of Ottawa Rough Riders said in a telephone interview Thursday he will play out his option with the Grey Cup champions this year and join Boston Patriots of the new American Football League for the 1962 season.

An offensive tackle who has been with the Big Four club since 1956, Graham says he still hopes a deal can be made that will allow him to join the Boston club this year.

"But I realize the prospects are good and I'll be in Ottawa if necessary," he told the Ottawa Citizen from Brewster, Mass.

Passed Ball Costs Two Wins

Ryne Duren Has Catcher Trouble

By ED WILES
Associated Press Staff Writer

Ryne Duren's troubles began because he got caught. And now they're piling up because he's a tough guy to catch.

The former fire-balling relief ace with New York Yankees was caught breaking curfew in spring training. The defending American League champions then traded him to the last-place Los Angeles Angels.

Duren has lost four games and was one for the Angels. Two defeats came on passed balls—when his catcher couldn't catch a third strike.

It was that way Thursday night at Washington when the Angels lost 3-2 to the Senators in the ninth inning. A third strike on Billy Klaus, which would have given Duren a save in a 3-1 victory, got past catcher Earl Averill and let Klaus on base with the winning run. Gene Woodling brought him home with a two-out, two-run ninth drive.

Detroit Tigers retained a two-game lead over Cleveland Indians when their game with Kansas City Athletics ended in a tie because of rain after 7½ innings. Boston Red Sox spilled New York 7-2.

The Senators were blanked on five hits for eight innings by Eli Grba. But when he gave up his fifth walk, to Chuck Hinton leading off the ninth, manager Bill Rigney called in Duren.

Duren walked Lee Thomas, then struck out Willie Tasby. But the Senators pulled a double steal and Dale Long hit a sacrifice fly. Then came the passed ball.

John Gabler, another former Yankee, won his second game of the season in relief for Joe McClain, who gave up the Angels' runs on a bases-loaded single in the fifth inning by Averill.

Duren's other passed-ball defeat came against Chicago May 18.

The Tigers blew a 3-0 lead before ending the night in a tie on two walks and a single by Al Kaline in the seventh inning.

Veteran Vic Wertz picked up his first triple in six seasons and drove in three runs for the Red Sox.

Bob Turley (3-5) was the loser, giving up a tie-breaking, leadoff homer by Carl Yastrzemski when Boston scored four runs in the third inning. Bill Monbouquette's three runs with a pair of homers for the Yankees.

"Mob Scene" At Arena Tonight

The mob scene from the mat opera "Wigslette" will be enacted at Memorial Arena tonight.

The Mad Moscow Trio, bearded basses will play dual roles. They are the heavies any way you look at it with the "good guys" Pat Flanagan and Mac Mountain Campbell opposing them in the first act.

In the second they meet the sky-scraping duo of Lord Athol Layton and Farmer Boy Townsend.

The bouts are of an hour or the best of three falls. It is called "Handicap Wrestling" a ring novelty never before staged in a Belleville ring.

With two Russians in the ring, the third will stand by with ammunition.

It could end up in a battle royal with all five matmen in the ring with the referee probably hiding out underneath the pile.

Billy Martin Goes to Minn-Twins

DETROIT (AP) — The skidding Minnesota Twins have gone on a baseball trading binge, acquiring infielder Billy Martin from Milwaukee Braves and outfielder Bill Tuttle from Kansas City Athletics.

The Twins, who slipped to seventh from third place by losing 10 of their last 11 American League games, Thursday gave utility infielder Bill Consolo and an undisclosed amount of cash to the National League Braves for Martin, 33, a scrappy veteran who achieved world series stardom with the New York Yankees.

The Twins sent infielder Rono Bertoia and relief pitcher Paul Giel to Kansas City of the American League in return for Tuttle.

Minnesota manager Cookie Lavagetto said "we've been losing ball games because of a leaking infield and these moves are designed to plug the holes."

Martin is expected to get a shot at the Twins' third - base job, which had been on a rotating basis between Bertoia and slugger Harmon Killebrew. Lavagetto probably will put Killebrew on first base.

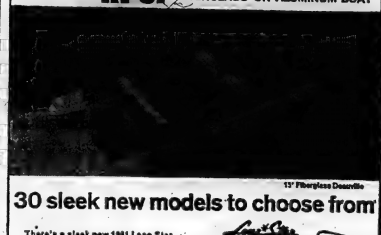
PLAN ATOMIC SHIP

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)— The first West German atomic ship will be a 16,000 - ton freighter for bulk goods, a spokesman for the Hamburg senate announced Wednesday. The ship is to be completed by the end of 1964.

Bobcats Meet Flyers Tonight

All diamond fixtures scheduled for the city and district last night were postponed by the steady rain which got under way around six o'clock.

Among the postponements were the Belleville and District softball tilt between Bobcats and Jorges Real Estate, slated for the Fairgrounds.



Another game slated for the same park tonight, weather permitting, will see the Bobcats play host to the RCAF Flyers at 8.15. The Bobcats are the league's only undefeated team with two victories in as many games.

Other games halted before they got started last night were a pair of Commercial softball league affairs and a number of minor league games.

Postmark U.K. Marks 10 Years on CBC

Postmark: U.K. a weekly review of news and features from the British Isles, marks its 10th anniversary of broadcasting on CBL or CJWS with a special show, Sunday, June 4.

The 27-minute program, heard at its usual time of 6.02 p.m. will have a distinctly Canadian touch, as Sam Pollock, regular commentator on the program, reports from Canada during a vacation in this country.

Pollock, whose news-from-home editorial is one of the highlights of the show has at one time or another been a newspaper reporter, school master and welfare worker.

His debut in broadcasting was in 1943 when he was heard on BBC Women's Page, championing women's rights. From 1945-50 he was on the BBC staff, producing talks and current affairs shows. Since 1950 he has been a freelance broadcaster.

A major item on the anniversary program will be a feature on London's Bond Street by Bruce Stewart, one of the five regular contributors to Postmark.

Devised by the BBC, as a piece of nostalgia for emigrants from Britain, the program is produced in London and flown to Canada. Its audience is now composed of many other countries besides as well as those who have arrived here in the past few years.

Over the years the voice of Arthur Bush has become familiar to listeners. His taped features on places of interest have become so popular that now four other broadcasters roam the Isles in search of talks of nostaligia for Britons living in Canada.

Life as we know it today could not go on without such things as electric light, the telephone, the typewriter and the microscope, for example.

One man, Thomas Alva Edison, either invented or played a significant role in the development of each one of these modern necessities.

During his lifespan of 84 years Edison patented 1097 inventions, a record number for any individual. Of all his many creations the invention of the phonograph gave him the most satisfaction.

The Sound of Edison, on CBC radio's Ventures, Sunday, June 4, is about the invention of the phonograph and the scientists who worked with Edison in its development. The program will be heard at 5:30 p.m. EDT/ on the Trans-Canada network of CBL.

On the hour-long program, free-lance broadcaster Tony Thomas will talk with some of the engineers who worked with Edison during the last decade of his life.

Listeners will hear excerpts from Edison's first recording, made in 1877, Sophie Tucker and Harry Lauder will be heard on excerpts of records first made in 1911 under the direction of Edison. The first grand stars of American opera, Anne Case and Thomas Chalmers, will be heard in their prime and the methods used in the first reproduction of opera.

On the day of the program, June 4, a ceremony will be held at Yellow Springs University, installing Thomas Alva Edison into the Hall of Fame of Great Americans.

Melrose

MELROSE — Mr. and Mrs. E. Radcliffe and girls of Port Hope spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. E. Embury.

Dr. and Mrs. Currie and baby of Ottawa recently called on Mr. and Mrs. R. Richardson.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Milligan of Sleepy Creek spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Milligan.

Mrs. Walter Treverton, Plainfield, and Mrs. Will Jeffrey, Bayside, called recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Wesse.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Wesse and girls spent last Sunday in Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Osborne attended the Oliver-Westlake reception at Bridge-end United Church parsonage in Belleville, on Saturday last, and the reception at the home of the bride's parents in Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Embury, with Mrs. Kenbury Sr., called on the latter's daughter Mrs. Herb Tinney, Campbellford, on May 24th. Mrs. Tinney is seriously ill with pneumonia.

The 4-H Club girls and their leaders attended Achievement Day at Stirling on Saturday, where Melrose girls presented a fine skit.

Mrs. Clare Wesse, Barbara and Sandra, attended a kitchen shower in honor of Miss Jane Plegman, on Saturday evening, at the home of Mrs. Walter Treverton, Plainfield.

Mr. William Milne and his daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. A. King, Toronto, spent Saturday with his sister, Mrs. John Milligan, and Mr. Milligan.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Thompson, R.R. 1, Belleville, recently visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Demille, where they showed slides on their travels. Other guests who enjoyed the evening's entertainment were Mr. and Mrs. Don Cross and family, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cross and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clarke and children and Mr. and Mrs. George Beer and children.

Mrs. M. Demille visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cross, Roslin, on Thursday.

The teenagers enjoyed an evening's fun in the township hall on Saturday last, dancing to the music of a record player. The ladies who chaperoned the gathering served refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McLaren, John and Glenn, and Mrs. Grant McLaren, spent Sunday with the latter's sister, Mrs. Bob Miller, in Ottawa. Inclement weather did not prevent a tour of the city and a visit to Uplands airport.

Dr. Scott of Belleville presented the initiative for the plowing match to an interested gathering of Institute members of several branches at the Township Hall on Thursday evening. A number of gentlemen were present to hear Dr. Scott and Mr. Wrightmeyer, who spoke of the museum over which he would be in control. The latter asked for loans of articles aged 100 years or more to be displayed during the days of the match. There would be carefully guarded and returned safely to the owners.

Mr. Leallor is attending the United Church Conference at Queen's University, Kingston, this week.

ADAMS DOES IT AGAIN!

GOLD STRIPE

Adams, the distiller who made history with the now famous Private Stock, has done it again!

Adams now presents Gold Stripe, another Custom Blend, at a moderate price, created especially for the Ontario taste.

Next time you buy, try mellow custom-blended Gold Stripe in its tall, handsome flask bottle in 25 ounce and 12 ounce sizes, and you'll agree, Adams has done it again!

Getting Daughter to Wash Face Problem for Mother

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The mother of a pre-teen daughter by my acquaintance has a problem: Getting Suzy to wash her face.

Suzy, it seems, watches the toilet soap commercials on TV and insists on following the demonstrations of beauty faithfully. She first wraps her "hairdo" in a hand towel, and then proceeds carefully to dab each cheek and the middle of her forehead with a small circle of suds.

She scorns the face cloth we old fashioned—after all, all the TV face - dabbers use their hands. And Suzy is not convinced by her mother's explanation that the TV girls careen rather than scrub on screen because they don't want to mess up their carefully applied lip and eye makeup.

CBS' bisexually fitted Show has been renewed for another season. That's welcome news because it is one of the few dramatic shows to survive the ratings battle with westerns and private eyes.

Ed Sullivan will present three scenes from All the Way Home, the Broadway show which the playwright Ted Mosel a Pulitzer Prize, on Sunday night. Sullivan is credited with saving the play, when it was about to fold.

Bob Newhart Starts First Film, Will Have Own Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bob Newhart, the young humorist from Chicago, is getting his first movie this week. And he and his long-time corporations are preparing the debut of his own TV show next season.

"I'm the guy who got started poking fun at corporations," he says, "and now I'm president of some."

He's making his movie debut in Hell is for Heroes, in which he will help Steve McQueen, Bobby Darin, Nick Adams, Fess Parker and others win the war.

"I play a clerk who is delivering some typewriters to headquarters," Bob says. "I get lost and end up at the front, where I'm pressed into duty. I'll have some comedy scenes, but the studio said they wouldn't drop the plot for me to go into one of my routines. That's the way I want it."

Newhart likes to recall the bad old days: "I was paid $2,200 to play golf for a week. That was $1,100 more than my total earnings in 1958."

His income will continue mounting as he embarks next fall on his own TV show. He describes it as a variety half-hour, as opposed to a situation comedy.

Newhart admits he is entering TV against the advice of some of his associates.

"They keep telling me, 'don't let them do what they did to George Gobel,' " he recalls. "Gobel is one of my five years. He's a millionaire and is still at the top of his career. I would like to have a similar fate as poor George Gobel."

AT THE PARK — Marjorie Main's co-star with Percy Kilbride in "Ma and Pa Kettle at the Fair", showing today and Saturday at the Park Theatre. On the same program "Abbott and Costello Meet the Invisible Man", continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m. Doors open at 12.30 p.m.

GETS TV POST

TORONTO (CP)—The former station manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's television outlet here has been appointed national program director of CTV Television Network Limited, the new private network of eight Canadian stations, it was announced Thursday. Michael Hind - Smith, 30, will select and supervise programs.

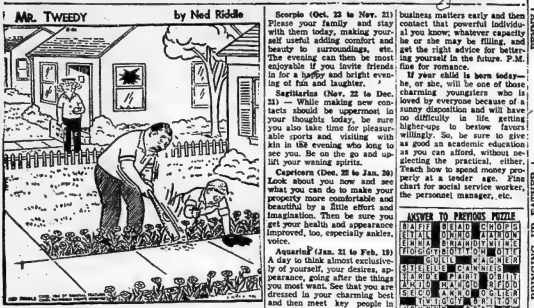
Flying Ants Gum Up Ink Says Newsman

TEL AVIV (AP)—Flying ants gumming up the ink and delivery trucks lost in collisions with elephants are just two of many hazards faced by African newspapers, the publisher of an African newspaper group told the International Press Institute Thursday.



Michael Curtis has faced both in two years as publisher of The Nation in Nairobi and owner of a newspaper group distributed in Kenya, Tanganyika, and Zanzibar. He described details of operating papers in Africa in a panel discussion by delegates to the assembly.

The 10th assembly of the IPI concluded Thursday night with election of four new executive board members from the U.S., Australia, the Philippines and Nigeria.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, June 3, 1961

General Tendencies: A wonderful day for every sort of contact that may have been neglected to be renewed, old friendships revived and new acquaintances brought into the scheme of your life. You are now able to be very social and to gain thereby. Attend functions for whatever is suggested as beneficial for your own sign following.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Get together with congenials and make plans for some mutually enjoyable entertainment. Reach greater rapport. However, don't hesitate to express your views and ambitions — they can do so much to help you attain your desires.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) If you show sincere admiration for the work of higher-ups today, you will find that they soon will become your staunch supporters. Be sure you get your credit lines too. P.M. dine at some elegant restaurant, see a good floor show.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) You should endeavor to dash about hither and yon today since you will have a fine chance to learn of fine new ideas and outlets. Then be sure tonight to become better acquainted with new friends you have made who are worthwhile. Confer.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — An ideal day to use a better method that will permit you to handle your monetary affairs more wisely. Then give your attention to establishing better personal relations with the one closest to you. Think objectively, act positively.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Delve right into all of those chores in a.m. and try and get them out of the way quickly. Then you will have time to sit down with associates and thresh things out in a social way. Come to a real understanding, especially with opponents.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — A day when you can work most harmoniously with those about you and also derive pleasure from your labors. Strive for order and neatness in all that you do, whether it is desk work, gardening, repairing property, etc. Grow.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — This can become one of the nicest days you have had in a long time if you early get chores out of the way, then meet with good companions for a jolly time at whatever hobbies or pleasures most appeal. P.M. be romantic.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Please your family and stay with them today, making yourself useful adding comfort and beauty to surroundings, etc. The evening can then be most enjoyable if you invite friends in for a happy and bright evening of fun and laughter.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — While making new contacts should be uppermost in your thoughts today, be sure you also take time for pleasurable sports and visiting with kin in the evening who long to see you. Be on the go and uplift your waning spirits.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Look about you now and see what you can do to make your property more comfortable and beautiful by a little effort and imagination. Then be sure you get your health and appearance improved, too, especially ankles, voice.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A day to think almost exclusively of yourself, your desires, appearance, going after the things you most want. See that you are dressed in your charming best and then meet key people in your life. P.M. fine for socializing. Smile.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Get rid of odds and ends of business matters early and then contact that powerful individual you know, whatever capacity he or she may be filling, and get the right advice for bettering yourself in the future. P.M. fine for romance.

If your child is born today— he, or she, will be one of those charming youngsters who is loved by everyone because of a sunny disposition and will have no difficulty in life getting higher-ups to bestow favors willingly. So, be sure to give as good an academic education as you can afford, without neglecting the practical, either. Teach how to spend money properly at a tender age. Fine chart for social service worker, the personnel manager, etc.

Cross-Canada Survey

Clear-Cut Election Issue, Colorful Personalities Are Needed to Get Big Vote

By DON HANKEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It takes a big, clear-cut election issue and one or more colorful personalities to produce anything above an average voter turnout in Canada.

This is the opinion of electoral officers and political leaders who have watched and interpreted federal and provincial election results for years.

Those who diagnose record turnouts at the polls in the hope of discovering some sudden upsurge in the public's sense of duty are almost always disappointed.

Observers feel that in every election a plateau is reached that represents the electors who value their franchise and vote at every opportunity regardless of what is at stake.

One well - qualified official places this level at about 70 per cent of registered voters in a federal general election, about 60 per cent in most provinces but slightly higher in others, and approximately 40 per cent in a municipal vote.

ISSUE MAJOR FACTOR

What pushes the figures higher? A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press has produced a variety of answers, including the most common—good issues and big personalities.

In some constituencies party organizations use virtually all electors to the polls, using such gimmicks as free rides and baby sitters. Percentages are also influenced by pre-election "vote as you like 'but vote'" campaigns conducted by newspapers, radio and TV stations "and service clubs, advance-poll ruling laws, the season and weather, and absentee voting provisions.

There has been no general upward trend in voting although increases have occurred in recent years in federal and some provincial elections.

In modern election history the percentages of eligible voters who vote has risen with the importance and clarity of the issue. It doesn't have to be a pocketbook appeal by one of the parties.

One example is the March, 1926, federal election which cast 4,080,660 of the 4,905,125 registered voters cast ballots, a federal record of 79 per cent.

PIPELINE DEBATE

Ten months earlier on June 10, 1957, there was a higher-than-average 74 per-cent turnout to elect the minority Diefenbaker government after a campaign that stressed 22 years of Liberal rule, the pipeline uproar and occasional charges of disrespect for Parliament, the personality contest between John Diefenbaker and Lester Pearson and the question of old age pensions.

Much of this was repeated the following March when the Conservatives went to the country armed with the celebrated "vision" and seeking—successfully, as it turned out—a mandate for a majority. The 79-per-cent record resulted.

The previous federal record of 76 per cent was shared by three years: 1917, with its debate over the famous Navy Bill and the Union government's stand for conscription; 1930, the start of the Depression and the emergence of a dynamic R. B. Bennett armed with tariff reforms and backed by a well - heeled political organization, and 1945, an election that saw a record of post-war economic issues and in which the Liberals accomplished the rare feat of staying in office after wartime administration.

The 1957 and 1958 federal results were virtually copied in Manitoba. The record low turnout there was 36 per cent in 1941 during the wartime coalition government. Without the main parties competing, there were 18 acclamations in 1941.

Voting began to climb after the Progressive Conservatives rolled out of the coalition in 1939. The turnout reached 58 per cent in 1953 and 61 per cent in 1958 when the minority Coaker-ative government was elected. The record of 66 per cent came a year later when the government sought a majority and got it.

Ontario's turnouts have been dropping since its 71.6-per-cent vote in 1945, attributed to the public interest in charges by CCF leader E. B. Jolliffe and Premier George Drew had set up a gangs-plus-like probe.

In 1948 the Ontario vote dropped to 67.02 per cent. It was 64.38 in the 1951 election, 60.07 in 1955 and 58.89 in 1959, years in which there were no such exciting issues.

Alberta's record was 81.72 per cent in 1935, the year the late William Aberhart led Social Credit to power. The percentage fell steadily until 1952 when it was 59.17. It climbed to 68.02 in 1955 before falling to 63.89 in 1959 when the opposition related only four seats.

QUEBEC SET RECORD

Quebec reached a post - war high — impossible to compare with earlier records which are uncertain—of 80.38 per cent last year when Liberal Jean Lesage ended 16 years of Union Nationale government.

It difficult to determine whether Mr. Lesage's campaign aroused the extra vote. Quebec turnouts had been rising steadily since 1948, reaching 75.88 per cent in 1956 and 79 in 1958.

Get-out-the-vote campaigns and longer election campaigns are at least partly credited with the rise in Quebec.

Officials in New Brunswick said Premier Louis Robichaud's pledge of free textbook issues accounted for the June 27, 1960, election helped produce a big vote.

Percentages aren't available for New Brunswick because of the multiple-seat ridings. However, the popular vote in 1960 reached a record 765,380 compared with 756,407 in 1952. In the same period the list of registered voters grew by nearly 30,000 to 395,332.

Advance polling often is given some weight in analysis of big votes. Nova Scotia put a change into effect before the June 7, 1960, election. Previously only certain people — railway workers, mariners, armed forces personnel—were eligible to vote in advance. The privilege was extended to anyone who could establish that he would be away from home on voting day because of his job.

FEDERAL LAW CHANGED

Nova Scotia's turnout last year was 318,900, or 82.02 per cent of the 388,805 registered. This was an all-time high and compares with 80.51 per cent in 1956 and 77.8 in 1957.

Ontario and Saskatchewan open advance polls for those expected to be absent from their homes for any reason. A similar provision was put into federal election law last year.

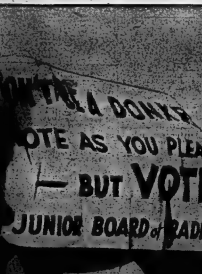
Reduction in the minimum voting age increases the total vote but it is doubtful whether it increases the percentage. Minimum age in Canada is 21 except in Alberta and Saskatchewan where it is 18 and British Columbia where it is 19.

Saskatchewan couples its advance polling with absentee voting—a special ballot for those who want to vote while in a constituency other than their own on voting day.

B.C. also has absentee voting, and its percentages have been around 70 per cent since 1937. While the percentage for the 1960 election has yet been calculated, it was 65.43 in 1958 and 70.93 in 1957.

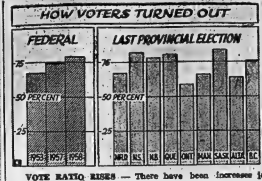
CONCERN IN ONTARIO

Attorney-General Robert Bonner describes the B.C. percentages as "astonishingly high" and says "this is good because public affairs can't be conducted in a vacuum."



"Public affairs fell into lethargy during the coalition government but the last 8½ years have been times of turbulent political thinking."

There is definite concern in Ontario. Said Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer: "People aren't coming out to vote. But I don't believe in compelling them to come out by law. Politics have to be made more interesting so people will take an interest."



Three an all-time high and compares with 80.51 per cent in 1956 and 77.8 in 1957.

Polling hours vary across Canada but there is no indication they have a marked bearing on voting percentages. June appears to be the best month for a big vote.

VOTE RATIO RISES — There have been increases in recent years in the turnout of voters for federal and some provincial elections.

Graphs show percentage of eligible voters who cast ballots in the last three federal elections (left)—a steady increase to a record 79 per cent in 1958—and (right) in the last election in nine provinces. Percentages are estimated for New Brunswick and British Columbia and not available for Prince Edward Island which has a complex voting system.

Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia had the best turnouts in elections last year with 84.1 and 82.02 per cent respectively. Ontario's was the lowest with a 58.89 per cent turnout in 1959. (CP Newsmap.)

Indians the vote in federal elections. They may also vote in provincial elections in Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

In Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Quebec and Alberta Indians may not vote in provincial elections if they are living on federal reserves unless they are or have been in the armed forces.

CONSIDER CHANGES

A Manitoba legislature committee studied the question of lowering the voting age but took no action. It remains at 21.

The Nova Scotia and P.E.I. studies are being made by royal commissions. The main job in the island province is to find an alternative to the present complicated system of electors turning both assemblymen and councillors which, except in the way they are elected, are equal in the legislature.

The system has made it impossible to determine voting percentages. While there has been a steady increase in the number of votes cast for assemblymen, it is insignificant because it corresponds closely with the population increase.

Among the lowest percentages —perhaps because of the many isolated communities—are those in Newfoundland. There was a 57.63-per-cent turnout in 1959, a sharp increase from the 50.22 in 1956 and 56.28 in 1951.

KENNEDY BEGINS TALKS WITH MR. K

Navy And Marine Forces Deployed Along Seaboard

In Dominican Republic Reports of Unrest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy and marine units were on an alert along the eastern United States seaboard today amid reports of further disturbances in the Dominican Republic.

State Department press officer Lincoln White said use of U.S. forces in the Caribbean country was not planned now. But he did not rule out the possibility of such action later if American lives were endangered.

According to latest reports, the 5,500 Americans in the island still were unharmed.

These military movements during the night made obvious that there was a considerable shift of naval forces here and on the East Coast and in the Caribbean.

1. The aircraft carrier Shangri-la put out to sea at Jacksonville, Fla., on "general alert" condition. Its decks were jammed with jet fighters. A navy spokesman said it was ordered to sea "to be ready in the event of an emergency."

MARINE PREPARE

2. At Camp Lejeune, N.C., a marine spokesman said units of the 2nd Marine Division were undergoing "a test of our ability to move out rapidly." The Greensboro Daily News, quoting reliable sources, reported that massive units along the coast were being loaded aboard carriers to take position in the Caribbean off the Dominican Republic's coast.

3. At Providence, R.I., television stations interrupted programs to notify the crews of the fleet oilers Caloosahatchee and Chikaskia to return to their ships at once. The navy said later the crews were ordered back because the ships had received orders to get under way "for reasons fueling operations."

4. In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said there would be other ship movements before morning, but declined to discuss any specific military movements.

Another Pentagon source noted that since last year the United States has built a 2,000-man battalion landing team of the Iwo Jima Marines afloat in the Caribbean, ready for immediate action.

This source also noted that the Northampton, flagship of the Atlantic fleet, sailed Thursday from Norfolk, Va., Wednesday. He said the aircraft carrier Intrepid sailed Thursday from Norfolk.

Reports reaching Washington indicated a purge may be underway now on the island in the wake of Tuesday's killing of

GUARDS GET RAISE

TORONTO (CP)—Guards at Toronto's Don Jail will receive pay increases from the Toronto Metropolitan Toronto officials Monday. The raise will bring the $140 a year for first-year men, bringing the minimum to $5,540.

Toronto Woman Strangled With Coat Hanger

TORONTO (CP) — A young Toronto man was arrested today and charged with murder in the clothes hanger slaying of a woman in a rooming house Friday night.

Ronald Ralph Andrews, 21, was arrested in the Central YMCA. Police also detained as witnesses Lewis McIsaac, 39, of Toronto, and Samuel Martin and Elsie Andrews, of no stated addresses.

The dead woman, in her 40s, was found partly clothed on a bed, her head beaten and a wire clothes hanger around her neck.

Police said she was known to some as Catherine Livingstone but doubted that was her real name. She wore a signet ring with the initials A.R.

The rooming house was in the downtown Shuter Street area.

$20,500 Seized In Apartment

TORONTO (CP) — The head of the provincial police anti-gambling squad testified Friday police raided $20,500 when they raided Vincent Feeley's apartment last September.

Sergeant John Anderson was the last prosecution witness before the weekend adjournment of the bribery trial of Feeley, Douglas McIntyre and former OPP constable Robert Wright.

The three men are charged with conspiracy to bribe Const. George Scott.

Sgt. Anderson testified he was listening on an extension phone when Const. Scott tipped off McDermott about an impending gambling raid. Const. Scott had testified he was acting as a double agent, giving information to gamblers while gathering evidence for the OPP.

This morning he heard Const. Scott tell McDermott the anti-gambling squad was "going down south" May 25, which was an agreed code meaning there would be a raid on the Niagara Falls Ramsay Club.

DEPORT MIGRANT UNION RAIDERS BUILDERS URGE

Mrs. Fairclough Asked to Intercede

TORONTO (CP)—A telegram calling for deportation of immigrant workers convicted of using violence or intimidation to support strike action against apartment and house builders was sent Friday by the president of the Toronto Metropolitan Home Builders' Association to Jack Pickersgill, Commonwealth Relations and Citizenship minister.

The pilot against the elder Trujillo, who ruled with a tyrannical hand for 31 years, was disclosed to have reached right into the presidential palace.

The slain assassin was identified as Lieut. Amado Garcia Guerrero, an aide to President Joaquin Balaguer, the figurehead Dominican chief of state.

Among the three accused conspirators seized was a civilian caught in a Roman Catholic parish house. The resident priest, Rev. Gabriel Maduro, was taken into custody on charges of giving asylum to the fugitive, identified as Hussear Antonio Tejeda Pimentel.

The army could guards were posted around all Catholic churches to protect them against reprisals by angry mobs.

An armed forces communique said Lieut. Garcia Guerrero was machine-gunned to death trying to escape from prison. He put up a fight and shot two security agents, killing one, before being killed himself.

There were seven in the band that carried out the assassination of Trujillo Tuesday night.

A former army captain, Pedro Livio Cedeno, was captured

Retired General Mastermind In Trujillo's Assassination

CIUDAD TRUJILLO (AP)—The Dominican government claimed today to have shot dead one of the assassins of dictator Rafael Trujillo and captured three others. But the accused mastermind of the plot was still at large.

Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr., 30, the dictator's son, was directing the manhunt for members of the band of killers amid reports of a widespread crackdown on suspected anti-government elements.

The plot against the elder Trujillo, who ruled with a tyrannical hand for 31 years, was disclosed to have reached right into the presidential palace.

The slain assassin was identified as Lieut. Amado Garcia Guerrero, an aide to President Joaquin Balaguer, the figurehead Dominican chief of state.

Police, Klansmen, Preachers All Receive Stern Warnings

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—A federal judge Friday issued a series of sweeping decrees aimed at stopping the most recent racial challenge in Alabama and the violence that some with it.

1. "Freedom Riders" must stop their racial challenge in Alabama until further notice.

2. He put Montgomery police and a former reserve policeman under no-bus-violence injunctions, with indefinite jail terms as the penalty for violation.

He left in effect, pending further court action, a restraining order which prohibits the Ku Klux Klan and three individuals from further violence against Freedom Riders or other interstate bus passengers.

Meanwhile, another group of integrationists tried a new tactic on Mississippi racial laws at Jackson, Miss. They were turned back—but unsuccessful.

Thirteen Freedom Riders arrived at Jackson in two Trailways buses—six in the afternoon and seven Friday night. While Negroes in the group went into the white waiting room, the whites went into the Negro waiting room. All 13 were arrested for breach of the peace. They brought to 65 the number arrested at Jackson since Saturday last week.

Johnson said in his Montgomery ruling that the bus trips to challenge segregation practices "are directly causing an undue burden and restraint upon interstate commerce. . . ."

After issuing his ruling Johnson warned:

"I want to make it abundantly clear that this injunction and restraining order will be enforced. If there are any such incidents as this (mob violence) again, I am going to put some

Castro Is Given Until Wednesday To Make Up Mind on Tractor Deal

DETROIT (AP) — Fidel Castro has been given until his two-week-old offer to exchange 1,200 prisoners now in Cuban jails for 500 tractors, has been given until Wednesday to make a reply to the American firm that is willing to provide the tractors.

Tractors for Freedom, a group dedicated to obtaining the release of prisoners taken in the Cuban invasion, said Cuban premier Friday night invitating action on his May 27 offer to buy the tractors for cash to cooperate.

Signing the cable were Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, honorary chairman of the committee; Dr. Milton Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University; President Walter P. Reuther of the United Auto Workers Union and Detroit banker Joseph M. Dodge, committee treasurer.

The cable to the Cuban leader also described the types of tractors to be exchanged for the prisoners. The total would include 450 general-purpose farm tractors with discs, plows and harrows and 50 heavy-duty tractors with tank-type tracks and weighing from 4½ to nine tons. The heavy-type were offered in "in recognition that Cuba needs to clear new lands and get some new land into agricultural production."

The committee said it understood that for every 100 tractors Cuba would receive 100 prisoners.

"Our committee cannot proceed until we have received official confirmation directly from your government that your offer still stands," said the cable to Castro. "Since we have waited nearly two weeks for some official word from your government, we do not think it unreasonable to insist on receiving this official confirmation from you not later than 12 noon, Eastern Standard Time, Wednesday, June 7, so that we will know that you are prepared to carry out the proposal which you made May 27, 1961."

Cuba Earmarks $21,000,000 To Buy Goods in Canada

HAVANA (CP) — The Cuban government has earmarked $21,000,000 to purchase goods from Canada this year, it was learned Friday.

This amount represents an increase of more than 50 per cent over the cost of Cuban imports from Canada last year. Canada's exports to Cuba then were $13,078,000.

The revolutionary government has budgeted a total of $21,653,000 for Canadian imports this year.

Purchases in 1956 will be the largest on record from the standpoint of Canadian sales to Cuba since the $21,000,000 figure is reached.

Canadian exports to Cuba spiralled to a good start this year with sales in January reaching $2,150,000, compared with $2,317,819 during the first three months of 1960.

Heavy purchases of Canadian livestock and poultry—Cuba is striving to build up its resources in both—made up a large part

LIBERALS ACCUSE GOVT. OF LACKING PLAN FOR MINERS

Coal Debate Ends in House

OTTAWA (CP)—The great annual coal debate ended Friday in the Commons with the Liberal party accusing the government of lacking plans to put displaced Cape Breton miners in other jobs.

Donald Maclnnis (PC — Cape Breton South) suggested a $1,500,000 federal fund for that purpose could be vastly expanded—to $25,000,000 or $30,000,000.

Mines Minister Comeau said plans for a series of projects have to be worked out with the Nova Scotia government to use the $1,500,000 and these would be announced in due course.

The government had at least 15 months to prepare for the latest mine closings, said J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista-Twillingate), Glace Bay's Cabonia mine — employing 800 — closed Wednesday and the "government still has no project at all can switch to spend this $1,500,000," he said.

Lawrence B. Kindt (PC—MacLeod), an economist, raked the Rand royal commission report on the coal industry as fit only for the garbage can in its recommendations for Western Canada subsidies. Contrary to the report, he urged continued aid for export Western coal to Japan.

The coal debate petered out with final approval for the current budget of the department of mines and technical surveys and the Commons moved on to another study of the secretary of state's spending estimates. This continues today.

Mr. Diefenbaker announced earlier that Canada's share of aid to India for her third five-year plan will be $56,000,000.

U.S. President To Warn Nikita Of Berlin Danger

Will Urge Concessions By Reds on Disarming

VIENNA—President Kennedy met with Premier Khrushchev in neutral Vienna today to warn against war-danger in a new Berlin crisis and to urge Soviet disarmament concessions.

The Soviet leader was accompanied by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and other top aides; for the talks, beginning over lunch and expected to go for five hours this afternoon.

Kennedy had flown into Vienna two hours earlier from Paris. He told Austrian President Dolchscheef he had come to Vienna for "this most important occasion in an effort to improve the prospects for peace and reduce the cverstandings between people."

When Khrushchev arrived by train Friday, drove to the residence of U.S. Ambassador E. Reverdy Johnson, Kennedy walked part way down the stone entrance steps to greet him.

The two men smiled and shook hands for photographers.

KENNEDY TODAY'S HOST

Kennedy was host for today's talk, which began with a lunch eon and was scheduled to run for hours. On the afternoon, Khrushchev will be host at the Soviet embassy residence Sunday.

Exhaustive security precautions were enforced around the secluded grounds of the residence. Police with walkie-talkies and back big crowds standing five-deep on the road leading to the house.

U.S. officials said the talks would range over all cold war issues with special attention to West Berlin, the nuclear test ban talks at Geneva, disarmament and Laos.

Kennedy has made no secret of his desire to make as clear as possible to Khrushchev that the U.S. considers its responsibilities in miscalculation. By that Kennedy means Khrushchev might misjudge the West's conflict by underrating the determination of the U.S. and its allies' rights in disputed positions — notably West Berlin.

CHEERED BY MEN

The president received a more warmhearted welcome from Austrians when he drove into the city from the airport than he received when Khrushchev when he arrived here by train Friday night.

Crowds stood four and five deep at some points along the route despite a cold wind. They surged forward cheering as he drove by with Austrian President Adolf Schaerf and there were some of the boos which marked Khrushchev's arrival.

Another crowd waited at the PARIS (AP)—President Kennedy's first effort at European summit diplomacy, his three days of meetings with president Charles de Gaulle, carries all the earmarks of a personal success.

There had been some fear that the American president might not get along with de Gaulle. The contrary was true. From the start there were none of the personality differences that sometimes have marked de Gaulle's high - level dealings in the past.

Although the French president is old enough to be Kennedy's father and often is as aloof as Mount Everest, the two got along famously.

In the final analysis, this first confrontation was not as important in the things they talked about as in how they talked about them.

Both men discussed openly and frankly the problems that beset them and say eye-to-eye on a number of items. Most immediate among them are Berlin and Soviet efforts to oust the West from that divided German city.

They also discussed the changing problems of European defence created by the American-Soviet stalemate in nuclear power and the two piaguing conferences at Geneva—nuclear test ban and Laos.

Both Kennedy and de Gaulle agreed not to backtrack in Berlin under Soviet force or threat of force.

It was understood they had an informative discussion on the touchy problem of future negotiations in giving nuclear information to its allies. They talked broadly about Latin America, in which France itself has a stake.

Kennedy believes that the banning of nuclear tests is a first and necessary step toward total disarmament. De Gaulle has been non - committal about France's future plans in nuclear testing.

Said to underdeveloped countries and emerging Africa look up part of the conversation, with no specific decisions reached.

'They Shot Him Like He Was An Animal' Says Chauffeur

The following interview was made available to The Associated Press by the San Juan (Puerto Rico) Star, whose staff writer, Harold Lidin, is a veteran reporter of the Caribbean scene with headquarters in Cuba and the Dominican Republic.

CIUDAD TRUJILLO (AP) — "They shot him like he was an animal."

This is the way Rafael Trujillo's chauffeur described Friday the assassination of the Dominican Republic dictator.

The chauffeur, Capt. Zacarias de la Cruz, 55, was recuperating from numerous bullet wounds suffered when attackers killed Trujillo in a gunfight Tuesday night.

In an exclusive interview with the San Juan Star, the powerful built colonel who had driven for Trujillo for 18 years said he was wounded five times in defense of "the best boss (chief).

He said he managed to wound two assailants.

"I dropped them, I dropped them good," he said.

From his hospital bed here, the chauffeur gave this account of the attack:

The murder car came from behind with its light out. Its first warning was a short blast of machine-gun fire that hit Trujillo but not the chauffeur. The car then swerved to the right and cut in front of Trujillo's auto.

Another car was parked some distance ahead but its occu-

Albert Students Give Recital Of Piano Music

By GLADYS WARD

Students of the Albert College Conservatory of Music gave a pleasing presentation of piano music at their recital in Memorial Chapel on Friday evening. Some of the performers were award winners in the festival of music in Stirling, and Freda Ross was the winner of three awards. Adding to the attractiveness of the evening were the vocal solos of Miss Lorraine Jackson of Galt, a pupil at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto. Miss Jackson possesses a rich, vibrant soprano voice, and her rendition of the operatic numbers was most complimenting. The piano pupils have studied with Miss Marjorie Woodard and Mr. Egerton Boyce.

The performers and visitors were given a welcome by the principal of the school, Rev. Dr. A. E. MacKenzie, who introduced the program which follows:

Piano solo—Canoe Song (Leila Fletcher)—Linda Ross; Totem Pole (Leila Fletcher)—Raymond Martin.

Piano solo—Needin' for the Corral' (Francis Aulbach)—Louise Mason.

Piano solo—Yellow Jackets (Gina Setter)—Diane Martin.

Piano solo—Surf Riding (Michael Aaron)—Louise Martin.

Piano solo—Sailor's Hornpipe (Beck)—Arlene Gill.

Vocal duet—Kon Bald (Come Soon) (Brahms), duet—Jean (The Huntsman) (Beethoven), O Kneiervaal (O Cool Woods) (Brahms); O Liebliche Stimme (Chenille) (Brahms)—Miss Lorraine Jackson.

Piano solo—Ballade—Op. 100 No. 15 (Burgmuller — Elizabeth Slaght.

Piano solo—Allegretto (Haydn)—Corinne Peverley.

Vocal solo—I Know Where I Am Going (Hughs), Open the Door for Me (Hughs), The Leprichan (Liddle)—Miss Lorraine Jackson.

Plan solo—Minuetto from Fantasie Op. 78 (Schubert)—Francis Soole.

Vocal solo—O Mio Babbino Caro (Oh: My Beloved Daddy) (from Gianni Schicchi (Puccini). Un bel di, vedremio (One Fine Day) from Madame Butterfly (Puccini)—Miss Lorraine Jackson.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Organize Unique Homecoming For Children, Grandchildren

By THOMAS COLLINS

If you are retired, haven't seen your children very much lately, and have a few dollars that you are hoarding in their these children when you die — try this idea.

Organize a homecoming for the children and the grandchildren for this summer. Send parcel parents who have country places have done it by pitching tents on their property, letting everyone live outdoors and having a common kitchen.

A couple of years ago one man leased an entire motel for a week. He had to — he had six children and 19 grandchildren.

A third plan, which might be more feasible for most people who are still living in their own homes, is to capitalize on the vacations of their neighbors.

A QUICK SURVEY

If you will take a quick survey of your neighborhood, you probably can find three families who will be away for one week, say in August. Tell the neighbors you have it in mind and ask for the use of their houses for one week. Agree to pay them what is reasonable.

If the homes in your neighborhood are large and have four children, you may need only one week because the children can double up.

You should take care of the whole thing. Food will may be the largest single expense. You can do this by stocking the pantries in the borrowed homes with breakfast food and snack food for the children. Then all lunches and dinners can be served buffet style in your own back yard or dining room. Your lawn, with rented chairs and pillows would be ideal as a gathering spot for everybody after dinner.

You might have to schedule some entertainment in advance for the children. There should be a swimming pool and playground nearby, both of which might give you a packing deal for the homecoming week. A place like this would be ideal for a nearby movie house would be a blessing to everyone. You might also consider renting a couple of spare television sets for the week.

Your children, if they are normal, would respond to such a homecoming as this and would bestow money to come if they had it. But I think you should specify in the invitation that you will pay for the food and hotel bills that will accrue on the trip to your home and back. You will have to go across the board on this, giving the same to your children and to those who have not quite made it.

TIME FOR RETIREMENT

You should make this homecoming a time for family reminiscing. During the evenings you should talk over with the children the days when you were later years of your life. If you are financially independent and have a good will to spend the money, you ought to will them. By all means tell them exactly how much money you have or how you intend to leave it.

The homecoming could be an occasion for filling in the blank pages in the family Bible.

It would be an ideal time — if only the parents could bring themselves to start writing it — family history.

A homecoming such as the one described here would be quite a shock to the neighborhood. Everybody on the street would talk about you for days afterward. Before the week is over. You children would still be talking about it when they came to your funeral.

Bond Markets Quiet, Steady Most of Week

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada bond markets were quiet and steady throughout most of this week.

The long term market saw a short period of strength but with a lack of budget news investors became cautious and prices slipped back to their previous levels.

On the government market only two issues traded actively. Canada 5½-per-cent bonds due Oct. 1, 1982 and Canada 5-per-cent bonds due April 1, 1953.

The CNR five-per-cent bonds due Oct. 1, 1987, and the Canada conversion loan 4½-per-cent due Sept. 1, 1983, were unchanged. The Canada conversion loan 4-per-cent due Sept. 1, 1965, lost ⅛ at 106-96.50.

The 91-day treasury bills sold at an average yield of 3.14 per cent compared with 3.17 per cent last week, while the 182-day bills were at 3.30 per cent compared with 3.34 per cent.

The provincial and corporate markets were quiet with no changes recorded in the bigger issues.

Kenmores Meet Petes Here Tomorrow

The Belleville Kenmores will play host to the highly-rated Peterborough Fannings at the Fairgrounds on Sunday afternoon (Sunday) afternoon in a Lakeshore baseball league game.

While the Kenmores have some difficulties as far as the win column is concerned, however they are expected to hit their stride soon. And they couldn't pick a better team to do it against than the boys from the Little City.

Peterborough was expected to have one of the stronger clubs in the league and so far they have lived up to the prediction. The Fannings boast of a hard-hitting, fast-running lineup consisting of a mixture of veterans and youngsters led by ace pitcher Al Wade.

Wade, former pitcher of former hockey star and ball player in this area, Jake Wade, was with the Petes for part of last season and will be on the mound for the Kenmores here tomorrow.

Belleville is playing the first half of their "weekend doubleheader" in Newcastle this afternoon where the Kenmores are seeking their first league win in three trys.

Game time here tomorrow is 3.30 at the Fairgrounds. A large crowd is expected.

Car Production Shows Increase Over Last Week

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian motor vehicle production this week is estimated at 9,240 compared with 7,403 last week, says the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Production consisted of 7,886 cars compared with 6,231 last week and 7,886 compared with 12,937.

Production to date this year is estimated at 183,941 compared with 238,446 to the corresponding period last year.

Car production by companies this week and the year to date with figures for last week and the corresponding period last year in brackets, was:

American Motors 180 (144); 2,700 (all). Chrysler 1,400 (1,276); 20,689 (20,726). Ford 2,002 (1,909); 31,945 (31,961). General Motors 4,130 (3,902); 82,354 (96,713). Studebaker - Packard 160 (128); 2,576 (2,325).

Truck production by companies last week:

Chrysler 156 (135); 2,397 (2,328). Ford 480 (238); 8,307 (9,720). General Motors 774 (637); 14,468 (20,365). International Harvester 304 (317); 5,975 (5,705).

Gerald Boyce Again to Head Historical Group

Seventy-five members and friends of the Hastings County Historical Society filled the Centre Library, Madoc, on Tuesday evening for the Society's annual meeting.

Guest speaker was Miss Ruth Brintnell of Plainfield who spoke on Madoc's role as "Historic Sites of the Quinte District". A teacher in the Madoc District High School, Albert College, Miss Brintnell's ancestors, the United Empire Loyalists, and she now lives on the land conveyed to her great-grandfather from the Crown in 1858.

Miss Brintnell showed many interesting colored slides of district historic sites, beginning with Prince Edward County and moving through Prince Edward County and moving through Picton, Adolphustown, Bath, and the Mohawk Indian Reserve. Several interesting slides showed Belleville churches, the Bay of Quinte, scenes on the Moira, and the O'Hara Mill project near Madoc. Also shown were slides showed several scenic slides.

Miss Brintnell was thanked for her very excellent talk by Miss Hazel Farley of Trenton.

In his report on the year's society's activities, the president, Gerald Boyce, called attention to the progress that has been made in the past twelve months. Among the points noted were the following:

(1) Membership increased by more than 50 per cent, now stands at over 180. Membership includes persons and organizations from about 20 Women's Institutes, an encouraging sign.

(2) The past year, the Belleville Fair Display was a highlight. Over 300 persons stopped to view the display which was erected and staffed by members of the society.

(3) Plans for a county centennial in the Belleville Fairgrounds building are proceeding satisfactorily. Water service has been installed, the heating plant is currently being set up, the bulk of the interior painting has been completed, and a large section of floor has been cleaned and varnished. There still remains, and workers are needed. Also, the museum is in need of show cases, file cabinets, and further display space is being sought.

(4) Four general meetings were held, with an average attendance of over 90. Also, last July, the society held an enjoyable tour of the Mohawk Indian Reserve. This July, it is hoped to visit Upper Canada Village at Morrisburg.

OFFICERS NAMED

The annual meeting was also highlighted briefly by Judge Harold Smith of Napanee and Miss Hazel Farley of Trenton. Each spoke on the problem of retaining historic buildings in their localities.

Dr. Dane Martin conducted the election of officers for 1961-62 which resulted as follows: Honorable Past President T. G. Wickett; President — Gerald Boyce; Vice-President — Mrs. John Haig; Secretary — Miss Beryl Campbell; Treasurer — Mrs. Ransom; Council Members — Mrs. Roy Bush of Stirling, Mrs. John Haig of Madoc, Mrs. Hazel Farley of Trenton, Mr. C. F. Bishop of Belleville, Mr. E. H. Price of Actinolite.

Warden Harleigh Hamilton remained County Council on the executive.

Committee chairmen elected were: Program Committee — T. Dane Martin; Camera Committee — Mrs. Cody; Museum Committee — Gerald Boyce; Social Committee — Mrs. George Bennett; Publication Committee — Mr. and Mrs. John Haig.

A letter of resignation from the secretary, Miss Helen Wood, was read briefly by Judge Smith and the resignation was accepted. A vote of thanks was given by the meeting.

Following the meeting, a light lunch was served by the social committee under the direction of Mrs. G. E. Boyce and those present had an opportunity to converse with the speaker and to renew acquaintances.

Two Belleville Men Arrested At Orillia

ORILLIA (CP)—Seconds after they got the description of a wanted car provincial police constables saw the vehicle approaching them on Highway 12 about a mile west of here early Friday.

They turned the cruiser around, gave chase and overtook the vehicle.

Clinton Dopkins and Richard Curtain of Trenton; and William de Shane and Ken Kellar of Belleville have been charged with attempted theft of gasoline. De Shane also faces a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

Obituaries

MRS. BLYTHE WANNAMAKER

The funeral of Mrs. Keitha Irene Wannamaker was held from the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home on Friday afternoon. Rev. Canon Price conducted the service in the funeral home and the committal rites at Foxboro cemetery.

The bearers were Verral Wannamaker, Ross Boss, Cecil Wannamaker, Russell Maxwell and John Homan.

MRS. GEORGE KETCHESON R.R. 1, Madoc

In ill health for the past eighteen months, but seriously ill for two months, Mrs. Agnes May Ketcheson, R.R. 1, Madoc, died at her home on Friday evening. She was born at Shannonville 82 years ago, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McDougall and lived her entire married life on the farm 54 years, moving to that location from Shannonville.

Mrs. Ketcheson was a member of Hazzard's United Church and active in the work of the church when health permitted. She was a member of the Missionary Society and took a keen part in the organization of the church. She was a kind neighbor and friend and will be much missed by a wide circle of friends.

Surviving are her husband, George Alexander Ketcheson; four daughters, Mrs. (Dr.) Mary (Agnes) Post of R.R. 1, Madoc; Mrs. T. (Jessie) Hutchinson of Stirling; Mrs. (Dr.) Allan Ketcheson of R.R. 1, Madoc, and Mrs. Wilbur Vandervoort of Stirling. Also surviving are 13 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

IN MEMORIAM

BRADSHAW. — In loving memory of Charles Vivian Bradshaw, who was instantly killed June 8th, 1957.
He has gone across the river,
To the shore of evergreen,
And we long to see his dear face,
But never, never between.
Sadly missed by his wife and family.

MACKAY. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Clive Mackay, who passed away June 8th, 1957.
With tender love and deep regret.
Ever in my heart, you never forget.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by Mona, brother and sisters.

MACKAY. — In loving memory of my dear mother, Clive McMurray who passed away June 3rd 1957.
Come, dear mother, come forever,
Never was smiles missed face,
But you left us to remember,
Home you left us never forget.
Daughter Mona.
O happy home we once enjoyed,
How dear the memory still;
But death has left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.
Always remembered by daughter Jean, Reuben and grandchildren.

Wet Spring Will Delay Pea Growers

An occasional glimpse of the sun this week has helped some district farmers to put in their gardens, but most of them at the outlook last today (Friday) Ole Sol didn't stay out long enough to do much drying of the water-logged land.

Several farmers in Prince Edward County said that every time they started to plant their gardens it rained. One farmer counted quite proud of being able to announce that he was able to plant his garden Thursday. He apparently was most of his neighbors were still wading in mud.

Hastings County pea growers are dismayed at the wet spring because they fear they will not be able to harvest a crop in mid-June. They all remember last year when a lot of land was left unplanted.

Raspberry canes are in thick foliage and the crop looks promising, say some, but the harvest is some time away yet. The first strawberries are expected on the market within a few weeks.

"We've got plenty of strawberry blossoms" said a farmer. "If each blossom would represent a berry, we'd have a beautiful crop".

Elsewhere on the market, prices and varieties of produce remained unchanged from past weeks. The only vegetable available grown in 1961 was asparagus, which was offered at prices varying from 10 or 15 cents a bunch to three bunches for a quarter. Rhubarb was plentiful at 10 cents a bunch.

Many flowers and plants were also offered at various prices.

Theatre Groups To Pool Efforts In Production

Theatre groups in Belleville and Trenton are pooling efforts for a combined production of the spectacular stage documentary "Inherit the Wind", which will open their fall season on.

The Belleville Theatre Guild membership has voted in favor of the venture, the most ambitious production attempted thus far by amateur theatre in the Quinte district. The play, still fragilar to local audiences through its recent movie presentation, is a dramatized version of the Tennessee Scopes Monkey Trial of the mid-20's. Besides the moral issues the case signified, the trial is memorable for the dramatic court-room struggle between the great jurist Clarence Darrow and the powerful politician William Jennings Bryan.

Playwrights Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee presented all the personal and panoramic drama of the famous trial into the writing of "Inherit the Wind", highlighting the individual dramas against a background of spectacular crowd scenes of a small town rocked by religious fervor.

For the forthcoming production in late fall, the pooled resources and talents of the Belleville Theatre Guild and the Trenton Drama Group will be directed by James Alexander. Mr. Alexander is long familiar to theatre audiences of both groups as a director and leading actor.

S.A. Band Gives Musical Program at M.C.

Mrs. C. Irvine presided over the recent Fuller Missionary Circle meeting, with the Salvation Army Band in charge of the music. There were 32 members present.

Captain Morrow gave a short talk on the work of the Red Shield drive, and a donation was made of $19.39 towards this work.

The program consisted of musical numbers by the band; a solo by Lieutenant Ward, "In Times Like These"; quartet quartet, "Free and Easy"; duet by Captain Morrow and Lieutenant Ward, "Whispering Hope"; musical number by Lieutenant Ward and Archie Sinclair, "Open the Gates"; short testimony by Mr. Sinclair; band number, "Stand Up for Jesus"; duet by two bandsmen, "Just Keep on Praying"; chorus, "Showers of Blessing"; piano selection by Lieutenant Ward, "Onward, Christian Soldiers, and "Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us"; band number, "Stand Up for Christ"; duet by Captain Morrow and Lieutenant Ward, "All That Thrills My Soul, is Jesus"; "Holy, Holy, Holy" by band; duet by Marian Dean and Bonnie Smith, "Do Lord"; solo by Hollis Dean, "The Lily of the Valley".

Mr. Wannamaker closed the meeting.

Power Squadron Rendezvous Here in August

The International Power Squadron Rendezvous will be held here on August 10, 11 and 12, Quinte Power Squadron officials announced today.

Commander Dr. Arthur Elliott of the Quinte Squadron, has appointed chairmen of various committees and will be after rendezvous arrangements.

Rapidan canes are in thick foliage and the crop looks promising, say some, but the harvest is some time away yet. The first strawberries are expected on the market within a few weeks.

District Number Six United States Power Squadron and Canadian sister squadrons will enter competition.

Cruises from Buffalo, Niagara Falls, N.Y., Rochester, Ithaca, Binghampton and other United States points will take part in the various competitions.

Defending the coveted Roy Van Valkenberg Trophy for the second time will be the Quinte Power Squadron, only Canadian unit to win it.

Other international trophies up for competition are the Corlett Cup, and the Lt. Calvert Cup.

"Squadronettes" will test their skill in competition for the Ronald Keel trophy and Cup.

The LYRA are putting up their Cedar Point for competition over this weekend.

The popular "girls" of the Niagara Falls Power Squadron have notified rendezvous officials that they will be back and are anticipating another fine visit to Belleville and the Bay of Quinte.

RMC Receives New Colors From Vanier

KINGSTON (CP) — Governor General Vanier Friday presented new colors to the Royal Military College here.

It was the first time the college has carried the Queen's colors since the previous set was retired and hung in the cathedral church of St. George here in 1942.

That set was presented by the Prince of Wales, now Duke of Windsor, on Oct. 25, 1919.

RMC was closed to cadets on June 20, 1942, and used as an officers' training centre during the Second World War. It reopened in 1948 with the new colors are the first conferred on the college since then.

Stamp-Orama

By AL MacDONALD

Most collectors know that the 1 anna stamp of the 1937 King George VI issue of India can be collected in Tete-Beche pairs. Not many are aware that these can be collected in two ways, plain and with colored gutter between. See illustration) These stamps come from sheets that were intended for booklet use.

Lake Tiscan, pictured on the stamps, at 6,285 feet is the highest steam-navigated lake in the world. The steamships that ply across it were built in Britain, dismantled into sections for shipping across the ocean and had to be hauled up the slopes of the Andes Mountains, to be reassembled on the shores of the lake, before being put into service.

Old catalogues can be very interesting. I write leafing through a Scott's 1902 catalog recently and was especially intrigued at the offers of "Cheap Sets of Stamps" at the back of the book. Included in the offers were the following: The United States 1893 Columbians, 15 varieties to the 10c in mint condition at 60 cents per set. The Omaha issue complete at, $3.50 per set and, Canada 1852-59, 6 values used to 17 cents at $1.05, Our bubblee issue, complete mint at $20.00 and so on.

Now and then, one will run across an item in the philatelic press or in an auction catalogue about Switzerland. Hotel Stamps. Actually, these are locals, issued by Swiss Hotels in the 1800's. They paid the carrying charges from the issuing hotel to the nearest post office. While they have found little interest on this side of the Atlantic, many European collectors are for them and when offered at auction over there, bring a good price. Hotels that issued these stamps include: The Belalp, Kurort Davos, Rigi-Kaltbad, Rigi Scheidegck, St. Gothard and Rigi Kulm.

Israel's 1956 30p Merchant Marine Stamp, has been discovered with several errors. These include, bottom of ship incomplete and name omitted and top of ship incomplete and perforations omitted.

The stamps of Prince Edward Island have been sadly neglected by most collectors. Perhaps the other issues are dull. Perhaps the other issues are dull. Perhaps the other issues are dull

Donne Was Wrong

John Donne said that any man's death diminishes everybody, but it is difficult to feel diminished by the death of Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, dictator of the Dominican Republic.

General Trujillo's ghost, if it should choose to read these words, might experience a deep shock, for if there was one thing well-developed in Trujillo's make-up it was a very strong sense of self esteem.

Since we, like most Canadians, lack comprehensive knowledge of the politics and personalities of the Caribbean and Central America, General Trujillo had escaped our notice until he introduced himself with a formidable, and we must admit breath-taking, example of the printer's art. This volume arrived in this office some four or five years ago. Its objective, we feel sure, was to impress every reader with the potentialities of the Dominican Republic and the all-important role which the Trujillo family had played in making it a paradise on earth. Unfortunately, the draught was too sweet. Our stomach rebelled. "Why this guy is another Hitler," exclaimed a colleague after the twentieth or thirtieth reference to Trujillo in the language usually reserved for deity.

Trujillo next forced himself on our attention when it was virtually proved that he had been instrumental in having the body of a political foe stuffed into the boiler firebox of a freighter in a New York harbor.

His son next entered the news by a dalliance with Zsa Zsa Gabor, a type of conduct which ought perhaps to be deplored but which was at least understandable.

Meanwhile the Dominican people, like those of most of these "banana republics," have sweated and starved. If there had never been a Trujillo they would also have sweated and starved. But if it had not been for these sweating and starving people Trujillo would not have died a multi-millionaire.

We suspect, though, that few of them will begrudge whatever extra taxes are levied to finance his funeral.

Two Letters on Civil Defence

This week we have read two thoughtful letters from newspaper readers on civil defence, one in The Canadian Intelligencer on Tuesday and the other in the same day's issue of the Ottawa Journal.

The letter we published presented facts, concerning public apathy. The reason for this is open to argument. Our own suspicion is that it does not arise from indifference so much as from a conviction that any and all civil defence precautions are likely to be of little avail in the event of a full-scale nuclear war. In any event, though, this apathy is an old story, not only in Belleville itself but in many other Canadian centres.

The Ottawa Journal's letter did not present facts but asked a question, and it was new, or at least new to us. "- - - It would be interesting to learn if any country behind the Iron Curtain has taken precautions to protect its civil population against nuclear attack," said the writer.

The Journal appended an answer in an editor's note: "The Soviet Embassy says the Soviet Union has 'no special civil defence program; no shelters in the cities or villages. We are not preparing for war'."

Now the Embassy's statement may be true or it may be false. We doubt whether it is false. Too many Westerners are visiting Russia for the Embassy to hope to get away with a lie about this matter.

If the statement is true, several reasons suggest themselves for this state of affairs.

The lack of shelters could be interpreted as indicating that the Soviet Government did not care what happened to millions of citizens. That, however, is hard to believe. No matter how ruthless the regime, it must recognize that heavy casualties would decrease its chances of winning a nuclear war.

Or perhaps the Soviet leaders, like the majority of residents of Belleville, are convinced that there is no effective way to reduce materially casualties in a full-scale nuclear war.

Or, thirdly, the Soviet Embassy at Ottawa may mean exactly what it says—"we are not preparing for war." For that to be an adequate explanation of the lack of shelters, however, it would be necessary for the Soviet leaders to be convinced that the U.S. is not preparing for war, either. That may not seem a startling conclusion to us, who live in the Western world, but it is a belief at considerable variance with some of the things which the Communists have said, and done, in the past. If Soviet leaders really hold this belief it throws a new and interesting light on many Communist manoeuvres.

Castro Is Not Only Tyrant

New York Times

The recent shocking events in Asunción, Paraguay, deserve careful thought, as well as the condemnation they merit. Americans, Students seeking to demonstrate peacefully on the occasion of Paraguay's 130th anniversary of independence met "harsh police measures, including beatings, jail and withholding of food." The Times correspondent who witnessed the police brutality said that not known were not spared.

The attention paid to another Latin-American dictator, Fidel Castro of Cuba, has been so exclusive that the great, traditional evil of Right-wing, military tyranny under "caudillos" tends to be overlooked. Gen. Alfredo Stroessner, the Paraguayan dictator, is a regime that is brute, corrupt and predatory. All these adjectives, and worse, can be applied to Generalissimo Trujillo of the Dominican Republic, whose death and Haiti have their own unpleasant brands of dictatorship.

Should the United States, which has been doing its best by indirect means to overthrow the Leftist dictatorship of Castro in Cuba, support these Rightist dictators? The answer is simple: the United States should not. The cost of attempting of overthrowing any government in Latin America, we have treaty commitments not to do so, and it is a practice that is as bad as it is old because as far more harm than good.

There is, of course, a difference in the degree of danger to the hemisphere represented by these dictatorships. Stroessner, Trujillo, the Somozas and Haiti's Duvalier are no direct threat to the United States or to the rest of the continent as is the Communist Castro. General Trujillo's threat to Venezuela appeared to end when President Romulo Betancourt survived through the power of his Soviet-supplied arms than through the power of Trujillo's anti-Castro propaganda and potentially subversive activities. Both kinds of dictatorship are, however, alien to our way of thought and our way of life. The "good neighbor" policy since 1945 has been to tolerate rather than to aid the Rightist military dictatorships, and no number some of the worst of these can change that "our friends."

Former Vice - President Nixon and President Eisenhower's brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower urged a policy of vigorous and correctness toward dictators and an embrace of the democrats. It would be a good idea to start putting the first part of this policy into effect toward General Stroessner of Paraguay.

Fleadom For All!

Hamilton Spectator

"A small wingless insect well known for its biting propensities and its ability in leaping."

Thus the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines the flea for all who care to look it up. But one person who does not care about looking is the Hon. Mrs. Mitten Lane of London, England, a sister of Baron Rothschild of the celebrated banking family.

She is a passionate collector of one of the world's foremost authorities on fleas. A news story tells us Mrs. Lane has accumulated about 96 per cent of the more than 2,000 known flea types. The missing four per cent, about 80 in number, are Bohemian. She recently complained an agent employed by Czechist entomologists to trade fleas with them.

Queensland readers may demand to know just how fleas get into Mrs. Lane's Curtain to become free fleas. Are they placed in envelopes and mailed through the post office? Information by the British department of agriculture? Are fleas dutiable; is there a quota? We do not know these things, but we do have a shipping hint: our large and fairly shaggy dog could transport those 80 Soviet fleas with no trouble at all.

Such an animal would have to be well-trained, reliable and quite up to scratch. But then, what dog isn't.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

—DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS—

WE NEED TO PONDER

Almost every parent has heard this query from a child. And incidentally it is the question which philosophers through the ages have been asking also. Where is God?

You may say that He is in Heaven, but where is heaven?

In all these matters we are, of course, dealing with realities so great for the human mind to encompass. Eternity has no geography. Heaven probably exists apart from time and space. Try to think of something which has no geographical reality and does not exist in time and space. There you have a poser indeed.

The truth of the matter is that these little minds of ours can catch only a small amount of the universal truth about God. God is the Creator, God is the Sustainer of the Universe. But most important of all, God is our hearts. We do not know much about God. Certainly we do not know the half of this about God, for such truth is in our hearts. We do not know too big for our minds. But we do have a revelation about Him suited to our minds and our environment here on this planet.

The responsibility laid upon us is that we take what we know about God and put this at the centre of our lives. If we do this we will have done enough — in fact, we will have done that all which God requires in order that we come into the fullness of His purpose for us.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 2nd, 1941.

Following yesterday's Victory Loan campaign parade in Belleville at the Armories and members of the 4th Anti-Aircraft Battery from Petawawa Camp under Lieut.-Col. T. V. Wills were provided with a substantial meal at the Armouries. The officers and members of the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E. provided the repast, which was appreciated by the soldier boys. The food travelled by motorized convoy from their home base to Picton on Saturday and Hounckked in that village Saturday and Sunday nights.

Prying off a padlock that secures the gasoline pumps at a service station operated by James Elliott at the intersection of Coleman and West Moira Streets, robbers stole 25 gallons of gasoline early Sunday morning, Frank Dumonico, proprietor of the Belleville Grill Coleman and Bridge Street told police that his private gasoline pumps had been tampered with. The theft was the end also.

The graduation exercises of St. Joseph's School of Nursing at Hotel Dieu, which will take place in Grace Hall, Miss Elizabeth Mary (Beth) Lynch of Belleville; Mary Frances Kennedy of Marysville; Marie Catherine McAlpine of Bancroft; Hilda Ellen Greene of Marmora; Helen Irene Gale of Madoc and Barbara Joan Kerr of Trenton will receive diplomas.

June 2nd, 1931.

Mr. A. R. Ponton, City Solicitor has been created a King's Counsel. Prior to coming to this city ten years ago Mr. Ponton practised his profession in Tweed. He was born in County Donegal, Ireland and at an early age he came with his parents to Canada. The family settled in Hungerford Township.

Mr. Archie Cochrane, of Cobourg and a former resident of this city, has been elected a King's Counsel. For some time he practised law in Tweed in partnership with the late A. B. Collins, who is now also a K.C.

Mr. Fred B. Smith is spending a few days in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Bowerman of Miss Edith Bone left today for Montreal where they will embark tomorrow on the steamship Athenia for England where they will spend three months visiting friends. At a party at the home of Miss Bone presented Miss Bone with a handsome purse.

40 YEARS AGO

At a meeting of the Belleville Chess Club the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president — Robert Mitchell; 1st vice-president R. J. Campbell; 2nd vice-president G. Nicholson; secretary-treasurer — E. J. Knight; auditors — E. B. Winkle and P. A. Shannon.

Belleville market prices: eggs 30 cents per dozen; butter 35 cents to 40 cents per pound; chickens $1.70 to $2.50 per pair; potatoes 50 cents to 60 cents per bag; hay $24 per ton.

Mr. George Pearce of Toronto is visiting friends here.

The Belleville Cider and Vinegar Company is giving up business and will dispose of the property.

The following from this district have graduated in medicine at the University of Toronto: E. Hazlitt Lazzlin of Belleville; J. W. Tice of Madoc; G.L. Bird of Stirling, and F.P. Zwick of Stirling.

June 3rd, 1911.

In a baseball match played at the Belleville Rowing Club yesterday afternoon between teams representing Queen Victoria and Ontario Streets, Bolton, a former team won, the score being 15-8. The following composed the teams: Queen Victoria School — Penn, Newton, Hitchon, Gerrard, Hall, Nilsen, Roblin, Arnott, Rose and Aron-ovich. Ontario Street School — Harris, R. Bell, W. Soal, T. Harris, G. Ostrom, G. Delong, W. Doolittle, S. Nilsen and B. Green. The umpire was Ed. Thomas and he gave entire satisfaction to both teams.

A heavy gale which was accompanied by an electric storm uncorked the large Roman Catholic church at Marysville, also the roof of the driving shed. The loss will be considerable.

Mr. R. Cook, Reeve of Rawdon Township, was in town today.

Give Castro Bulldozers

New York Herald - Tribune

Only those who have not followed Castro's cynical career could be surprised at his offer to trade a thousand of his prisoners for a thousand bull-dozers.

The offer proposition has a shocking resemblance to the reported Nazi plan, during World War II, to trade Jewish lives for transportation equipment. But Castro's proposal has a basic resemblance between communism and Nazism — the contempt of the state for human lives and human dignity. Stalin imprisoned millions; Hitler, as Churchill has buried, industrialization with the lives of hundreds of thousands of their countrymen — men (and women and children) for machines.

Why should not their Cuban successor try to do the same?

It is by no means certain that Castro was serious in suggesting this deal, or whether it is simply a brutal jest in the Communist manner. One could be fairly sure that if the Cuban Stalin did make the offer the answer to it would be to cheat — there are escape clauses in his suggestion. But the message that he said, and if the United States could free brave men who have fought for their country's liberty at the expense of some bulldozers, the bargain would be made.

This country has built up the most completely mechanized plant in the world — to produce more of what people need and can afford, and more human toil, not to enslave them to a machine. It is because we cherish men that we have machines. The United States would not trade machines away, and the help they would bring to dehumanized Castro's barren plans for Cuba would be more than outweighed by emphasizing the difference between the relative values of a free society and Communist slavery.

Those bulldozers might not only free some of Castro's captives — they could dig the grave of his dictatorship.

Redress Advantageous

St. Thomas Times-Journal

The British National Health service includes dentists as well as physicians, and surgeons, and by all accounts many of them make a big haul; much, more than they did before the Service was started. It is of course, a because the Service is free, and a man does not have to think how much extraction and how much will cost him. The government pays.

A woman patient of a Birmingham dentist lodged a complaint against a man whose work was examined by other dentists called in to judge what he did and they pronounced it "disgraceful", the worst they had seen. Then the committee recommended that the dentist be fined 1,000 pounds.

We do not criticize any of the British Health Service, but it is also impossible to imagine a lot of dentist (and presumably a surgeon) does not do a competent job and knowing the patient has only to report the case and an examinating committee will be appointed, results in a hefty fine, and is a warning to dentists that they must provide the same efficent service to a patient who is getting the service free as to a paying patient.

If a paying patient got a bad job, he would probably have no avenue for redress and would only have the privilege over again by another dentist.

Standardized Mail Coming

Windsor Star

The machine age threatens to compel all Canadians to write on standard size stationery, recommended by business office machines, Hon W. M. Hamilton, postmaster-general says the day may come when only certain sized mail will be accepted.

That is the trouble with mechanization, he explained. It is lost. There are so many types and stamps of letters going through the mails. Machines do all but one step would take many pleasures of choosing sizes and shapes for personal missives.

It can be agreed that there is no harshness involved and mail will be expedited.

But it is another encroachment of the machine age on the human way of life, it is to wail. It is another step along the path that leads to turning people into robots.

Candidates Talk Alike

St. Thomas Times-Journal

The sort of thing that should not happen to a dog has passed out two candidates for a council seat in the municipality of Portsmouth, Eng. One a Conservative and the other a Liberal, they found themselves addresses, the Conservatives many electors, in the Liberal heart in green.

It turned out that the addresses otherwise were identical. The Conservative candidate said that at a previous election he had been a Conservative, and stood on the platform prepared then, and used it again. With typical Liberal economy, a Liberal spokesman said it was "unfortunate".

It may only be added that a Labor candidate, who had his own speech, won the election.

To Pay Twice A Fair Price?

Fredericton Gleaner

The Canadian people should understand that they pay most of their food bills in two installments. They pay the first to their grocer, butcher, or direct to the farmer from whom they purchase the food. They pay the second, wherever they contribute to the Federal treasury in the form of taxes. The Federal Government then remits it, in various complicated ways, back to the original producer, the farmer, in the form of price supports and subsidies.

Note to Rockers

Glasgow Herald

Unfortunately, he rocked so vigorously recently that his chair slid a somersault. His ear was lacerated and his ankle fractured. The rocking chair is one of Canada's creatives — they could dig the grave of his dictatorship.

To Your Good Health

Gout Basically Disorder Of the Purine Metabolism

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I had always thought gout was a disease of elderly men, brought on by over-indulgence in rich foods and liquor, but this belief was shattered last summer for me, when I, in my mid-30's suffered an attack of it.

"I have had renal (kidney) colic for years and am told it is from 'gravel' that forms due to the gout. While I have been uncomfortable for years, it is good at last to know the reason, but oh, how I wish I could get rid of the kidney pains. Is this an aspect of gout that one has to accept, or can one get relief? — L. P."

It's true that gout is primarily an affliction of men, but women do have it. Neither sex enjoys it. Persons with kidney stones may be investigated for gout as well as parathyroid gland disease.

Gout is basically a disorder of the purine metabolism — the manner in which the body handles uric acid. The over-indulgence you mentioned may trigger attacks. They don't cause the metabolic problem in the first place.

Like a considerable number of other problems, we don't have a neat, simple way of correcting the metabolic system.

We do, however, have drugs that speed up the elimination of uric acid from the body tissues and hence "control" the condition. Some of these drugs are relatively new, but all patients have gone along for a number of several years without an attack. It may be that some of them will be able to escape attacks indefinitely, which will be a blessing that can be fully appreciated only by gout sufferers in the part who have had to accept the fact that periodically they would be laid up with the pain of an attack.

We know, in short, that new medications are good; we haven't had enough time yet to find out just how good they may be, but the outlook is promising, to say the least.

As to stones or "gravel," which is the term for smaller stones in the urinary tract, about 10 per cent of gout patients have this trouble. (Gout can attack in various parts of the body; the big toe is the commonest joint, but many other areas sometimes prove to be the vulnerable area.)

The use of drugs, as mentioned above, helps. Meantime an abundance of fluids, meaning plain water, or any of its forms, whether soup, tea, milk, or whatnot, tends to keep the urine dilute and thus lessen the chance of the formation of more stones or gravel.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is lamb liver as good as calf liver or beef liver? — M. D."

All three are about the same in food value, so decide for yourself on the basis of taste and cost.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Your articles about bronchiectasis and emphysema raise the question of the difference between them. I was told I had bronchiectasis and would have to live with it. What should I do to get in the summer I have bronchial asthma, too. — Mrs. S."

Emphysema is a result of loss of elasticity in the air spaces of the lung. Bronchiectasis is a dilation of bronchial tubes, and the dilated portions become infected. You have both of these, because fair less trouble if the patient follows all the instructions the doctor gives, including the ones that "sound too simple to be important."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON KEEPING CALM

There is neither fuss nor lost motion in the running of the universe. To the fraction of a second, the movements of the worlds, planets and suns are fixed. One huge part of the solar system must act with every other huge part.

The entire solar system is but a grain of sand in the whole. I may mean it. You will be amused at the way those lumpy nerves will quiet down when the will somper "behind the scenes" takes a hand and in the presence of a strange dog.

There is joy in calmness and power and influence and great service too. Don't let me forget to tell you about Roosevelt. He had delivered a powerful address. "I will shoot your brains out." "Shoot away," replied Beecher. Of course, the man failed to shoot. Calmness saved.

During exciting experiences when it seems as though your world, planets and sun are lost

A Life for Living

Planning the Seeds of Beauty

At this season we are giving food and clothe a hungry world. But even then, we must find employment by expanding our services.

ULTIMATE VALUES

Why not expand the service of beautification? We could beautify our factory sites, railroad and bus stations, airports, main streets with their false fronts and monotonous box-like brick stores, to name a few; the possibilities are unlimited. Do you ask who'll pay for it? Do you say "Beauty butters no parsnips?" Just remember that the three ultimate values are beauty, truth and goodness. Ultimate values eventually do pay. I have just been down in Arkansas where Winthrop Rockefeller has so beautifully developed a large tract of land. They told me about a resident who looked over the model farm and exclaimed, "Think what God could do for the rest of this country if He had the Rockefeller money!"

Well, God has his resources. We can get the seeds of beauty for free just by praying to Him. Then we can plant the divine seeds of beauty in the plots behind our homes and in the areas back in our minds where our memories grow.

We speak of our gardens of memories. What are we growing there? The weeds of regrets and crucifying thoughts or the flowers of faith, hope and love?

ESSENTIAL TO LIFE

Beauty is as essential to the full life as is bread, in our desire to expand our economy and missile piles to match those of the Soviet Union, let us not overlook the value of beauty. One of the most hopeful features of American life is our increasing interest in the fine arts. One of the most wholesome activities of our women is the promotion of garden clubs.

We must look to the creative use of our lengthened leisure. America can be ruined as much by the misuse of her leisure as by the mismanagement of her labor. Gardens and their cultivation offer great hope.

The men on the production line of a factory may believe he is a prisoner of routine. But suppose the factory worker can go home in the evening to a garden. There he has an outlet for his creative impulses.

Women can take even greater advantage of such a creative outlet by spending more time at the garden club and less at the bridge club. In gardens we are workers with God.

And think of the unemployment caused by automation. We cannot stop the inventive genius of man. Better and better machines will go on displacing more and more men. We can produce our material products with less manpower. Of course, if we could break through the barriers of international trade, we would need more workers to

Graduation Dinner Held By Alumnae

The 1961 graduating class of the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing was entertained at a dinner party at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church this week.

The event, sponsored by the Nurses' Alumnae Association, was attended by a large number of nurses from this district. Dr. Lloyd Scott gave an informative address on "Choosing Nurses and Using Them Wisely" and presented to the group by Miss Margaret Kilpatrick, who acted as toastmistress of ceremonies for the evening.

A year pin was presented to Miss Joyce Gray, graduate of the class by Miss Viola Kemble, president of the Alumnae.

Following the dinner a coffee party was held by Recreation Hall.

Conservation Talk, Wild Life Slides Enjoyed at W.I.

Mrs. Elmer Urch was hostess for the May meeting of the Carmel W.I. A good representation of members were present. Mrs. Carl Thompson, president, opened the meeting in the usual manner.

Business was attended to. A donation to Salvation Army was decided on. It was also decided to have a "Millinery Contest" in June at the July meeting.

Mrs. S. Homan reported on "Citizenship" saying "Empire Day is also Citizenship Day."

Mrs. Urch at this time, introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Michael Chubb, who is a registered professional Forester. He is a Field Officer on Authority in Eastern Ontario.

Much of the work of the Conservation Authority is on conservation and is supervised under the jurisdiction of Lands and Forests. There are 30 conservation areas being formed in 1946-47. Their work consists of reforestation, dam farm ponds, tree planting and other things.

Mr. Chubb commenced after seeing slides overseas, what conservationists could do in need of it in the area. Belleville had floods and damage. The Master Silver conservation authority came into being. There is also an Otters Hill, near Madoc and Frinet at Actinolite.

The Vandewater Park area covers 500 acres along the Moira. There are three miles of river. Mr. Chubb showed slides to talk with pictures.

Entertainment of the group was extended along with a small gift.

Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

On May 19th, members and families of Carmel W.I. were entertained at the home of Mrs. Brintnell, historical research convenor, and her charge of the program. The Girl Guides' group sang three numbers accompanied by Mrs. Brintnell.

Rhonda Bardgley sang a solo, Cynthia and Elizabeth Howe favored with a piano duet. Rodney Bardgley sang a solo, Mrs. Brintnell and Mrs. Thompson a skit reminiscing in song of 50 years ago. A reading by Cynthia Howe, "Mother Plaidoffed.

At this time, Mrs. Alma Wallis, Field Naturalist of Quinte P. N. Group, was introduced. Mrs. Wallis showed her on wild life. Each picture was accompanied by a commentary which was most interesting. Much time and patience have gone in the taking of these pictures.

All This Grandeur

By ALMA MASON

Grandma never heard of a psychiatrist. She had ready access to the healing power of nature: Her cottage door opened to let in an immense alice of blue sky. Her bay window seating feet were in reach of a carpet of wild flowers fringing a dense, cool forest.

When Grandpa felt weary or frustrated, he went for solace to the bank of a stream. There he tied the fishing pole to the warped root of a leaning willow and stretched his long, lean body beneath the comforting arms of a big oak.

Joyce Kilmer's immortal poem "I will never see a tree" is heart and vibrates again and again "God alone can make a tree." Only God can shape and adorn a violet-dotted valley. Only God can weave a lacy, misty veil over a mountain dressed in emerald green, then fling a silvery waterfall, a rainbillowing skirt.

Are you physically tired, troubled in mind, bewildered in soul? Healing is all about you. Fairy mysticism of fleecy clouds in a pink, perfumed sea of apple blossoms.

Try lying prone in a dogwood grove dressed in spring loveliness. Stretch on a bed of moss and wild flowers. Sit on a stool of pine or balsam and rub your fingers in its spicy fragrance. Count the clouds. Search for a four-leaf clover. Wade barefoot in a stream drenched in water-cress.

The tension and hurt induced by modern, crowded living will melt away like snow in a warm sun. We have been ignoring such an outdoor gateway through which we may pass to a wide, unspoiled road of rejuvenation and contentment. Let us make it a habit to find peace of mind and a lift for the soul.

How can I ever thank Thee, God
For all this lavish beauty spread
To clothe
In trees and flowers, sky and grass
And meager bluffings as they pass?

How can I ever hope to be Worthy of all this bounty?
Worthy of friendly comfort given?
Worthy of every gift of Heaven?

I only can, in futile way
Hope each separate debt to pay,
Strive to return with human love
The grace sent to me from above.

Dear God, my efforts are so small
I cannot count the cost at all
And your return I send, I know,
For all this grandeur here below.

— Rupert Brooke.

The recent revival of an opera was unusual for several reasons.

In the first place, the college town of Yankton, (some 85 miles south of Sioux Falls, our birth-place, no less!) in South Dakota, got out of a musical captive, presented the opera.

Secondly, the opera was the first one ever composed west of the Mississippi. An opera called "The American Volunteer," written in 1889, by General Custer's bandmaster, Felix Vinatieri.

Its revival was the first in this century, and why in connection with the Civil War and the Dakota Territory settlement is not explained by Laten Wood, the head of the music department of Yankton College, whose difficulty, for when he began, there was no full score and the second violin part was lost, Mr. Wood supplied both, but was unable to finish the whole opera in time for the performance and presented only the first act.

Finding the music "no ingrailing, propulsive and tuneful, the plot is full of hilarious humor," one music reviewer James Boettiger, much impressed with the music. It is a pity the rest of the opera was not performed. Vinatieri's own style, he said, is catchy and tuneful. Wood supplied both, but was unable to finish the whole opera in time for the performance and presented only the first act.

The whole college town cashered into the spirit of the celebration. Townspeople, students and faculty members alike, turned out to help in the chorus, the large orchestra and the production. Even the two sons and daughters of Mr. Clarence Langsbeer, music authority came into being. The Misses Olive Langsbeer, Inez Madoc and Frinet at Actinolite.

Dinner-Dance Enjoyed by College Grads

The Nicholson Catholic College graduates enjoyed a dinner-dance at St. Michael's auditorium, sponsored by the H.S. P.T.A. Approximately 70 students of grades 12 and 13 sat down to this banquet.

Mr. Paul Cleary, president of NCC PTA acted as chairman for the evening, and addressed the students briefly.

Robert Brown, grade 13 student, gave the toast to the clergy present; the Right Reverend J. P. Sullivan responded and also gave a toast to this host.

John Bond, grade 13 student, gave the toast to the parents, to which Mr. Clarence Langsbeer responded.

Miss Jeanne Lee gave the toast to the teachers and the Misses Shirley Thereon, principal of the College, responded.

Greetings were given by Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, the Rev. Fr. Dunphy, and the Rev. Maurice Imbert.

The Rev. W. McGee presented the trophy to the 1960-61 basketball team.

Gary Duggan expressed thanks, on behalf of the graduates, to the members of the P.T.A. and to Mrs. C. Cleary, convener of the banquet.

Vocal selections by Miss Karen Campbell and Mr. Kenneth Campbell and an instrumental solo by Miss Leslie Fraser and Miss Jeannine Dore were most enjoyable.

Following the dinner dancing was enjoyed by the students. Several door prizes were awarded.

ST. JOHN'S P.G.

The regular meeting of the Friendship Group of St. John's Anglican Church, Point Anne, was held at the home of Mrs. Linda Sherwood, on May 30th.

Mrs. Hazel Juby, president, opened the meeting with prayer. She then turned it over to Mrs. Audrey Chisholm, vice - president.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Sherwood.

The next meeting will be held on June 27th, at 1.45 p.m., in the parish hall.

Visitors' Day at O.S.D. Well Attended by Parents, Friends

The long-awaited day—"Visitors' Day" at the Ontario School for the Deaf dawned drizzling and grey, but soon covered the fields like heavy grey blankets, shedding gloom over the students and staff. But later, the sun broke through and all was well. The parents were their day, and that of their parents' when the year's work could be viewed and the various classrooms visited as the teachers taught the handicapped students.

Promptly at 1.30 the supers introduced Mr. J. G. Dennis met with the assembled parents and friends in the Activities Room of the junior school, which was filled to capacity, with several standing. After the warm welcome, the assembly was oriented by the superintendent into several groups for guided tours to the various rooms of little ones, where they might watch the teaching of their children.

The afternoon's itinerary was divided into three sections; section 1, through the new junior school, where Miss Hazel Wells and Mrs. Davidson, Miss Anglin, Miss Shannon, Miss Hamilton and Miss Ryan were engaged in teaching, demonstrating the various aspects of education of the little deaf children. Section II was a through the senior building where Miss Nichol, Miss Hare, Mrs. Mackenzie, Miss Sandford and Mrs. Wanner-maker, Mrs. Mann, Mrs. Hamilton, Miss Dingman, Mrs. Ryan, Mr. Williamson, had charge of the various advanced girls' classes, and then the general tour of section III, where Miss Hamilton, Miss Hare, Miss Nagle, Mrs. Forster, Miss Hamett and Miss Huffman, and Mr. Graham instructed. During this general tour staged in the gymnasium, parents visited where woodworking classes were demonstrating and showing the students in the process of manufacturing.

Many interesting articles was a beautifully executed [illegible] model of a modern ocean back having sliding panels. This was of white oak, mahogany, fir, pine and cedar wood, which would later be stained mahogany—a piece of work bringing commendation to the student engaged.

Mr. Ken Wilson, shop instructor, Mr. J. W. Hodgson, and Mr. Ken Wilson, engaged in the first work of the student with simple forms, from easily handled pieces of wood, to the well brackets, and watering cans for the garden.

As the student increases in knowledge of the metals used, he is allowed to make more difficult metals, such as aluminum, copper and iron; learning the method of welding, then the making of [illegible] articles, and then more intricate articles. In the 4th year tooling, threading and [illegible] are taught. This work is done during the winter months, and during the summer and spring landscaping is taught.

Basic beauty salon, always a place of interest to the ladies, was also visited. Here the girls taking part in the "Fashion Show" in the auditorium in the main building, were busily engaged in arranging their crowns of beauty. After the [illegible] it is the latest and the furnishings most attractive in color and style. All the girl takes "beauty culture," some also into professional work but the objective is to teach good grooming, for every occasion.

The hospital, with its pastel tinted walls in blue, pale green and yellow, with white trim was another attractive place. Most of the wards contained five single beds, while those upstairs had seven, each bed with a color scheme of blue and maroon.

Following the guided tours, the "Fashion Show" more elaborate than usual, held the interest, as did the fine dresses, suits, jumpers and 'duds' for special occasions. The [illegible] including the senior girls' [illegible] Hutchison; [illegible] Potts; Judy Round; Gail Cranny; IV1: Barbara Doxtater; IA2: Janice Benson and Judy Kean; 1A3: Donna Barton; Colleen Smith; Marjorie Lortie; Margaret Morgan; Anita Wills and Nancy Pull; 2A1: Lynda Johnson and Brenda Wylie; Beatrice Brennan; Dorothy Cook; June Fisher and Betty Ann Wilson; 2A1: Barbara Cranny; Ruth Gay; Louise Hartsell; Lynne LaBrecque; Denise Mitchell; Patricia Trusk, and Ann Eyo; 3A1: Gwendolyn Andison; Elaine Carlyle; Carol Hale; Lorna Kirker; Donna Lambert; Carol Palmer, and Ann Todd; 3A2: Susan Cooper; Cindy June Fisher, and Betty Lou Gilbert; 4A1: Sandra Mackenzie and Marlene Mann.

G. C. June Braden; Annebelle Cross; Lee Hunter; Mary Ann Lee; Lorna Lee; Barbara Nicholas; Spence; Pauline Tschirhart; Barb Tyrrell; Mary Van Bundle; Jean Shaw and Elizabeth Spark. P.T.V., June Carlyle, vocal, was accompanied by Cousins; Jean Lambert; Janice Morgan; Gloria Sutcliffe and Elaine Cranny. Patricia Tudi; Sandra Dredt; Elizabeth Hall; Sharon Joan Zelevich; Lucy Butcher; Lorna Kirker; Nancy Van Loon, who [illegible]

Outstanding points in the style-show displaying the summer dresses, all of which were worn at the knee-length. Still shirts, [illegible] and [illegible] were very popular, as were [illegible] Arnell materials well displayed. One of the [illegible] was the baskets of orchid, mauve and purple lilacs which [illegible] fetching styles were in evidence.

GYMNASIUM DISPLAY

Following the fashion show, the girls' gymnasium, as in the past, used a fine display of academic and manual work, as well as Rangers' display of which were pleasingly displayed. Wood working including [illegible] Bird houses and lawn furniture; iron work, [illegible] model of a modern round metal fruit baskets. A fine speed boat, replica of Miss Canada III, was [illegible] and held the attention.

Mr. Ken Wilson's work was that of a little lad of delicate build, Teddy Saulter, who had on display articles made entirely in round design with fluted [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aluminum hanging basket in [illegible] form; single Scout vase in copper and [illegible]

EXQUISITE NEEDLECRAFT

In the needlecraft a back and seat cover in [illegible] work was done by the intermediate girls, while [illegible] fine sewing; baby bibs; [illegible] and Girls' Scout and Girl Guides also had fine displays.

Following the visiting clergy from the city were Archdeacon and Mrs. Caswell of Christ Church and the new curate, the Rev. Michael Caswell.

At 7:00 p.m. a gymnastic display, boys, girls, was held in the boys' gymnasium.

The O.S.D. staff and students should be justly proud of their fine displays, and splendid teaching methods, enabling the less fortunate to enjoy life.

Feud Between Designer, Paper Flares Into Open

NEW YORK (AP) — A long-smoldering feud between Jacqueline Kennedy's designer, Oleg Cassini, and Women's Wear Daily has flared into open publication, flared into the open Friday.

The president's wife touched it in Paris Thursday, when at Women's Wear Daily reporter asked at a press conference whether the first lady read her publication.

"I try not to any more," Mrs. Kennedy retorted.

The paper in recent months has had many articles about Mrs. Kennedy's wardrobe, how much she spends on clothes and that she has been ordering her gowns in fashions.

John Fairchild, publisher of the newspaper, commented Friday:

"Most of the dresses made for Mrs. Kennedy by the American designer Oleg Cassini, who is a close personal friend of the Kennedy family, have either been bought in shops or [illegible] French designers Balenciaga, Givenchy and Jacques Fath.

"All along she has been nearly almost line for line copies of French designers' models by Cassini. Why, if she wants to, doesn't she buy the originals?"

WEDDING INVITATIONS?

RONALD KEEL JEWELLERS

196 Front St. at Victoria Avenue

Cassini chose to joke about the controversy remarking:

"This man," he said, referring to Fairchild, "is the biggest buffoon of the century and the whole matter is one of great [illegible] to me. Obviously it's a personal vendetta."

"But while I have the chance I'd like to say publicly that I am influenced by Paris fashions. I simply don't to go Paris.

WON'T APPLY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Inspector Nancy Hewett is eligible with 10 others but will not apply for the post of Vancouver police chief when Chief George Archer retires next year.

Women have proved they can do almost as well as men," said Miss Hewett, "but I don't think we should have women police chiefs."

This - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

"When I was lying there pinned in the car and in pain the worst thing I went through was the expression of dismay and horror on the faces of people who came over to look at me. I never have occasion to see or look at people hurt in an accident, I will try to keep all expression of shocking on my face." These words were spoken recently by a Belleville woman who had been in a serious accident less than two years ago.

Policemen, ambulance attendants, doctors and nurses are people trained to look after emergencies. They know what to do. It would seem that people who can do nothing to help should not even view the accident victims. They should set only when trained people tell them what to do.

Just a few months ago the UNESCO Courier devoted six issues to accidents of all kinds. In the issue of car accidents they say: "Don't pull them out! If you are first at the scene of your friend's accident, your reaction is to get them out. Perhaps you can see the motor hurt are pulled out by frantic rescuers and many are made worse or even killed. Don't touch the unhurt, but leave the job to trained men. Call the ambulance and other rescue workers to move. Some more precautions: park your car some distance away from the ignition of the wrecked vehicle, warn approaching traffic. In case of fire, disconnect battery attack flames with extinguisher, dirt or blanket."

The public has been advised to use safety belts but it has been urged by some that they should be made standard equipment on all cars. However, more and more people are having seat belts put in their cars. Research Laboratory which has gathered facts on all aspects of accidents — vehicles and their users; but it is also found that the accident is a disease, education is its vaccine and can be administered to every school-age child.

West Hastings W.I. Elects Officers for 1961-2 Executive

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

The 60th annual convention of West Hastings District Women's Institute was held at White's United Church on Highway 14, Tuesday, May 31st, with the Bay of Quinte branch as the hostess group.

The registration was in charge of Mrs. John Reid and Mrs. J. Palmer and representatives were present from all seven branches in the district.

The church was beautifully decorated with lovely baskets of colorful tulips and white lilacs.

The president, Mrs. F. B. Phillips presided over the meeting and the morning session opened with the Institute Ode and Mary Stewart Collect in unison. She graciously welcomed all the ladies in attendance on this lovely May day, and also introduced the guests: Miss Grace Hamilton Reg. N., the only nurse on the staff of Home Economics Department of Agriculture; Mrs. Sherman Foster, federated board member; Miss Julia Lane home economist, and Mrs. Roscoe Hobson, director of the Trent Valley area.

Mrs. Percy Coulter read the report of last year's annual and gave a full financial statement which showed a balance in hand over $60. Mrs. Roy Bush presented the auditors report for her and Mrs. W. West and the correspondence was read.

Mrs. W. Chapman (president of White's W.A. graciously welcomed the guests to this church which is 130 years old. Mrs. Harold Detlor replied and quoted a most appropriate poem.

CLOSING ADDRESS

The president in her closing address said another year had rolled around and she had visited all the branches and was so cordially received. She felt that the district workshop based on 'Eat to Live' last October, had given valuable information on the subject of food. Mrs. Phillips voiced a sincere thank you to those who attended the 60th anniversary and then closed with a poem, "My Garden".

Mrs. Foster retelled the duties of directors as follows: Bay of Quinte — Mrs. Donald Sandercock; Chatterton (alternate) Mrs. Gerald Irvine; Frankford — Mrs. William Slater; Trent Valley — Mrs. George Hammond; Stirling — Mrs. Ross Williams; Uniondale — Mrs. Frank Losey; Wallbridge — Mrs. Arthur Gardiner.

There were no resolutions for discussion and the roll call of branches was interesting and covered a variety of subjects such as following:

Bay of Quinte — Mrs. Alva Dunn—one response was based on the spread of the Institute throughout the world; Chatterton — Mrs. Irvine—financial assistance to others; Pine Grove — Mrs. Charles Ross — outlined publicity and extension course; Hilton Valley — Mrs. Kenneth Meyers told of the 25th anniversary held in May 1960; Stirling — Mrs. Blanche Reid mentioned the large sales and clothing sent to the South Mission and their boat trip through the Thousand Islands; Uniondale — Mrs. Edison Sine gave a resume of Mrs. Foster's work and stated one of their girls received provincial honors; Wallbridge — Mrs. Harold Phillips outlined the messages given on Africa, as reported children and on Holland.

REPORTS GIVEN

Reports of the convenors of standing committees — agriculture and Canadian industries were given.

Mrs. Grace Bartindale reported papers prepared on such subjects as "All from a Kernel of Corn," "The Manufacture and Ways to Use Cheddar Cheese," "The Progress of Agriculture from Ancient Days" "Canada's Natural Resources," Fishing, Mining and Milk Industries."

Many items of interest were read and an address was given by Dr. Russell Scott, telling of the plowing match in October.

CITIZENSHIP — EDUCATION

Mrs. Gerald Irvine had a roll call included "How to save time for leisure; what are you thankful for?; and the duty of a good citizen. A special suggestion was that the branch convener study carefully outlines sent out by the provincial convener. "A nation is nothing apart from its citizens, for the strength, life and hope of a nation lies in the quality of its citizens." The roll calls on education included: what I learned on the education tour; a favorite verse I learned at school-ways and means of helping children perform good habits and courtesy. A display of old school readers, slides of Florida, songs with retarded children and many other items of interest had been given during the year. The district president, Mrs. F. B. Phillips, had visited all seven branches and gave a special message on "Citizenship and Education."

HISTORICAL RESEARCH AND CURRENT EVENTS

Mrs. W. C. Wert reported that three branches have a representative on the Hastings County Historical Society and one branch donated towards the museum.

The displays included old style catalogues and an outline of old fashioned entertainments. Selections were read on the old rocking chair, heritage of Canada, and the address of the botanist chapel at Brantford. Remembrance Day in Ontario, pioneer mothers, the log cabin quilt, the first fall fair at Belleville, 1858, and the first cheese factory at Bayside. Current events centred on "The Royal Wedding" and one branch visited an antique home in Foxboro and one displayed "Old Home and Countries of Fame".

HOME ECONOMICS AND HEALTH

Mrs. Alton Sine outlined the roll calls which included "What I did for beauty and good temper, an old fashioned healthy food and a first aid hint." The topics centred around, "A room for happy memories, and the demonstrations heard and seen given by nurses, the work done by Institutes in the days of the 'indispensable child". The demonstrations included an aluminum foil display, some of the branches sponsored girls' clubs and several branches held aid kits at the school. Many enjoyable and educational articles were read on "Good Food" "Food used by early settlers, and "Nutritious meals for busy wives." Six branches participated in the District Workshop "Eat to Live", held at Wallbridge last October.

RESOLUTIONS

Donald Sandercock said one branch had a special meeting on the theme of resolutions and suggested that each branch devote some time yearly to this phase of the work and thus acquaint members with resolutions and their significance to Institute work.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

Mrs. Percy MacMullen said all branches had publicized meetings in the local newspapers. The branches took part in a 'hospitality course'; 'treasures in the attic' and 'window treatment'. These branches consider the radio and T.V. evaluation forms. Two branches canvassed for the Red Cross and one for the Salvation Army Christmas Cheer; two for the Bush fire. Cash was over $118. The members of two branches donated cash in lieu of sewing and at Christmas gift and wool is being sheer to others.

One Branch visited Hastings County Home and another Children's Aid Society. Three public relations officers attended the Guelph conference in 1960 and gave highlights at their branch meeting. The assembly slogan was showed: Institute, 2107; educational, 3115; health, 857; miscellaneous, 5478; FWFO and C.W.I. projects, $103.10, making a total of $1,046.10 for West Hastings.

Donations of food, clothing was estimated at $890. The convener made a plea that reports be sent in on the printed forms supplied by the Toronto office.

Mrs. MacMullen visited three branches and gave public relations messages; two on radio broadcasts and a message at the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture banquet. She reported all the district activities which included last year's district social, the Belleville workshop, "Eat to Live," two workshops in Foxboro on the 60th anniversary banquet in Stirling.

In closing she urged the branch members to support FWIO and the FWIC projects first and voiced thanks to the branch, P.R.O.s for their cooperation during her three years pioneering this new department work.

Mrs. S. Foster congratulated the conveners for 100 per cent reporting and read an article from the New Handbook.

Mrs. C. Curtis, pianist and Mrs. F. White as song leader led the group in "O Canada" and the "Hymn of All Nations."

BOARD MEETING REPORT

The Provincial Board Director of district No. 8, Mrs. S. Foster, presented her report of the recent board meeting, stating that Ontario has a membership of 38,448, in 1456 branches, and eight new branches have been organized this past year. She suggested parties and gifts for long-term members in places of life membership, and told of the proposed bus tour to northern Ontario in October, and the new W.I. mug and saucer. Five hundred and sixty branches contributed $4,000 for the UNESCO project for Jamaica.

Mrs. Foster also urged all the branches to continue collecting their "Pennies for Friendship" and that all branches assist with the Foundation Fund. She also gave a resume of the recent competition.

In 1963 the Women's Institutes of Ontario will celebrate 65 years of service and that the branches should begin now to plan for that event. The Institutes of Ontario donated over $7,000 to "world refugee year".

The new safety ideas are based on stops, "to study the situation and how to promote safety in your home".

Mrs. Foster presented the president and secretary with the new handbooks and gave instructions regarding their distribution.

A special workshop is planned at Queen's University, Kingston, books reading to include Emily Murphy, Nellie McClung, Nina Moore Hamilton and others will be placed in the Adelaide Hoodless home. Institute women were urged to serve cheese generously at all gatherings, banquets and social affairs. The special project recommended by the FWIO is the "Canadian Save the Children Fund".

The Institute grace was sung and the members of the Bay of Quinte W.I. served an attractive salad plate luncheon.

DISPLAYS

The displays included a large array of gift articles made from foam rubber; newspapers; gifts; institute magazines and books; a map of Wales, England; 60th anniversary pictures; rags for cutting and draper; made in the "Windsor Treatment Course".

Some of the afternoon session began with a commentary and explanation of fabrics, Arnel, cotton, Orlon, Dacron, and Acrylic fibres. Miss Julia Lane, home economist, and Miss Georgina Heasman, Mrs. Percy Mullen, Mrs. Roy Bush; Mrs. Charles Wilson; Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh, each spoke briefly. Interesting curtains made by the River Valley group were displayed. Mrs. George Burkitt, Mrs. Ross Williams also work accomplished by Uniondale Branch.

Mrs. Roscoe Hamilton, Reg. N. gave a resume of the new booklet dealing with the Home Economics Service progress and the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Miss Heasman's message from Miss Helen M. McKerther, director of the Extension Branch and stressed that the idea is to develop leadership in the women's local groups and to work together with others. All the Homemakers of the community are welcome to attend. There is a new short course entitled, "Creative Cooking" and another on "Consumer Workshop". The latter gives the members instructions on how to make simple repairs such as replacing plugs and mending cords. The loan library, letter friends and friendship links, and books from England are all helpful. Miss Hamilton stressed the need of sending in good directions for finding the meeting place.

Mrs. Roscoe Robson, chairman of the Trent Valley area brought greetings from that group. Mrs. George Bilham and Mrs. Albert Jones sang "Send Me Forth".

The assembly singing included "Long Long Ago" and "Auld Lang Syne". Mrs. Foster took charge of the election of officers and Mrs. Mabel Williams read the nominations. The board directors remained the same and elected president and made the presentation of a Hand Book.

Mrs. MacMullen spoke briefly and asked for the co-operation of all the members and thus carry on the work of this beautiful organization. The roll call of the branches was responded to by the ladies during the day and nearly all were Institute members.

Mrs. F. B. Phillips took charge of the unfinished business.

DISTRICT WORKSHOP

A district workshop, based on "Eat to Live" will be held at River Valley. The date will be announced later. This workshop will be for the executive and the new Hand Books will be required. The branches will discuss the "Save the Children Fund" at their own meetings.

Mrs. Percy Coulter thanked the group for assistance to the Hastings County museum as 23 branches have made donations.

Miss Julia Lane outlined

Mrs. T. C. — We're broken-hearted. She wants to marry me but my faith.

Frieda C. — Religion isn't that important. We're perfect mates.

Mrs. T. C. — How can we stop Frieda from a terrible mistake? We brought her up in the faith of a member of our church. There has never been an intermarriage in our family. Why must it start with our daughter?

She met Calvin on a government job. Before that she had been almost engaged to a boy we all liked and approved of, but don't think she realizes what a mess she's walking into. There's enough to argue about in marriage, without adding religion!

Frieda C. — Keeping Calvin and me apart because of an imposed artificial difference in religion is cruel. We have all the important things in common — our long-range goals, sense of values and our mutual satisfactions.

As to religion, we'll work something out. If we find a need for a formal church affiliation, we can consider Christian Science, Ethical Culture, or The Friends Society. Meanwhile, we'll be married and a life together on all the many qualities we love in each other.

The Council — A cauldron of emotion is bubbling in this debate about a prospective marriage between members of different religious persuasions. Putting aside maternal and filial considerations, there are two romantic yearnings of Frieda and Calvin for each other, we have all the important things in common — our long-range goals, sense of values and our mutual satisfactions.

The Council — A cauldron of emotion is bubbling in this debate about a prospective marriage between members of different religious persuasions. Putting aside maternal and filial considerations, there are two romantic yearnings of Frieda and Calvin for each other, we have all the important things in common — our long-range goals, sense of values and our mutual satisfactions, a compatible sex relationship, and upon the importance of the present moment.

Mrs. C. fears for the survival of the religion, and Frieda for her "one big love." The latter sees herself as an Island in time and space. There's never been a lovely like ours, she's saying. Don't compare us to any couple, past, present or future.

But what are the realities? Both women will agree that all marriages are, in a sense, mixed marriages. The thing to decide is which elements will blend, which will co-exist peacefully and which will counteract to form. Frieda's marriage to Calvin might very well "take," provided they think ahead to the arrival and rearing of children. Can they "work something out," as Frieda says, so that the offspring of this home will know clearly the "official" faith of the family, enabling them to hold their own among the religionists of both families and of the community?

Mrs. C. and her family may be comforted by the possibility often is the case when one side feels more strongly about religion than the other — that Frieda will, in time, succumb to the "faith of her fathers" for the sake of family harmony.

One important caution for Frieda, however, at this crossroads. It really doubles your love! Or is it rebellion, a desire to "live life to the full and hurt adults by whom she feels strait-jacketed? If the latter, she must reconsider. There are far less costly ways to find freedom.

We do not advise intermarriage as a general thing. Having identical religious allegiances gives a marriage a head start and a boost. But Frieda's love for Calvin may be enough of its own momentum to go the full stretch. It's true that the church can strengthen and soften preserve, the outward casing of a marriage — but not the inner core.

Only the two partners can do rulings for scholarships and awards. The subject was discussed and no action was taken.

The 1962 district annual will convene at Chatterton. Mrs. Hodges Ketchenson gave the country report and voiced thanks to those who had made the day a success. Mrs. Morley Mullen offered special thanks to the retiring president, Mrs. F. B. Phillips for her two years of efficient service.

At the close, the group joined in the National Anthem and the 60th annual convention passed into history.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

The slate of officers for 1961-62 is as follow: honorary president, Mrs. F. B. Phillips, Belleville; president; Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Stirling R. R. 3; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Gerald Harrington, Frankford R. R. 2; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Leslie Finkle, R.R. 1 Foxboro; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Ross E. B. Phillips, Belleville; alternate, Mrs. Don Donohue, Stirling; district delegate, Mrs. Harold Phillips, R.R. 1 Foxboro; alternate district delegate, Mrs. Fred Campbell R.R. 1 Foxboro; auditors, Mrs. Barrie Thomson, R.R. 1 Foxboro; Mrs. George Burkitt, R.R. 3 Frankford; Mrs. Ross Williams; convenors: agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. Charles Malcolm, Belleville; citizenship and education, Mrs. Gerald Irvine, R.R. 2 Halloway; historical research and current events, Mrs. W. C. Wert, Stirling; home economics and health, Mrs. J. Palmer, R.R. 2 Trenton; resolutions, Mrs. Ivan Clare R.R. 1 Foxboro; publi relations officer, Mrs. Morley Sine, Frankford.

MODERN MANNERS

CAROLYN HAGNER SHAW

ASK YOU A BEAUTY-PARLOR PENT

Why is it that so many women let their hair down when both literally and figuratively — when visiting a beauty salon? The confessions of the rules of plain everyday courtesy, practised by far too many of us, would fill a large spelling!

During recent weeks, I have been watching some of these sections and have come up with the following ideas about things that should not be done. Ask yourself, honestly, if you are guilty of doing any of these.

Do you disregard the factor of time? Wandering in a half-hour late for your appointment is inexcusable. By doing so, you force the operator to sit around waiting. When you finally do put in an appearance, you are bound to overlap her next customer. If this causes you to be longer in being served, because the operator is trying to please two of you at once, let's hope you other customers are considerate enough to be driven to distraction by your antics while you are being beautified.

Are you the person who finds fault with everything, making loud comments about the work and the other thing — all of which embarrasses the operator? Shampoo on down the line, nothing pleases you. If you are in this category, change to someplace else? I'm sure the operator would bless you if you did!

Then under the drier. Can you help yourself to a magazine? Polish on a table nearby, and then? Nothing is calculated to your eye in the magazine you are reading? Don't get me reminded when you know that the magazines are there for others to enjoy, too.

Speaking of the drier — are you the worst part of all? Do you carry on a shouted conversation with the woman next to you, with a waiting customer while trying to make yourself heard above the roar of the machine? Why the people who do this don't realize that the gossip they are shouting is sometimes really personal observation, can be heard by everyone end of the shop to the other, I will never know!

The moral of my questions, if there is one, is that women should try to be more thoughtful of others, and consider themselves with a little digging when patronizing a beauty shop or salon. Something to think about!

Readers' Saturday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

For many years I have truly enjoyed your column. I often wonder what I would have done without it. I am sending a recipe that definitely must have something wrong with it. I have tried it several times and it does not set hard enough . . . Donnie C.

ANSWER:

I have not repeated your recipe here because it might mislead other readers. The recipe should include cooking chocolate (not cocoa) because it helps the filling to be firm. I hope you will try it again. Testing for I can recommend it.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

SATURDAY

(British Influence)

Cream of Asparagus Soup; Lamb Chops and Kidney Pie; Mustard Pickles; Buttered Cabbage; English Raspberry Trifle; Tea.

CHOCOLATE MERINGUE PIE:

1 baked 9" pie shell, 2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, 1 1-3 cups granulated sugar, 1/4 cup all-purpose flour, 3 2-3 cups milk, 4 eggs, separated, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 cup granulated sugar.

Melt the chocolate in double boiler, add 1 cup of the granulated sugar and the flour, which have been mixed together and add the milk gradually and cook over boiling water until thick, stirring constantly. Cover and cook for 10 minutes longer, stirring once to twice, then pour the chocolate mixture gradually over the slightly beaten egg yolks, to which the 1/4 cup granulated sugar has been added. Return to the double boiler and cook 3 minutes. Remove from the heat and add the salt, butter and vanilla. Pour into the bake pie shell and top with a meringue made by beating the 4 egg whites until quite stiff, and then adding gradually, while continuing to beat until stiff the 1-2 cup granulated sugar. To bake meringue bake at 300 deg. Fahr. until ingred with gold.

LETTER:

Since you have recently been publishing economy recipes, I thought you might be interested in one that we in our household find useful. For a family of two adults and two children. I purchase a frozen cod (or any other fish) when patronizing a beauty shop or salon. Something to think about!

ANSWER

You are a whiz. I'm sure other readers will be grateful, as I am.

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Seeks Professional Help

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I am new in this small town and have been in Canada 16 year. The friends I have made are all in Toronto and I seem to be trapped with my many problems. I feel a stranger would perhaps set me straight.

I just have to get a bit of sensible advice from someone as my husband and I seem to disagree on everything and it is most frustrating and miserable not to have a little peace to look forward to each day. If it is my fault I will gladly try to change, for I have a young daughter of 14 who is being affected adversely and I must make a decision for her sake.

Please advise me if there is someone I can go to, and also about charges for consultation, for I will have to manage this myself.—M. P.

DEAR M. P.—You are right to seek the help of a professional person. If you and your husband pull in opposite directions your daughter's development, and your own marriage, are threatened. Most agencies are supported through contributions from the public, fee charging is rare.

A trained social worker can work with you to get a clear picture of your situation, exchanging ideas with you as to the best way of handling it, taking into account your husband's point of view and the welfare of your daughter.

There is a branch of the Children's Aid Society in your town. You may obtain advice there as to where you may get the counselling you need for your kind of trouble.

DEAR DORIS:—I have a message for "Lonesome" so here it is.

I am 40 and unattached, but having a good time. One of the best ways I know of getting men and girls together without having to come in pairs is to have a picnic or barbeque supper.

At a picnic the rule is "the more the merrier." People can be invited separately and they don't pair off.

Everybody helps, and if it is arranged that way, various guests bring items of food. Somebody makes the fire, others help with frying or roasting food. Somebody starts a sing song and all chime in.—ANON.

DEAR SPORT:—Thanks for the suggestion. A picnic is a natural for getting acquainted. Folks are less self-conscious when they are in simple sports togs and doing something outdoors.

As they share the work they enter into comfortable conversation and share ideas. Summer is coming. Unattached readers, take note!

DEAR DORIS:—I want to entertain a number of people who entertained me when I was married. I can't afford to have them all for dinner, but I could manage dinner for the maid of honor and best man, who are both very good friends of ours.

I wanted to have another six come the same night just for dessert, but my husband says they would get to know the others had come for the whole meal and would feel slighted. What do you think?—JUST MARRIED.

DEAR JUST MARRIED:—A fine idea. Nice easy way to expand your entertaining painlessly.

The additional guests join you for dessert and coffee in the living room. If they learn the others have been there earlier, they won't worry about it unless you do. They doubtless know that the maid of honor and best man are close friends of yours—and what could be more natural?

19th Century House Shown At Stratford

STRATFORD — A typical country house of early 19th century Quebec will be constructed this month in the Stratford arena as the focal point of "The Arts of "French Canada," one of the two exhibitions to be held this year during the ninth annual Stratford Shakespearean Festival.

Prefabricated and moved in to position in sections, the house will consist of four rooms — kitchen, summer kitchen, bedroom and guest room—authentically furnished with original furnishings to illustrate how the first settlers of Lower Canada lived. On view will be their pictures and pottery, pots and pans, butter churns and bed spreads, lamps and looms. In addition to these articles of purely household use, there will be many farm implements to give a complete picture of the farmer's life — wooden plowshares, pitchforks, yokes and harness. Many of these implements bear French names that have gone completely out of use, just as the tools themselves now are obsolete in a machine age.

A long time in the planning stages, the exhibit has been made possible through the cooperation of several private collectors, including Robert-Lionel Seguin of Rigaud, Que., who is acting as supervisor of the exhibition and who is also being extended by the National Museum in Ottawa.

IS APPOINTED

OTTAWA (CP) — Appointment of Maj.-Gen. J. Paul-Emile Bernatchez, 50, as vice-chief of the general staff at army headquarters in Ottawa was announced Thursday, effective in November. He will succeed Maj. Gen. J. V. Allard who is to take command of the 4th Division, British Army of the Rhine in Germany.

45 Cancer Research Grants Total $268,538

TORONTO—Award of 45 grants totalling $268,538 for cancer research by medical and surgical specialists and scientists was announced Friday by Rhys M. Sale, chairman of the Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation.

Research will be undertaken by the recipients of grants at the Princess Margaret Hospital, the Ontario Cancer Institute, university teaching hospitals in Toronto, Kingston, London and Ottawa, and at the clinics of the Ontario Cancer Foundation.

This is the largest sum of money ever granted for research by the Foundation in any one year," said Mr. Sale. Last year $225,000 in grants was awarded and five years ago only $75,000 was granted.

"With the provision of a grant to the National Cancer Institute, the support of seven clinical research fellows, the salaries of the permanent research staff and the maintenance of research facilities at the Ontario Cancer Institute, this represents a total expenditure of $972,592, provided equally by the matching cancer control grants of the federal and provincial governments," Mr. Sale added.

Many studies toward the improvement of cancer control are being advanced at the Ontario Cancer Institute including the clinical evaluation of various new drugs used in the treatment of cancer. A study of acute radiation sickness in man is progressing favorably and may have a wide application in the future.

CARRY OUT STUDY

The staff of the Institute is carrying out a prolonged study of cancer cells in the circulating blood of patients receiving radiotherapy for cancer of the breast, and this is associated with the work of the surgical staffs of the university group of hospitals.

At the University of Toronto and the Toronto General Hospital, cancer of the lung is being studied with regard to X-ray diagnosis and the value of additional drug treatment, and a method of respiratory control in aged patients undergoing major surgery is proving of great value.

At these same institutions, studies are continuing in the development and the use of new plastic materials in the treatment of fractures occurring as results of cancer, the use of radio-active isotopes in the investigation and treatment of malignant disease and the growth and spread of certain brain tumors.

At the Cancer Detection Clinic at the Women's College Hospital, which is subsidized by the foundation, a study is being made of the familiar incidence of cancer of the breast.

A number of studies are being undertaken at Queen's University in Kingston, including investigation into tissue changes associated with cancer.

At the University of Western Ontario, London, support is being given to a study of psychological factors in the course and treatment of cancer.

STUDY FACTORS

The effect of transfusing a patient with his own bone marrow in combating the depressing effect of nitrogen mustard on the blood formula mechanism is among the studies undertaken at the University of Ottawa and supported by the Foundation. Studies of the factors governing the use of bone marrow grafts are being undertaken at the Hamilton Clinic of the Foundation.

These are only a few of the investigations now being carried out in an ever-widening field of cancer research, particularly with regard to new and established methods of cancer detection and treatment.

Your Car

Home Repairs Generally Become Costly

By EUGENE B. MILHOE

Small fortunes in trade-in and resale dollars are thrown away because of penny-wise and pound-foolish attitudes. Take body damage, for instance. Rather than pay for correct repairs, short-sighted car owners will perfection short and convince themselves that they can do an adequate job for mere pennies.

So, with do-it-myself determination, they tackle what turns out to be a sub-par repair or some pretty horrible patchwork. In either case, dollar value of the car has suffered, and this is readily discovered when it's put up for sale or trade.

It would be nice to be able to say that a perfect body repair and refinish job can be turned out by anyone with a fairly good mechanical touch and talent. But, it's just not so. This type of automotive work requires a hard-learned knowhow plus a shop full of certain tools and equipment. So, unless it's only a very slight scrape or scratch on the finish, don't kid yourself . . . you can't save money by doing it yourself.

C. M. writes: "When a battery is charged, isn't D. C. current required— or is either AC or DC O.K.?"

(A) Direct current — thus, normal electrical supply which is A.C. must be changed. Chargers have converters to do this.

From F. B.: "Now matter how finely I adjust the carburetor idle speed and mixture settings, I just can't get the engine to run smoothly."

(A) Don't depend on carburetor adjustments to overcome troubles which may exist, such as manifold air leakage, poor compression or burned valves.

D. J. asks: "Will a car operated primarily in dry, dusty regions break down sooner than it would in normal climates?"

(A) It definitely will if it's not better maintained than the average car. Heavy dust in the dirt can quickly bring damage. If the carburetor air cleaner is neglected, for example, engine clogging and rapid wear will surely result.

P. F. writes: "Should steering be affected if one front tire has a slow leak and often is a little low on air?"

(A) Haven't you noticed the car's tendency to steer toward the side of the low tire? The extra drag or friction, which is set up when more tread contacts the road, causes this.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

FLYCATCHERS ARRIVE

Now we have our summer visitors again; the many birds that arrive on files are returning to Canada. The members of one little group actually going by the name "flycatchers" show many similarities.

The great crested flycatcher (Myiarchus crinitus) has, as far-reaching "wheeeeep" call familiar in our summer woods. Rather smaller than a robin, this handsome bird is noted for its fine, reddish tail. The upright position when at rest, common to all flycatchers, helps to exhibit its yellow underparts. A habit unique to the crested is dragging a snakeskin into the nesting hole. Whether this is for the purpose of beautifying the home or frightening intruders is unknown.

HAS UNPATTERNED VEST

Less colorful, but with two distinguishing marks, is the olive-sided. A white tuft of feathers is visible just behind each wing, and the "unbuttoned vest" pattern is caused by the olive sides; on otherwise white underparts. The whistled song has been translated, "hip-three-cheers."

Somewhat smaller than these two is the phoebe, which says its name plainly and has a special love for old bridges. There, on some low beam, the best is often used. This bird is a typical flycather in looks: greenish grey on head and back and white underneath.

Quite similar in appearance is the wood pewee; however, it prefers woods to manmade structures, and distinctly calls "pee-a-wee".

There are four very small flycatchers, three of them almost identical. Even experts have difficulty in telling them apart. Actually, location and voice are the distinguishing marks. Dark above and light below, they have conspicuous white eye-rings and two white-wing-bars.

CALLS AND HOMES

"Fee-bee" and "pee" are the call notes of the acadia, a bird of deciduous forests and wet, swampy woodlands. The least says "che-bec" and if found around open woods, "the commoner note of the alder (or traill's) is "pep" or "pit", and its breeding place is in swampy thickets.

Not quite so difficult to name is the yellow-bellied flycatcher, as eye-ring, underparts, and wing-bars are yellowish. The least says "che-bec" and if found around open woods, "the commoner note of the alder (or traill's) is "pep" or "pit", and its breeding place is in swampy thickets.

Probably the kingbird is most unlike all other flycatchers. About the size of the crested, the head, back, and tail are very dark grey and its under side and a band at the end of the tail are pure white. They allow over a field to catch insects it makes a sound which reminds us of a kingfisher's rattle.

MORE TRIPLETS ARRIVE

LAGOS (AP) — The seventh set of triplets born in northern Nigeria within a month was reported today from Gwandu, in Sokoto province. The latest triplets were all girls.

Albury

ALBURY—Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Wilfe and family of the late John Waterhouse who passed away and was buried on Wednesday. Many attended the funeral at the Bush Funeral Home, Belleville.

Several attended the Redpenzville W. I. meeting at the home of Mrs. Allan Wessee on Thursday evening. The president Mrs. Mac Wallbridge took charge and pictures of Florida were shown by Mrs. Wessee and Mrs. Wallbridge which everyone enjoyed. A delicious lunch was served.

The Rev. and Mrs. Wragg of Cannington, spent Wednesday as overnight guests of her mother, Mrs. W. Hobbs and attended the funeral of John Waterhouse.

Sorry to report that Mrs. Harry Peck is not feeling well. Friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Beuford Peck, Mrs. Roy' Williamson, spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Williamson, Consecon.

A number from here attended the Junior Farmers' dance at Tobe's on Friday evening.

The Albury United School held a delightful afternoon tea and bake sale in Albury Church on Saturday afternoon with nearly $50 being realized.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Martin and family spent the tea hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Weese.

City Children Receive Farmer's View of Nature Just Outside Toronto

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Take 72 city kids and drop them into 100 rural acres, stir in half-a-dozen dedicated teachers, mix well for five days and you get a healthy batch of enriched junior citizens.

The recipe has been tested and approved each week since early last October at Canada's first government-supported residential school, the Island Natural Science School on the islands enclosing Toronto Harbor.

Teachers, pupils and education authorities profess themselves well pleased after the pilot year of a project to give Toronto city's grade VI children a farmer's-eye view of man's natural environment and how he can mould it.

Teachers whose classes spend a week at the school are jubilant over the way the outdoor experience generated new understanding and enthusiasm among their pupils. Some of the 10-year-olds cried when they had to leave the school on Friday.

The dynamo at the centre of the operation is veteran Toronto teacher Robin Dennis, a tanned, athletic man who says he is 53 but looks 40. He is director of the school.

Mr. Dennis led a small band of educationalists who campaigned for the idea of teaching children about nature in the field. Toronto school inspector Harry Martin, school principal Bill Quinn and Sam Hambly, now assistant director of the island school, fought for the project for a decade.

SPECIAL LAW PASSED

The last major hurdle fell early in 1960 when the Ontario department of education sponsored legislation permitting children to attend residential schools for only two weeks in any academic year.

Last summer idle classrooms in the regular island day school were converted to accommodate resident pupils from the mainland as well as about 140 children living on the islands who still attend ordinary day classes.

Under a 10-year, $14,000,000 project to turn the islands into metropolitan parkland, all families now living there will be gone by 1968. The single-storey, frame schoolhouse then will be entirely devoted to teaching the weekly mainland visitors.

Each Monday during the school year two grade VI classes from different Toronto schools—36 boys and 36 girls—take the 10-minute ferry ride from the city to spend five days learning by touch, taste, sight, sound and smell what nature is really like.

They sleep in dormitories with neat rows of double bunks, have their meals in a big new dining-room and hold evening sing-songs in a cheerful common room with picture windows looking out on the pounding surf of Lake Ontario.

Their classrooms are outdoors—along the beach, beside a pond alive with frogs and beetles, in the woods, at the nearby model farm established by Metropolitan Toronto or in Sam Hambly's hideaway, a tree-ringed jumble of gardens, compost heaps and beehives.

One of the greatest satisfactions for the staff teachers and their assistants from Ontario teachers colleges is watch the sudden development of understanding in a child to whom nature study previously was only an abstract affair of words and pictures in a city classroom.

But equally rewarding, the teachers say, is the way the children pick up lessons in living as a by-product of their week on the island.

Discipline problems usually dissolve in the busy round of learning and recreation. Communal living teaches co-operation. At the same time, children away from home for the first time learn self-reliance.

Mr. Dennis feels his own operation is big enough at the moment, but predicts similar schools will open around Toronto and throughout the province. His daily batch of mail often includes letters from parents in communities from Ottawa to Windsor asking if their children can attend the school.

Here Are Planting-Time Tips

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Don't forget to plant a stake when you plant the dahlias. You may injure the tuber if you leave it until later. Dip the roots, or soak them overnight in rapid-grow plant food. This is a foliar feeding material which will give the roots and leaves a boost. Keep the leaves and they will develop sooner and larger.

Plant a few night scented stocks, matthiola bicornis. Any kind of soil will do. Make it near the house or around the focal point of the garden where the sweet perfume will drift in with every evening breeze.

If you put radishes, carrots and beets in early they will be ready for thinning now. Give carrots and beets at least two inches between each plant, more for late varieties. Crowded plants are stunted plants.

Perennial weeds between black and red currants and raspberries can be killed with a selective weed killer if great care is taken not to let it drift on to the fruit plants. Kill grass with dalapon.

Even up your yield of apples, pears and peaches by using a thinning spray or thin by hand. You will have fewer but more perfect fruit each year instead of a bumper crop one year and none the next.

Prune flowering currant and forsythia as soon as the blooms fall. Cut out the wood that has just bloomed but leave all young non-flowering growth.

Thin annuals to two inches apart, later thin again according to the eventual size of the plants. For instance, dwarf marigolds will need four to six inches between each plant, Giant zinnias need 18 inches between each plant. The seedling you take out can be transplanted if care is used.

Keep a sharp eye out for suckers forming at the base of roses below the graft. Cut off at the point of growth or pull them off.

If newly planted trees or shrubs are slow to leaf out, spray with water daily. See that the soil is kept moderately moist and add a mulch to conserve soil moisture.

Watch fruit trees and roses for aphis. Spray at regular intervals to kill off these pests.

Now is the time to plant peppers, eg plants, melons, beans, and corn. Cover the tender vine plants with poly bags, or sheets of plastic for a few days, and every evening that the temperature falls below 40 degrees. A berry box will give enough shade to newly planted tomato plants if the day is sunny. Take the cover off each night and put them on in the morning if the sun shines. Do this for a week and they will get off to a faster start. Use a transplanting solution to keep plants from wilting when setting them out. A weak solution of plant food, or rapid-grow will work well.

Use a garden pencil which is indelible to mark the names of roses, flowers and shrubs. Wooden or metal labels are not expensive and it is interesting to know the name of plant and date planted.

Bruce Kidd Sets Record, Steals Show

Whips Crack U.S. Stars

COMPTON, Calif. (CP)—Bruce Kidd, 17, Canada's outstanding distance runner, stole the show in the annual Compton track and field meet Friday night, by winning the 5,000 metres from a cast of veterans and setting an American record in doing it.

So impressive was the slender 135 - pound youngster, who runs for the East York Club of Toronto, that sports writers voted him the "athlete of the meet."

His victory easily was the highlight of the meet. Another youngster, Tommy Sullivan of Evanston, Ill., showed up well in the mile.

Kidd outlegged Max Truex to win the 5,000 metres in 13:58.4, and was clocked at 13:28.6 for three miles.

This bettered the dead - heat clocking for an American record of 13:28.0 registered here a year ago by Jim Beatty and Laszlo Tabori.

CHEERED BY CROWD

The 8,000 fans gave Kidd a tremendous ovation.

Trailing down the track after the finish, Kidd could only say between breaths: "I just ran to win."

He added he pulled up a bit on the last lap which cost him a better time.

The Canadian ran Truex, now of the U.S. Air Force, into the ground. Truex's time was 14:04.3.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CRAVEN, Sports Editor

Fish can hear, sing, converse with one another, tell black from white and other colors and are equipped with their own type of radar, says a fish and wildlife official; or words to that effect.

Now perhaps, that sceptic from the effete Western Ontario city of Stratford, one Appel, won't be so effuse with his charges of tall stories that emanate occasionally from Eastern Ontario's piscatorial paradises.

Fish can tell colors, says the expert. That bears out the story of the young lady in Cornwall who dangled her red-tinted toenails in the river, and was promptly nipped by a capitalistic muskie.

Why shouldn't there be singing fish, they have the "scales" (Ouch). Art Perver swears he heard strange strains while angling on Quinte last summer. It sounded like the "Toreador Song" from Carmen. Minutes later he hauled in a big bull-head and swears that fish gasped a dying "Ole" before it expired.

However, some of the yarns can be stretched a bit. Like the one Bill Wiseman told about an experience on West Lake. He and the party took along a bundle of salmon sandwiches, were trolling merrily when a big pike stuck its snout over the gunwale and made off with the lunch.

An hour later somebody commission startled Wiseman and pals. The big pike was noted replacing the sandwiches with a note that read: "Next time make 'em chicken. Whadincll do you think we are, cannibals?"

The wildlife gentleman also says that small boys who expectorate on bait for "good luck" have had it in more or less abundance. Gum-chewing urchins spitting on more or less technicalities and worms could make them feel "wrigley" (another ouch).

A pickerel-poacher of the Salmon River told me he speared a husky spawn-laden lady walleye who had swallowed part of a ping of chewing tobacco. That could be a tip for boot-leather "Lefty" Whitman to change his Philadelphia Scrabble to a fish-tasty brand.

And speaking of fish talking, the story from Sabostin Lake said that hulking northern pike travelled in schools and pairs. The author claimed that two of these lunkers, probably a honeymooning couple, swam close to fis boat, looked up and leered at him and with a flip of their tails turned accurately away.

And fish radar is believable. Two anglers were probing the fog of Quinte for bass last summer. Both used minnows but the short fat guy was using a fresh variety; his pal's bait was a day or two old.

After they threw a couple of small ones back, the fat guy hauled in seven or eight nice ones, while Slim Jim had zero + nibble. They believe the throwbacks radio'd to the school, "take the fat guy's bait. It's fresher and he uses salt and pepper."

And from stories told me I can believe that fish can become alcoholics. A couple of the boys from Wellington way were angling for rock off the big dock. They had a flagon of swamp dew with them and after an hour of fruitless fishing decided to liven up their fishworm bait with a "dew" immersion.

And nephew Donny Ogilvy tells me that shortly afterwards one of the pair had a strike. He hauled in his line and found the worm kicking the daylights out of a five-foot eel.

Or like the story in Outdoor Life that tells of a couple of anglers who were caught down river with no frog bait.

Eventually one saw a large snake swimming in the water with a nice froggie in its jaws. He headed the snake aboard, retrieved the frog and rewarded the captor with a shot of corn liquor.

Half an hour later the snake returned, climbed over the gunwale, depositd a frog on a thwart and lay there looking upwards with its mouth open.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dunc Campbell, veteran owner-driver from Atlas Craig, brought home four winners Friday night at the Western Fair Raceway.

His wins included the feature event, the Class C-1 and C-2 Handicap Pace, in which he drove Hollycrod Richard, an eight-year-old from Clinton.

Earlier Campbell piloted Dervish, a 10-year-old, to a double win in the divided Class C-3 and D-1 handicap trot.

He brought Patsy Grattan across the wire in the sixth.

The daily double paid $197.60.

Indians, Yankees Win

Bunning Brakes Tiger Backslide

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Jim Bunning, a right-handed pitcher who has had trouble getting started, stepped up as a stopper for Detroit Tigers in the American League pennant chase.

After losing four of his first six decisions, spread over 10 starts, Bunning now has won two straight games. Both have put an end to Detroit skids. The Tigers have won only three of their last nine games and Bunning has collected two of the victories.

He squared his 1961 record at 4-4 with a four-hitter for his first shut out of the season Friday night, getting home - run help from Rocky Colavito and Al Kaline for a 2-0 decision over Minnesota Twins.

It was the first victory in four games for the Tigers and retained their two-game lead over the second-place Cleveland Indians, who defeated Los Angeles 6-4. Third - place Baltimore New York Yankees, four games back, beat Chicago White Sox 6-2, as Whitey Ford knocked off Baltimore Orioles 4-2 and Washington Senators walloped Kansas City Athletics 12-4.

GAVE ONLY SINGLES

Bunning allowed nothing but singles, two by Zoilo Versalles, and struck out seven. He also didn't run into trouble until the ninth inning, when the Twins loaded the bases with one out on Bunning's lone walk, a hit batsman and an error. Bunning ended the game by getting Don Dobbek to hit into a force-out play. Colavito's homer, his 13th of the season, beat southpaw Jack Kralick (4-3) in the second inning. Kaline's sixth-inning shot was his fourth-hit in four consecutive games against the Twins, who have lost 11 of their last 13 games while giving way from a second - place tie to eighth spot.

Johnny Romano cracked a 4-4 tie for the Indians with a two-run homer in the eighth inning off loosing reliever Johnny James (0-1). Woody Held also homered for the Indians, who blew a 4-0 lead.

Frank Funk (1-3) was the winner with two innings of cocky relief, once more getting his edge from Romano. The Cleveland catcher, extending his hitting streak through 16 games, has driven in or scored the winning run in all but one of Funk's victories.

The Yankees also relied on home runs, with Yogi Berra belting a pair of solo shots and Roger Maris crashing a two-run homer as southpaw Whitey Ford (7-2) beat the White Sox for the first time in six decisions since July 18, 1958.

BLANKED THE SOX

Ford blanked the last-place White Sox on five hits after Al Smith hit a two-run homer in the first inning. Cal McLish (3-6) was the loser, dropping his fifth straight game when Maris' 13th homer of the year, a bases-empty shot in the third inning.

Vic Wertz, the old man of the Red Sox at 36, and rightfielder Don Schwall, 25, combined to beat the Orioles. Vic's two-run homer in the sixth gave Boston a 3-2 tie in the third inning.

Schwall allowed only seven hits and walked four men, but he struck out five and has a 1.06 earned run average in 22 strikeouts in 26 innings.

Righthander Dick Donovan, after losing five decisions in a row by one run, won his first with authority, from the Senators. Their 12 runs off loser Paul Daley (4-6) and three relievers was one more than the total they scored in Donovan's five shutouts. Daley drove in five runs, three with a two-run homer in the eighth inning.

May Move Jersey Team To Miami

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A move to transfer the Jersey City franchise of the International League to Miami was reported Friday.

The move would be made at a scheduled home stand of the club starting June 19 if the team can gain a three-year rental agreement for Miami Stadium.

Eduardo Besnes, former lawyer for Roberto Maduro when the club was based in Havana as the Sugar Kings, is reported to be the head of a group seeking a transfer.

Bones and Jack D. Gordon, president of a savings and loan association at Miami Beach, are scheduled to meet with Miami Mayor Robert King High and the city commission Monday to discuss rental terms.

European Davis Cup Results

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Italy's Nicola Pietrangeli was upset by Belgium's Jacky Richard, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4, as Belgium took a 1-0 lead over the defending European Zone Davis Cup tennis champions in a second round match.

Arthur Ashe, Jr. of Sweden, which had drawn first - round byes, took the lead in their second-round matches. These three nations and Italy were the 1960 Davis Cup quarter - finalists in the European Zone honors it defeated the United States before losing to Australia in the challenge round.

Britain won a hard-fought doubles match over Austria at Vienna on a 3-1 edge in their series. The two final singles matches will be played Saturday.

FRANCE LEADS BRAZIL

France took a 2-0 lead over Brazil, the four Davis Cup meets can survivor, and can wrap it up in Saturday's doubles at Paris.

Sweden held a 1-0 lead over Hungary at Budapest before rain stopped play in the second singles match.

South Africa opened up a 3-1 edge over Finland. Two singles matches and the doubles remain in the match.

After the first day of competition Poland held a 2-0 lead over Monaco.

Seaad Brilliant

U.S. Leads Canada Cup

DORADO BEACH, Puerto Rico (CP)—The United States is leading Britain and challenging Canada Cup golf matches, propelled by the brilliant performances of two old-timers.

Sammy Saead, who has packed a dazzling record into his 49 years, and Jimmy Demaret, 51, combined to post the 54-hole stroke ahead of the best of the other 32 teams.

Seaad, who shot two straight five-under-par 67s, also leads the individual race by four strokes over Arnold Palmer of The Philippines. Seaad reached the halfway mark of the 72-hole event with 134 to Arde's 138.

In third place at 139 was Al Balding of Toronto, who had a 70 Friday to go with his opening round 69. Canada's other representative, Al Johnston of Montreal, was far down the individual list at 150 with rounds of 72 and 78.

Seaad and Demaret had an aggregate of 277 for the team lead. Australia's Peter Thomson and Kel Nagle, second-round favorites, were second with 283.

Balding and Johnston held third with a pooled 289. One stroke behind Arde and Cesterino Tupot.

The Australian team appeared to be the only one likely to challenge the leading U.S. Thomson registered a 69 Friday for 140, Nagel also carded a 69 for 141.

Riders Give Young Fans Seat Block

OTTAWA (CP)—Young football fans are being given one last chance to behave themselves at home games of Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four Football League.

General Manager George Terlep announced Friday the club has set aside a 1,000-seat block in Lansdowne Park for young sters 12 years of age or under. A children's section was closed down towards the end of last season when youngsters began pouring onto the field before the end of the game and generally getting out of control.

"We are glad to again reserve space for the kids but if we have to, we'll close down their section again," Terlep said. "And this time it will be permanent."

Fan Gets in Act

Three Kalmikoffs Beaten

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

A hot-headed, foot-happy fan may face police charges following a ring melee in Memorial Arena last night.

The Kalmikoff brothers, Farmer Boy Townsend, after bulling Lord Athol Layton and Farmer Boy Townsend when the action left the ring.

The standing timber was chasing the referee under the ropes when one of the Kalmikoffs crawled under the ring intent upon emerging on the other side.

The fan, alleged to have met the Russian with a swift kick to the face, injuring an eye. A police officer nailed the fan as he started to leave the arena with a Russian in hot pursuit.

A police station report this morning said charges were pending.

Ring-wise it was a hodge-podge of merry action with as many as five wrestlers cluttering up the mat on several occasions. Pat Flanagan and Man Mountain Campbell seemed to soften up the three little Kalmikoff Bears in the opening free-for-all. The Bears used all their tricks and coaxed Man Mountain outside the ring long enough to disqualify him in the first fall, then after Flanagan had almost rule-bicked the little back into Thurlow township they applied the back-breaker and that was that.

Enter Lord Layton and the Farmer Boy and the fireworks started. The Russian showed more "chops" than a butchers' convention but managed to get in plenty of their tricks.

The fans roared when the Layton-Campbell team pulled the Bears in one heap in the centre of the ring in one concerted bellie-the-Man Mountain selected one and swung him feet first like a whirlwind yo-yo to win the fall.

Layton and Townsend pulled the Russ into a Dagwood sandwich in mid-ring used a couple of piledrivers and finally hooked up the K's like a dog team.

Then Layton took over and with some well flattened punch chops flattened Karol K. for the fall and the bout.

Defeat RCAF 7-1.

Unbeaten Cats Win Third

By GARNET ALEXANDER

Belleville Bobcats tightened their grip on Belleville and District softball league's top spot at the Fairgrounds last night when they downed the RCAF Flyers 7-1 for their third consecutive win.

Actually, the final 7-1 score was hardly an indication of the game. The 'Cats held a slim 3-1 lead until the eighth inning when the RCAF started switching pitchers and Belleville scored four more runs on homers.

Bob Hunter toiled the route on the Bobcat hilltop, giving up eight hits in all but losing his shutout on his teammate's two errors. He struck out six and did not walk a batter.

Howie Cole started and lost for the Flyers. He gave up six hits and three runs in six innings. Ken Kibblewhite pitched the seventh and part of the eighth while Corky Corscadden finished up.

The runners gathered ten hits, Earl Cousins leading the way with a homer and single while Hunter helped his own cause with a triple and single. Floyd Goegan also hit a fourbagger while the other safeties were divided among Ted Batchelor, Doug Hull, John Batchelor, "Wiener" Brown and Floyd Goegan.

Roger Drake with a double and single, and John Hughes, with two hits, were the best in a losing effort. Harold "Bugs" MacDonald, Doug Alexander, Ron Smith and "Bud" Lahey each singled once.

The game was featured by some great fielding plays on both sides of the ledger, despite the total of seven errors committed, five by the losers.

Batchelor's hook for two runs in the third without hitting the ball out of the infield. Two errors, infield hits by Goegan and Ted Batchelor and a wild pitch, plated the runner. A walk, John Batchelor's sharp single and an error made it 3-0 in the fifth after Lahey's single and the two 'Cat misplays bagged the Flyers' run in the fourth.

Brown singled off Kibblewhite to open the eighth. Field hit into a force play but Earl Cousins stashed the ball past MacDonald for a two-run homer.

RCAF coach Lobb sent Corscadden to the mound and Hunter greeted him with a triple. Goegan was caught on strikes before Floyd Crawford drove a double down the right to right - centre for the second two-run homer of the inning.

Both teams missed some great scoring chances. RCAF Flyers had two on and only one out again in the sixth without scoring. The winners left the sacks full in the third and stranded two more in the sixth.

They Sing, Have Radar, Tell Color

Who Called 'Em' Poor Fish?

Ontario's speckled trout and yellow perch seasons are now open. And just as sure as the sun shines, some fishermen — and women — are going to return from fishing trips convinced that they have had unlucky there were no fish when they happened to be; it was the wrong time of the week, month, or year, or they were too dumb to bite".

The latter conclusion, however, may not be quite so accurate, Blair Dawson of the Fish and Wildlife Division, Department of Lands and Forests, is inclined to believe that fish are moving them via radar and may be, in fact, smarter than we are.

"Most of us, with the possible exception of a few real-ists, have the naive idea that fish to be dumb, insentitive, cold-blooded creatures", he says. "They are fast and well-coordinated, but they are well equipped with highly developed sensory equipment to enable them to survive".

It has been fairly well established in scientific circles that fish can see in colour, which may be felt by the fish or who some say, "smell a rat". But others have thrown stones and other objects close to fish demonstrators and the fish made fish come in to see what caused the commotion. Made to conge, for one, prefer a splashy, noisy bait being hauled along the surface of the water to quieter, deeper-running bait.

Fish have the ability to make sounds and to communicate with each other, Mr. Dawson says. "One species even makes like the birds, and greeted with a morning and evening song".

Which may account for a common belief among fishermen as to what not only sounds cannot lure wild each other to get out of the district".

In any event, says Mr. Dawson, that time you are fishing, remember you will have to speak to, or guard against, some fairly well developed fish "sense".

Lift "Bums" to Top Tie

Add Dodger Joys, The Davis Boys

By ED WILKES
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Davis boys, Tommy and Willie, aren't related, but they've been twin terrors for Los Angeles Dodgers in the fine-spray scrubble for the National League lead.

Willie's clipping to fourth place two weeks ago. Los Angeles has won 10 of 13 games — and in five of the last six victories, one or the other of the Davis boys has supplied the winning run, lifting the Dodgers into a virtual tie for first place.

They went to work Friday night and sent San Francisco Giants to a 8-2 defeat. Willie's ninth-inning home run tied the game 2-2 and Tommy broke it up with a grand-slam blast in the 10th.

The victory boosted the Dodgers past the Giants into second place, .009 percentage points behind Cincinnati Redlegs, who rallied for five runs in the ninth inning but lost 7-6 to Chicago Cubs.

The last - place Philadelphia Phillies increased their lead over Pirates 6-0 and St. Louis Cardinals beat Milwaukee Braves 5-1.

HITS PINCH HOMER

The Dodgers, shut out by three hits in Giants' home park by Jack Sanford and reliever Bob Hall, got their first run on a pinch homer by Don Ray in 7th of the eighth.

The Davis' ninth home run of the season opened in a frantic ninth, in which the Giants used Johnny Antonelli, their only 10-game winner, and Ray Jablonski, often-used major league record holder, to pace before centre-fielder Willie Mays sent pinch-hitter Duke Snider's liner to the third base line and bases loaded.

The Dodgers loaded the bases again in the 10th, on a slight by Jim Gilliam and two walks, one by intentional pass to Willie Davis. Bob Aspromonte hit into a forceout at the plate, but Tommy Davis smashed his ninth homer of the season, a grand slam knot Ed Fisher (0-1).

The Giants, a half-game behind the Dodgers and Redlegs, scored on homers by Sanford, his first in the majors, and Jim Davenport off Roger Craig. Relievers Larry Sherry, Dick Farrell and Ron Perranoski shut out San Francisco the two hits over the last 5⅔ innings. Perranoski (3-0) was the winner.

Cincinnati scored five runs in the ninth on a two-run homer by Gene Freese and a bases-loaded double by pinch - hitter Jerry Lynch, but the Cubs had gained their cession in the top of the ninth after a sacrifice fly by Ernie Banks.

TIES RECORD

The Chicago slugger drove in three runs, all on sacrifice flies. They were his first of the year and tied a major league record for one game set in 1909 by Harry Steinfeldt of the Cubs. The only other major leaguer to have done it is Meusel of New York Yankees in 1924.

Jack Curtis, a southpaw rookie, made his first game in the majors, with Don Elston's relief in the ninth inning after blanking the Reds on four hits for seven innings. Bob Purkey (3-5) was the loser as the Reds' winning string ended at six games and the Cubs gained their first five-game streak in two seasons.

Righthander John Buzhardt won his first against five defeats for the Phils by shutting out the Pirates on nine hits. The Phillies tagged Bob Friend (5-7) with his seventh straight defeat as a starter, collecting seven of their 12 hits off the right-handed veteran in 2 1-3 innings. Half their hits were doubles.

The Cardinals took fifth place from the Braves on the four-hit pitching of Ray Sadecki (4-3) and a two-run homer by Ken Boyer in the sixth inning off Carl Willey (3-2). Ed Mathews homered for the Braves in the fourth inning.

Willey battled the Cards on one hit in the first five innings before being tagged for all three St. Louis runs in the sixth. He was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the seventh and reliever Claude Raymond, a righthander from St. Jean, Que., finished up. Raymond yielded three hits and struck out one man.

Ortega Bids For Crown Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mexico's Gaspar Ortega, a veteran of 82 fights, get his first shot at a world title tonight when he meets welterweight champion Emile Griffith of New York.

They tangle in a scheduled 15-rounder to be televised by ABC starting at 10 p.m. The bout will be carried by CFTO - TV Toronto.

Griffith, 22, a native of the Virgin Islands, figures to enter the ring a 3-to-1 favorite to retain the championship. It will be his first defence of the 147-pound crown he won April 1 by flattening Benny (Kid) Paret of Cuba in 13 rounds in Miami Beach, Fla.

Co-promoters Cal Eaton and George Parnassus expect some 17,500 fans to pay about $30,000. Griffith gets a guarantee of $20,000 and Ortega gets 20 per cent of the gate and TV money.

Griffith captured the title in his 85th fight. He has lost only two decisions.

Ortega is no stranger to Griffith. On February, 1960, the pride of Tijuana, Mex., battled Griffith in a 10 - rounder at New York. Griffith won a split decision.

Heres How Belmont Looks!

Fast Track, "Carry Back"

NEW YORK (AP) — Carry Back, darling of the United States sporting set, makes his bid for racing glory in the $125,000 added Belmont Stakes today.

The three-year-old colt was in magnificent shape to grab the event and become the ninth winner of racing's triple crown. Carry Back recently captured the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness.

The flashy son of Saggy whose come from-behind victories in the Derby and Preakness endeared him to millions of racing fans, was up against eight rivals in today's big-time classic, including Alberta Racches' Fluttery, Fluttery was well beaten in the Derby and Preakness and was a 20-to-1 outsider today.

Carry Back was a 4 - to-5 choice to become the first triple crown king since Citation did it in 1948.

Post time was set for 4:50 p.m. The race was to be televised by CBS and carried in Canada by CBC-TV.

Belmont Facts, Figures

NEW YORK (AP) — Facts and figures for the 83rd running of the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes today:

Place—Belmont Park.
Distance—1½ miles.
Post-time—4:50 p.m. EDT.
Field—Nine three-year-olds.
Value—Gross purse, $148,650 with $104,900 to winner.
Favorite—Carry Back, 4-to-5.
Record time—Gallant Man, 2:26 3-5, in 1957.
Weather—Fair.
Radio and Television—CBS, 4:30-5 p.m.

Predictions were for fair weather, a fast track and a crowd of some 50,000, including former pres. Dwight Eisenhower and Mrs. Eisenhower.

Carry Back already has won $730,083. He has a career record of 11 victories, five seconds and five thirds.

Experts figured Carry Back's chances today were enhanced when Leonard P. Sasso decided to enter Globemaster, a speed horse, as indicated by his early foot in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness.

With Globemaster setting the pace and Hitting Away right behind there, Johnny Sellers should have plenty of time to get Carry Back in position for the quarter-mile stretch run.

Trouble could develop from Ambiopsie, an easy conqueror of Globemaster and Tender in the Jersey Derby last week but after finishing 12th in the Kentucky Derby, he likes to strike from behind but not in the devastating manner of Carry Back. He was established as a 6-to-1 second choice. Bal Mnsette, forced by illness to skip the Derby and Preakness, was the third choice at 8 to 1.

Sherlock, Dr. Miller and Gusdalcanal were the other entries.

Tunney Explodes Charge

Johansson Was 'Sick Man'

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States senators have closed the book, at least tentatively, on Gene Tunney's swiftly disputed testimony that boxer Ingemar Johansson of Sweden was "a sick man" and a victim of monopolists in the "rubber" bout from racketeers.

Senator Estes Kefauver, chairman of the subcommittee and author of a bill seeking federal regulation, said he plans no further hearings except, perhaps, to receive testimony from Attorney - General Robert Kennedy.

Tunney was in the midst of a bitter indictment of racketeers in boxing, and what he termed monopolistic practices by fight promoters and managers, when he charged that Johansson was suffering from a brain trauma in his third fight with Patterson last March. Tunney said the Swede suffered a brain trauma when he was flattened by Patterson in their second clash.

From Sweden, Johansson's personal physician, Dr. Frankie Benson, termed Tunney's allegations "ridiculous."

"I was personally in charge of the physical and mental examinations before the match and I can guarantee that Ingo was in perfect physical and mental condition," Dr. Benson said.

In New York, Al Bolan, general manager of Feature Sports Incorporated, which promoted the bout in Miami Beach, Fla., said Johansson had a complete examination by doctors employed by the Miami Beach Boxing Commission before the fight.

Dr. Benson added: "He was examined here in Sweden by me and specialists consulted by me. He was in top condition for the match. And, here we have no monopoly, neither over boxing nor physicians."

By this, Benson referred to a statement by Tunney that the "monopoly" would not stand for an electronic examination of Ingo's brain before the match. Tunney did not specify whom he meant by the "monopoly."

Leafs Drop Another, Bisons Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Controversial Tony Curry, cut by Philadelphia Phillies after he quit the team in a contract squabble and played lackluster ball when he rejoined the club, a bestling a steady taloo of extra-base hits in the International League.

The fiery Buffalo outfielder rapped his 11th homer, with one out in the ninth inning Friday night, and gave the Bisons a 3-2 victory over Rochester Red Wings.

It was Curry's fourth homer in four games, tying him for the league lead in that department, and along with a single raised his batting average to .347 in 11 ball. Curry has 28 hits—20 for extra bases.

In other games, Jersey City Jersey's two two-run third plays by beating Richmond Virginians 4-3 and Syracuse Chiefs whipped Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3. The Charleston-Columbus game was rained out.

COMEBACK KILLED

Curry's game - ending blow planned the defeat on reliever Art Quirk with two on in after the Red Wings had scored three runs in the final frame to tie it. Reliever Max Surkont picked up the victory, his fifth straight.

The Reds overtame a big lead, scoring two in the eighth on Borrego Alvarez's homer, a triple by Dan Morejon and a wild pitch by Art Ceccarelli, then adding two in the ninth on five walks. Enos Davallio drove in the clincher by drawing the final walk off Bill Bethel.

The managerless Chiefs, with infielder Frank Verdi acting as field boss, came from behind to win it in the eighth with a four-run uprising powered by Frank Lelie's three - run homer. Bill Fleis won in relief. Leafs' reliever Pat Scantlebury lost.

REDS SENDING PLAYERS

LONDON (AP) — The Russians announced Friday they are sending six tennis players, three men and three girls, to play at Wimbledon and in other British summer tournaments. Four Russians competed at Wimbledon last year.

Tail Setting

Harness Racing Bits

By Phil Stewart

The executive of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club was very pleased in general with the inaugural night race meet in Belleville on May 27. A total of almost 500 paid admissions on a night as cold and windy as it turned out was considered quite good. The attendance has also been logged by one evening in 1960 and one in 1959 when the weather was much more favorable.

Little else but, enthusiastic and favorable comments have been heard regarding the lighting system, the program and the racing itself. Some drivers who have raced at Connaught Park were heard to remark that the lights were as good if not better than those at Connaught. With a little larger crowd on June 17 the best race meet ever held in this city will be assured.

One interested and interesting fan at this meet was Alex Williams of Bloomfield, who at an age of about 86 years young must rank with the oldest horsemen in Canada. Alex mentioned that he had sold one of his brood-mares "Kara Belle" and two colts to J. C. Cameron of Smiths Falls the owner of the renowned "Kara Blue". Alex still owns "Positive Charm" and she just presented him with a nice horse foal by "Scotch Magic". It might be mentioned that Alex bred and raised two colts out of this mare both by "Kara Blue," which he sold to Mr. Cameron. These colts have both, none on to be fair race horses.

The writer's mare "Mildred Chips" is in foal to "Scotch Magic" and due to foal around June 19. She will be bred to the good racing sire "Alpha Hal".

"Betty Abigail" has been sent to the court of "Hal Senator" at Wilton but as yet no word has been received as to whether she is in foal or not by the way, has recovered sufficiently from his unfortunate accident last fall to be entered to Connaught under the care of Bob Cleverly to race.

Al Connaught recently George Platford of Picton was elected Vice President of the latter and second with "Red Gun".

District race meets in the future include Gananoque and Ballmore on June 24, Marmorah on June 10 and Belleville with racing on Saturday, June 17.

Horse lovers should not forget the horse show here June 24 sponsored by Quinte Driving and Riding Club as the proceeds to go to the Lions Club for crippled children's work

The Tracks

What Networks Are Planning In New Programs Next Year

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Memo to Minow:

In his speech before the broadcasting convention, Newton Minow, commissioner of the Federal Communications Commission, assailed U.S. television's "wasteland" of programming.

This is a report on what the networks are planning in new programs for next season.

ABC is getting slightly more than a mixed blessing. The unsuccessful Flintstones is being joined by two new animated shows, "Top Cat and Calvin and the Colonel. And the network's only hour show, Lawrence Welk, will have a lively companion in Steve Allen.

The rest of the new shows seem to follow the trusty ABC pattern. Follow the Sun will take two magazine writers to the south seas. Bus Stop will deal with drama along the highway.

CBS is also exploring the animal world for comedy. The network is elevating Mr. Ed, the talking horse, out of syndication, and will star the chipmunks in "Alvin Show."

The investigators and The Defenders will add to the crime file. The situation comedies and dramas include: Robert Young in Window on Main Street; Double Trouble about a comedy writer; a small-town newspaper saga with Robert Sterling and Jack Chandler; Gertrude Berg as a college freshman and Sir Cedric Hardwick as professor; Frontier Circus; Father of the Bride; and a new Bob Cummings show.

NBC is going hot and heavy with the news-type shows: David Brinkley's Journal; a weekly Frank McGee program; 60 prime-time news specials; more Project 20's; Ben Hamerts about America's defense; Quest, stories of far-off stories; Wisdom, visits with wise old-timers; plus some NBC White Papers.

A first-year show hopeful note: No new westerns.

VETERAN DIRECTOR

A Call on Kuprin, opening in New York May 25, is the first Broadway assignment for director George Abbott.

TV OPPORTUNITY

Tom Melbert, 20, begins a summer job with Bennet Cerf's Random House publishing company after a five-week successful weeks on the CBS college quiz program, College Bowl.

SUSPEND SOCCER STAR

NEW YORK (AP)—Roy Vernon, high-priced star of the Everton soccer club of England, was suspended Friday and sent home "as a disciplinary measure" by Harry Catterick, manager of the team which is leading the International Soccer League. Catterick refused to go into details except to say "I felt it to be to the boy's best interest and the best interests of the team.

Astrological Forecast

Sunday, June 4,
By CARROL RICHTER

General Tendencies: The morning finds you able to uncover ways by which you can be more social and also the best means by which you can act in a humanitarian helpfulness to all with whom you come in contact. Attending services, studies helps greatly. Then the PM is excellent for arranging artistic cultural, charm matters for the coming week. Enjoy close company.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Ideal morning to meet with good friends, particularly at church. Spend the latter part of the day and evening searching for better methods or avenues of expression that will lead to greater success in the future, via paper, TV, radio, etc.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Here is every opportunity today to do your bit in civic matters that will be very valuable and increase prestige...Forget any desires to go off on worthless sprees. Be sure to get out in P.M. to meetings, social circles. Have fun.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Make every effort to get to that fine spiritual lecture and drink in the wonderful philosophy expounded by learned man. Find a better way of life. P.M. Attend fine social functions and make an excellent impression on Big-wigs. Grow.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Enjoy the company of wonderful people within your orbit in A.M. Their quiet, spiritual nature will help you immensely. Evening is then fine for getting out and meeting new people so that you can expand your horizons. Be charming.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You can come to a real meeting of minds informally with associates or other very people in your life. Later, be sure to sit down and make out a most orderly schedule for the fine days ahead that are pregnant with success. P.M. Be loving to mate.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — If you serve others devotedly in A.M., you will get excellent results. However, be sure that you are ethical and righteous in all that you do. Dine out with partners in P.M. and have a wonderful time in host. Be charming.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — If attuned properly astrologically, you arise feeling simply wonderful and can spread anything al labout you. Tonight, be sure you think out your plans for the days ahead so that you have greater success.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — If you attend church in A.M. you will find that you can handle all family and home problems infinitely better now. Be sure you get to bed precedence over everything else. P.M. Fine for social fun and frolic. Include children.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — By studying the right literature today and reading of your paper, you will find that you will be able to co-operate far more satisfactorily with key people in your current activities. P.M. Devote time to closest ties. Retire early.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) —You can gain most in A.M. if you draw upon the experience of close ties and your own which has proven successful in the past. P.M. Schedule your coming week's activities. Then enjoy company of old cronies. Have fun by being jolly.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) —Morning is ideal for deciding definitely what your ambitions are and who are the best people to contact for sincere cooperation. Evening is fine for starting the ball rolling in a practical fashion. Meet big-wigs at social affair.

Pisces (Feb. 22 to March 20) —Attune yourself to the cosmic forces above for a richer and reflect calmly. The latter part more abundant life. Meditate, for the day and evening is then wonderful for positive action and contacting the right people. Expand.

If your child is born today .. he, or she, will be one of those delightful little people who will get into all sort of unexpected situations if you don't early give the training in ethical matters that is needed and do not have chores to perform as a disciplinary media. There is wonderful imagination here, however, and if educated properly, the years will prove more productive and affluent. Be understanding, not dictatorial with your ars progress.

BY CARROLL RICHTER
Monday, June 5, 1961.

General Tendencies: The week right by looking directly at people and speaking to you and by handling them in a very methodical and precise fashion. Be sure you. add to your surroundings and your work with a touch of art, color, culture at this time in order to be able to do your work better and/or to get the support and backing of those to whom you look for aid.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) If you concentrate seriously upon the work ahead of you you will soon be able to work out a system that will bring efficiency and success in the early future. Also, add a new outlet. P.M. Fine for romance, going to theatre, etc.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Look to those friends who are most systemsatized and success. ful for the assistance and moral support you require at this time if you are to advance more quickly in life. P.M. Fine for meeting new and interesting people. Be gay, charming.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) If you discuss problems with higher-ups any problems you may have at this time, whether of a material or personal nature, they will give you the right kind of advice you need. Dine out tonight and show charming spot with congenials and have fun.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) This is a very fine day to study new and remunerative outlets, to be very sure you do not waste any time reading French novels, as it were. Look into your paper, other media as well, and you can surely increase income and happiness.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal day to advance now if you get in touch with those who are experts in your field of endeavor and follow their advice. Also, go to a highly reputable personal adviser for any ticklish personal affair you need to handle wisely.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make it a point to know your exact relative position with those you consider to be associates. Also, strive to win over anyone who has been inimical to you in the past but is still important in your scheme of things. Be more successful.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) By changing your general attitude now, you can make your present surroundings so pleasant that others will enjoy working or being with you immensely. Life is beautiful make it so for yourself.

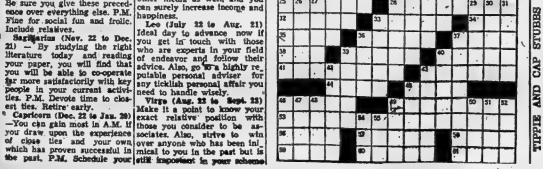
Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can certainly have a most wonderful time today if you get in touch with the persons you like the most and join with them in sports or social affairs that are mutually enjoyable. Put cares aside and be a good sport — you are a bit publish.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you are most conscientious in the handling of all family matters today, you will get excellent results and fine benefits in the future. Is your home as tidy and charming as you want it to be? Get busy, add bits of color, charm.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) Important that you be most active now, particularly where reports and written data are concerned. Ift on some practical idea also that will make a fine impression on your associates. P.M. Bring home little gifts. Put abode in fine order.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Proper handling of monetary affairs throughout the day will bring excellent benefits. Many opportunities is yours now to expand so that you can help others as you most desire to do. Plan wisely first, then full speed ahead.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) If you state your ambitions honestly to those who are close to you, whether in business or social life, they will be instrumental in helping you to attain them. P.M. Dress nicely. Then off to social affairs that are worthwhile. Grow.



If your child is born today .. he, or she, will be one of those rare people who will literally have an insight into the very thoughts and wishes of others, so be very sure you early teach to use this gift constructively .Then the chart becomes a very successful one, no matter what the forte here. However, make sure your progeny gets plenty of fresh air, rest and good food as a young ster so that the body can be built up properly.

One of Johnson's orders was a restraint against the Congress of racial Equality (C.O.R.E.) and three other Freedom Ride organizations as well as five Negro leaders and 125 persons acting in concert with them.

The injunction, in effect at least until a hearing June 12, prohibits the Freedom Rider groups from:

"Sponsoring, financing, assisting or encouraging any individual or groups of individuals in travelling in interstate commerce through or in Alabama for the purpose of testing the state or local laws as those laws relate to racial segregation."

The act against the Freedom Rider groups came at the request of attorneys for the police department. All other injunctions measures were requested by the justice department.

Pigs, cattle, turkeys and chickens called food raw materials by the Cuban ministry—make up the largest single item on the tentative budget for 1961. Just over $40,000,000 has been earmarked for the livestock and poultry, needed for breeding purposes and to improve farm output.

Industrial raw materials are second on the list, with $4,000,000 set aside. Other large items are electrical parts and tooling at $2,872,625, and food, $1,566,625.

Provision also has been made for transport vehicles such as trucks, cars and buses; airplanes for insecticide spraying and spare parts for all.

As official of the foreign trade ministry said Cuba, whose sugar market in the United States was lost last year has no dollar problem.

"We have enough dollars to pay for the things we need," he said in reply to a question.

SEEK THREE OTHERS

Three others who were riding in a group of cars that ambushed the generalissimo were still at large. One of them, Antonio Imbert, was believed to have been wounded in the roadside gun battle. The others were Salvador Estrella, an army officer, and Antonio de la Maza Vasquez.

Gen. Diaz, named as the author of the plot, also was last part in the actual slaying of Trujillo. Diaz is still at large.

Two armed forces communiques issued after the generalissimo's funeral Friday said about 20 persons already have been rounded up in connection with the plot.

The dictator's son was confirmed by parliament Saturday as chief of air, sea and land forces. He got unanimous votes of 24 to 0 in the senate and 60 to 0 in the chamber of deputies.

The plasterers' union and the laborers' union called the walkout, claiming that employers are being victimized by the building trades, who say, are not sticking to agreements signed a year ago.

Unions are demanding higher wages and charge that employers are being paid below standard union rates in the area.

The department of citizenship and immigration advertised several weeks ago the ethnic press that union activities were not sufficient reasons for immigrant workers to be deported and advised workers learn their rights in connection with employment and union activity.

Austrian president's office and checked as Kennedy and his wife arrived for a formal visit before the beginning of the summit talks.

A big crowd, many of them from Vienna's American colony, set up a loud cheer when Kennedy and Jacqueline arrived from Paris.

Scharf and top members of the neutral nation's government were on hand to greet Kennedy and his wife as their plane pianded on the airport here at mac at Vienna airport.

More than 100 young men and women at the airport waved placards at Kennedy, urging him to "Let the Iron Curtain" and "help Berlin".

DELAYED AT PARIS

Kennedy was about 10 minutes late in arriving here because of a rainy weather hitches at the Paris airport which delayed his takeoff after a crowded three-day state visit to the French capital and extensive talks with President de Gaulle on world problems.

Kennedy and de Gaulle had agreed the Western allies must stand firm in their commitment to defend West Berlin against any Soviet attempt to take over.

Kennedy said the meetings with de Gaulle enabled him to confer with Khrushchev "with more confidence."

Kennedy's plane landed at 9:30 a.m., two hours before the scheduled meeting with Khrushchev. He bounced down the stairway as soon as the jet rolled to a stop. Rain was falling.

The president called the big-two conference a "most important meeting in an effort to improve the prospects for more peaceful relations" between Kennedy as the first American president ever to come into this historic capital on a visit.

Scherf said he and millions of other Europeans "wish that the talks here will have real results."

pants did not participate in the attack.

When the first car blocked his passage, the chauffeur yelled: "Let's turn around, Jefe."

But Trujillo replied: "We are going to fight."

The officer got out of the car, steadied himself against the right front bumper and blazed away with his revolver.

Trujillo soon fell mortally wounded. The chauffeur was still inside the car using two light machine - guns, one after the other.

Shortly afterward the chauffeur was unceremoniously dragged from a creaking head wound. Left for dead, he awoke several minutes later and was discovered by rural police who found him bleeding from the gunfire.

The chauffeur was taken to hospital and underwent an immediate operation. Bullets had entered his left upper right shoulder. He also suffered a wound in another part of his left leg and received superficial wounds in the abdomen and head.

The chauffeur, father of seven children, said the attack as merciless and he said Trujillo had no chance to surrender.

From the first outburst of fire, he said, the assailants shot to kill.

He expressed hopes that "another Trujillo will stay at the head of the government."

HEADGEAR HASSLE — Victoria city council, looking to enhance the city's English flavor, is once again considering asking police downtown officials to wear the British-style bobby helmet (inset). But spokesmen for the police are opposed to the change, preferring the flat-topped peaked hats. Their contract specifies that they must be consulted on any uniform change. (CP Photo).

Aldermen Want Victoria's Policemen to Again Look Like London's Bobbies

By TOM WATT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VICTORIA (CP) — City council has revived the idea of getting Victoria policemen back into British - style bobby helmets.

It appears to have about as much chance of success as it would have fitting patrolmen into size-five dancing pumps.

One of the first acts of the policemen's union when it was formed in 1947 was to get a clause in its contract that any change of uniform must be approved by the men.

The bobby helmets were the chief reason for that clause.

This, however, does not deter the city fathers from renewing their efforts every so often to make the local constabulary more like their British counterparts.

Victoria's reputation as a "little bit of olde England" is the magnet that attracts thousands of tourists here each summer.

All efforts to enhance this image are seriously considered by civic authorities. But police draw the line at headgear, preferring the flat - topped, peaked hats familiar in most Canadian cities.

NOT GIVING UP

Commissioner William Hamilton notes that motorcycle police wear safety helmets and envisages that the high bobby helmets would be impractical for constables in patrol cars.

But there were a few men in the tourist areas of the city who could wear bobby hats and the commissioner planned to discuss the possibility with the union.

"They make us look like damn fools," said one large constable with a short temper.

When police won their battle to get rid of the helmets 14 years ago, it was with the provision that two officers patrolling the downtown section retain them. Two years later the union managed to have this provision eliminated.

The issue came up again recently when Alderman Geoffrey Edgelow said in council police should be made to wear the hats and if they didn't like it "they don't have to be policemen."

Police chief John Blackrock said "I personally prefer the helmets but the men don't like them much."

OPPOSED TO CHANGE

Mayor Percy Scurrah suggested that perhaps if the chief asked the men in a "friendly way" they would see the council's point of view.

The following day a spokesman for the policeman's union replied:

"We will not tolerate any change of uniform. It is clearly set out in the union contract that any change must be approved by us. The men don't like being a showpiece for tourists. The hats are easily knocked off in a scuffle and the men feel they are made a laughing stock by local citizens. They don't feel they get any respect through wearing them."

The police got some support from a citizen who wrote to council suggesting that if it was so anxious for tourists, its members should dress in traditional English style with tricorn hats and fur-trimmed robes of office and let the tourists take photos of them.

If the aldermen don't like it, he said, "well they don't have to be city aldermen."

History May Look Back On 1961 as Year Montreal Started to Defeat Crime

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The year 1961 may be remembered as the date Montreal began to win its battle against crime.

The latest skirmish is being fought by a reform administration. But this time, instead of the well-publicized probes and inquiries, a different strategy is being tried.

The present civic administration, elected last year on the reform platform of Mayor Jean Drapeau, has called in outside experts to make an intensive examination of the city's police force.

The experts aren't looking for corruption, but inefficiency. Their aim isn't to make the force more honest, but more able to meet the challenges of modern crime.

The examination began last January when Cmdr. Andrew Way of New Scotland Yard and Andre Gaubiac, retired director-general of the Paris Surete, arrived in Montreal.

HULL MAN JOINS

In May they were joined by G. Adrien Robert, chief of the force in Hull, Que., and the man favored to be Montreal's next police director.

Their final report, with proposals for organization, is said to be presented some time this year.

If there was any doubt that something had to be done, it was dispelled by statistics released at the end of last year.

Charges under the Criminal Code totalled 7,142, an increase of 30 per cent over 1958; there were 72 holdups or attempted holdups of banks and credit unions compared with 43 in 1958; armed robberies climbed to 632 from 542, and $336,530 was stolen from banks and credit unions compared with $133,750 the previous year.

Murders dropped to 19 from 24 in 1958 — A record year—but the number of assault cases rose to 106 from 90 and there were at least four killings outside city limits which police were certain had been planned in Montreal.

SHOCKING INCREASE

Compared with figures for a decade ago, the 1960 record was even more shocking. During that period the population rose by one-fifth but the number of armed holdups increased to 56 from eight and the number of armed robberies to 536 from 60.

Protection rackets spawned much of the violence in 1960. The growing traffic in barbiturates, "goofballs"—was behind many of the armed robberies and thefts with violence. The growth of a prostitution lottery ring was said to be connected with several shootings in 1960 and early 1961.

Protection rackets reached their height in the summer and early fall of 1960 and centred on The Main, in Montreal and call the gaudy section of St. Lawrence Boulevard between St. Catherine Street and Craig Street in east-central Montreal.

Operating among down-and-out hotels and barely respectable nightclubs on the neon-lit Main, they were said to have arranged threatened waiters and bartenders with physical harm and proprietors with property damage if they refused to pay weekly tribute.

GOOFBALLS FOR SALE

One exasperated judge said the denizens of The Main—both attackers and victims—lived by "the law of the jungle."

And it was chiefly on The Main that the illegal traffic in goofballs was conducted. Police said they could be bought almost as easily as beer and French fries.

Lottery tickets, usually paying off on the time of the final goal in a National Hockey League game, were sold by operator-operators and cab drivers. It was big business and it carried its share of underworld violence.

This was the background against which Cmdr. Way and Mr. Gaubiac went to work. They have been a notably close-mouthed about conclusions but from their interim report to the civic executive committee in March and from statements by civic officials, a fairly clear picture can be drawn of some recommendations.

They think more of the 3,000 men on the force should be walking beats. Their view is that the "cop on the beat" is still the most potent anti-crime factor. Estimates are that by replacing policemen doing clerical jobs by civilians and setting up a special auxiliary force to ticket cars for parking offences, up to 300 policemen can be released for other duties.

URGE DISPERSAL

In the long run, they feel the force needs more men and more highly qualified men.

Other recommendations that Montreal's 300-man detective bureau, at present crammed into downtown headquarters, be deployed at divisional stations throughout the city.

They urge that about 600 street phones connected with police stations be installed throughout the city and that a two - way identification system be tween headquarters and sub-stations be set up.

The proposals have prompted grumbling in police ranks. The idea of putting more men on the beat brought the comment: "The horse and buggy days are here again."

The monthly publication of the Policemen's Benevolent Association complained there was no need to bring in experts; that the answer is to do what is done by men on the force.

MONTREALERS ARMOED

And the regular force was reported "busy" as police chiefs recommend abolishing the system of appointing uniformed police to the detective bureau on a seniority basis.

But perhaps the toughest opposition anyone meets trying to clean up crime in Montreal comes from Montrealers themselves.

Ronald Cheffins, a Vancouver native who is associate professor of criminology at McGill University, described the situation this way:

"People here are almost immune by all to crime. The man on the street seems to think a bit of crime makes the city more cosmopolitan and dignified."

But he was optimistic that a change was in the air. On both the civic and provincial level, Mr. Cheffins said, but a trend towards, a new level of morality."

LIBERALS ACCUSE

The full amount from six countries and the World Bank exceeds $2,000,000,000. But Liberal Leader Pearson said the Canadian total is misleading since part has already been allocated by Parliament for aid to Asia under the regular Colombo Plan program.

Fisheries Minister MacLean said some 30 Russian fishing boats are operating off the Newfoundland coast—but well out to sea.

THERE ARE TWO SIDES TO EVERY STORY!! The ... side may not be as pleasant as yours, but considerate, and always observe "No Smoking" signs posted in the hospital. They are there for the safety of the patients.

VISITS SHOULD BE ENJOYED - NOT ENDURED

for the welfare of our patients, please observe good visiting practices.

Hospitals Hit Back At Thoughtless Visitors

TORONTO—Beneath a banner bearing the slogan "visits should be enjoyed - not endured", the public hospitals of Ontario are moving into concerted action against their common enemy, the bad hospital visitor. Hospital administrators, long plagued with this problem, agree that only a small percentage of visitors are involved, but they also agree that this aberrative minority have a nuisance value out of all proportion to their numbers.

Previous attempts to convince the thoughtless few that visiting rules exist for the benefit of the patients have not been conspicuously successful. Now, backed by their provincial association, Ontario's hospitals are on the warpath and they hope that an eye-catching combination of humor and horse sense will do the trick.

The operation shots well be fired shortly with ammunition supplied by the Ontario Hospital Association - a series of colorful posters aimed at wiping out four choice targets. "Five Sides To Every Story" lampoons the character who insists upon sharing his smoking pleasure with his ailing host, and others under fire are the folk who turn a bedside visit into a neighborhood reunion; the clammy bed-sitter who carries togetherness too far, and the Happy Wanderer who tries every private room before the right one.

Mr. Stanley W. Martin, executive secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Hospital Association, emphasizes that although hospitals are using humor as their weapon, this in no way lessens the seriousness of the problem. "Hospitals are deeply concerned about the visiting situation," says Mr. Martin, "because of its very real effect on the provision of good patient care. Visiting hours and regulations may vary from hospital to hospital, but in every case they are designed to suit the facilities of the hospital concerned and the best interests of its patients."

Mr. Martin, on the other hand, makes it clear that hospitals have no wish to discourage hospital visiting as such. "Most visitors," says Mr. Martin, "are considerate and well-behaved, and from experience we know that a good visit acts as a tonic to the patient. Even those who do not always follow the rules probably mean well, and we hope that if they can recognize themselves in these posters they will quickly see the error of their ways."

sination of dictator Rafael L. Trujillo. These reports also indicated that some anti - Trujillo forces may be in control of areas outside Ciudad Trujillo, the Dominican capital.

U.S. policy makers were concerned lest Trujillo's successor mold a ruthless regime which is anti-American and—with or without Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's help—pro - Moscow.

The United States Friday asked the Organization of American States to send quickly a watchdog committee to the Caribbean country in an effort to stop extreme repressive measures there.

Dispatches from Ciudad Trujillo tell of a brutal drive by the ruling Trujillo family to knock out any suspected opponents in a attempt to re-consolidate power in the aftermath of Tuesday's assassination.

Japanese Business Circles Want to Trade With China

By WILLIAM GARSON

TOKYO (Reuters) — Increasing pressure is being put on the Japanese government to announce a firm policy towards mainland China.

Japanese business circles want to trade with China.

The "intellectual" element want cultural ties with China.

Many Japanese conservatives believe that they should take the initiative before the opposition Socialists take it from them and make political gains out of it.

Japan's close relations with the United States have been an immediate obstacle to government action. Now, more and more Japanese reports have appeared suggesting that Washington would not mind if Japan made some move towards better relations with Peking.

WORRY OVER VOTE

Japan's big worry is how to vote when the question of China's membership of the United Nations comes before the UN General Assembly again. They have to decide whether to wait for the U.S. lead once more, and risk losing diplomatic and domestic initiative.

Members of a foreign policy committee of the ruling Liberal-Democratic party have suggested that Japan should act independently of the U.S. in the next vote. They argue that the new Japanese approach should be to submit some kind of compromise plan, or to abstain from voting.

Committee members also suggested a government - to - government tative be sent to Peking to test China's latest reactions.

In Peking, the Chinese continue to state three principles which Japan must observe before China would consider opening diplomatic relations. They are:

1. That, the Japanese government should not adopt a hostile policy towards China.
2. That it should not take part in an "intrigue" to create two Chinas.
3. That it should not interfere in efforts aimed at restoring normal relations.

ATTACK U.S. TREATY

The Chinese argue that it is an "hostile" act for Japan to maintain its treaty with the United States. Support for the Formosa government means that Japan is supporting the "two-China intrigue."

On the Japanese side, Zentaro Kosaka, the foreign minister, has put forward three conditions which China should observe before the Japanese government feels that diplomatic relations can be established. These are:

1. Non-interference in the domestic affairs of either country.
2. Mutual respect for each country's position.
3. Promotion of trade to the benefit of both countries.

Fatal Accident Toll Amongst Worst In Years

Black Weekend Sees Big Rash of Drownings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A rash of drownings and car crashes hit Canada with one of its bloodiest weekend fatality tolls in years during the weekend.

At least 71 persons died accidentally, 36 in traffic mishaps and 26 on the country's waterways, three 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday.

The toll for last weekend was 46.

A Canadian Press survey listed, in addition to traffic fatalities and drownings, two fires that killed four people, five deaths by miscellaneous means and one case of exposure. Include slayings, known suicides or industrial accidents.

The weekend toll came when thousands of persons headed for holiday spots as the country enjoyed summer-like weather.

Ontario topped the list with 20 deaths, 17 traffic and eight drownings. Quebec had seven drownings and three traffic deaths. Quebec 11 fatalities; Ontario 37; Manitoba 5 (11); Saskatchewan 2 (2); New Brunswick 2 (1); Manitoba 2 (0); Prince Edward Island 0 (1).

Newfoundland reported one traffic death in a rowmobile, another killed by a power shovel boom and a boy aged 32 months drowned in a bath tub. Nova Scotia was an electrocution in Quebec, one fire and two miscellaneous deaths in Quebec.

Details dead:

Ralph Hatch, 65, Stouffville, Friday when his car collided with a train at Toronto.

Debbie Thorburn, 2, drowned Friday when she wandered away from her parents' home on Tee Pee Island near Kenora.

Three Wild sisters, Debra Ann, 13, Gwynneth, 11, and Cynthia, 9, drowned Saturday when their car plunged into a gravel pit in Cedar Springs, Ont., 15 miles south of Chatham.

Marybeth Baker, 16, Friday when struck by a car near Bobcaygeon, about 30 miles northwest of Peterborough.

Robert Coady, 12, Saturday when his bicycle collided with a car near Perth Sunday.

Donald Kursu, 2, Binghampton, N.Y., drowned in Lake Dalhousie near Perth Sunday.

OPP Constable Transferred For Gambling

TORONTO (CP)—A Supreme Court jury today heard evidence that a member of the Ontario Provincial Police anti-gambling squad was transferred to other duties because it was alleged he was gambling at a Toronto gambling house.

Sgt. John Anderson, head of the squad, said the officer is still with the force.

He was testifying at the trial of Joseph McDermott, Vincent Feeley and former OPP constable Robert Wright on charges of bribing police for tipoffs to raids on gambling joints.

He identified the man only as a constable Kobelka and did not indicate his present duties.

As the second week of the bribery trial opened, Sgt. Anderson expressed faith in previous testimony of Insp. George Scott who gave evidence last week that he acted as double agent only on behalf of OPP superiors in gathering information about police tipoffs to gambling houses.

Focus of the trial has been on a fat diary in which Scott, for several weeks, last year recorded conversations with the accused. He contended that Wright paid him to stip warnings to McDermott.

"I believe that what Qonst. Scott-arvole was the truth," the sergeant said on cross-examination.

However, he said that some of the things told to Scott undoubtedly were not true.

In other evidence, Anderson testified today that during a seven-week surveillance of the Vets club at nearby Cooksville, he and other members of his squad watched "repeated large amounts" of money change hands in dice games.

Three games had been legal, with no house takeoff. The Vets was one of the clubs alleged to have been getting police tipoffs through McDermott.

Two Charged With Murder After Party

TORONTO (CP) — An argument over relative merits of judo and boxing preceded the stabbing of a 25-year-old former navy guard at a young people's party here Saturday night, informants said today.

Norman Saunders of suburban Scarborough, discharged from the navy last September, died of several knife wounds and police today were holding three men, two charged with murder.

The men charged—Dennis Noland, 20, of Scarborough, and Reginald Mark Rowe, 21, of Scarborough—were arrested Sunday night at Blind River, 300 miles west of Sudbury.

Two others in an automobile with them also were held. They were William Ridley, 18, charged as an accessory after the fact, and Alexander MacFarland, 21, of Guelph, a hitchhiker, who was detained as a material witness.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Colder spread southward from Hudson Bay into Northern Ontario this morning, dropping temperatures into the 30s and 40s in central to readings in the 50s and 60s in central and Southern Ontario. Scattered showers and thunderstorms are occurring along the leading edge of the colder weather.

Maximum temperatures in Southern Ontario Tuesday are expected at more seasonable levels in the 60s and 70s compared to today's readings in the mid-80s. Partly cloudy and cool weather will prevail over central and northern sections of the province.

CCF MEMBER SAYS ELECTIONS COST TOO MUCH

Commons Warned To Cut Expenses

OTTAWA (CP) — Political parties shelled out "fantastic amounts" in the last federal election "to have candidates elected and future campaigns will become more and more expensive, the Commons was warned Saturday.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) said his prediction was based on CCF advertising rates provided by the Commons committee on broadcasting.

"If the expenses in their regard are an indication — the totals are rather fantastic," he said during debate on the spending estimates of the department of the secretary of state.

Candidates in the last federal election spent more than $2,000,000 in individual constituency campaigns.

"I am convinced that there must be a hidden cost somewhere which, if added to this total, would at least double or triple the figure," he said.

Also to be figured was the cost of the national campaigns carried on by the parties such as the full-page ads in newspapers.

One way out was to pay the cost of campaigns out of the public treasury, Mr. Fisher suggested, in this way a ceiling would be set and the amount of campaigning cut down.

WONDERFUL ALOUD

Mr. Fisher also wondered aloud how long after the 1962 census it will be the chief electoral officer to change the constituency lines according to redistribution, deliver instructions to returning officers "and all that sort of thing."

Mr. Dorion said it took 10 months to get new maps ready. But the electoral officer was ready for a vote two months after the census was taken — the necessary redistribution bill.

Mr. Fisher then did some fast calculating aloud. It took 10 to 11 months to get the constituency lines according to census and then two more months in which to have everything prepared for the election.

"I think if we have the pol-

Kennedy Plans Broadcast Tuesday Night

LONDON (Reuters) — President Kennedy will broadcast a report to the people of the United States Tuesday evening from the White House office on his talks with Premier Khrushchev, it was announced here today.

White House Secretary Pierre Salinger announced the report would be carried by the three major U.S. television networks at 7 p.m. EDT.

Communist, Neutralist, Western Spokesmen All Pleased With Talks

LONDON (Reuters) — Communist, neutralist and Western nations were in agreement today in expressing satisfaction over the meeting between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Communist newspapers hailed the "good start" made in relations between the two men. Officials in Western European capitals saw encouraging factors emerging from the weekend talks and the agreement to keep in touch on world problems.

In Bonn, a spokesman said the West German government believed that as a result of the meeting the Soviets would not make any dew moves against Berlin for some time.

In Paris, diplomatic quarters said the talks may succeed in getting the 14-power Laos talks back on the rails in Geneva.

Govt. Should Accept Full Responsibility for Monetary Policies Says Economist

SIMCOE (CP)—The next federal budget speech should state clearly that the government accepts full responsibility for monetary policy, Toronto Economist Walter Gordon said today.

Then, he said, it should declare the government will reduce interest rates and not return to "the tight-money policy that was pursued from the fall of 1958 until quite recently."

He offered the budgetary suggestions to Finance Minister Fleming in an address to the Rotary Club of this western Ontario town.

Text of his remarks was released to the press in advance of delivery.

"The minister of finance and the prime minister have been trying to escape responsibility for the monetary policy by blaming it on the Bank of Canada," he said.

"To say that the Bank of Canada, and not the government, is solely or even primarily responsible for such an important area of policy flies in the face of our whole system of parliamentary democracy."

Mr. Gordon said the optimistic predictions in the 1956 reports of the royal commission on banking and finance, many of which he was chairman, has not been borne out in recent years.

The optimism had been based, among other things, on the country's rapidly rising population, probable increased demand for our exports, growing diversity of the economy and high and steady employment.

"And I say, we believed sincerely and correctly as things turned out, that Canada could, count on the kind of government policies that are designed to stimulate and encourage economic growth and development throughout the country and the maintenance of high levels of employment."

"Instead of moving ahead in step with the rest of the world the country has been losing ground as indicated by "serious" unemployment, reduced per-capita national product in terms of constant dollars, "sluggish" economy and "a feeling of frustration and irritation in the air."

Laotian Parley Delegates Encouraged by Vienna Talks

GENEVA (Reuters) — Delegates to the 14-power conference on Laos assembled here today after a brief recess in a mood of cautious optimism springing from the "Kennedy-Khrushchev talks in Vienna.

Both sides met at the noon Communist delegates Sunday to clarify matters concerning Laos in a joint communique issued by President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev at the end of the talks Saturday.

The two leaders reaffirmed their support of international agreement to solve the neutrality and independence of Laos. The communique said that "in this connection they have recognized the importance of an effective cease-fire."

A Soviet spokesman here said last night the communique was "very important" for the future of the Laos conference. He said "we trust" the Soviet-American stand at Vienna "will help enable the conference to get back to work."

A spokesman of the right-wing Laotian delegation termed the Vienna communique as "a good thing" which might speed up a really effective ceasefire.

The negotiations here stalled on the question of the effectiveness of cease-fire in the Laotian civil war.

Conference sources pointed out that the Vienna communique did not clearly indicate that the U.S. and Britain had agreed to demand that a cease - fire be effective in Laos before the conference continued.

The Communists said a real cease-fire existed in Laos and that the conference should get to grips with more important matters.

Kennedy, Macmillan Agree On Western Stand on Berlin

LONDON — President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan today announced "full agreement" on the need for maintaining Western rights in Berlin.

The agreement was announced in a communique issued after Kennedy briefed Macmillan for three hours on his summit talks with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

It said the two Western leaders reached "full agreement on the necessity of maintaining the rights and obligations of the allied governments in Berlin."

The president and the prime minister also "noted with satisfaction" the agreement announced between Kennedy and Khrushchev on the need for an effective cease-fire in Laos.

Kennedy and Macmillan said the Vienna summit agreement should lead to progress at the deadlocked conference in Geneva on the establishment of a neutral and independent Laos.

The communique said today's meeting between the president and the British leader enabled them "to continue the close personal contact" begun in Washington two months ago when Macmillan had his first official meeting with Kennedy.

WILL HOLD DEBATE

NEW YORK (AP) — Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, and Soviet Premier Khrushchev's son-in-law will be questioned on June 24 in a nationally televised debate on freedom of the press. The National Broadcasting Company announced the debate would be broadcast over the NBC-TV network. Khrushchev's son-in-law, Aleksei Adzhubei, is chief editor of Izvestia, Soviet government publication.

MONEY POLICY CHANGES URGED BY BANK PRES.

Excess of Rigidity Claim of Speaker

VANCOUVER (CP)—Increase in the money supply, a more stable value for the Canadian dollar and an increase in Canada's foreign exchange reserves were suggested today by F. G. Lambert, president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank in an address to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Speaking to the opening session of the association's annual meeting, Mr. Lambert said the general monetary policies which Canadian authorities have been pursuing are essentially the right ones, but perhaps there has been an excess of rigidity."

Changes in the policy could apply during the last five years or so have been largely concentrated in the period from the summer of 1958 and the fall of 1960. In present circumstances, the Bank of Canada had allowed very little growth in the money supply during the half-decade.

"This," said Mr. Lambert, "contrasts significantly with the policies followed in the United States, which permitted a persistent increase in credit has been permitted throughout the period and where money supply has also noticeably eased early in 1960."

THE IMPORTANT

In reviewing the exchange rate on the Canadian dollar, Mr. Lambert said that "the single policy field which is as important for promoting a better balance between exports and imports and for providing employment opportunities."

For more than 10 years Canada had allowed the rate to fluctuate freely under market influences but "there is increasing questioning of this policy because of disappointment in it—it has not provided the results we had hoped for, particularly in the last five years."

A high exchange rate not only affected exporters adversely but gave advantages to imports and to capital movements.

Mr. Lambert said: "We should carefully review our exchange rate policy. Perhaps a return to a fixed rate is advisable. This would create some problems at first but it might improve the best solution."

DRAWS CONCLUSION

Mr. Lambert commented that Canada's foreign exchange reserves have remained relatively unchanged during the last eight years "while our foreign indebtedness has risen by the value of our merchandise trade has about doubled and our national product has risen almost two-thirds. A somewhat higher level of stocks in order to maintain the $40,500,000,000 to $41,000,000,000 rate for 1962 which would be helpful in order to reduce employment to say three per cent of the labor force."

Mr. Lambert's comments were contained in a text made available to the press in advance of delivery.

K's Courteous, Frank And Firm In Their Talks

Only Accord Reached On Laotian Situation

VIENNA (AP) — Premier Khrushchev shook to the hard lines of his anti - Western policies during his talks here with President Kennedy. But U.S. officials hope that as a result of the Vienna conference the Soviet leader may yet modify his course.

Kennedy is reported to have told the Soviet leader emphatically that if he tries a showdown over West Berlin, the allied powers will defend the city. He warned Khrushchev against miscalculating Western resolution.

More broadly Kennedy sought to assure the Soviet leader that the United States retreats in Laos and Cuba, the United States intends to fulfill its defense commitments to other countries around the world. The president left Vienna Sunday night nourishing the hope that Khrushchev will weigh his words seriously.

The end of the informal summit meeting left without answer the big question: What kind of an impact did the 44-year-old Communist boss make in his first time diplomacy, make on the veteran, tough-minded 66-year-old Kennedy?

MADE NO ULTIMATUM

Kennedy was reported encouraged by the fact that Khrushchev discussed his aims for Berlin without issuing an ultimatum to the president with their urgency. He did not give any ultimatum, they said, on either withdrawal of U.S., British and French forces from the city by a specific date.

Nevertheless, Khrushchev has indicated he will make a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany before the year. The treaty presumably would recognize East German sovereignty and would bar lines from West Germany to the city 110 miles inside Communist East German border. If the East Germans tried to enforce their treaty rights to control allied military traffic, a shooting war might result.

The most clearly discouraging outcome of the conference, from the viewpoint of the free world, was the failure to get any clear test ban conference at Geneva.

Khrushchev suggested to Kennedy that nuclear test negotiations be resumed at Geneva. But the president would not be compel Kennedy to consider soon whether

DEATH TOLL RISES

ZANZIBAR (Reuters) — The death toll rose to more than 40 in Zanzibar's bloodiest day during elections on this Indian Ocean island last Thursday. Some 306 persons have been injured in the violence, mainly supporters of Zanzibar's two main political parties.

VIENNA (CP) — A first sketchy, I'm puzzled on the Premier Khrushchev-President Kennedy talks is that the United States president has made little headway in his bid to fortify the free world by personal diplomacy.

The initial portents are not particularly encouraging. The brevity of the official communique and the refusal of the official spokesmen to go beyond it hardly wrap the meetings in an aura of reconciliativeness.

Kennedy wanted something more than platitudes. His decision to accept the bilateral summit earlier than originally announced has been caused with the intention of winning a breathing space in the cold war.

Such a respite is needed. While the nuclear deadlock continues, well, its pleasant rolling out of a full-scale war, the general position of the West continues to deteriorate.

Using the methods of subversion, propaganda and violence, or just by sitting still, the Russians have managed to nibble away at the periphery of the free world. In various ways this is true of Southeast Asia, but more true, in Cuba, Laos, South Viet Nam and Iran.

Kennedy wants to change the present U.S. system of relying on bases and armies to help resist "client" nations. Often this system has bolstered some of the U.S.-sponsored regimes have lacked popular support. Now the president seeks to attack the roots of the problem by fostering social and economic reforms within these countries.

But this is a long-term process and time is against the West.

If Kennedy has failed in his efforts to persuade the Russian premier to accept a set of ground rules for the cold war, he has failed to get any new measures. Force obviously is the last resort.

One possible course is to call for greater help from his allies. But the failure to secure the booby-in-looking president seemed a major figure during a heavy burden for the world.

Junior Hockey Operator Dies

WINNIPEG (CP) — Crosby (Pat) Lyon, veteran junior hockey operator and jack-of-all-trades, died here in hospital Sunday. He was in his 60's.

Lyon owned and operated the Winnipeg Monarchs for more than two decades and the Manitoba Junior Hockey League club won the Memorial Cup in 1946 in matches with Toronto St. Michaels.

This was the only time Lyon's hockey teams won the coveted title, but he never stopped trying. Only in the last two weeks ago he was enthusiastically discussing plans for the 1961-62 season.

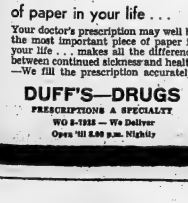
Albert College Baccalaureate Service Held Sunday Morning

By GLADYS WARD

"Who do you think you are?" George M. Morrison, B. Comm. B. D. put this question to the students of Albert College who had assembled in Bridge St. United Church on Sunday morning for the 104th Baccalaureate service. "Unless you are asking yourselves this question, there is something wrong with you. You are bound to ask it as you are on the threshhold of going out into the world. You will be answered by the world: you are the consumers of things we produce; you are the young men and women of unlimited wants. What are your dreams this morning? Do they include a fine home in suburbia? A fine car, or perhaps two? The production problem has been solved and now we must expand to keep you as potential customers. Hubby and opening the hidden persuaders are at work all day. If this is what you are, then this conception is directly at variance with what this church and the Bible say you are. We know we were created by God for His service, and for the good of our fellowman and this varies from the modern conception.



The academic procession entered the church with the clergymen leading, followed by members of the Board of Governors, the faculty in gowns and hoods, the senior graduating class in blue and gray gowns and mortarboards, the girl students in their long white graduation gowns and the male students in navy suits with the black and gold school tie.

SUITABLE MUSIC

Suitable music was offered by the choir with S. Alec Gordon at the organ and Robert Reid as choir director. The processional hymn, "Holy, Holy, O Lord of Our Fathers" was sung by the choir. Mr. Robert Reid was soloist for Mendelssohn's "Then Shall the Righteous Shine Forth." The organ prelude was "Prayers in the Night" by Franck. The postlude was the "Allegro from Sixth Symphony."

During the service, Mr. J. G. Demeza, chairman of the executive of the Albert College Board paid tribute to Principal A. K. MacKenzie, B.A., D.D. "Baccalaureate service is a significant day in the life of the college, but it is more so today in the life of the Principal. This marks the last of the Baccalaureate service we have had as he leaves to take on other duties. It is also the twenty-fifth anniversary of his participation as a Christian minister. It was sought for by the Board of Governors to lead the life of the college, and he has given distinguished service as Principal. As he leaves to take on newer and broader responsibilities, as Superintendent of Home Missions in Toronto, we ask that he leave with our wishes, congratulations and prayers on behalf of Albert College."

Who Will Be Next Sunday Morning

Dr. MacKenzie responded that he had had the most cordial relations with the Board, and with a full heart thanked them for their exceedingly kind words. He had the warmest appreciation of the words spoken in regard to his service. In a written message, Dr. MacKenzie wished the best success. Rev. Rev. A. Alastair Sim, S.T.M., every success, and the most happy relationships with the churches of this city that it had been his good fortune to enjoy.

Rev. Harry M. Davis minister of the church, was seated in the service by Judge J. C. Anderson, chairman of the Board, who read the Scripture lesson.

Dr. MacKenzie then introduced the guest speaker, Rev. George Morrison, who was well known in this community, having been for a number of years the minister of the Bridge St. United Church. Mr. Morrison was welcomed by the congregation with the hearty applause usually given to an old friend.

Mr. Morrison's address was based on the verse of Psalm 8, "When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars which thou ordained; What is man, that Thou art mindful of him?". Mr. Morrison pointed out Commander Shepherd's experience into space when one exclaimed "Wonderful" followed by: how insignificant I am." Professor Lowell who had been probing outer space, said "I could not understand or comprehend the vastness of God's magnificent universe. The Christian people in revelations from God know that they were created in God's image for His service, and received that we were created by God for his service.

NEED IS GREAT

"There are three areas where this need is particularly acute and relevant. Our own need is first, and we must answer the question of who do I think I am? Until you can say, I can achieve through Jesus Christ what I was intended for me, you will be leading meaningless lives, lost in the midst of material things, whose glamour is lost so quickly. It will not be easy for it will be leading you away from your natural desires, but it will give purpose to your lives.

"Obviously the world's need is great. There has never been a day or age when we have had such opportunities as now. A subconscious guilt people are living at this very minute. There are some incongruous things in this world of ours. I am not sure some way to link the starving people with our own life in the West? The need is tremendous, and we know we have the power in the Lord to tackle the need.

"The church's need is great. We need to know more than ever as the disciples did. The word of God goes unread because we have not the trained dedicated servants to send here and there. Young people are invariably unable to find correlation between religion and work because their needs are extremely hazy. Keep close to God's work and to Him. Somehow the thing that seems impossible now will open up and become possible with Christ's help. May you go out into with all its tribulations, knowing you can overcome them with the light of His Word."

Skids Into Pole At Devil's Elbow

An early morning Scarboro motorist came to grief on the Devil's Elbow on Dundas Street today when he skidded out of control on the pavement and slammed into a hydro pole. He damaged his car to the extent of an estimated $175.

Police said the out-of-town motorist was southbound along Dundas Street shortly after the street flusher had passed. He applied his brakes and immediately went out of control on the wet pavement and ended up against the hydro pole. He was not injured.

City and District Wolf Cubs Hold Fairgrounds Cubaree

More than 600 Belleville and district Wolf Cubs and Tenderpads, including about 35 groups, enjoyed sunny cool weather Saturday afternoon at the annual Cubaree at the fair grounds.

Chairman of the Cubaree committee was Percy Pickering of the 1st St. Thomas' group, and the 1st St. Thomas committees in the district delegated at least two Tenderpad members to act as judges, which Cubmasters and assistants helped. Following the opening take on the boys, encouraging the lads to participate in all 12 sporting events and keeping pack records up to date on each boy's score in qualified for the athlete's badge.

Highlight of the afternoon arrived shortly before 5 p.m. when the local Coca Cola company and its Dixie Queen ice cream people arrived with trucks loaded with refreshments, a fitting climax to a rather strenuous afternoon for all participants, young and old alike.

The local St. John Ambulance Brigade tended a first-aid tent on the north side of the sports field for the use of grandstand but were called upon to treat only one or two minor cases of scraped knees or winded athletes.

THERE'S TO DO

There was plenty for the boys to do throughout the 3½-hour Cubaree. The most strenuous event was a 10 foot rope climb which certainly weeded the men from the boys. But while every boy was not expected to successfully complete all the events, it was surprising to learn that many of them had gone over once and had started a second tour when the refreshments arrived. All of the usual carnival throw and catch, races, high jumps, broad jumps, rope climbs—were based on the requirements in the Wolf Cub handbook for the athlete's badge.

While New Chums and Tenderpad Cubs were not far enough along in their Cub work to try for the badge (they had to have at least their first star), they were allowed to enter the events and were also to participate in a tug-of-war and relay race.

The Cubaree opened and closed with the Grand Howl, a rousing sound, especially when it came from the throats of more than 600 boys between the ages of eight and 11.

Remarks heard after the Cubaree indicated that the boys and adult supervisors from the Percy Pickering and his committee had learned a great amount of things in the many long hours of their "labors" there and the tremendous amount of effort they put into making the 1961 Cubaree something that more and more young boys—and many adults —will remember for many years to come.

Gerald Laffin Of Queensboro Still Missing
Provincial police and residents of the Madoc township area are still searching in the dense bush area around Queensboro for Gerald Laffin, 74-year-old Queensboro man who has been missing from his home since last Thursday afternoon.

The organized search for the elderly man was commenced on Friday and since that time as many as 200 persons have been engaged in the search.

The area where Mr. Laffin is believed missing is densely wooded and abounds with swamps and water, filled quarries.

The Black River which runs through the area has been dragged, while Sunday an RCAF helicopter, from the Trenton Air Station was pressed into service without results.

Practised 28 Years

Dr. 'Ted' Kennedy, Popular Physician and Surgeon, Dies

Dr. Edward Gordon Mathew (Ted) Kennedy of "Kenwil Farm," R.R. 1 Belleville, surgeon and physician in this city for 28 years, veteran of the Second World War and star in Intercollegiate football, died early this morning in Belleville General Hospital. He had been ill with a heart condition for some time and critically ill for the past ten days.

Dr. Kennedy was born in Sarnia, 56 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kennedy. He was a brilliant student in the provincial School and Collegiate institute, of that city and upon graduation entered the University of Western Ontario as a medical student and graduated as a medical doctor in 1932. He came to Belleville in that year and took over the practice of Dr. Bert Faulkner and continued in his profession until he retired through illness in October of last year after 25 years of faithful service to the public.

When the second World War broke, Dr. Kennedy gave his services to the Medical Corps and served in England, North Africa, Italy and Sicily with distinction in the Medical Corps he represented. Immediately upon discharge he returned to this city to again take up his professional life and became a valued member of the community.

FOOTBALL STAR

During his university career Dr. Kennedy played football for the team and became an outstanding star as a halfback in that rugged sport. He was a pointsized halfback and earned the nickname "Pee Wee Kennedy" which became a byword among the sportswriters of his day. He travelled with the team from his halfback spot drew the acclaim of the football fans across the province and his name will be always linked with the glory of the Blue and Gold. He never lost his love for sport as he followed during his early years in this city he gave of his time and ability in the instruction of the youngsters.

In later life his love was transferred to thoroughbred horses in the backstep breed. He established "Kenwil Farm" on the Rednersville Road overlooking the Bay of Quinte and his handsome thoroughbreds became a showplace. Dr. Kennedy made many renovations in his comfortable home. He purchased the finest stock that was available and his thoroughbreds won many ribbons and trophies at the various fairs and horse shows. He took a lot of interest in his horses and enjoyed every recreation of driving and caring for his charges.

HAD MANY FRIENDS

Dr. Kennedy enjoyed the confidence of his patients both in and out of the profession. He took a deep interest in the Belleville Association of the city and served as president of that body. During the Golden Jubilee of the 22nd Club and thoroughly enjoyed this event. He had a brilliant wit and was ready to assist in worthwhile projects and always sought the limelight. He was a member of Bridge Street United Church.

Surviving are his wife, the former Ruth Halstaff Wilson, three sons, Joseph Kennedy of Kitchener; Paul Kennedy, residing at home, one daughter Bonnie, at home, one brother, Charles Kennedy of Sarnia and two sisters, Mrs. Norman Cameron, formerly of Sarnia, Mrs. Max (Mabel) Roope of Sarnia.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon with interment in the Belleville Cemetery.

District Officers Attend Ceremony In the Capital

A solemn ceremony was held in Ottawa on Saturday afternoon when the Governor-General of Canada, Major-General Vanier, D.S.O., M.C., C.D., unveiled the Canloan Memorial.

The inscription on the Memorial reads: "Erected by the Governments of Canada and the United Kingdom, the British Regiments, the Canloan Army Officers' Association and Canloan officers, Designated "Canloan," 573 Canadian Officers volunteered for loan to the British Army and took part in the Invasion and Liberation of Europe, 1944-45. Their fatal casualties were 465, of which 66 were rated. Their Fallen are honored in this quiet place in gratitude and remembrance of the cost of liberty."

Attending this ceremony were Sir Saville Garner, Her Majesty's High Commissioner for the United Kingdom in Canada, and Lady Garner; Major Charlotte Whitton, of Ottawa; Lt.-Col. H. M. Jones, formerly of Belleville, representing Brigadier the Hon. Milton F. Gregg, V.C.; Brigadier H. A. Tyler, D.S.O., representing the British Second Army; many next-of-kin, and officers of Canloan Association and their wives.

Former Canloan officers at present serving with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Major Jack Campbell and Mrs. Campbell, of Trenton, and Major Alex Cunningham and Mrs. Cunningham, of Belleville, were among those present.

No Sign of Agreement On Any Specific Issues

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev parted company Sunday pledged to "mutual contact" but with no sign of agreement on specific issues.

On Laos, subject of Saturday's talks, the leaders reaffirmed their support of a "neutral and independent" state under a government chosen by the Laotians themselves. They also recognized the importance of self-"effective" cease-fire.

To the key question of whether the two new instructions for the stalled 14-power Geneva conference on Laos, presidential spokesman Pierre Salinger declined to give an affirmative reply, indicating there has been no change in positions.

Western spokesmen, including the Canadian delegation at Geneva last year, have been pressing for new equipment to enable the international supervisory commission to function effectively. The commission is made up of representatives of Canada, Poland and India, the chairman.

All the talks did produce are that the deadlock on Laos will continue.

Thus the "brief encounter" at the summit between Kennedy, the youthful student of politics, and Khrushchev, the veteran of international negotiation, came to an end with few if any positive signs of a made their East-West relations.

Conference spokesmen declined to put a gloss on the two-day talks. They specifically refused to call it a "meeting of characters discussions and it was explained it's a term chosen by Russian spokesman, originally believed to have used the word "fruitful," had in fact said "useful."

However, there had earlier been indications that "atmosphere" during the Saturday talks. A possible guess was that the atmosphere had grown a little chilly since then.

For a world weary of the cold war between the super-powers, the best hope seemed to be that the big two would make their positions clear to each other and, in the long run, may develop a closer working understanding as a result of their weekend meeting.

On the intriguing question of Khrushchev's views on the test ban clear indication what kind of impression the 44-year-old Kennedy had made on the aggressive Soviet Khrushchev.

At least, one conference source said privately, "the president emerged with his shirt still on."

Kennedy Briefs Macmillan On His Talks With Mr. K.

LONDON—President Kennedy briefed Prime Minister Macmillan for three hours today on his summit talks in Vienna with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Kennedy and Macmillan met privately for two hours and 10 minutes, then called in advisers for the last 40 minutes of the meeting at Buckingham House, Macmillan's temporary residence in central London.

The prime minister's regular residence, 10 Downing Street, is being redecorated.

The extended talks made Kennedy late for widower Queen Elizabeth's dinner in Admiralty House attended by 150.

Kennedy is to leave on schedule tonight, but his stopover in Goose Bay, Labrador, has been extended to about six hours to allow him to get some sleep before arriving in Washington.

The president was to early today despite his hectic three-day visit to France and his busy sessions of summit talks in Vienna during the last five days.

Macmillan drove to the American Embassy to meet the staff and then headed into his talks with Macmillan.

The U.S. couple received a tumultuous welcome when they arrived from Vienna. Crowds of office workers and tourists were massed in front of the embassy as the president as he left the embassy with his wife for the night, on his way to the American Embassy, "There are your people," he told Jack" as he drove by. Outside the embassy, the crowds were jammed with men and women.

The president will have lunch with Macmillan and dinner with Queen Elizabeth at Buckingham Palace.

Before taking off for Washington tonight, Kennedy also will be godfather at the christening of Princess Radziwill, Mrs. Kennedy's sister, with whom Mrs. Kennedy will visit for a week.

Seek Composite High School At Trenton

TRENTON — The Board of Education will seek the approval of the Minister of Education for the establishment of a composite high school in Trenton. The board will present its building proposals to the secondary school inspector for additional facilities at the high school, which will be in line with the federal-provincial agreement to provide more technical and occupational education for secondary school students.

A resolution to that effect was passed at a special meeting of the board last week.

Such an addition to the high school would be built and equipped by the two governments involved, the board's quality would be required to staff and maintain the school. This type of secondary education would provide for those who do not wish to take academic courses at the school. A board spokesman said that the end result of such an addition could mean that 3,400 students, instead of 2,800, be attending under one roof, on the site of the present school. An addition to the school will be ready for use by September, but the school will not provide accommodation for the expected increase in school population for one year only.

Trenton High School students will be able to attend summer courses at Kingston this summer. Arrangements have been made for those who fail in one or two subjects to study the prescribed courses. Students who wish to improve their standings may also attend.

209 Children At Road-eo

TRENTON — This year's Kinsmen bicycle rodeo, held Saturday at the Community Centre, saw more than 200 boys and girls from east and west Trenton.

Ralph Rose was chairman for the event and was assisted by Edwards Dick Chittick, Stan Walsh, Geoff Robinson and John Saylor, as sub-chairmen. Members of the club members assisting.

Sgt. Gordon Steenburg, safety officer, and Constable Sid Vickers of the Trenton police department were judges. The contestants around the prescribed testing course and examined before entering.

From the RCAF, Sgts. S. Sarty, McKenzie and Campbell and Flt. Sgt. Hunter, also assisted with tests.

Herman Chambers was in charge of written and oral tests, the results of which will be announced later.

Woman Escapes Serious Injury In Accident

TRENTON — Mrs. Carol Young, 20, of Belleville missed death and facial cuts and also broke her eye-glasses.

Mrs. Young, whose husband is with Radio Station CJBQ here, told a reporter that the car went out of control when it was attempting to avoid a cow on a small dog in the car with her. The dog was not hurt.

She said that the transformer crashed through the windshield on the driver's side and the seat beside her. Power in the Dominion-Scott streets area was knocked out when wires replaced the pole and completed the circuit.

The car almost wrapped itself around the pole.

Found Dead

Learned Societies Discussing Many Subjects

MONTREAL (CP) — While thousands of Canadians spent the weekend in fresh air and sunshine, many of Canada's top scholars were closeted in university lecture rooms discussing such topics as St. Lawrence navigation, Russia's virgin lands and solutions of interpersonal equations.

The Canadian Association of Geographers and the Canadian Psychological Association ended their sessions and the Association of Canadian Law Teachers, the Canadian Mathematical Congress, the Classical Society of Canada and the University Teachers of Home Economics began theirs, all as part of the Confederence of Learned Societies.

The conference, in session until June 16, is being held in the universities of Montreal, McGill and Sir George Williams.

Scheduled to join the throng today are the Canadian Association of Professors of Education and the Engineering Educators Conference.

The subject of St. Lawrence navigation came up at the law teachers' opening session, when Prof. H. J. Lawford of Queen's University, Kingston, said there is some question as to whether Canada has the right to restrict in coastal trade on the river to Canadian registered vessels.

Transport Minister Balcer said in the Commons May 12 that federal government legislation to do this.

Prof. Lawford said that, under the British Commonwealth Merchant Shipping Agreement 1894, Britain would have to either have the approval of all other Commonwealth countries or withdraw from the agreement after giving one year's notice.

Besides, Canada was obligated to provide freedom of navigation on the Seaway and St. Lawrence to many countries and some legal authorities contended that this freedom implies the right to engage in coastal trade between Canadian ports.

University of Washington, Seattle, said at the geographers' final session that Russia's virgin land program may turn out to have been short-sighted.

He said the whole emphasis seems to have been on rapid increase of Russia's grain production rather than long - term development of the land.

Cuban Church Adopts Passive Attitude Toward Castro Govt.

The following story was written for The Associated Press by Carlos Maria Gutierrez, correspondent at El Pais, Montevideo, Uruguay.

HAVANA (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church in Cuba, its hierarchy apparently disunited, has adopted a tranquil and passive attitude toward Fidel Castro's regime — in contrast to the aggressiveness it showed before the abortive April invasion.

Many priests and nuns, including groups from Canada, have left Cuba voluntarily, because priests still remaining have refrained from preaching against the regime, although there is no indication that specific government orders demand this.

Newspapers and radio broadcasters have called many clerics counter - revolutionaries and have reported the finding of arms and explosives hidden even in churches and convents. Such reports, however, always refer to Spanish - born clergymen and not to those of Cuban birth.

Evidence thus far indicates Cuba is not planning to create a state religion on the model of Socialist governments have done.

It is reported that the authority of Manuel Cardinal Arteaga, archbishop of Cuba, closely connected with the old government of ex - dictator Fulgencio Batista, has weakened considerably.

The active leaders of the hierarchy are Archbishop Evelio Diaz of Havana and Enrique Perez Serantes, archbishop of Santiago. Both maintained a friendly attitude toward the social aims of the Castro revolution until last year, when Archbishop Perez Serantes began to attack the government in his sermons and pastorals on its relations with the Soviet bloc.

Slow Down and Be a Menace

A campaign, sponsored by the Canadian Highway Safety Council, is with us now until August. The campaign's slogan is "Slow Down and Live!"

Although we do not question the sincerity of the council and the worthiness of its objective, to decrease the number of traffic fatalities, we do object to the slogan. It has all the attributes of a good slogan. It has a certain rhythm to it which attracts one's attention and it is short and neat. It is, however, to a degree misinformative.

Speed has often been accused of being the biggest contributing factor in the majority of highway accidents and this well may be, but it has been a lack of speed more than an excess of that commodity. The person who casually meanders onto a busy highway and fails to accelerate quickly to attain the same speed as the rest of the traffic is endangering his own life as well as those of every other person in the vicinity. The dawdler who drives down a highway well below the posted speed limit is indulging in wishful thinking if he feels that his low speed puts him in the right and serves to protect him from any harm, for he is the breeder of one of the most potentially dangerous situations on today's highways as he forces faster drivers to pile up behind him, waiting for their chance to shoot out and pass him.

Although the fast reckless driver is certainly to be chastised whenever possible as a highway menace, there are, it would appear from casual observation, more reckless, or should we say thoughtless, slow drivers on our highways than the former variety. It would appear that we all share the highway with one who drives above the limit, and does so with an acceptable degree of skill and concentration, rather than share it with a slow driver who commits innumerable driving errors yet feels justified because he is driving slowly.

Many is the time that the slow driver has been noticed to proceed through a stop sign to turn into a line of traffic without hesitation. Common also, on the four-lane traffic highways, is the situation where a slower driver pulls into the fast traffic lane in front of overtaking traffic without looking to see if it is a safe move.

The major cause of highway accidents is the failure on the part of one or more of the drivers involved to be aware of the situation about him, to know what the other vehicles about him are doing, and to signal his intentions well before the last possible moment.

If the Canadian Highway Safety Council were to promote any slogan we would suggest one which emphasizes the driver's responsibility for being aware of what is happening around him under all circumstances. Look out, be alert and live might be more appropriate under today's driving conditions.

Certainly, the current slogan appears only to serve to encourage a type of driving which is by no means safe in modern traffic where the slow and over-anxious driver is more of a menace than the steady and alert, although faster, driver.

Napalm in Angola

Fire is an old weapon—hand in hand with the sword it has stalked through the pages of history.

Modern weapons have extended, rather than limited, its use.

It was the fire bombs of the Luftwaffe which did the most damage to London.

In the Korean war, the U.S. unveiled a new weapon, napalm, essentially jellied petroleum.

Today, napalm is being used again, by the Portuguese in Angola. The Portuguese may, with good reason, hesitate to give the Negroes any power, after the chaos which followed the withdrawal of the Belgians from the Congo, immediately to the north. The rebellious natives may have been guilty of atrocities. But does this justify the Portuguese unloading napalm bombs from airplanes into helpless villages, burning women and children as well as men? Does the fact that whites have been murdered give the Portuguese the right to murder, many, or more, blacks? We think not. Yet the Portuguese frankly admit that the napalm raids are being conducted as much for revenge as for the subduing of rebel forces. Submission because of terror is their aim.

Who makes these napalm bombs? If they are of Portuguese manufacture, where does Portugal obtain its petroleum? Are not these questions which any truly civilized nation ought to ask itself?

Integration Slow Process

Oshawa Times

Many Canadians as well as Americans have expressed disapproval of the "freedom rides" method of hurrying desegregation in the southern United States. Such actions, they argue, only embitter racial relations, do no good, may harm good by making "moderate" arguments difficult and damage the slow but steady process of racial understanding in the South. The suggestion seems to be that the promoters of the freedom rides project are in too much of a hurry.

How fast does one have to travel to be in a hurry?

Seven years have passed since the U.S. Supreme Court ordered U.S. schools desegregated "with all deliberate speed." There has been some integration in 13 of the 17 states involved and complete integration in the District of Columbia. South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi and Alabama have no desegregation. Atlanta, Ga., is under federal court order to start in May for desegregation.

Of Negro children of school age in the southern area, 195,623 are in racially disgregated districts. The Negro percent o fthe total Negro school population, however, 81,358 of these are in the District of Columbia, another 33,000 in Missouri and 31,000 in Maryland. Here are the numbers in other states: Arkansas, 1; Delaware, 6,734; Florida, 27; Kentucky, 16,329; Louisiana, 4; North Carolina, 1; Oklahoma, 2,822; Tennessee, 342; Texas, 3,500; Virginia, 208; West Virginia, 14,900.

At this rate it will take over a century for full desegregation in the United States — and it is well to remember that "all deliberate speed" was ordered by the Supreme Court. The U.S. government is clearly putting pressure on the states to obtain more speed and more deliberation, but even to the law of the land the court's ruling is obstinate. What wonder, then, that the more militant opponents of segregation are resorting to mob law? They could wait for another century.

Texans Elect Republican

Montreal Star

The Texas voters have a real sled-in-the-wool conservative Republic in the U.S. Senate, the first since the days of President Ulysses S. Grant. Young John G. Tower squeaked in by an electoral hair to take the seat held by a Democrat on an interim basis since Lyndon Johnson was named vice-president. Now the Democrats are wondering why the roof fell in.

No doubt it has much to do with the rise of right-wing conservatism of the Barry Goldwater type. But it is inherently a conservative state of mind, and that is the majority opinion expression of this feeling is abhors liberalism, state aid to education, too big U.S. foreign aid program; he rotties his sword about stepping in on Cuba.

Perhaps its something else again, Texas is unpredictable to a second to anyone. Three years ago it must have felt privately disgruntled about not Alaska became the largest state in the Union. Last summer it roared with wounded pride when the Democrats shouldered Johnson aside in favor of the Big Kennedy as presidential nominee and it roared even louder when Johnson accepted second place as the vice-presidential nominee. Texas can be pushed only so far, it seems, by Yankees.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHAT OF SPACE

Yes, what indeed?

There is, of course, a very decided limitation to the amount of space we can investigate. We may very well get about through our own solar system, but it would take us generations to go to the planetary system surrounding the nearest star, if such a planetary system exists. The vastness of space is so immeasurable that we can hardly hope to traverse any considerable portion of it.

Nevertheless the space age is upon us. It is posing problems not only greater than any the race has confronted before but of an entirely different quality. Men were amazed when Columbus discovered a new world. We have been astounded at the discoveries of modern science. But think of what it means to look up into the heavens and to wonder if other planets are inhabited. If they are watching us, if they have designs against us, or if, on the other hand, they may be friendly and only waiting to make contact with us and help us. For even as we are reaching up to them; there is evidence that they are reaching down to us if down is the right word.

Of this we can be sure. Until the end of the century certainly, and perhaps even longer, we shall be living in a state of uncertainty and ferment.

Interesting days? Yes, but hazardous.

Arab Rights Emphasized

Pakistan Times

The UN Special Political Committee is currently debating a resolution calling upon the United Nations for positive steps to safeguard the property rights of Arab refugees from Israel. The motion, sponsored jointly by Pakistan and four other Afro-Asian countries, provides a sharp reminder to the world assembly of its responsibility towards one million people who were forcibly uprooted from their homes when the Jewish State came into being.

Unless their rights are fully protected and steps are taken either for the repatriation of Arab refugees in Israel or for payment of adequate compensation for their lost properties and millions of dollars due, the Afro-Asian nations will be constrained to raise this issue before the United Nations again and again, and press for appropriate action.

The continued reluctance of the United Nations to face the problem squarely and boldly can only keep alive the tension that has today turned the Middle East into one of the most explosive areas of the world.

The United Nations' responsibility to find a permanent solution to the problem of Arab refugees cannot be emphasized too much.

As the Saudi delegate pointed out, the UN has played a party to the creation of the Jewish State, has a moral obligation to safeguard the legitimate rights of the people who once belonged to the land of Palestine.

The work done by UN-RWA in providing relief and aid to non-existent people has undoubtedly won recognition from many quarters but this had prompted Pakistan (which has so far contributed nearly 2.5 million rupees to the relief program) to secure a three-year extension to its life.

But this is a palliative, not a cure.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

By the time Canadian apparatus for television has come in, the first fine rapture that used to greet them has been dimmed by the familiar boredom. That the imported stuff, massproduced in distant villages, packaged, expertly shipped half or three quarters of a continent, bears little likeness to the home-grown fruit or vegetable is beyond discussion. But none the less, the surprise has been stolen. And Canadian productra can hardly be blamed for wishing that some sort of handicap could be put upon the interloper.

It is its own handicap. No season goes by but a hundred or more Canadian boys and girls, tasting the home-grown asparagus for the first time after summer's long experiences of the oak-stemmed, flabby-headed asparagus from the force-fields of the south, are consciously proud of the native; and on the first squelch of a home-grown strawberry between tongue and the roof of the mouth, do not celebrate the occasion with a domestic whoop or two.

The function of the native product is to make us feel superior.

Strictly Personal

Human Beings Could Stand Improvements

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Look at these people," said a visitor to Mars, looking at one afternoon. "Regard their wars showing through the zoo speech, their their their manners, their attitudes — not toward one another, but toward the animals as well. And this is your democratic electorate!"

On the surface, of course, he was quite right. With few exceptions, the people trudging around the zoo grounds were a living argument against unregular suffrage. The common man looks terribly common when seen en masse.

Since feelings of distaste and superiority are so easily to the top of our minds on such occasions, we must suspect their truth. Anything that makes us feel essentially better than others is liable to be a spiritual trap, leading to smugness and cold self-assurance.

I thought of the people I had seen only a few days before at an excellent concert. One friend would have found their dress, deportment and their attitudes quite irreproachable. Yet, in qualities of mind they might be just as vicious and ugly as those at the zoo. Neither is of heart just as vicious and is qualities of speech just as pleasure-loving and greedy for childish delights.

It is fundamentally and alarmingly easy for us to equate the accidents of a person's life with the essence of a person; to forget that environment shapes the 99 per cent. of us that is invisible to the outside world: to assume that our self-esteem is God-given and that those in less favorable circumstances somehow obviously deserve to be in their place.

It would be the silliest kind of liberal idealism to believe that the people at the zoo even approach what they themselves ought to be: they are severely limited, cramped by their background, seething with superstitions and pock-marked by a poverty that is more intellectual and social than it is economic.

But it would be even more dangerously false to assume that the gulf between us is inherently any better, or any more competent to judge, than their individual passions for the general good. Not breeding, but intelligence in any amount of formal education have overwhelmingly proved societies in the past from committing the greatest follies among all nations.

The democratic electorate is far, far freer than it has been in order to make rational and far-reaching decisions in the public domain. But it is the cultivated minority. Our task is to improve the democratic

50 Years a Teacher

S. H. Connor, Tweed, Honored By 500 at Testimonial Evening

TWEED (Special) — Over 500 people gathered in Tweed Saturday evening to honor a man who has taught for 50 years, 44 of them in the same school.

S. Howard Connor, a brother of A. L. Connor of Belleville, will complete a half-century of teaching this June. To mark the event, a testimonial evening was held in the auditorium of the Tweed High School.

In a speech, Mr. Connor advised the young people of the audience to stay in school. "A lot has changed over the years, but one thing has stayed the same—the importance of education," he said. "Education is top priority. Without them all education would be impossible. The day of the uneducated worker is rapidly passing, employers are demanding educated men. The ranks of the unemployed are made up of those who left school too soon, or those who went along for the ride," he said.

A letter from the Minister of Education, John P. Robarts, was read by School Inspector Gordon W. Nelson. It read, "Your teacher's duty included teaching diligently and faithfully the subjects of the course of study and encouraging the pupils in the pursuit of knowledge. I am well aware of the influences that a teacher has on the pupils who pass through his classes each year, and I know you will recall with pride those of the pupils who have gone on to positions of leadership in our country."

One of these pupils, H. Allan Leal, Dean of Osgoode Hall, spoke at the testimonial. He said, "There was never a teacher to whom I feel I owe so much as I owe to Mr. Connor." He pointed out that "we have become through two World Wars, and are now in the midst of a third war, a race of ideology for man's mind."

Dorothy Luger Goldie cancelled a trip to New York so she could be present to sing "My Friend" and "You'll Never Walk Alone," accompanied by Carol Farmer, Mr. Connor's youngest daughter.

GIFTS PRESENTED

Gifts from the school board, of the 1917-18 class, the 1918-19 class, the Tweed Consolidated Home and School, the teachers, the 1960-61 class, and the 1961 staff, were presented to Mr. Connor. Mr. Connor received a bouquet of red roses, while a large basket of flowers was given to Mr. Connor, a gift from Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings East.

After the presentations, a three-tier cake was cut by Mr. and Mrs. Connor. The cake was baked and decorated by two of his former pupils, Mrs. Fay Hagmateer and Mrs. W. Chisholm. Refreshments were served by the Tweed Consolidated Home and School.

Like most teachers, Mr. Connor has fondest memories of his first class. Twelve of the 15 students in his first enrolment class passed with honors. No other class has come "close to the record. Many of his first pupils were present at the testimonial; Mrs. Charles Wills reminisced, "I can remember when there was no road up to the school, just a track, and we used to sleigh ride down the hill. Just as we would hear the recess bell calling us in, we would give the horse a sled a push and come in late with the excuse, 'But sir, we couldn't stop when it was going down the hill'." She continued, "There was a lot of rivalry in the class, and we all got good marks."

Another pupil, "My lasting impression is the respect for the high standard which he has always kept high. He has taught children how to study. Several of the girls in that first class went through to be teachers, and they all used him as a model. All of us were very fond of him."

Many Changes In Teaching Seen in 50 Years

TWEED (Special) — S. Howard Connor, Tweed, completes 50 years of teaching this June. To mark the event a testimonial Evening was held on Saturday in the auditorium of the Tweed High School.

Born in Madoc, one of a family of 13 children, Mr. Connor began teaching on a permit at the age of 17 in Rimington. He spent a year here, then went to Gilmour for one year. A year at Teacher's College was followed by four years at Moira. While in Moira, an attractive student, Hazel Salisbury, caught his eye. He married her in 1916 and a year later they came to Tweed where he was appointed principal of the Tweed Public School. The remaining 44 years of his career were spent in this town. Here he and Mrs. Connor raised a family of five children, Enid (Mrs. Harold Dawson of London), Jean (Mrs. Maurice Cole of Peterborough, Carol (Mrs. David Farmer of Toronto), Douglas and Glenn (both of Toronto).

"I just fell into teaching", he said, "I can't really explain why. When I started to teach I made no time limit. I taught from one year to the next and I've taught 40 years, then I decided to try and make 50."

GRAMMAR IMPORTANT

There have been many changes over the years. "Today it is more important to learn grammar correctly, not just to learn rules for rules sake. The emphasis is on correct and grammar application in mathematics the questions are no more mechanically complicated and the problems are based on the child's experience and everyday life", he said. The Board of Education supplies all books today, so no child need be without a text because of lack of money.

When Mr. Connor came to Tweed in 1917 he walked into the present day brick school. Forty years later he personally opened the bright new school. In 1917 the school was attended by 160 pupils, taught by five teachers. Today there are 265 students and seven teachers.

TWO GOLD MEDALS

Mr. Connor has received two coronations of King George V and Queen Elizabeth II. These are the only times in the lifetime of a mateer and Mrs. W. Chisholm. Refreshments were served by the Tweed Consolidated Home and School.

Like most teachers, Mr. Connor has fondest memories of his first class. Twelve of the 15 students in his first enrolment class passed with honors. No other class has come "close to the record. Many of his first pupils were present at the testimonial; Mrs. Charles Wills reminisced, "I can remember when there was no road up to the school, just a track, and we used to sleigh ride down the hill. gain a long-term economic prospects today, I would hold essentially the same view of the future that lies ahead of us, although with some important reservations. With our resources, with the skills our people possess, with the modern industrial base we have to build on, I believe we can still achieve the kind of growth and development that was foreseen by the royal commission if we go at it the right way."

Some of the ways he listed, in addition to dropping a tight-money policy and bringing down interest rates:

1. Reduce "the present artificially high exchange rate" on the Canadian dollar;

2. Reduce "the huge annual deficits" being incurred in international trade;

3. Establish a municipal loan fund to aid municipalities in capital expenditures, at least capital expenditures in the private sector of the economy pick up;

4. Change the tax structure to encourage location of new industry in Canada, presenting enterprises in depressed areas, give manufacturers incentive to expand export markets, provide incentives to Canadians to participate more directly in ownership and management of Canadian enterprises, make it easier for Canadian individuals to accumulate some capital and restrain an "excessive flow of foreign capital under present conditions when our own resources are under-employed."

That is what an estimated 6,000 persons both young and old, did on Saturday as they attended open house ceremonies marking the official opening of Moira Beverages Ltd. on Coleman Street.

Visitors to the modern soft drink bottling plant enjoyed free drinks, courtesy of owner William Spinelli, the kids came in for balloons and other souvenirs, while everyone had a chance on a variety of door prizes ranging from Pepsi Cola clocks to picnic coolers.

In conjunction with the free gifts, visitors were taken on a conducted tour of the bottling plant and saw in operation the complicated machinery which can turn out soft drinks to the tune of 230 cases per hour.

PRESENTS SCROLL

Official opening ceremonies Saturday morning saw Mr. Frank McIntosh, president of the Pepsi Cola Company of Canada, present a dedicated scroll to Mr. Spinelli as owner of Moira Beverages Ltd.

Mr. McIntosh said Pepsi Cola was very happy with Mr. Spinelli's accomplishments in Belleville.

The policy of his firm, he said, was to give local businessmen the opportunity of operating their own business and to provide local employment in their own plants.

The presentation of the plaque to Mr. Spinelli was made in recognition of the growth of the Belleville plant. He noted the plant had started just nine years ago with but two trucks. Since then the plant area had been doubled to 18,000 square feet and the number of trucks has increased to nine. In all 19 persons are now employed at the plant and in distribution, he said.

Ontario Regional manager Mr. Frank Swick was master of ceremonies for the official opening program.

SMALL PLANTS VALUABLE

Mayor A. M. Haig said Belleville was fortunate in having so many small industries such as Moira Beverages Ltd. which he said made a great contribution to the economy of the city.

Lee H. Grills, M.P. for Hastings South, said the Moira Beverages plant was both a credit and a complement to the city.

It has been individuals like Mr. Spinelli who have made Belleville what it is", he said

Bowling Notes

Two rinks of trebles went to the tournament held at the Trenton Lawn Bowling Club on Saturday and both came home with prizes. A rink of George McGee, William Vantassel with Bill Wright as skip won the second three-game high while a rink of "Scotty" Johnston, Claude Le Clair and Horace Ormsbaw won the two-game high. There were twelve rinks scheduled to play but a number dropped out before the last minute and one rink was forced to drop out to make an even draw. The one Belleville rink had only two players and Mr. Ormsbaw generously consented to play and his excellent bowling enabled the rink to get in the prize money. The Trenton greens were lightning fast, in fact in the best shape they have been in years and the boys had a great deal of difficulty in controlling their weight.

A rink of Doug McQuoid-ale, William Duncan Sr. and Gilbert McQuoridale of King, won the three-game high and Morley Simpson, Jack Wiley with Art McConnell as skip won the two-game high. It was an excellent tournament and played in pleasant weather.

A number of local rinks will be journeying to Campbellford on Wednesday next to take part in a mixed doubles tournament. This class of tournament has become very popular in the district and there will no doubt be a full entry from the rinks of the district.

Archaeology Course Planned

A course in Indian archaeology, designed for persons interested in the historic and prehistoric past of Canada and for students of Canadian history, is being held this summer by the University of Western Ontario Summer School at Penetanguishene. Under the direction of Wilfred Jury, curator of the Museum of Indian Archaeology at the university, the course is to be held from July 3rd to July 14th.

A major portion of the course will be devoted to field work and "digging" at actual sites of early habitations. Lectures on subjects pertaining to the history of man on the North American continent and in the Penetanguishene area will be given, but the course, besides including the course work also have the opportunity of taking an active part in excavating Indian relics and crafts of the Indian in order to become more acquainted with this everyday task and general way of life.

Headquarters for the summer school are at the Port Penetanguishene Museum at the old Naval and Military Establishment at Penetanguishene, where interested persons may contact the course director.

Normandy Beaches Will Be Scene of Ceremony 20 Years After

Scene to Honor Sacrifices in 1944 Battle

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The Normandy beaches where Canadian soldiers landed 17 years ago will be the scene of this year's ceremonies commemorating the 1944 battle.

Maj.-Gen. George Kitching, Canadian military representative at Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe in Paris and adviser to Canada's NATO delegation, will be guest of honor at the June 6 observance.

The ceremonies, attended by representatives of the various Allies who took part in the landings, will take place at the now peaceful beaches well removed bered by thousands of Canadians who fought there — Courseulles - sur - Mer, Bernieres-sur-Mer and St. Aubin-sur-Mer.

PLEASANT SCENE

Other ceremonies will be at the Canadian cemetery at Beny-sur-Mer overlooking the pleasant green fields and woods, the sea the Canadian soldiers traversed and the little seaside resorts where they fought and died.

Gen. D. C. Spry, who commanded the 4th Canadian Armored Division in later inland fighting will be accompanied by Flt. Lt. J. A. J. Spennard, an administrative officer in the Canadian office at SHAPE.

Besides the religious ceremonies, there will be an official luncheon and a concert of military music.

It was in July, 1943, that it was decided the 3rd Canadian Infantry Division, commanded by Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller, would take part in the first landing of Operation Overlord. June 3 was picked for the attack and two days before the majority of the men of the 3rd division and the 2nd Canadian Armored Brigade were embarked in various landing craft in the waters around the Isle of Wight. Poor weather postponed D-Day by 24 hours.

It was a few minutes before 8 a.m. when the 7th and 8th Canadian Infantry Brigades started landing. The enemy had more artillery in his defences on the 7th's beaches and both the Royal Winnipeg Rifles and Regina Rifle Regiment on the left of the Canadian line were men, the Winnipegs being one of the few units to cross water heavy defences on landing.

RESERVES LAND

Within 90 minutes of the first landing the 6th Brigade and battalion—the Canadian Scottish Regiment—had landed.

In the 8th Brigade were the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada and the North Shore (New Brunswick) Regiment. Le Regiment de la Chaudiere was in reserve and the tank support was provided by the Fort Garry Horse.

An estimated 14,500 Canadians were landed and on D-Day alone 946 officers and men became casualties, 335 of them fatal. The 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion, dropped with the 6th Airborne Division, suffered 127 casualties. As a result of being dropped over wide an area, 81 men became prisoners. There were 30 fatal casualties.

On June 9 Gen. Keller said in a report:

"Last two days spent repelling violent counter-attacks. Enemy armour, self-propelled guns and infantry attacks forced my left back slightly but right has held and a necessary adjustments made despite all-out ferocity of enemy and treacherous mine-field attacks. At 1st on still fighting like mad. Am very proud of them. . . ."

The bloody battle of Normandy was but a prelude to the fighting that was to continue, with thousands of other Canadians joining in, through July, August and early September of that fateful year of the war.

FIGURET

"It's funny the way my money went today," Mary commented, checking some groceries she'd brought in, "I didn't buy much. Just a few things at three stores."

"That's why it goes like it does," the fun for you!" Her husband chuckled. "So what happened?"

"Well," replied Mary. "At the first I spent one penny less than half my cash, and at the second two less than half what was left. And at the third I paid out three cents less than half of what remained, and that left me with exactly one buck."

How much had she spent?

Weddings

KEENE — ELLIS

On Saturday, May 20, at 2.00 p.m. the first wedding in Connor Memorial Church, Connor, was solemnized by the Reverend Donald Pipe, when Donna Sherry Anne Ellis, of Connecon, R.R. 1, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ellis, was united in marriage to Robert James Dennis Keene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Keene, Pink and white stewsons adorned the altar of the church, standards of white mums lined the chancel, and white satin bows designated the guest pews, for the doubling ceremony.

Mrs. Frank Abbott provided the wedding music, which included the "Lord's Prayer" and "Bless This House".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of white marquisette lace net over satin, featuring a fitted bodice with long sleeves pointed over the wrists and high scalloped neckline was accented with bridesmaid sequins, seed pearls and the floor-length skirt fell in graceful folds. She wore a matching veil of nylon net studded with seed pearls and sequins with shoulder-length veil of illusion tulle, and carried a white Bible (the gift of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Hattie Goodmurphy) crested with red rosebuds and long white streamers.

She was attended by her cousin, Mrs. Francis Genereaux, Carrying Place R. R. 2 as matron of honor, who was attired in powder-blue nylon over taffeta having a rounded neckline and long bows at back of the cap sleeves. She wore a matching headdress, mitts and white shoes.

The senior bridesmaid, Mrs. Jean Carter, of Consecon, R. R. 1, also a cousin, was in lilac shade nylon over taffeta featuring a modified bodice with round neckline similar to that of the matron of honor's, with matching accessories, and white shoes.

Miss Brenda Mastin of Wellington, cousin of the bridegroom, as junior bridesmaid, was in pink nylon over taffeta fashioned similarly to the other attendants with matching accessories, and white shoes.

All the bridesmaids and matron of honor carried nosegays of Shasta daisies matching their gowns, and wore pearl pendants with matching earrings, gifts of the bride.

The little flower girl, Miss Penny Weese, of R.R. 1, Consecon, cousin of the bride, was frocked in pale green nylon over taffeta with lace trim and long back bow with matching headdress, white gloves and shoes. She carried a little basket of white baby 'mums, and wore a gold locket, the gift of the bride.

Mr. Larry Keene, of Consecon, R.R. 1, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Mr. Lee Ellis, brother of the bride, and Mr. Dean O'Hara, cousin of the bride both of Consecon, R.R. 1, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at Gregory Hall, Consecon, where the bride's table was appointed with the traditional white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake decorated with white rosebuds and topped with two white doves bearing golden wedding rings, beneath a pink bell and white roses. Cascading pink and white streamers formed a lovely canopy over the table, and the bridal bouquets added a further delightful accent. Baskets of rosebuds decorated the head table.

The toast to the bride and bridegroom was proposed by Mr. Minaert (J. S. Bach); Debonnaise (Gillette); Minuet in G Minor", (J. S. Bach); Leslie Dunning "Allegro Vivace Op 50 No. 3" (Clementi); Penny Rose Ballade, Op 100 No. 15 (Burgmuller); Susan Hatcher, "Sonatina Op. 300 P. 102" (L. Kohler); Steven Ling, "Calypso Boy" (Earle Moss); Stewart Smith "Sonatina" (H. Wohlfahrt) and Bruce Chrisopher "German Dance" (W. A. Mozart).

Diane Patricia and Carolyn Shorey played a trio "Dance of the Flowers" (Montague Ewing).

Victoria Carruthers rendered Waltz (Gabriel-Marie); David McDonald "Rigaudon" (Rameau); Garfield Smith "Rondo in C" (Mozart); Karen Terry "Waltz" (Mozart); Karen Terry Shorey "The Mechanical Doll" (Shostakovich). These are grade five pupils.

After a bit of diversion, The Smith family put on a skit titled "Smiths in Exadee" Mr. Smith, Mr. Smith, the former Eunice Viney, Judy and Gordon were native costumes and depicted a street - scene in Darjeeling.

The high light of the evening was the presentation of prizes to the pupils in each grade with the highest number of points on his or her year's work.

Mrs. Veley introduced her son-in-law, the Rev. Cecil Smith, who presented awards

The stage was tastefully decorated with spring flowers and musical symbols.

Roger Ling welcomed the guests.

The beginners formed a processional with Miss Grace Valley at the piano, after which they played the following numbers:

Judy Hart, "Chimes"; Nancy McFarlane, "The Song Trail"; Ann Saunders, "Lochaber Lullaby"; Anne Thompson, "The Butterfly"; Judy Smith, "Evening Song"; Ruth Ashley, "By the Pond"; Vicki James, "Bird Song"; Barbara Loder, "Folk Dance"; Deborah McAllister, "Fairy Willow"; Donna Bertrim "The Bee"; Rodney May, "Fellow the Leader" and Gordon Smith, "Crack the Whip."

Barbara and Margaret Edmond son played "Spring Morning" (Jordan) in duet.

Those performed with the following playing: Marilyn Goens, "Hark the Tiny Cowbip Bells"; Judy

N. Hastings W.I. Elects New Executive for 1961-2

The North Hastings District Women's Institute's 53rd convention was held on June 1 in Bancroft United Church.

There were 110 members registered. The convention opened with Mrs. Jim Nicol leading community singing, accompanied by Mrs. F. Bailey.

Mrs. Mumby, Bancroft, welcomed the new institute members, and was replied to by Mrs. A. Bailey, Madoc.

The district president, Mrs. George McKimmon, Madoc, presided over the meeting. Mrs. T. Hinds, Harold, secretary, read the minutes of the meetings and gave the financial report. Mrs. Carl Linn, Bonarlaw, gave the auditor's report.

Mrs. McKimmon spoke briefly, stressing that all clubs should have interesting programs to keep the members enthused.

BRINGS GREETINGS

Mrs. Sherman Foster, representative of the Federal Board, brought greetings from the Provincial Women's Institute president. She informed the gathering that eight new Institutes had been formed since last November and 46 Junior Institutes. A new handbook will be sent to each branch.

Since this area is from a vast cheese producing area, it was stressed that Institutes serve cheese at all meetings.

VARIOUS REPORTS

Mrs. Warren Hill, Madoc, gave report on agriculture and Canadian industries. Mrs. Leonard Trotter, Madoc, gave the report on citizenship and education. Mrs. Frank Slater, McArthur's Mills, was the public relations representative and gave her report. Home and rural research and current events report was given by Mrs. Kenneth Tompkins, of Harold. The home economics and health report was given by Mrs. Ted Naylor of Madoc.

A resolution was read to keep November 11th a school holiday.

The ratification of district directors was given by Mrs. Sherman Foster.

Memorial service conducted by Mrs. Gordinier was given by Springbrook Institute for two deceased members.

A banquet dinner was served in the basement of the church at noon for all the visitors.

The afternoon session opened with community singing and each branch answered the roll call with the theme "Let there be peace all men must shake hands".

A parade of millinery made by Ivanhoe Institute members and an extension course was exhibited.

Marmora Institute put on a skit of making drapes. Taking part were Mrs. H. Naylor; Mrs. D. Bailey; Mrs. R. Neal; Mrs. P. Gordon and Miss Richards.

DISCUSSION PERIOD

Miss Julia Lane brought greetings from the Home Economics Branch and introduced Miss Hooks who led in a discussion of extension services for the homemaker. She encouraged members to keep taking extension courses.

Connie Newman, Alexis Fenelle and Gail Sheldon from Maynooth Girls' Club gave a demonstration on "how's and why's" of pressing wool.

Mrs. George Graham of Cooper gave the highlights of the presidents' conference at Guelph.

The prize for the branch attendance was won by the Detour and L'Amable branch and was presented by Mrs. J. Thompson, Eldorado.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

Mrs. Leonard Trotter, of Madoc, presented the slate of officers for 1961-62.

Hon. president, Mrs. George McKimmon, Eldorado; president, Mrs. Ken Rollins, R. R. 3, Madoc; 1st vice-president, Mrs. E. Holmes, Queensboro; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Norman Broad, R. R. 2, Madoc; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. T. Hinds, Harold; federation representative, Mrs. George McKimmon, Eldorado; alternate representative, Mrs. S. R. Beatty, Madoc; auditors, Mrs. J. McInroy, Stirling and Mrs. Carl Linn, Bonarlaw; district delegate, Mrs. E. Moore, Madoc; alternate delegate, Mrs. A. Bailey, Madoc; press reporter, Mrs. J. Thompson, Eldorado.

Standing committees: agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. Warren Hill, Madoc; citizen and education, Mrs. John McClean, Deltor; public relations officer, Mrs. M. Reynolds, R. R. 3, Madoc; history, research and current events, Mrs. K. Tompkins, Harold; home economics and health, Mrs. Ted Naylor, Madoc; resolutions, Mrs. K. Maxwell, R. R. 3, Bancroft; Junior Institute, Mrs. Harold Harris, R. R. 3, Madoc.

A special closing number was sung by the Wellman's branch.

Mother's Helper

A VERY LARGE paper bag with ventilating holes cut on three sides is an acceptable substitute for the sometimes uncomfortable blindfold when children play party games like Pin the Tail on the Donkey. The vented bag sits loosely on the child's shoulders—and although floor and feet may be visible to the player, everybody has that same advantage.

MODERN MANNERS

CAROLYN HAGNER SHAW

WHO DO TEEN-AGERS LIKE?

A look or so ago I quoted the dislikes of two charming teen-age girls. I promised to follow up with their "likes", so here they are.

"Do Likes" (the indented comments are mine):

1. "Adults who don't act perplexed by ten-agers and their ideas, and treat us like human beings, not freaks. They seem to sincerely like us!"

I never could understand why some adults treat teenagers like freaks. After all, they were the same age once! Perhaps a silly new fad that is adopted by these young people may seem ridiculous to the oldsters. But, think back to some of the crazy things we used to do! For example: I remember the idiotic puffed hair-do the girls had to wear, for like! The boys were funny little flat hats, and gaudy vests and flared-out trousers. It was fun for those, in my generation, so why shouldn't silly fads be fun this one? As long as things don't get out of hand, even the foolishness while it lasts, and do not condemn. Join in and "sincerely like" these young people! I am particularly pointing my finger at some parents who scoff at every blessed thing their teen-agers do. Stop and think, won't you?

2. "We particularly like to be able to wear casual clothes. Some of those in high school think it is smart to dress up for school. Girls in high, high heels, or boys in suits and ties just don't seem to fit in with the rest of us."

If your idea of "casual clothes" is sweater and skirts for the girls (or plain sports dresses) and sport shirts and slacks for the boys, you are on the right track. No "sloppy Joe" outfits, however. Neatness and a clean look are definitely to be desired by both sexes. High heels and a too-dressy look should be avoided by both when it comes to school clothes. There are for dating — not for the serious business of studying.

3. "Teachers who take the time to listen to your woes or answer questions about your studies that you don't understand. Some of the teachers just brush you off, saying they are too busy. Those that do help us are tops in popularity."

Don't be too hard on the teacher who brushes you off. Perhaps she is overloaded with details and also overworked. The overcrowded conditions in our schools today is deplorable, and the teacher who can give personal attention to some of her students is to be admired. Help her along by being attentive in class, polite and thoughtful of her. Then she will be better able to help you.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question — I have apparently made an awful mistake! I hope you can help me to get out of it without hurting feelings. About

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. J. E. — I'm in training for a new kind of job, but Gosh objects!

Mr. J. E. — She doesn't need the money, and I need her company.

Mrs. J. E. — I'm 55 and, at this late date, a friend got me enrolled in a training class for operating automatic office machines. While I've worked on and off during the 35 years of my marriage, I've always wanted to shy my teeth into something exciting in the business world, and stay with it. This work, they say, has a real future.

But Josh has a different future in mind for me. He's 65 and will retire in '62. All of a sudden she sees herself rising, rising, rising. She forgets she's had her share of office, home, wife, to mother, to grandmother. And now it's time to come back to being a wife.

I've worked hard. I'm tired. I want to rest and find contentment. My pension, plus savings and investments, will foot our modest bills.

Rather than have her start a new and long career, I'm asking her to come back to this long-term project — me.

The Council — Every feminist in the world is sympathizing with Mrs. E.'s desire to accomplish something "on her own" and win recognition as a woman, as well as a wife, mother and grandmother. But many career girls, widows, divorcees, spinsters and sensible wives would join us in a one-word chorus: "Compromise!"

Mrs. E. is plunk in the middle of modern woman's eternal dilemma: How to be both a woman and a wife! Whenever the two deals come this topic we receive heartfelt comments from partisans. Usually, having chosen one course, they recommend the other! For example, apportioning one of our clients who refused to leave her job at her husband's request, a readership says, "The job will pass. And then what? Will he still be waiting for her when she is ready to call it quits?"

But then there are the others who would say, with old Polonius, 'To thine own self be true,' and urge Mrs. E. to prefer full speed ahead toward self-realization, at last.

The consensus, though, agrees on the primacy of the human factor. The goal of a "real" career, once achieved, may taste like ashes to Mrs. E. if the price has been her husband's love and trust. In a recent interview, Martha Graham described the "suffering" that must be endured by anyone self-bent toward a hard achievement. A married woman's husband cannot be subjected to the suffering, unless he agrees. Mr. E. definitely doesn't!

We hope he realizes, however, that Mrs. E. is justified in wanting to add "woman" to the list of roles he says she's exemplified. Every good human being, we, woman included, is entitled to use what he, himself and alone is capable of doing. Marriage and parenthood are "joint", not sole, ventures. So, it behooves a devoted husband, somewhere along the "retirement" trail, to give the little lady her chance "to be herself."

Meanwhile, Mrs. E.'s main course now must be to arrange Mr. E.'s sense of panic as he faces the retirement years. Self-doubts and uncertainties were bad enough. Now the grim specter of loneliness threatens, too. Maybe the answer for her, as well as for him, lies in the "joint" venture. Distance can move we are together, the happier we'll be."

Spareribs Barbecued and Roasted

By Mary Moore

From one of our readers (Mrs. S.M.), who likes and occasionally cooks Chinese food, comes a request for "Garlic Spareribs".

I thought the recipes (I have 3) for the spareribs prepared Chinese style would interest a great many of you. The barbecue treatment produces succulent lip-lickable finger food that everybody enjoys.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

BARBECUED SPARERIBS: (with garlic)

One-half cup soy sauce, 3 tablespoons brown sugar, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 1 cup pineapple juice, 2 pounds spareribs, cut in 2-rib servings, 1 mashed garlic clove, 1 tablespoon catsup, flour, 1-2 cup water. Combine soy sauce, sugar, vinegar, pineapple juice, garlic and catsup and blend well. Measure out 1-2 cup of this liquid and combine with enough flour to make a smooth paste. Rub paste over spareribs. Place ribs in baking pan and bake at 500 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes to sear meat. Add water to remaining liquid and warm it. Reduce oven heat to 325 deg. Fahr. Bake until spareribs are tender, basting often with warm liquid — about 1-2 hours in all.

MANDARIN SPARERIBS: (with garlic — roasted)

Four to 5 pounds meaty spareribs, 1 cup soy sauce, 2 cup orange marmalade, 3 cloves garlic, minced, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon pepper. Combine soy sauce, marmalade, garlic, ginger and black pepper. Spread spareribs in baking pan, cutting them into serving pieces if desired. Pour sauce over ribs. Turn ribs to completely cover with sauce. Keep in refrigerator at least 12 hours. Arrange ribs on a rack in a roasting pan. Roast at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 1-2 hours, basting frequently with sauce until ribs are glazed golden brown and tender. Serve hot.

CHAN BARBECUED SPARERIBS (broiled):

One clove garlic, mashed, 1-2 cup soy sauce, 1-3 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 2 1-2 or 3 pound piece of choice spareribs (2 servings), 1 tablespoon grated orange peel. Mix garlic, soy sauce, sugar, salt, pepper and orange peel. Do not chop or break up the whole piece. Place meat in shallow dish or pan, pour the garlic sauce over it and spread evenly. Let stand in the refrigerator about 1-2 to 1 hour. Turn the meat 2 or 3 times during that time, spreading the sauce over it thoroughly each time. To barbecue in the broiler, place the meat-covered side down on a rack in a baking pan. Preheat the oven 15 minutes; place the rib pan 6 to 8 inches from burner for about 20 minutes. When brown, turn meat and let done on one side, turn it and continue to cook until the other side is browned. Total cooking time is 40 to 50 minutes, depending on how hot the broiler is. 4 servings.

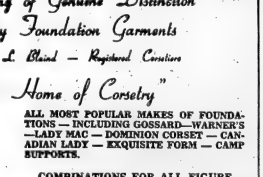
NOTE:

These Spareribs may be baked in oven at 375 deg. Fahr. for 1 1-2 hours if desired or barbecued out-of-doors.

MAN-CHASERS

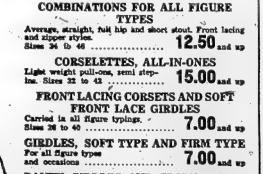
LONDON, England (CP)— Parties of overseas British school girls are pestering Swiss ski instructors, a writer says in the Weekly Tribune of Switzerland. As one instructor put it: "They make it quite obvious they are man-hungry."

P.U.C. Sec. Honored on Retirement



CAMPBELLFORD — Members of the Public Utilities Commission and their wives gathered for an informal dinner at the Riviera Inn on Monday night to honor Mr. and Mrs. John F. McGregor.

Commissioner A. C. Newman acted as master of ceremonies and the address of presentation was made by chairman Glynn Sandwinder.



Mayor Rutherford presented Mr. and Mrs. McGregor with a silver casserole containing 53 silver dollars, one for each year of Mr. McGregor's service with the commission. He severed connections with the commission as their secretary early in the year.

In his response, Mr. McGregor recalled some of the interesting points of earlier times. His information which was in many cases new to the gathering, told of the early plants when the town installed a dynamo at the pumping station and the first operator of electricity and later when a similar dynamo was first operated at Crowe Bay. He stressed the importance of the river and water power for an establishment and growth of the community.

Also describing events of the flood in 1929 he said it was reported that farmers drew their sleds along placed tons of them on the bridge to keep it from being washed out. The piers on the original bridge were bolted into bed rock which gave them tremendous power of resistance and though the flood covered the entire valley the structure held. The flood is said to have been followed by several weeks of snow and rain in the month of May. So", Mr. McGregor concluded, "1961 weather may not be so bad after all".

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Roomate Is Dictator

DEAR DORIS:—We are three nurses who share an apartment. This used to be lots of fun.

DORIS CLARK

Lately Flora, who is the oldest, has taken to bossing Nancy and me around. (They are not their real names). When we are out late and bring our date in for coffee, she objects to being disturbed. If we leave a bathrobe in the bathroom, she checks and tells us to be tidier.

Nancy and I hate all this but haven't said anything. We don't want to lose Flora's friendship—for the money she pays for her share of rent and food. What can we do.—NURSIE.

DEAR NURSIE:—Flora sounds like an older sister from away back—just falling into the role again now that she has come to know you well. Silence here is not golden. She must learn how you feel or friendship will really fade away.

Let just one of you talk to her. Tell her you like having her with you, but remind her that you are grown up and responsible for your own actions. That all questions are settled by a conference of three and that the motto of this co-operative is Live and Let Live.

If she still does not call off her authoritarian rule, change tenants or move out yourselves. Her financial contribution can be replaced. No friendship split is worth the tensions created when one member is offbeat.

DEAR DORIS:—Our youngest is only four months. He wakes up in the night every night and usually cries until someone goes to him.

Most of the time I sleep right through and my wife goes. This means she is tired the next day and somebow she seems to blame me. I have told her to wake me up and I'll go, but she never does.

How unreasonable can a woman get?—SAM.

DEAR SAM:—Did you ever try to waken a sound sleeper in the middle of the night? More work than tending to the baby.

If you can't make it your business to hear him, and beat her to the crib, don't add insult to injury by blaming him!.

If you are in earnest, you can get to hear it when those little cries come through. Get her to promise to waken you every night—then don't resist intrusion when it comes.

DEAR DORIS:—I feel so sorry for the couple next door. They are both deaf mutes. No one can talk to them and the only visitors they have are the wife's parents.

How can a person be a good neighbor when you can't communicate?—MISSUS.

DEAR MISSUS:—You can communicate—in several ways. A freshly baked pie or a bunch of flowers from your garden would spoil friendship in anybody's language.

A notebook and a pencil when you visit helps. With a little patience, you can write a conversation. One cursorily hands a pencil and pad back and forth, using abbreviations where possible, pointing to objects discussed, and using ingenuity to put an idea across. Most deaf people love this.

You could also learn their language from them. Very soon you could be finger-talking with the two of them and, in the process, cementing a fine new friendship.

Science at Work

Topics this week: Sounds from animals, sound from humans, and piano tones that appeal to humans.

Dolphins, those remarkable animals of the sea, have a large and changeable repertoire of sounds that vary from clicks and whistles to quacks and blats. Furthermore they control these sounds and use them to communicate, scientists report.

Now scientists have studied the noises of captured dolphins to see what sounds come from which situations.

A whistle from a human, for instance, brings a chorus of whistles from the dolphins. Manipulating the dolphin's body brings whistles, quacks or blats. Yet left alone dolphins seldom quack or blat.

In violent play, courtship or intercourse, the squeaks come fairly often. Two whistles, one in crescendo, the other in decrescendo, repeated over and over are a distress signal, silencing neighbor dolphins and setting them all on a search for the distressed source.

THE SOUND OF MUSIC

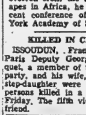
A study of soprano voices indicates that the more trained the voice, the greater its vibrato—warbling effect—say N o r w e g i a n scientists. They studied both untrained singers and those of world fame.

When a highly trained soprano holds a note, there is also evidence that the note has irregularities in the overtones and that this too is a product of training. Untrained sopranos without any great vibrato hold notes with more harmonic regularity.

DO-RE-MI

Piano tuners tend to stretch the scale when they tune the piano by standard methods—making the upper tones higher and the lower tones lower than in precise scale of pure tones.

Research engineers with some appreciation of music and music students were asked to listen to pianos tuned by such human methods and those tuned more precisely. The precise or perfectly tuned piano sounds were rejected by both groups.



WHERE MAN BEGAN?

It now is 100 per cent certain that man originated in Africa, says Dr. L. S. B. Leakey of the Coryndon Museum, Nairobi, Kenya.

Fossils from all over Africa support the theory that man began in Africa, the doctor says, and his evidence now is conclusive.

KILLED IN CRASH

ISSOUDUN, France (AP)—Paris Deputy Georges Bourriquet, a member of the Gaullist party, and his wife, sister and step-daughter were among five persons killed in a road crash Friday. The fifth victim was a friend.

Only That Part of Africa South of Sahara Affected by Civilization's Sudden Impact And Its Accompanying Shock Says Toynbee

Africa is shuddering under the impact of overwhelming technological and political culture on many-primitive societies. In this article, a famous historian summons the past to explain today's developments—and assays the future—in a crucial area of world conflict.

The problems arising from the impact of modern life on Africa are much in our minds today. Our attention is being held, and our anxiety is being kept at a stretch, by disturbing news from South Africa, the Rhodesias, and The Congo among other African countries.

These names that spring first to mind are reminders that the African that is causing this concern is not the whole of the African continent. If it, above all, Africa south of the Sahara; for it is there that the impact of modern life has come suddenly and has therefore come as a shock.

NATURE IS RESPONSIBLE

Nature has done her worst to insulate Africa from the civilized world. By turning the Sahara from a parkland into a desert, she sealed off the northern approaches to central and southern Africa overland. By making the c e n t r a l African rivers fall over long escarpments of a plateau at relatively short distances from the coast, nature has made these rivers useless for serving as channels for penetrating the interior from the sea.

For the e physiographical reasons, the opening up of Africa by civilization was retarded. At a time when the full opening up of the Americas and even Australia and New Zealand.

The impact of modern life on Africa south of the Sahara has been a disturbing experience. The impact has come later, it has come suddenly, and it has taken forms that were bound to arouse resentment. The first form was slavery; its second was colonialism; and the reverse process of "decolonization," which has set in at such high speed since the end of the Second World War, is a victory for justice and for liberation but it not a solution of the African problem.

It is, indeed, a problem in itself, because liberation from European rule cannot bring with it an escape from modern life and a return to the state of cultural stagnation in which most of Africa south of the Sahara was living before modern life broke in upon it.

Africa south of the Sahara has been overtaken by the impact of modern life while its peoples have been, for the most part, still in the pre-civilized stage of culture. The wind of change has shattered their frail ways of life to pieces before it has inspired them to demand a place for themselves in the modern world on an equal footing with the rest of mankind.

This sudden violent tornado has swept over all parts of Africa south if the Sahara, but it would be a mistake to expect to see this common ordeal produce uniform consequences. In Africa south of the Sahara, the situation varies from country to country.

DIFFERENT SETUPS

There are two main differences that it is important to bear in mind. There is the difference between countries with an all-African population and countries with a mixed population that includes European and Asian minorities; and there is the difference between countries in which the former European government has helped the local Africans to prepare themselves for managing their own affairs and countries in which the Africans have been hindered deliberately from acquiring experience of modern life, for fear that this might put it in their power to insist on removing their independence.

The African c o u n t r i e s in which the situation is particularly dangerous today are, of course, those with a mixed population and those in which the Africans have been deliberately hindered from gaining experience of modern life. In a country in which these two handicaps to progress coexist, as they do in South Africa, the situation is tense and the outlook is alarming to the degree at which it begins to verge.

If we survey the different parts of Africa south of the Sahara with these distinctions between them in mind, we shall find that the outlook is comparatively dark in South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, the former Belgian Congo and the present Portuguese colonies, while it is comparatively bright in West Africa (both former British and the former French) and in Uganda and Tanganyika. In Northern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, Rwanda-Urundi and Kenya the outlook is doubtful.

INDUSTRIAL POTENTIAL

Northern Rhodesia and the Katanga province of the former Belgian Congo are of outstanding importance for the world on their m i n e r a l wealth. This makes them potential seats of heavy industry, in contrast to most of the rest of Africa south of the Sahara where agriculture seems likely to remain the principle source of livelihood and where the soil is mostly poor. West Africa stands out here as being also relatively fortunate economically. Though West Africa is not a mineral region, it produces cash crops for export which are in demand; a good price on the world market.

The West African climate that favors these valuable crops has also saved West Africa from being introduced by European settlers. The climate is such that Europeans cannot make themselves at home in West Africa and cannot bring up children in their homes. They come to West Africa as adults to take up professional jobs and they leave West Africa on retirement.

Its climate rules out temporary residence, Europeans can be useful to West Africa without being dangerous to her.

The coast of West Africa has been exposed to European influences for a longer period than any other part of Africa south of the Sahara and all the West African countries there is a Negro elite that has had a good eor Northern Rhodesia would present serious problems if they had not both been tied up in a federation with Southern Rhodesia against the wishes of their African majorities.

LONDON STILL RULES

Fortunately, s e t t l e r s using this federal link with Southern Rhodesia, both these countries still are being administered by the United Kingdom government so that we have not yet had to see what would happen if the British had left the United Nations.

The rapid survey will probably have left in the reader's mind two general questions that must be familiar because they are fraught with anxiety.

The first question concerns Belgium's former African possessions and Portugal's present ones. In these African territories, the native Africans have been e x c l u d e d or debarred from gaining the experience required for running their countries themselves. How can these African territories attain self-government, and, consolidated, colonial rule, without a transitional period of foreign aid which might have to go to the length of being a temporary tutelage?

UN REST FOR JOB

The answer seems to be that, in these territories, a temporary tutelage will probably be unavoidable. If so, then it is desirable that the United Nations should be given the tools for doing the job. This seems to be the only alternative to the disastrous course of allowing these African territories to become new theatres of the struggle for world power between the Western and the Communist power blocs.

The second question concerns the future of the European and Asian settlers in Africa. Is it tolerable future there possible for them? Will the political enfranchisement of the native African majority spell, for the immigrant minorities, a choice between the three grim fates of expropriation, expulsion, and subjection to the status of inferiority that the European minorities have imposed on the African majorities hitherto?

The answer to this question surely is that the destinies of the settlers lie in their own hands. In the settlers' own hands. "Make peace with thine adversary quickly while thou art in the way with him."

If the settlers have the vision, generosity and courage to act in the spirit of this passage in the Gospels, there is a reasonable hope that the natural and inevitable resentment of Africans at their past treatment by the settlers may be outweighed by their gratitude for timely aid in getting on their own feet and in learning the responsible role of a majority's responsible part in a democratic country.

WORK OF ST. SAVIOUR

In Tanganyika, race relations seem to have taken this auspicious turn. In Kenya and Northern Rhodesia there is good hope for a happy ending on Tanganyika lines. In the case of Southern Rhodesia there now are signs that the European settlers' minds are moving.

South Africa is the only multiracial African country in which the European s e t t l e r s have been completely dominant. Yet, even in South Africa, it still is not too late for the European majority at least to face the future for itself by throwing out Dr. Verwoerd's government and replacing it by one that would seek an agreed settlement with the Asian (Asian community and with the native (African) majority.

How, then, are we to estimate the prospects of Africa south of the Sahara? The answer is that the differences in the local situation take account, and call for a balance. It would be unduly pessimistic to take the prospects of South Africa as decisive, and being indicative of the prospects for the whole continent. Conversely, it would be unduly optimistic to assume that southern and western Africa are bound to fare as well as West Africa.

Africa south of the Sahara is a house of many mansions. In dealing with it, we must be discriminating, impartial, and, above all, patient.

Turkey Crop Suffers Loss Due to Cold

TORONTO (CP) — Southern Ontario's turkey crop suffered a record loss as a result of a night of severe cold and sleet May 25, K. R. Smith, secretary of the Ontario Turkey Association, said Friday.

Turkey losses estimate 75,000 birds have died in the last three weeks. Some farmers lost half their birds.

A record number of turkeys this year—25 per cent higher than last year—overflowed covered sheds, forcing farmers to put the birds on the range earlier than usual. Most of the birds lost were between eight and 16 weeks old.

Mr. Smith said prices would probably not be affected by the loss.

HEALTH OFFICERS NAMED

TORONTO (CP) — Winnipeg lawyer Ian T. Dubinski, president of the Manitoba division of the Canadian Mental Health Association, Friday was elected president of the association at the annual meeting here. He succeeds J. S. D. Tory of Toronto, who was elected chairman of the board.

BEAMSVILLE (CP) — Belmont Bobbie, a four-year-old colt owned by Jack Kenny of Ancaster and driven by Gary Campbell of St. Catharines, won Saturday's feature at Beamsville Fairgrounds.

Belmont Bobbie split the Lundy's Lane Mile Mixed (the Glen Shapley's Starlite, but picked up the $200 purse by three-fifths of a second better fourth and eighth races) with times.

The daily double, on Ridgeway Girl in the first and Topper One mishap marred the Saturday program when Rumbel and Charles G. tangled in the of the grandstand in the seventh race.

Charles G., a 15-year-old gelding owned by Frank Smith of Hamilton, had to be destroyed.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dunn Campbell, owner and driver of standard breds from Atlas Crair won the feature Frisco Byrd Pace Saturday, a divided event carrying a purse of $1,000.

He drove four winners Friday night.

Campbell's speedy Argyl Sam finished first in the second heat of the Frisco Byrd after sading up in fourth place in the opening dash. But the fast time in the second portion of the event entitled him to firs place.

The McNab, owned by Wilfred J. McNab of Maple, captured the first heat in 209 1-5. Argyl Sam's time in the second dash was a sparkling 206 4-5.

The McNab paid $15.20 to winning the first dash while Argyl Sam paid $3.60 in the nightcap.

Horses owned by Earl Barnes & Allan Craig accounted for the $48.60 daily double, Helena Chips took the first race while Colonel Volo C took the second.

PETERBOROUGH (CP)— Johnny Dale, owned by Jack Ball of Peterborough, won its third straight race victory here Saturday when he swept both heats of the Class A race in the third harness horse meet of the season.

MONTREAL (CP) — Favorite Speedy Pick, starting from the seventh and last port position, won the $5,000 Invitation Pace at Richelieu Park Saturday with a 2:01 2-5 mile.

gelding paid $2.70, $2.90 and $2.70. Charles Fitzpatrick drove for the winning Blue Hen Stables of Dagsboro, Del.

Southern Charm paid $3 and $2.60 to place and Dares Direct showed for $3.50.

HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP)—Irish Gratian sped to the fastest mile of the meeting at Buffalo Raceway Saturday night, a 2:04 effort, to take top money in the $3,000 Invitational Pace. The winner paid $13.20.

Canadian reinsman Harold McKinley suffered bruises when an accident marred the sixth race, a handicap pace. When Famous Mile went on a bad break shortly before the half, it caused a jam-up involving Take Command, driven by McKinley and Bill's Gal, none of the three finishing. Famous Mile suffered a broken lft foreleg.

Canadian horses Paceaway ($4.50) and The Jonesboy ($4.90) won second and third races.

Bruno Bertolin says he doesn't want to start an argument—but if hockey and football players think they're in good physical condition, they should take a whirl at soccer. That's his game.

"I'll say any time that hockey players have got to be tough and in pretty good shape and that football players are rough and tough, but for over-all physical fitness they aren't in the same league with the soccer types," he said in an interview.

Who is Bertolin?

Well, he's quite a chap. He's only five feet 4½ inches tall, weighs 145 pounds, has played all three sports and now is captain and outside right of Toronto Italia in the newly-formed Eastern Canada Provincial Soccer League. He's the smallest player in the league and is ranked as one of its best.

He came to Canada from Italy on Christmas Day in 1949 and he's using his soccer pay to put him through the commerce and finance course at the University of Toronto.

NO TIME OUT

Probably he best could be described as the Ron Stewart of soccer.

He played high school hockey and football and was a halfback in intra-mural football at the University of Toronto where he excelled in field goal kicking. Without any trace of bravado, he recalled he kicked placements up to 45 yards which is pretty fair distance for any pro.

"Soccer takes a lot more out of me than football or hockey ever did," he says. "A hockey player is on the ice a couple of minutes and then sits on the bench. In football, they use offensive and defensive teams but in soccer we're going a full 90 minutes with only a 10-minute break."

Bertolin's comments received mixed reaction from hockey and football officials.

"Count me out—that's an unfair question," said coach Punch Imlach of the NHL Toronto Maple Leafs, who also happens to be director of Toronto City in the new soccer setup. He commented only that "soccer is a great game, hockey is a great game and there's a distinct similarity between the two in palling and also in faking the goalkeeper out of position."

Managing director Lew Hayman of the Toronto Argonaut football club was inclined to agree with Bertolin—but with reservations.

"As far as legs and heart are concerned, I'll agree that the soccer player is in better shape than the football player. The heart is the only muscle in the body that directs the amount of fatigue a player can take who is running up and down a field for 90 minutes or so.

"Physically, a football player doesn't perform the same way. With the platooning system, he is used only spasmodically and the area of ground he covers is much less than a soccer player. So, really, he isn't using the same muscles to the same extent although he is in good shape."

LONG RANGE PRODUCTION

Italian film producer Dino de Laurentis plans to make a $25,000,000 movie of the Bible which will take three years to film and 10 hours to show.

SMALLEST PLAYER — Bruno (Scooter) Bertolin, captain and outside right of the Toronto Italia soccer team, is the smallest player in the newly formed Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League. He is only five feet, 4½ inches tall and weighs 145 pounds. Bertolin came to Canada from Italy in 1949 and has played hockey, football and soccer but he says soccer demands the most in physical fitness. (CP Photo).

MOON SUSPENDED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Outfielder Wally Moon of Los Angeles Dodgers was suspended Saturday night for three days for making bodily contact with an umpire.

The suspension resulted from an incident in the ninth inning of Friday night's San Francisco-Los Angeles game. Moon charged up to umpire Augie Donatelli after being called out on an apparent forced play at second base.

Moon denied making contact with Donatelli. He said it was Donatelli who made the contact, bumping him on the shoulder as he called him out.

Tigers Win Pair, Blast Eight Homers

Winning Tribe Keeps Pace

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cleveland Indians are making a big move in the American League race by winning 18 of its last 22 games but it can't match the home run boom of the front-running Detroit Tigers.

The secret of Detroit's ability can be read in the Sunday box scores. The Tigers' eight home runs were hit by eight different men.

The big men hit a few—Rocky Colavito got No. 15, Norm Cash No. 12, and Dick Brown No. 8—but the list also included Chico Fernandez, Ubba Morton, Mike Roarke, Jake Wood and Billy Bruton.

In fact, the Tigers lead the league in home runs with a total of 64, a statistic almost as startling as their long tenure in first place.

Detroit defeated Minnesota Twins Sunday 10-4 and 9-3. The Twins now have lost nine in a row and 14 of their last 15.

FOLLOWS THE TIGERS

Cleveland continues streaking along on the trail of the Tigers, defeating Los Angeles Angels 9-3 and 8-4. In games, the New York Yankees walloped Chicago White Sox 10-1, Boston Red Sox edged Baltimore Orioles 6-5 and Kansas City Athletics defeated Washington Senators 8-5.

Saturday, Cleveland went through four Los Angeles pitchers, including reliever Ted Bowsfield of Penticton, B.C., en route to a 9-4 victory. Chicago edged the Yankees 6-5 in 13 innings, Baltimore topped Boston 5-1, Kansas City whitewashed Washington 4-0 and Detroit squeaked by Minnesota 3-2.

The Tigers rally exploded the power to back-up Frank Lary en route to his eighth victory in Sunday's games. Brown, Wood and Fernandez hit their homers in the eighth inning. But Bob Bruce gave way to Paul Foytack, the eventual winner, in the second game of a doubleheader played before 32,782 at Detroit.

John Romano continued his streak, hitting safely in his 18th and 19th consecutive games in Cleveland's sweep over the Angels. Jim Perry needed help from Bob Allen and Frank Funk in the first, then Hawkins, all of whose five victories have come on relief, got a hand from Bobby Locke in the late innings of the second.

NEWS FROM THE ROUTE

New York finally found a pitcher besides Whitey Ford who could get the route in Bill Stafford. He proceeded to hold Chicago to seven hits while the White Sox chipped in with five errors.

The Yanks got four off Billy Pierce in the first inning on three walks, an error by Luis Aparicio and a three-run double by Elston Howard. Later, Roger Maris hit his 15th homer.

Boston beat Baltimore on Joe Ginsberg's pinch two-run single in the 11th of the ninth. Ginsberg's first hit of the year came off Hoyt Wilhelm after Pete Ramos, Bill Monbouquette and Dick Brown had pitched three times to bring home the tying run from third base. Jim Gentile hit homer No. 14 for the Orioles.

Jim Archer, who escaped from the Kansas City bullpen on the suggestion of owner Charlie Finley, went all the way to top Washington although he gave up 15 hits, five in the ninth. It helped Kansas City climb past Washington into fifth place. Among the 19 hits by the As was Andy Carey's third homer.

Cobourg Shades Picton 1-0

COBOURG (Special) — Cobourg Merchants edged the Picton Waits 1-0 here Saturday night in an exciting Belleville and District Softball league pitching duel between Jim "Sleepy" Dawe and Rod er Chapman.

Dawe, after having lost a five-hitter and a two-hitter in his earlier starts, tossed strong three-hit ball to get the victory Saturday. He struck out 12 and did not walk a batter.

Roger Chapman also toiled in fine style for Picton, losing a tough decision while allowing just four hits. He peped ten on strikes and issued three free passes. He fanned eight in the first three innings.

Two of Chapman's walks led to the Cobourg scoring play in the sixth inning. Two were out before Mills and Dawe drew passes. Reilly Campbell then came in centre field to drive in the game's lone marker.

The game, played in an hour and ten minutes, saw both teams play errorless ball. Cobourg left six base runners and Picton two.

Campbell collected two of the Cobourg hits while Biltz Mills and Leo O'Brien bagged the others.

Picton — MacDonald 2b, K. Stacey 3b, Heffernan lf, Hayden 1b, L. Cole c, L. Hawker rf, Lockwood cf, McGuire ss, Chapman p, Marsele cf.

Lame 'Carry Back' Sixth

'Sherluck' Takes Belmont Stakes

By JOHN CHANDLER

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP) — Carry Back, the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner who flopped in the Belmont Stakes, must have been "hurting" in the left front ankle when he blew a chance Saturday to become the sixth triple crown hero.

Further examination of the little Florida-bred colt, who had captivated the hearts of sports fans with his great stretch rallies in Kentucky and Maryland, was scheduled for today at Monmouth Park.

Another colt owned by a Missouri resident, Jacob Sher's Sherluck, was a roughly wet winner of the $148,650 Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park. Carry Back, bet down to favoritism at odds of 9 to 20 by a howling crowd of 51,586, came home third running of the big three-year-old classic. It was one of those dramatic finishes where a majority of the fans didn't see the winner finish — they were looking back and wondering what happened.

Sherluck hit the wire 2¼ lengths ahead of Globemaster, Quadrasol.

Amblopolse was fourth, followed by Dr. Miller, Hitting Carry Back, Bal Musette and Alberta Ranches' Flutterby who finished last.

GETS BIG PURSE

Sherluck collected the richest winner's share, $104,000, and his luck returned $132.10, $50.30 and $18. Globemaster paid $15.30 and $9, Guadalcanal $7.60.

The time for the 1¼ miles was 2:29 1-5, compared with the track and United States record of 2:26 3-5 set by Gallant Man in winning the 1957 Belmont.

The huge crowd, which included Gen. and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, watched the race on a cloudy, drizzling afternoon. But it didn't rain hard, enough to alter the fast track.

Carry Back is owned by Mrs. Katherine Price of Miami and trained by her husband, Jack, who reported the colt lame upon arrival Sunday at Monmouth Park from New York.

"It's his left front ankle," said Price. "He was lame when he was unloaded from the van that took him from Belmont to Monmouth Park. Preliminary x-rays show no fracture and I don't think it's a pulled muscle. But we intend to take other x-rays to try to make sure."

Jockey Johnny Sellers, who had ridden Carry Back to his sensational wins at Churchill Downs and Pimlico, said afterwards that the colt "had a rough trip and there was no racing room anywhere."

At the Belmont barn, where a veterinarian examined the colt immediately after the race, Price said:

"The only excuse I could provide was the one Sellers gave me—that the horse had a rough trip, had been bumped on the first turn and possibly had the wind knocked out of him."

Sherluck, ridden by Panamanian Braulio Baeza, hadn't won a race since the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland, Lexington Ky., April 26. He paid the highest straight mutuels in the history of the Belmont classic, $132.10 for $2.

Pitcher Quits, Twins Ask $50,000

WASHINGTON (AP)—Charles Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, is demanding $50,000 from Minnesota Twins because of pitcher Jim Gilel's retirement.

The Athletics obtained Gilel and infielder Reno Bertoia of Windsor from the Twins last Thursday in exchange for outfielder Bill Tuttle. Gilel said Saturday he is quitting.

"I want $50,000 for Gilel or else want the deal called off," Finley said. "We certainly wouldn't trade Tuttle for Bertoia. Tuttle is a $150,000 ball player. In fact I'd say he's worth $200,000."

HORSE FOUND HURT

TORONTO (CP)—Windy Ship, the 1960 Durham Cup winner owned by Max Cristall's Encee stable, was found in his New Woodbine Stable Saturday with severe sores to the mouth and throat, apparently caused by a caustic solution. "It is hard to say whether he picked up something in his stall or deliberately applied the solution intended to injure the horse," a track official said, terming Windy Ship a "very sick horse."

Defeat Newcastle, Peterborough

Kenmor Bats Find Target

By PETER CARVER

The Belleville Kenmors hit a winning stride over the week-end racking up their first wins of the season. Saturday they defeated Newcastle 9-3 behind Billy Moxon's three-hit hurling and yesterday at the Fair Grounds they clobbered the Peterborough Fannings 13-1 with Larry Soden tossing a two-hitter.

The Kenmors swung vicious bats wounding Newcastle pitching for 21 clouts and smashing out 10 off a pair of Peterborough burgers.

They spotted Newcastle three runs in the first inning, tied it in the fourth and then put the game away with a five-run outburst in the sixth. Larry Soden, Larry Mavety and Don Masters had three each with Locke, Follwell and Moxon getting two. Each man on the club hit safely.

SCORE EARLY

The Kenmors opened the scoring against Peterborough with two runs in the first inning and made the game a runaway, scoring two in the sixth and four in both the seventh and eighth. The Fannings spoiled Soden's bid for a shutout by plating their only run in the ninth.

Larry Soden pitched standout ball for the winners, whiffing nine and walking three. At Wade started for Peterborough and Al Scollard came on in the eighth. They were touched for 10 hits, walking three and striking out four.

Singles by Locke, Follwell, and Soden and an error accounted for Belleville first two runs. An error, a hit batsman and Billy Moxam's booming triple brought two more across in the sixth. Hunter's double, a walk, two errors, and Moxam's circuit clout scored four in the Kenmor's half of the seventh. Asseltine and Locke, with a single and double, scored on Follwell's long double. Two errors and a passed ball added the final nine runs.

A two-base error and McCarthy's base hit ruined the Kenmor's shutout bid.

Bill Moxon starred for Belleville at the plate blasting a home run and two triples in four times at bat. Moe Hunter and Bob Follwell each collected two hits while Locke, Asseltine and Soden rounded out the Kenmor's attack.

McCarthy and Rowe hit safely for the Fannings.

Belleville — Vaughn, Hunter, Moxam, Locke, Mavety, Asseltine; Follwell, Goyer, Soden.

Peterborough — Renwick, Whitehall, Foley, Rowe, Aycite, Stanwick, McCarthy, Harris, Taylor, Scollard, Wade.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H CARVER, Sports Editor

Lee Gaudette and his snappy Galt Terriers, a clutch of puck-chasing pooches that yelped a victory chorus over the Allan Cup last spring, will represent Canada at the fourth tournament at Colorado Springs some next March.

The Terriers at a team meeting the other day voted to apply for the job and their nomination is a foregone conclusion. The CAHA will ratify it at its summer meeting in August.

Assuming there will be a senior hockey league up thataway next season, the Terriers, like their world tournament predecessors in Ontario, won't be able to take part in group playoffs, and that won't sit very well if the future senior loop consists of say four or five clubs.

The grapevine has it that some of those 900-800 rink populations on home-town night did not appeal too strongly to the share-the-wealth athletes, and organization problems may be quite tough when the time rolls around.

However a very reliable source has it that Waterloo and Ingersoll are seeking nuclei for upper-bracket hockey clubs, with some of the prolific tentacles reaching as far east as this city. The unproven prattle hereabouts is that some of the former McFarlands have been contacted by Ingersoll interests.

The age-old problems face Maestro Gaudette and his Terriers, money and players. It is to be hoped the Terriers do not run into such a player-playoff furor as that experienced by the Kitchener Dutchmen two years ago.

Gaudette is not doing things halfway. With the formal world tournament application he asked that the Terriers be given a European tour consideration, something they were told might be available if they took on the world tournament job.

The Terriers will need seven players, four forwards, two defencemen and a goalie, according to Gaudette, but getting players of the required calibre may be a much tougher job than he thinks. The club will be allowed to take 17 players and three officials, according to the CAHA. Some of the Allan Cup Terriers may be replaced but they will likely want to make the trip. And who can blame them.

The CAHA with probably the Kitchener Dutchmen player fiasco in mind, has agreed to make available to the Terriers any player who wants to play for the club regardless of whether or not his club wants to release him. The players will join the Terriers for a month and will return to their clubs at the end of the tournament.

KENMORS CLICK

The Belleville Kenmors who have been bat-shy since the Lakeshore Intermediate "Baseball League schedule opened finally hit the stride that swept them to a major junior "A" OHA championship last year.

With all guns firing they blasted the Newcastle hurling for 21 solid clouts in Newcastle on Saturday and romped home with a 12-1 victory. They picked up where they left off at the Fair Grounds Sunday, swamping the favored Peterborough Fannings under a ten-hit barrage for a 9-3 triumph.

The Kenmors hurling staff came up with top performances too. Saturday Billy Moxon tossed a three-hitter at the Newcastle bats and yesterday ace righthander Larry Soden had the Peter' sluggers eating out of his hand with a two-hitter.

Moxon who one of the top Kenmore stars over the weekend. He not only turned in an outstanding mound job but gathered himself five hunky clouts including a home run and two triples in Sunday's game.

Moe Hunter also got himself six blasts in the two games with Soden, Bob Follwell and Locke getting four each.

Giants Defeat Dodgers, Cut Lead

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

It takes a fellow like Stu Miller to prove the race isn't always to the swift. They say he has three pitches — slow, slower and screwy.

Whatever he has, it seems to work. Miller, who has a 4-0 record, was called in as San Francisco Giants whom San Jones ran into a wild spell at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Jones had walked in a run by passing pitcher Ron Fairly with the bases loaded and had a 4-0 lead when Miller entered. Stu shut out the Dodgers the rest of the way.

The Giants' 4-2 victory, set up by Felipe Alou's two-run homer off loser Stan Williams, cut the Dodgers' National League lead to a half-game. The Giants and Cincinnati Reds are tied for second, five percentage points back.

STUMBLED OVER CUBS

Cincinnati stumbled over Chicago Cubs 8-3 after winning the first game 3-2. In other games Milwaukee Braves walloped St. Louis Cardinals 7-1 and Philadelphia Phillies defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4.

Saturday, the Dodgers edged San Francisco 4-3, Chicago defeated Cincinnati 10-7, Milwaukee trounced St. Louis 9-3 and the Pirates downed Philadelphia 5-1.

The Giants' victory over the Dodgers Sunday was the first in their last six meetings and salvaged the final game of a series. A crowd of 47,463 saw the Giants get two off Williams in the first and add another pair on Alou's homer in the seventh. Jim Davenport scored their first on Johnny Rossboro's homer in the fifth.

Cincinnati's Jim Maloney threw a three-hitter at Chicago in the opener. Maloney had a shutout until Chicago's George Altman homered with one out in the ninth.

Jim O'Toole did not have the same good fortune in the second game. Back-to-back homers by Ron Santo and Ernie Banks in to his fifth defeat despite Frank Robinson's 13th home run.

Warren Spahn won his 6th career by holding St. Louis to six hits. He lost his chance for his 53rd big league shutout when he rendered a wild pitch that let in a run in the fourth inning. Home runs by Lee Maye and Frank Bolling accounted for Bob Gibson.

Don Ferrarese, a refugee from the Baltimore League, won his first victory for Philadelphia. It was the second time in three days the Pirates had been shut out by the Phils.

The Phillies knocked out Vicgar Bend Mizell in the second inning. Manager Danny Murtaugh for the second time this season called on Bob Friend, a starter, for relief work. Ferrarese allowed only five hits.

Leafs Take Three From Syracuse

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Despite their seventh - place standing in the International League, there isn't a team that dares off Toronto Maple Leafs as serious contenders for a second straight title.

The Leafs, who won in a breeze last year, showed they still have what it takes as they beat Syracuse Chiefs 3-2 and 9-0 Sunday for a double-header sweep for their third straight victory over the Chiefs.

Rochester Red Wings also flexed their muscles, walloping Buffalo Bisons 13-2 and 5-2 while Charleston Marlins inched their way to a two-game lead atop the league, beating the second - place Columbus Jets 7-2. Jersey City Jerseys handed Richmond Virginians their seventh straight loss, 5-2.

In Saturday engagements the Leafs shut out the Chiefs 4-0; the Bisons edged Rochester 6-5 and Jersey City defeated Richmond 8-5. Charleston and Columbus battled to a standoff as Jets winning the opener 6-2 and losing the second game 3-1.

GET GOOD PITCHING

Rip Coleman gave only five hits in Toronto's opening victory Sunday and Bob Chakales allowed one in the seven-inning nightcap. Pete Ramos was the ace in the nightcap, while Earl Hersh hit one in the first game for Toronto.

Rochester belted Buffalo pitching for 30 hits. Dick Valenzuela had the big stick for the bats, including a pair of homers, led Rochester attack. Joe Durham had a homer, double and two singles in the opener while Ray Jacobs, Bill Tuttle and Chuck Cortel also homered for Wings. Art Quirk and Herb Moford were the winning pitchers.

Ron Piche got just about "Bobbed" their way to victory with good relief work from Ron Milliken, Bob Dulba and Bob Tiefenauer shutting the door on Syracuse. Dulba, for instance, didn't allow a hit in his three-inning stint as the Marlins got three runs in the seventh and eight innings to overcome a 5-4 Columbus lead. Two-run singles by Harry Watt bit homers for the Marlins and Ray Mejias had one for the Jets.

Orlando Pena held the fatherless Virginians to six hits, one Jim Pisoni's homer. Dan Morjay's double in the nightcap gave Jerseys a lead they never lost as Richmond relievers' Frank Bork and Bob Walz fell head three hitless over the final seven innings.

Knocks Out Ortega

Griffith Retains Crown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — World welterweight champion Emile Griffith, 22, $50,000 challenger, successfully boxing crown intact has his sights set on the middleweight title.

The New Yorker wrecked challenger Gaspar Ortega in 12 rounds Saturday night and blinded the game gladiator from Tijuana, Mex., the first Parez engagement probably 16.

Griffith toyed with Ortega until late in the 11th round. Suddenly he bombs dropped again and Ortega went reeling on rubber legs to his corner at the bell.

Griffith opened the 12th with an aggressive attack and Hartlost no time stopping it after 48 seconds. A bloody, sobbing Ortega was helped from the ring, his first and possibly last chance at a world championship gone. A crowd of 8,500 paid $32,739.

Leafs Take Three From Syracuse

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Despite their seventh - place standing in the International League, there isn't a team that dares off Toronto Maple Leafs as serious contenders for a second straight title.

The Leafs, who won in a breeze last year, showed they still have what it takes as they beat Syracuse Chiefs 3-2 and 9-0 Sunday for a double-header sweep for their third straight victory over the Chiefs.

Rochester Red Wings also flexed their muscles, walloping Buffalo Bisons 13-2 and 5-2 while Charleston Marlins inched their way to a two-game lead atop the league, beating the second - place Columbus Jets 7-2. Jersey City Jerseys handed Richmond Virginians their seventh straight loss, 5-2.

In Saturday engagements the Leafs shut out the Chiefs 4-0; the Bisons edged Rochester 6-5 and Jersey City defeated Richmond 8-5. Charleston and Columbus battled to a standoff as Jets winning the opener 6-2 and losing the second game 3-1.

GET GOOD PITCHING

Rip Coleman gave only five hits in Toronto's opening victory Sunday and Bob Chakales allowed one in the seven-inning nightcap. Pete Ramos was the ace in the nightcap, while Earl Hersh hit one in the first game for Toronto.

Rochester belted Buffalo pitching for 30 hits. Dick Valenzuela had the big stick for the bats, including a pair of homers, led Rochester attack. Joe Durham had a homer, double and two singles in the opener while Ray Jacobs, Bill Tuttle and Chuck Cortel also homered for Wings. Art Quirk and Herb Moford were the winning pitchers.

Ron Piche got just about "Bobbed" their way to victory with good relief work from Ron Milliken, Bob Dulba and Bob Tiefenauer shutting the door on Syracuse. Dulba, for instance, didn't allow a hit in his three-inning stint as the Marlins got three runs in the seventh and eight innings to overcome a 5-4 Columbus lead. Two-run singles by Harry Watt bit homers for the Marlins and Ray Mejias had one for the Jets.

Orlando Pena held the fatherless Virginians to six hits, one Jim Pisoni's homer. Dan Morjay's double in the nightcap gave Jerseys a lead they never lost as Richmond relievers' Frank Bork and Bob Walz fell head three hitless over the final seven innings.

Snead, Demaret Star

U.S. Wins Canada Cup

DORADO BEACH, Puerto Rico (AP) — The two-man team in the ninth annual Canada Cup golf matches went Sam Snead, the billionaire hillbilly from West Virginia, but the playoffs belong to Jimmy Demaret, his U.S.A. United States teammate.

The two combined for an aggregate of 580 strokes that sent them huge trophy to the United States for a second straight year and Snead hammered his way four times around the lush 7,115-yard layout of the Dorado Beach course in a record 272 strokes, 16 under par.

Demaret, 51-year - old Texas grandpappy, cut short a fishing vacation to replace Arnold Palmer, U.S. Open champion, when the latter was refused permission by the PGA to compete here.

Demaret puffed through the four steaming rounds in 288 strokes, exact par. That's better than such active stars as Dai Rees of Wales and Jack Panton of Scotland could do.

The favored team of Peter Thomson and Kel Nagle of Australia finished second behind Snead and Demaret with 277. Canada's Al Balding of Toronto and Moe Norman of London were a surprise third at 279 with Ireland fourth at 282 and Dai Rees of Wales and Jack Panton of Scotland could do.

Thomson's 272 is the individual race. Snead's total broke the record 274 Torakichi Nakamura of Japan set on the same course in Tokyo in 1957. Christy O'Connor of Ireland was third 283 after a last-round 69.

Johnston's final round of 70 left him one stroke replacement for Vancouver's Stan Leonard, who explained he was suffering from the jitters throughout. His earlier rounds were 78, 72 and 75, giving him a 296 total.

Leonard had been barred from playing in the Canada Cup matches because of a previous commitment to play in the Memphis, Tenn., Open which ended for the same time. The Canadian also belted Arnold Palmer South Africa.

Under the rules of the U.S. International Golfers Association they could not play in any other tournament prior to Memphis Open. If they did, they faced possible fines of $200 and suspensions of six months. All three passed up both tournaments.

The U.S. team victory was worth $2,000 in prize money. Australia won $1,000 and Canada $800.

Snead also picked up $1,000 as the individual winner. Thomson got second-place money of $500, Christy O'Connor $300 for third place, and Balding got $200 for finishing fourth.

Kennedy's Trip to Europe Did Not Give TV a Break

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television, which has been providing some exciting picture coverage of current events lately, probably is feeling unhappy and disappointed about the president's European journey.

Recently there were the TV theater be t w e e n presidential candidates. There was superb television coverage of the first by a U.S. astronaut in both cases, television was able to transport the audience right to the scene of action.

But the cameras couldn't follow President Kennedy behind the closed doors where his important talks took place. As a result, all that was left were pictures of arrivals, departures, receptions and processions.

The networks were struck with a lot of time they had enthusiastically reserved to handle a story which did not produce much hard news and they all had a tough time filling the minutes between the station breaks.

A decision as to Arthur Godfrey's successor next season on Candid Camera is expected soon. Candidates have been winnowed down to three or four, with Johnny Carson named as a leading contender.

Meanwhile, the program will wind up its series of new shows with a jolly session attended by the unsuspecting "stars" of the

Anne Baxter Gives Some Pointed Views on Marriage

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"America is the most difficult place in the world for marriage. And Hollywood is the most difficult place in America for marriages."

This is sad but true, said Anne Baxter, who had a broken Hollywood marriage to the late John Hodiak and now lives happily in Australia with her new husband Sonbaisman - rancher, Randolph Galt.

Here for a new movie, Anne came back with some pointed views on her own species, the U.S. female.

"She is the best looking, best groomed best dressed woman in the world."

But Anne added:

"She is spoiled. She has the most conveniences, the greatest freedom of any woman in the world, but she doesn't know what to do with herself. She makes herself miserable and hence makes her whole family miserable, for she sets the tone of the household.

"You hear her complain that she was educated merely to be a household drudge. That's mostly self pity. Most American women waste their time. If they were qualified and really wanted to, they could find time for part-time jobs or civic work after their children are in school.

"And what is wrong with managing a house? The American woman has the chance to make her house the most attractive place in the world. She has the materials with which to be a truly creative cook. But too many of them don't even try."

Marriage faces other, more formidable hazards in Hollywood, Anne remarked. "So much so that I never expected to marry again," she admitted. "Happily enough the otherwise."

Anne listed the hazards:

"The terrible extremes of success and failure, which most marriages don't have to face. It's bad enough when just the husband is subjected to these stresses; it's impossible when both husband and wife are.

"Plus these terrible Hollywood Joneses with whom people here feel they must keep up."

BRANDO IN TAHITI

An interview with movie star Marlon Brando will be a highlight of Beauty in Tahiti on CBC television June 3.

"Should'a Been Here Yesterday"

To paraphrase that well-known lament from Maud Muller, "For of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these: 'it might have been,' let me substitute those even more sad words which greet the fishermen of this world all too often on their journeys.

The substitution of "You should'a been here yesterday," No need to elaborate. Those who travel into the behind-the-beyond in search of that elusive superlative fishing know this phrase only too well.

This department is no exception. Consider this set of circumstances. Last April, you, Jon, Dick, took over the job of tournament director of the International Tarpon Tournament to be held this month at Harbor Heights near Punta Gorda, Florida. When Mrs. Knight and I left the Florida Keys we debated to stop by Harbor Heights to find out what the boy was doing and to look over the fishing situation generally.

We found Dick hard at work in his office at tournament headquarters in the Harbor Heights Country Club. After the usual amenities, I asked about the fishing. Dick, as I had expected, had the typical Chamber-of-Commerce approach.

"Absolutely tops . . . this area has long been called 'The Tarpon Capitol of the world.' Venice, Peace River, Boca Grande, Sanibel Island, Charlotte Harbor! This is the Peak of the Season, 1961. Unspoiled! These waters are stiff with tarpon. Stacked up! The guides are like cordwood. And snook! Thousands of them. Big red fish; big snook. Just the type you go look at them, etc., etc."

I said Charley Wheeler, our skipper. My party took four good fish out on the Pass yesterday. All of the boats had a good day. Dick said it came as it always does. "You should'a been here yesterday."

BRITISH TEAMS TIE

VANCOUVER (CP) — England's Birmingham City and Scotland's Third Lanark played to a 1-1 tie in the annual soccer international game here Saturday night.

European Davis Cup

LONDON (AP)—Italy, France and Spain moved into the quarter-finals of the European Zone Davis Cup tennis tournament Sunday.

The favored Italians, winners of the European tournament a year ago, had to go to the final match to eliminate Belgium 3-2 at Brussels. Spain beat New Zealand by the same 3-2 margin at Madrid and France defeated Brazil, 4-1, at Paris.

Sweden's lead-over Hungary at Budapest was cut to 3-1 when the Hungarians scored an upset victory in the doubles. The final two matches will be played today.

Quarter - final matches already lined up are Italy vs West Germany; France vs Poland, and Britain vs South Africa.

Pro Soccer

NEW YORK (AP)—John McCole scored three goals Sunday and led New York Americans to a 4-2 International Soccer League victory over Bangu of Brazil.

Everton of England defeated Karlsruhe of West Germany 5-2 in the second game of the doubleheader played before 14,929 at the Polo Grounds.

Lacrosse

BRAMPTON (CP) — Brooklin Hillcrests defeated Brampton Ramblers 10-5 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game Saturday with a burst of five goals in the final period.

The Hillcrests were paced by Larry Ferguson with three goals. Ken and Glen Lofranco contributed two each and Bill Short, Roy Woods and Terry Davis one each.

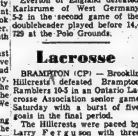
Ramblers scoring was by Bert Naylor with three, John Henderson and Bert Russel.

COMING IN JAPAN

The television series, Winston Churchill — the Valiant Years, has been sold to Japanese television, with a Japanese sound track dubbed in.

Lou May Not Go to Habs

NEW YORK (CP) — General Manager Muzz Patrick of New York Rangers says Lou Fontinato will not necessarily go to Montreal Canadiens in return for Doug Harvey.



But that's all Patrick is saying now about the deal that brought Harvey to the Rangers as player-coach of the National Hockey League club on a three-year contract—a deal that still isn't completed, although Harvey has signed with New York.

Patrick said Sunday night he is leaving for Toronto and Montreal today. He indicated that the New York-Montreal trade should be wound up within the next three days.

TORONTO BEATS STEELERS

HAMILTON (CP) — Toronto City defeated Hamilton Steelers 4-1 Sunday in an Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League game before a crowd of about 8,000. After spotting Steelers an early goal by Philip Carnadachuk, City took command with two goals by Jackie Mudie and one by Danny Blanchflower by half time.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: This is the day when you can make all kinds of long range plans and can think out the practical benefits you want in your life in the future, as well as deciding what you can do to advise a system to make them really work for you. Tonight brings the need to add color, art, romance, beauty, music to your life.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) —Forget all old originality and desire for travel that is so vital a part of your life for the time being and seek the advice of authorities that will help you to have a greater income and achieve needed security.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) —It would be very wise today to confer with good confidents so that you get invaluable advice that will help you to progress more successfully in the future. Be broadminded even though you may not at first agree with what they say.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —If key people are not being very co-operative right now, it would be wise to consult with some expert in your field of endeavor and get the information and know-how you require to become more successful. They you make a fine impression again.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 22) — The right day to take that little trip or talk over with associate some new plans that are exciting to meet with success in the early future. You can then handle all problematical affairs far more wisely and easily. Be active!

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) —Seek the advice of wise and intelligent persons now and follow their fine ideas if they inadvertently give you. Then you can handle those duties that have been difficult for you in the past. P.M. Fine for romantic happiness.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) —Go out for a drive to some charming spot with partners who seem disgruntled and you can then reach far greater accord with them. If you prove that you are loyal and kind and are capable, they will respond quickly. Be astute.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23)—Improve the spirit of the good relative today in connection with your work or career instead of trying to swing it alone and you will become far more successful. P.M. Take health treatments you need.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —Improve your appearance early in A.M. and plan your evening wisely. Then set to the activities that bring a greater remuneration. P.M. Dress in good taste as you go about socially meeting the right people. Wear a lovely smile. Charm all.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Be very attentive and follow the advice of kin who are truly interested in your welfare. Be certain you have your abode in a charming and comfortable condition so that you can invite friends in for a quiet and happy evening.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — You can make an excellent impression upon those close to you and associates as well if you get on the beam today and goodness, also, delve into new outlets that will pay off well. P.M. Sky for going out to favorite recreation.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) —Concentrate subtle now and you will come up with an idea that will give you far greater abundance and you can get rid of indebtedness. Then start ball rolling in the right direction. P.M. Take health treatments you need.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) —It would be a good idea to confide in good comrades at this time, since they will be more than glad to help you to reach your goals faster. P.M. Go out to social affairs where good friends meet and also enlarge your circle of friends.

If your child is born today . . . he, or she, will make a greater success in life if an orderly pattern is followed from earliest years. Leaving things to chance can only work out disastrously for this youngster, despite the pioneering spirit definitely in this chart. Supervision, therefore, is a must here. Fine selling or business ability is also in this horoscope. Give it good, practical education and much spiritual training.

the United States should resume test explosions of nuclear weapons.

At the centre of this threat to disarmament prospects is a border dispute that the nuclear test inspection system be controlled by a three-man board. The board would consist of one Communist, one Westerner and one member from a neutral nation.

Khrushchev is said to have told Kennedy that this plan grew out of Russia's experience with the United Nations in The Congo. He blamed the UN administration for a loss of Soviet influence in The Congo last year. He said he had decided there was no such thing as a neutral man.

Khrushchev said that any man who could be appointed to a higher international position as a neutralist would certainly be non-Communist. When faced with a critical decision, he said, a non-Communist would rule against Communist interests.

The brief communique Kennedy and Khrushchev issued at the conclusion of their meeting, the only specific agreement reported was on Laos. Even this did not represent new policy for either the president or the premier but it did seem to commit Khrushchev personally and publicly to a Laos settlement.

The two leaders, the communique said, "reaffirmed their support of a neutral and independent Laos" and "recognized the importance of an effective cease - fire." Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko then arranged to fly to the 14-nation Laotian peace conference at Geneva.

Throughout their two days of talks here, during which they spent about 12 hours together, Kennedy and Khrushchev kept their personal relations courteous. Informants said they were extraordinarily frank with each other—despite the politeness.

Normally Difficult Summer Session of U.K. Parliament Starts Like School Exam

by DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, (CP) — Parliament reassembled for its summer session this week with government members edging uneasily into their seats like schoolboys facing a stiff orals exam. One trouble is they cannot agree on the answers.

This session, with its hot weather and frayed tempers, is normally difficult for any government. But with the prospect of a major showdown on such enduring issues as the Common Market and African policy, the Conservatives may be in for the worst spell they have had so far.

Most disturbing for Prime Minister Macmillan is the rebellion on the right and left wings of his own party. In the background the old guard is still quietly protesting the government's handling of the situations in Kenya and the Rhodesia Federation.

Earl Winterton has resigned from the presidency of the Horsham Conservative Association as a protest against some aspects of the government's Africa policy. In general, he supports Lord Salisbury's view that Colonial Secretary Iain Macleod is moving too quickly.

On the other hand a number of younger Tories, eager to establish the right to ignore party whips from time to time, have taken to private criticism of Macmillan's leadership.

He looks tired, they say. He cannot make up his mind. Most important, he seems incapable of coming to any hard and fast decision about Britain's entry into the Common Market formed by Germany, France, Italy and the Benelux countries.

Yet commentators here are inclined to play down the obvious differences within the Tory ranks. In the absence of any serious challenge from the Labor party, Conservative members are enjoying a sense of widening freedom they have not experienced in the past.

Meanwhile Labor members are content to watch from the sidelines as the government grapples with the difficult, far-reaching and irrevocable decisions on the Common Market.

Socialists themselves are at odds on the issue and opinion has divided along non - party lines.

Many Labor members have joined the campaign in favor of Britain's joining the economic community. But some Socialist leaders share the apprehension expressed by those Conservatives opposed to such a development.

Despite such objections, Macmillan seems prepared to go ahead with negotiations for entry into the Common Market.

He told a Western European Union meeting, a defence organization composed of the Common Market countries plus Britain, that Britain was determined to work slowly toward the consolidation of Western Europe.

The question of the Commonwealth remains as a major stumbling block to such a unity. At a three-day meeting of senior Commonwealth officials recently Britain promised no move would be made to join the Common Market until Commonwealth trade matters are further discussed.

A clear difference in attitude on the Common Market has developed between Canada, Australia and New Zealand on the one hand and the Asian and Africa members of the Commonwealth on the other.

The old Dominions, with New Zealand taking the lead, are worried about Commonwealth trade preferences and the danger of uniting Europe and the risk of dividing the Commonwealth. The Nigerians, Indians and others are prepared to give Britain the green light.

Behind the opposition from the white Commonwealth, however, there is a general feeling of inevitability about Britain's joining the Six. The noises now being made are regarded as a preliminary manoeuvring for position in negotiations with Europe on trade matters.

Republic Will Welcome Investigation by Group

WASHINGTON (AP)—A five-country special commission is expected to leave Thursday to determine whether the Dominican Republic is moving toward more freedom for its people or toward an even tighter dictatorship.

A seven-country committee of the Organization of American States voted Monday to send the commission to investigate conditions in the Caribbean country following the assassination last week of dictator Rafael Trujillo.

The unanimous acceptance of the U.S. request for the investigation came after Dominican Foreign Minister Prefirio Herrera Baez said his country would welcome the special mission.

The decision marked the first victory in an inter-American agency for the administration of President Kennedy. The United States had strong support in the proposal from other American republics but the initiative clearly came from Washington.

DOMINICANS BREAK

The OAS last August at San Jose, Costa Rica charged that Trujillo personally plotted an assassination attempt on Venezuelan President Romulo Betancourt and severed diplomatic relations with the Trujillo regime.

A special committee sent to the Dominican Republic last year to conduct an investigation was not permitted to travel more than a few miles from the city.

The special commission's members are Panama, the United States, Argentina, Mexico and Uruguay.

Assassins Held Family Hostage For Four Days

CUIDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP) — A young doctor said four of those who plotted dictator Rafael Trujillo's assassination held him and his family hostage for four days in a hill hunger drove them out of hiding.

Dr. Robert Reid Cabral said his home was commandeered by the four fugitives shortly after Trujillo was gunned down last Tuesday night.

Dr. Cabral said he, his pregnant wife and their infant son were held hostages until Sunday.

The family's ordeal ended when the fugitives, desperate for food and cigarets, came out of hiding. With two hours, most of the four had met death in a gun battle with police and the five others surrendered to authorities.

DIAZ LED GROUP

Leader of the group and alleged mastermind of the assassination was retired Gen. Juan Tomas Diaz, 52.

Reid Cabral said that after the Trujillo slaying, Diaz and his accomplices went to the office of another physician, Dr. Marcelino Velez, to get treatment for a bullet wound.

The men threatened Velez unless he found Reid Cabral, a bitter foe of the police and took them to Reid Cabral's home, Wenn Reid Cabral opened the door, Diaz and Antonio de la Maza, forced their way in with guns drawn. Later two other fugitives joined the group.

Cabral said the fugitives tried to get him to relay word to a person identified only as "Wimpy" to tell Venezuelan President Romulo Betancourt that "the tyrant is dead."

When they finally decided to leave the house, Maza gave Reid Cabral his gold ring and a fountain pen to be delivered to his wife. Diaz left a diamond pin for his son.

Wants to Make CNE Midway 'Disneyland'

TORONTO (CP) — Controller Donald Summerville said today he will propose to officials of the Canadian National Exhibition that they convert the midway into an amusement park like Disneyland, with Walt Disney hired as consultant for the multi-million dollar project.

"It is possible that the midway as we know it today may be outlawed by 1962 when we should start putting away money each year for something new," Mr. Summerville said.

The present midway contract with CNE midway expires in four years.

Mr. Summerville said the Disneyland development in California, which includes fairytale castles and frontier cabins, would be in sharp contrast to the present midway where carnival barkers call adults into girlie shows and children into freak shows.

He said some informal negotiations have already taken place but he declined to give details.

Today's Chuckle

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Cooler air moved south of Toronto during the night and by mid-day covered all of southwestern Ontario. Skies were clear through most of Ontario and fair weather is likely to continue for the next day. Temperatures dropped below the freezing point at some places in Northern Ontario last night.

SO MANY DICE IN SEPTIC TANK PUMP JAMMED

Cooksville Club Had Plumbing Woes

TORONTO (CP) — Wilbert Nesbitt told a bribery-conspiracy trial Monday there were so many dice in the septic tank at the Vets' Club in nearby Cooksville that his plumbing equipment was jammed.

He was testifying at the trial of Robert Wright, a former provincial policeman, and Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley, both of Toronto.

The Vets' Club in Cooksville 15 miles west of Toronto, has been described during the trial as one that has been protected by Const. George Scott, an undercover officer for the provincial police.

Const. Scott took payment in return for supplying tips on impending OPP raids on gambling establishments.

Nesbitt, first called to the Cooksville club in 1954, said his pump jammed "seven or eight times" and each time he found dice in "almost every pipe in it."

He was called back to service the same club in 1958 and found the same trouble.

"It was . . . dice plugging the pump. I removed 100 dice, maybe 50 pairs or more—plus what left to the bottom."

FOUND SAME EARLIER

The same thing happened in 1956, he told the hearing. He found the last time he serviced the tank was in 1999 and that it was "loaded" with the same.

Nesbitt's testimony marked the start of the trial's second week.

The trial began amid a protest by defence counsel over contacts with officials of United States law enforcement agencies and RCMP in the case of gangland incidents in Toronto.

Bullet in Neck Came Out of Mouth, Lives to Tell of Nazis' Cover-Up

JERUSALEM—A survivor of a German death factory in Poland described today how the Nazis tried to cover up signs of their extermination program for Jews before the liberation.

Simon Srebnik, a Polish-born Jew testified at the trial here of trying Adolf Eichmann that he was one of those assigned the job of distributing the huts at the Chelmno extermination camp in Poland as the Russians moved in.

Srebnik, those who worked on demolishing the camp were killed afterward, he said, but the bullet an SS man fired into the back of his neck came out through his mouth and he survived.

Srebnik said he was only 13 when he worked in chains at Chelmno hacking gold teeth from the mouths of Jews killed by the Nazis.

Three months before the liberation the Germans started to disband the camp and Srebnik and other survivors were kept behind in January, 1945, to dismantle the camp huts.

Then they were taken out in groups of five and shot. "I was the last group. They said to me to lie down. Then I heard . . . the bullets whizzing by and I was hit by one of them. . . ."

Srebnik showed the judges the scar at the back of his neck, and then turned around to face the court and pointed at his mouth where the bullet emerged.

Srebnik said he saw an average of 1,200 Jews daily over a period of nine months paraded to their deaths.

Srebnik said he felt were chained throughout his stay in Chelmno—from the end of 1941 until his liberation two years later.

Canadian Tariff System Antiquated Meeting Told

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian tariff system is antiquated, says Dr. R. Y. Yohe, president of B. F. Goodrich Canada Ltd., Kitchener.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Dr. Yohe, who described himself "as an American with nearly three years solid in Canada," urged a complete reappraisal of the tariff system.

A hearty "Amen" came from L. D. Smithers, "as American as Boston Massachusetts," president of Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd., Sarnia, and a fellow panelist at a session Monday on world trade.

Canadian manufacturers have indicated in representation to the federal government that they don't want so much higher tariffs as a readjustment of tariffs to give added protection where it may be necessary to help Canada's export trade, Mr. Smithers said.

Dr. Yohe's comment was set aside from his main address in which he exhorted Canadian industrialists to seek out markets and "sell Canadian."

Dr. Yohe called into question some concepts of American competition. He said:

"While about 70 per cent of Canada's imports come from the United States these goods do not necessarily — in fact, a large portion do not — compete with Canadian manufacturing.

"Who competes with Canadian manufacturers? Obviously it is those who have no subsidiaries in Canada and who have no compunctions about competing with Canadian - manufactured products. The most interesting price competition for products of Canadian manufacture is not from the United States, but from overseas.

"Would B. F. Goodrich spend millions of dollars to build a tire plant in Canada if it could import such tires and still sell them competitively in Canada with tires from any country? Would we, in fact, have ever got a manufacturing operation in Canada in the first place? If we had not, where would the some 2,000 employees now employed be working?"

Dr. Yohe's colleague, Mr. Smithers, who led off a session on world trade, also urged industrialists to "sell Canadian," and said that while some companies have good records in seeking export trade, others are not taking advantage of opportunities.

Ian F. McRae, chairman of General Electric Co. Ltd., described Canada as the "greatest dumping receiver of goods in the world." He approved the relief on goods sold outside the country.

Doctors Told Wife-Killing Seemed to Be Inevitable

MONTREAL (CP) — A study of eight husbands who killed their wives shows the slayings were inevitable and certain that the couple had made the same mistakes repeatedly, a Montreal psychiatrist told the court Monday.

Dr. Bruno Cormier, associate psychiatrist at Royal Victoria Hospital, told the third World Congress of Psychiatry that the killings had been necessary psychologically because the husband was unable to make a final separation any other way.

He said his studies of the underlying factors in murder conducted two to eight years after the slaying. The husbands were serving terms varying from a few years to life.

In no case was the slaying motivated by material gain or other similar considerations. It was the result of a deep-seated conflict between the individuals.

A similar pattern emerged in every case.

It is said and wife were strongly attracted to each other from their first meeting and felt from the start that they were in some way interlocked.

"An important characteristic of these acutely troubled marriages is that in spite of the knowledge, sometimes conscious, of the growing danger of living together, the husbands are unable to make a final separation, even when they become aware of their overt aggression against the wife and have threatened to kill her."

But while planning the threats as pain of their strategy failed, their way in the marriage.

The final crisis that led to the killing would appear to an onlooker as only another one in a series, Dr. Cormier said, but to the husband it acquired a "special significance."

The murder occurred "at a point of intense emotion and a feeling that to continue is inconceivable and to give up impossible."

Before the slayings the husbands went through a period of depression and preoccupation with thoughts of death or advice for guilt feelings.

While serving their sentences, the husbands began to see themselves and their victims in a new light. They gained some understanding of their own motivations.

"With this better appraisal, there comes genuine remorse and sorrow that they have killed, and an emotional certainty that they will never accept engage in a relationship which ends in murder."

INQUEST SCHEDULED

SARNIA (CP) — An inquest will be held Thursday night into the death of Raymond Robinson 22, of Sarnia, one of four persons who died as a result of a two-car crash May 27 on Highway 7. Also killed were Daniel Gallant, 22, his brother, Jean-Marie, 15, and James Semple, 16.

HOUSE MOVES CLOSE TO CHANGE IN MURDER LAW

Detailed Vote Sought Of Bill Completed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons moved a step closer Monday night to approving a fundamental change in Canada's criminal laws dealing with murder and the death penalty.

MPs wrapped up debated study of a government measure establishing two degrees of murder—capital murder, punishable by death at the gallows, and non-capital murder, for which the punishment is to be life imprisonment.

But they left final reading of the bill to another session.

The measure has provoked a solemn and soul-searching debate among MPs over the death penalty, a recurring issue before parliamentarians in recent years.

For a solid-blocked filling of second and deliberate murder, or a slaying committed during the perpetration of certain crimes under the proposed legislation would be "capital" murder and the penalty would be death.

INTRODUCES CHANGE

In a last-minute change, Justice Minister Fulton introduced an amendment originally proposed by Conservative Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

The amendment would give the jury the option of bringing in a guilty verdict of capital murder, the new measure provides that the presiding judge must ask the jury whether it wants to recommend mercy. The question is to be asked after the jury has returned a guilty verdict and after the judge has asked for any pronounce the death penalty.

The Liberal proposal to have this question of clemency put to the jury by the judge in his directions before the jury retired to consider its verdict. However, the Liberal amendment was defeated by a vote of 58 to 17.

During debate on the amendment, Mr. Fulton said the recommendation of clemency by a jury does not necessarily mean an automatic commutation of the death penalty to life imprisonment.

The bill does not change the law which says that a out the death penalty—hanging.

WOULD USE GAS

Judy LaMarsh (L — Niagara Falls) introduced a private bill of her own Monday aimed at replacing the gallows with a gas chamber. It goes to the bill of fare with the private members' bills — with little chance of getting before the Commons before the summer.

Miss LaMarsh has tried unsuccessfully several times in the debate on the government bill to have it changed to abolish hanging and substitute the gas chamber as the form of execution.

Before replying to the private members' bill, MPs on opposition benches peppered Finance Minister Fleming with many of the challenges aimed at drawing him into the debate on the bill.

The date of presentation of the budget has not yet been fixed, Mr. Fleming replied, but he added:

"I hope to be in a position to bring down the budget before the end of this month."

TRUCK CRASHES

WOODSTOCK (CP)—A tractor-trailer loaded with furniture crashed on its side Monday after the top struck a CNR overpass on Highway 53 south of Eastwood. Driver Robert Greenwood of Calgary was unhurt. Damage was estimated at $4,000.

Kennedy Home, Eager Congress Awaits Report

Hope and Skepticism Conflicting Reactions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy returned home today from his series of summit level conferences abroad and prepared to report tonight on the results of his trip.

The presidential jet plane landed at Andrews air force base, Md., at 9:33 a.m. EDT after a flight of three hours and 13 minutes from Goose Bay, Labrador.

Members of Congress — divided between hope and skepticism — eagerly awaited Kennedy's report.

Speaking on radio and television at 7 p.m. EDT, Kennedy planned to summarize his meetings with Soviet Premier Khrushchev, President de Gaulle of France and British Prime Minister Macmillan.

The expectation was that the president would deal largely in generalities in describing the Khrushchev meetings. But he seemed certain to reaffirm vigorously the West's determination to stand fast against any new Communist encroachments in Berlin and other world danger spots.

Kennedy, flying from London where he had spent two days, announced they see eye-to-eye in pursuing common world objectives, faced a busy day in his office before the speech.

Congressional reports generally were optimistic that some improvement in East - West relations might grow out of the Kennedy - Khrushchev meeting in Vienna, even though no concrete results had been anticipated. Republicans were more skeptical.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he believes the conversations "will have been worth while" and may have contributed to laying the groundwork for lowering tensions in the East-West differences.

"If some reasonable agreements can now be reached at the ambassadorial level, the talks with Khrushchev may have enhanced, indirectly at least, the prospects for a real settlement in the future," Mansfield said.

But Republican Leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois described the Khrushchev session as "a yearning match that solved nothing." Senator Bourke Hickenlooper, R-Iowa) said the conference may furnish Khrushchev with a lot of grist for his propaganda mill."

500 Burglaries Yielded Youths $100,000 Loot

NEW YORK (AP) — Fourteen boys and young men — all but two of them still in their teens — have admitted 450 to 500 burglaries with loot totalling about $100,000 in the last two years, police said today.

The young men pleaded and arraigned their shoulders when asked why they stole when they had jobs and allowances from their families and most had their own cars.

Half of them are college students. One of them had a bank book showing deposits of $1,100 — proceeds of burglaries.

Arrests of the youths began Monday.

Eleven of them, ranging in age from 16 to 22, were charged with burglary. Three, who are 16 and 17, were charged with juvenile delinquency.

Lower Food and Shelter Costs Send Consumer Price Index Down

OTTAWA (CP)—Lower prices for some foods and housing items edged Canada's cost of living downward during April despite increases in transportation and clothing, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The consumer price index eased one-tenth of a point by May 1 to a new level of 128.2 with 1935-39 as the two previous months and 128.3 a year earlier. The index of living costs is based on 1949 equalling 100.

Meat, poultry and egg prices declined and so did the cost of house operations. Higher auto insurance premiums and some gasoline prices, increases in women's clothing and footwear and higher theatre and toy prices nearly balanced the price index decrease.

Stable were costs for health and personal care and tobacco and alcohol.

The index of industrial wages and salaries was also down April 1—the latest date available —to 180.8 from 181.1 the previous month, but up compared with the 174.4 figure of April 1, 1960.

The wages index, based on 1949 wages equalling 100, is compiled from a survey of firms employing more than 10 persons and covering a wide range of industries. It represents an average of total wages paid.

Kennedy Receives LONDON (Reuters) — The echoes of Britain's tumultuous reception for President Kennedy died away today and the British press took a sober second look at the outcome of the president's weekend summit talks with Premier Khrushchev.

Many expressed the view that no single positive achievement had emerged from Kennedy's talks with Khrushchev.

"President Kennedy's tour, however spectacular, has achieved few positive results," said the Daily Express.

"The general impression in London is that Mr. Kennedy's talks with Mr. Khrushchev have not so far resulted in one single positive gain on any point of substance," wrote the diplomatic correspondent for The Daily Telegraph.

MOOD UNCHANGED

"It (the summit) has not and could not have led to any decisions or even to any obvious changes of mood," said "The Guardian of Manchester. "What it has done is to enable Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Khrushchev to weigh one another against a possible future meeting of a more decisive kind."

Stacked up against the sober doubts about the summit talks, however, was the general mild bit made by the president and his wife.

Hundreds of thousands of Britons turned out to see and cheer them in London, the president and Jacqueline were nearly mobbed by well-wishers outside Buckingham Palace Monday night when they went to have dinner with the Queen.

The crowds broke through police cordons and surged around the president's car, shouting "We want Kennedy" and "We want Jackie."

The banquet was the last official function for the Kennedys before the president took off for home shortly before midnight. Kennedy was due to arrive Washington Tuesday.

Princess Lee Radziwill, Jacqueline's sister, was to continue her visit with her sister, Princess Lee said. She also plans to leave London Wednesday for a vacation in Greece.

DRIVER FINED FOR IMPAIRMENT

Herman Griffin, 47, of Belleville was fined $100 today when he pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court to a charge of driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol.

Detective Harold Reid testified that an RCMP patrol car had followed Griffin's car at a "very fast rate of speed" from the dual lane portion of Highway 2 west of the CPR tracks, to the corner of Church and Station streets in Stirling. City police were called and found Griffin to be a "borderline case of intoxication."

Kite Flying Causes Hydro Breakdown

Those who revel in the simple pleasures afforded by the flying had best beware the mighty power lines or they might experience a situation similar to that of one Benjamin Franklin of a couple of centuries ago, but with a bit more punch to it. W. J. Rasmussen of the Ontario Hydro advises that it was a dry kite line which caused the one - hour power breakdown which affected close to 300 hydro users in the area east of RCAF Station Trenton to a point about six miles west of Belleville.

The 8,500-volt single phase line supplying these people was out of operation because a kite broke loose from its line and the latter fell across the three phase power line near a trailer camp in Bayside, shorting out the top phase.

The incident was surprising inasmuch as both the weather and the kite line were dry but the kite flyer could have received a very severe shock had his line been damp, Mr. Rasmussen said. In light of this the best policy for kite flyers is to stay well away from any power lines when launching or flying their aerodynes.

Front Street Parking Fee Now Back on Legal Basis; Several Contracts Awarded

The Front street parking fee is back on a legal basis again today following council's refusal last night to amend the parking meter by-law authorizing a charge of a nickel for each half hour instead of five cents per hour.

Two weeks ago the matter was referred back and since that time the matter has been tested out in the city parking authority.

Last evening the amended by-law was passed by council.

Council was told that the new five cents per half hour parking charge along Front street was the normal downtown parking rate for many cities and towns in the province.

Alderman Temple noted that the parking authority had the authority to set parking fees but a by-law was required to be passed by council to "put teeth into it".

WILL EXPROPRIATE

Also at the request of the parking authority council voted to proceed with expropriation proceedings to purchase the James Roy property on the west side of Bell Boulevard.

The intention of the parking authority is to acquire the property and widen the east side street parking lot.

Council was told that if the sale of the property and the result of the expropriation proceedings was considered too high the city could "back away."

In other matters before council, the city fathers received a letter from the dairy milk processors of Belleville suggesting that a by-law be passed requiring that milk sold in the city to be processed in Belleville dairies.

The reason given by the processors for the request was that the by-law would bring all dairies and their products under the jurisdiction of the local health department.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds in a letter to council said he had discussed the matter with the medical officer of health who had noted that it would be unwise to prohibit the sale of milk in the inside dairies as well as those dairies meet the regulations of the milk industry act and public health act.

APPROVE TAG DAY

Council gave its approval to a request from the Belleville Minor Sports Association to hold a tag day on September 8th and 9th.

Council rescinded a resolution passed last year covering the rate to be paid for indigent burials and agreed that such payment in the future would be in accordance with the provincial act.

The new rate is $125 for the burial, plus the actual cost of opening and closing the grave, and a fee of $10 for the religious service performed in connection with the burial.

Council voted an advance of $1,500 to the Belleville Kinsmen Club as a portion of their 1961 grant to enable them to open the community swimming pool.

Alderman Jarvah said a grant of $2,500 had been provided in the budget to enable the club to open the pool. "Operation of the pool would be paid for out of receipts," he said.

WILL DEMOLISH SCALES

Council also voted to authorize the calling of tenders for the construction and installation of new weigh scales on South Church street, and also for the demolition of the present scales on Pinnacle street.

Alderman Jack Ellis, public works chairman, said the scales would be built on property leased from the public utilities commission.

The tender of the H. J. McFarland Company was accepted for the construction of asphalt paving and curbs on Wickett street, Bridgeite Road, Eleanor Gardens, Willow Drive and Coleman street (curb only) at a cost of $39,336.

The McFarland Company was also given the contract for surface treatment work on city streets at a cost of $27,856.

The tender of Jim Jackson, Little Rock, Arkansas, for street planing in the city at a cost of 37 cents per square yard, approximately $7,400 was accepted.

MAY CHANGE BOUNDARY

And in an effort to end the confusion regarding the proper name for Front street, north of the Upper Bridge a notice of motion was entertained calling for this section of the street to be known as Station street.

Unknown to a great many of the local residents, the street now known as the Upper Bridge and Pinnacle street, is now part of Front street. Whereas many people — including some city aldermen — have always believed it to be part of Station street.

At the last council meeting two weeks ago, Alderman Jack Ireland admitted he had always thought Station street extended as far as the Upper Bridge.

Smithfield Boy May Have Drowned

A seven-year-old Smithfield boy, David Francis Bilsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bilsey is missing at Frankford after disappearing last night from where his father was fishing at No. 6 dam on the Trent River.

About dark last evening as the father decided to quit fishing he told his son to go to the car to wait for him while he gathered up his fishing tackle. The boy was seen at the car but when the father returned to the vehicle the boy had disappeared.

The entire area was searched last night without results and this morning at 1:30 provincial police at Belleville were called to assist in the hunt.

Police and skin divers from Belleville were searching both the Trent River and canal in the chance that the boy may have slipped into the water.

Shortly before noon today the search was still continuing for the young boy.

Pleads Guilty To Driving Without Permit

James L. Woodcock, 34, of Belleville, was fined $50 today when he pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court to driving a car while his licence was under suspension.

Detective Harold Reid testified that an OPP patrolman had stopped Woodcock on N. Park Street last Saturday after a check and found that the driver could not produce an operator's or chauffeur's permit.

He was taken to the city police station where Sgt. Douglas Ellis recognized him as being a man who privilege to drive had been suspended.

Detective Reid said Woodcock's licence had been suspended in 1960, almost three years after he was convicted of a breach of the Highway Traffic Act. A vehicle operated by Woodcock was involved in an accident in 1957 and the owner of the other vehicle recovered $416 in 1960 from the Unsatisfied Judgment Fund. After the civil settlement had been registered Woodcock's permit was lifted.

Woodcock said he bought a car in 1959, two years after the UTA conviction and after losing his licence did not drive again until last September.

"His luck with averages has been very good," said Crown Attorney John A. Pringle.

A sympathy so true and warm,
Where no heartfelt is found.
Sadly missed by husband Leonard, daughters Helen, Rosemary and Peggy.

FRY — In loving memory of my dear wife and mother, Minnie Fry, who left us June 8th, 1953.

Sweet smile that always brought delight,
One look to tenderness below;
One relation to the memory bright,
Love passed with you and memory lives.
Sadly missed but always kind,
One love—one sweet remembrance left behind.
Love that will equal hers, dear mother,
Sadly loved and remembered by daughter Lilla and husband Charles Dean, Toronto.

VANDOME — In loving memory of Florence Vandome, who passed away June 8th, 1953, and William Vandome, who passed away December 4th, 1955.

Remembrance is a golden chain.
Death tries to break but all in vain;
To have to live, and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never—
The memory of these happy days,
The love that lives forever.
Never remembered Mother and Dewey.

CARTER

CARTER — In memory of our dear son Ray, who left us one year the 6th June.

Time has passed to yesterday,
That lends us straight to you,
And memories are our only days,
And years can't take from you.

It is sweet to have a memory
Of wandering back to meet you
And know
On the road to yesterday,
You're waiting there for me.
Mom, Dad and sister Audrey.

EMMONS — In loving memory of my dear husband, Wally Emmons, who passed away June 8th, 1953.

Two years have gone since all of us,
When we must say good-bye,
But we keep you in our love and trust,
Can never never die.
Though the curtain falls at last
And life is o'er,
We'll meet you better than the past
In sweet forever more.
Lovingly remembered and cared for when the Master calls
Left, dear husband, to mourn his loss
Although the curtain falls,
Loved memories linger around and fondly missed by his wife, May.

The entire area was searched last night without results and this morning at 1:30 provincial police at Belleville were called to assist in the hunt.
Police and skin divers from Belleville were searching both the Trent River and canal in the chance that the boy may have slipped into the water.
Shortly before noon today the search was still continuing for the young boy.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The industrial list was the loce successful segment of the market in light morning trading today.

Food stocks, secondary constructions and some utilities helped the industrial rise. Most other industrial groups were down or mixed. Loblaw A, Oshawa Wholesale A and Salada Shirriff made fractional gains, as did Canada Cement, Dominion Tar and Dominion Bridge.

Among utilities, Bell Telephone and Calgary Power gained fractionally.

The p.m. volume was 460,000 shares compared with 339,000 at the same time Monday.

On the exchange-index, industrials rallied 0.31 to 380.64, while golds fell .12 to 82.52, base metals .36 to 193.16 and western oils .32 to 97.79.

In base metals, International Nickel, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting, Falconbridge and Labrador each fell. Small gains were made by Denison and Noranda.

In golds Hollinger was off ⅜.

The market finished strongly on all fronts Monday after a brief morning spell of sinking prices. Trading was moderate.

Steels, which contributed in the morning decline, led the afternoon upward march. Sterling ton had a two - point gain.

On the exchange index, industrials rose 1.32 to 379.13, golds .37 to 82.35 and base metals .57 to 193.52. The final volume was 2,583,000 shares compared with 2,311,000 Friday.

Base metals gained steadily throughout the day's trading, and fractional gains went in most of the seniors.

Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Hudson Bay, Noranda, Geco, Labrador and Falconbridge all had good gains, while Ventures, Quemont and International Nickel also rose.

The lone black sheep was Denison, off ⅜.

Golds trading was tight with few losses. Hollinger, McIntyre Porcupine, Dome and Giant Yellowknife all had good gains while the single senior loss went to Kerr Addison, down ⅛.

May Be Forced to Move To Another Country if Costs Continue to Rise Says Brief

OTTAWA (CP)—If Canadian production costs become too high, Massey-Ferguson Equipment Limited might have to move its operations to another country, company official J. V. Adams, told the Commons agriculture committee Monday.

Import competition is "extreme," the Brantford company said in a brief to the committee, which is studying farm machinery prices.

The brief denied flatly that prices are too high. It asked anti-dumping tariff aid for the farm machinery industry. Mr. Adams, Cockshutt manager of farm research, presented the brief.

The brief proposed income tax relief for Canadian manufacturers on their domestic sales. But Mr. Adams amended this, saying it would be preferable to provide the incentive through income tax rules applying to farmers.

He suggested that farmers be allowed an accelerated income tax depreciation rate on purchases of Canadian-made machines.

PROVINCES CHANGE

The brief also proposed amendment of the Farm Improvement Loans Act to provide for some financial encouragement to farmers to purchase Canadian — made machines." Under the act the government guarantees loans to farmers' equipment purchases.

Mr. Adams said he knows of other cases in which helps finance the sale of imported goods.

C. A. Milligan (PC — Prince Edward-Lennox) said this was "a splendid suggestion."

But George Muir (PC — Lisgar) said it would be unfair to tell a farmer that money he has earned has to be spent on Canadian — made goods. He might prefer an imported machine.

Jack H. Horner (PC—Acadia) suggested that the Canadian machinery industry is charging "as much as the market will bear."

And Harold E. Winch (CCF — Kent, Ont.) argued there is "a double mark-up" in machinery pricing—one for the company and a second mark-up for the dealer.

BASED ON MARKET

Mr. Adams told Mr. Cockshutt prices are based on competitive market pressures. Dealers were allowed a 15-per-cent discount below the suggested retail price.

The said it is not fair to say the company charges what the market will bear. That implied high profits and penalized only the consumer. Prices were set by competitive pressures.

"Our profits clearly indicate the seriousness of the situation."

Mr. Adams said Cockshutt was forced to import a 15 horsepower diesel trailor made in Italy when it found it would cost $400 to $500 more to make it in Canada.

Mr. Wayne Bowsy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bowsy, 2 Carl Street, Belleville, recently received a Bachelor of Science degree at Bemidji State College, Bemidji, Minnesota.

Fire Destroys 27 Horses at Riding Academy

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-seven horses were killed today when fire destroyed the Bloor view Riding Academy in the northern suburb of Thornhill.

Gordon Leonard, owner of the academy, said the animals were boarding on farm. One horse had to be shot when it was set loose and ran into the path of a car, causing two broken legs.

Cause of the blaze was not known. There was no estimate of loss.

Six Children Perish in Fire

PORTAGEVILLE, Mo. (AP) Six children, ranging in age from one to nine, died in a fire that destroyed their home at the east edge of Portageville Monday night. Another child was critically injured.

The mother, Mrs. Jesse Mae Frest, was treated for shock. She rushed from the blazing house in her nightgown. A neighbor and a 9-1-1 man released out a window and rescued one child, Michael, 9, who was taken to hospital with burns over 60 per cent of his body.

The flames blocked further rescue work. The house was destroyed.

Official Ottawa Thinks Tension Lessened by Meeting of K's

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Outcome of U.S. President Kennedy-Khrushchev talks stirred cautious optimism in foreign affairs circles in the capital.

The government hasn't—and probably won't—made any official comment on the meeting of U.S. President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Vienna Saturday and Sunday.

However, the thinking in official circles here is that the results are all to the good although little concrete news was the only one of several potential world trouble spots on which the two men appeared to find any common ground.

Generally, Canada's position has been that it favors summit meetings as a means of easing tension between East and West.

But it doesn't think any summit meeting can be really fruitful unless there is thorough, advance preparations.

The lack of preparation for the weekend meeting is behind a view here that it wasn't really a summit conference at all—but rather a conversation in which each of the two men could set out his point of view.

"We didn't really expect any big drama at all because even the lack of preparation," said one Ottawa expert on external affairs.

That doesn't mean Canada didn't find anything entertained in the confrontation between the leaders of the world's two most powerful nations.

The very fact that the meeting was held at all is considered here as one reason for optimism.

Another is the post-meeting communique's statement that the talks underlined their support of a neutral and independent Laos and that agreement chosen by the Laotians themselves, and of international agreements for ensuring that neutrality and independence, and in this connection Canada's position has been that it favors summit meetings as a means of easing tension between East and West.

Suggests Hiring Full-Time Industrial Commissioner

Two Remanded In Custody For Sentencing

Bernard Genereaux, 21, and Robert Donald Whitmore, 18, Belleville youths who last week were found guilty of committing a series of breaking in the city and district, were remanded in custody to Friday for sentencing because Probation Officer D. I. MacKinnon was unable to prepare pre - sentence reports in time for today's sitting of city magistrate's court.

Another youth, Odell Loft, 17, of the Shannonville district returned to court today to find out how much he owes Reid's Dairy for damaging the company's auto during a break-in. Loft was placed on two years suspended sentence last week after pleading guilty to charge of breaking, entering and theft.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills today ordered Loft to make restitution of $85 to the company at the rate of $5 a week, beginning June 16. The disl, hinges and handle of the safe were knocked off when Loft broke into the dairy May 14 in company with Robert Donald Whitmore.

A suggestion that the Belleville industrial commission consider the possibility of hiring a full time industrial commissioner, was made at city council yesterday.

At the conclusion of the meeting under general business, Alderman Leslie Reid noted that the city of St. Catharines had recently hired a full time industrial commissioner who had achieved considerable success in this field at Kitchener.

"Apparently there are man available who can get industry," said Alderman.

Alderman Jack Ireland said a preliminary survey had been conducted through the LODA on what might be done locally to encourage more industry to locate here.

He said the survey had been completed, but the report had not yet been received.

The match is being held on the farms of Mr. Knight and Mr. Vermilyea.

Latin American Scenes Shown To Rotarians

Local Rotarians spent a pleasant half-hour taking a tour of South and Central America through the medium of cinematography under the auspices of the Canadian Pacific Railway, following their weekly dinner meeting at the Hotel Quinte yesterday afternoon.

Rotarian Doug Courtney provided the film with a brief talk about the development of the CPR, which is this year celebrating its 75th anniversary. In his introduction Mr. Courtney emphasized the important developments which his firm has made in providing up-to-date service and modern equipment for its customers.

One of the most recent additions to the CPR services is the "Empress of Canada", a new ship which went into service on the North Atlantic route this year. This forms one of the links which provides a direct service to Europe, he said adding that the CPR also had direct service to the Far East and points in South and Central America also.

The film shown provided Rotarians with a full color tour of such countries as Mexico, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil, all of which are on the CPR's sailing service to the southern part of the western hemisphere.

Mr. Courtney was thanked by Court Miller.

Club members also celebrated the birthdays of three of their fellows, Jack McFarlane, Ab Ketcheson and Frank Gallagher during the course of the meeting, which was presided over by club president Bill Hurst.

Phones Cut Off

HAMILTON (CP) — Board of control decided Monday that $7,000 a year is too much to pay out in allowances for city council members' telephones and has ordered that only the city hall and police phones be left in their private telephones for city business.

Council Rejects YMCA Plea For Grant to Building Fund But May Order Referendum

Belleville city council will make no grant this year to the YMCA building fund but there is a possibility the matter may be placed before the taxpayers in a referendum at the time of next municipal election.

Yesterday city fathers approved of a finance committee recommendation against that the committee refrain from taxing property to provide a grant to the Y building fund.

Two weeks ago YMCA representatives had asked council to vote a grant of up to $75,000 toward the Y building fund.

Finance committee chairman Alderman William E. Jarvah said that most taxpayers had already donated or contributed what they felt they should to the "Y" building fund through the general canvass and said that for the city to give a grant, would merely be "twisting the taxpayers' arm."

He said such a contribution has to be voluntary giving.

The city's budget for this year had already been set and the only acting which this year's council could do would be to refer the matter to next year's council.

SUGGESTS VOTE

Alderman Don Whalen said any grant to the YMCA should be decided by the taxpayers and urged that they be asked to vote on the matter at a referendum at the next election.

Accordingly he brought in a notice of motion for the next council meeting at which time he will ask council to approve of the referendum.

Other councillors, however, including Alderman Jack Ireland and Alderman Jerne McDougall, suggested that "if" directors should be contacted to determine whether they would favor the referendum.

Alderman Ireland said he realized council was not at this time approve a grant to the "Y" building fund.

"All we could do would be to make a recommendation for an $X-grant for next year," he said.

POOL PROVIDED

He added, however, that council had some slight obligation to the "Y" which provided the use of its indoor swimming pool free to firemen and police.

Also he urged against complete dismissal by the city of the grant request for the sake of the volunteer workers and canvassers who had put much effort into the campaign.

"There should be some encouragement for these young people," he said. "I would not like to see the request turned down cold.

The finance committee recommendation asking the city to refrain from taxation to provide funds for the "Y" building fund was approved by a 9-3 vote.

Approving the recommendation were Alderman Bailey, Barlow, Deacon, Harrison, Jarvah, McDougall, Temple, Whalen and Wilshaw. Nay votes were cast by Alderman Ellis, Ireland and Reid. Mayor A. M. Haig and Alderman Corke and Elliott were absent.

Council Demurs at Payment Of Fees to Former Solicitor

City council yesterday demurred at authorizing payment of legal fees submitted by a former city solicitor for the collection of business tax arrears.

Back in 1959 the then city solicitor R. A. Pringle was authorized by council to collect certain business tax arrears. Court action was taken with judgment totalling $4,736.35 being obtained. Of this amount $1,526 has been collected, to-

Directors Tour Match Site North of City

Directors of the Ontario Plowman's Association had their first collective review of the 1961 International Plowing Match site when they met Monday at the Vermilyea farm north of Belleville.

Close to 100 Association directors, together with local and zonal municipal officials and others toured the match site on the 4th concession of Thurlow.

Then they convened at the Canadian United Church hall for noon luncheon and later discussed details of plowing match planning.

Attending the joint meeting were Association president Alston Campbell, vice-president Robert Campbell, and plowing match secretary, L. A. Lashley along with directors from all parts of the province.

The party toured the match area, then broke up into committees to discuss various aspects of planning for the big match to be held next October.

would have been better off to have "written the whole thing off".

Alderman Jack Deacon said the present council had nothing to do with the matter, as it had been the 1959 council which had authorized the tax arrears collection.

Alderman William Jarvah, finance committee chairman, stated, however, that the 1960 council had approved the continuation of Mr. Pringle's services as solicitor for the tax arrears collection.

Alderman Jack Ellis said it was either a case of paying or not paying the bill.

"If we don't pay we will get sued," he said. "Personally, I would like to be sued. It would be more fun."

"Don't let's get in too big a hurry to pay the bill," suggested Alderman Whalen, who asked the matter be referred back for more information.

Alderman Robert Temple agreed that the bill appeared to be high but suggested the itemized account justified the bill.

"There is a great deal more work involved in this than is shown on this meagre report," he said. "Insofar as the services rendered are concerned, the bill is justified."

The recommendation to refer the matter back was lost on a 6-5 vote, with a subsequent motion to pay the solicitor's bill was lost by the same margin.

A Classic Case

Of strikes and the talk of strikes, there appears to be no end.

Why, then, waste time talking about the dispute between Trans-Canada Air-Lines and its 900 pursers and stewardesses?

Because this controversy, better than most others, is a model, a kind of industrial relations classic, which if comprehended, will serve to illustrate the type of problems which are arising, and which will continue to arise with even greater frequency, as the result of the advancing tempo of the machines which we use to make and distribute goods. Properly understood, with due appreciation of the positions of both sides in this dispute, it can perhaps serve as a guide in judging other similar, but less clear-cut, issues.

The pursers' and stewardesses' union favors a system which would give extra flying time credit for work on TCA DC-8's and Vanguards. The DC-8's are pure jets, and the Vanguards are jet-prop aircraft. Both cover distances much faster than the old propelior-type aircraft.

Why would flight attendants demand more pay for flying on faster planes? Because, they maintain, they have to work harder. They are now paid an average of $335 to $430 a month for 75 hours' flying time. But in the same flying time on the jets or jet-prop Vanguards, they would not only cover more miles but also, of course, make more trips. The pursers and stewardesses argue that there is a sort of "overhead" of work on each trip, which is not diminished by the fact that the trip is made in less time.

The TCA appears to recognize the validity of this argument, for it has offered the flight attendants wage increases. These increases, though, are not as substantial as those which would accrue if the company were to accept a conciliation board report recommending that ten minutes' extra flying time be credited for each hour flown in pure jets and five minutes' extra time for each hour flown on Vanguards.

It is easy to grasp the reasoning behind the stand of the opposing sides. The flight attendants foresee a system which will establish a precedent for possible future acceleration in the rate of air travel. The TCA, on the other hand, wishes to reap some of the benefits to be derived from speeding up service. While the amount of work to be done on a flight does not decrease in direct ratio to the speed, so that only half the work is required on a flight that is half the time, it is also true that the amount of work per trip does not remain constant, regardless of the speed.

Working out a fair formula may be much easier in this clear-cut case than in some industrial operations, where not only the amount of work to be done in a certain area, but also the large measure the nature of this work, may be affected by new devices and methods. What the TCA dispute does do, though, is to present us with a clear picture of a development in which there are unquestionably sound arguments on both sides of the problem.

Take a Deep Breath

One would think, what with sewage disposal plants and new schools, tax rates and provincial grants, parks and pedestrians, parking lots and playgrounds, winter works programs and potholes, parking meters and policemen, hospitals and zoning, cocktail lounges, recreation programs and libraries, shopping plazas and malls, store hours and tourists, new industries and unemployment, fire departments and city managers, safety schedules and purchasing agents, boulevards and building inspectors, pollution and sub-divisions, annexations and harbor facilities, buses and transient traders—one would have thought, (in a sentence this long a drama in tense is inevitable) with so many things in which they have a vested interest, direct or indirect, the delegates to the annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities would have been able to find enough to talk about, between cocktail parties and banquets, without straying off their own reservation.

But no—a Canadian Press report from Halifax reveals that they found time to pass two resolutions concerning sport—one a motion asking the Board of Broadcast Governors and the CBC to make "whatever facilitating arrangements" may be necessary to telecast Big Four football games over the CBC stations, the other requesting the Federal Government to "investigate reasons for deficiencies in Canadian international competitive athletic endeavors."

Ike, Adlai Made to Lie

By Gerald W. Johnson in The New Republic

War, being the summation of all evil, inevitably includes lying, spying, deceit and treachery. It is regrettable, but beawailing it is useless, for if you are going to have war you must take what comes with it, including moral degeneration, as well as the butchery of young men and the destruction of accumulated wealth.

Yet the average American, an ingenuous soul, is taken aback by the discovery that the difference between a cold war and a hot one is merely that in a cold war the butchery and the material devastation are eliminated.

The moral degradation goes right ahead.

Take, for conspicuous examples, the cases of Dwight D. Eisenhower and Adlai E. Stevenson. It has been the universal opinion among Americans that Eisenhower is not only an officer, but an officer and gentleman, and that Stevenson is a man of honor if one exists among us.

Yet within a year both men stood up in public and lied like Ananias. Eisenhower about the U-2 flight, Stevenson about the strikers who bombed the Cuban airfields.

To be sure, neither knew that he was lying. Eisenhower was merely repeating what his inferiors, Stevenson what his superiors, in the government had told him.

Nevertheless, they lied, and that is all the rest of the world knows or cares to know. They were involved in a cold war and somebody in Washington deemed it necessary to lie.

The fact that both of these gentlemen were thereafter believed absolves them but damns the system more deeply than ever. For if Eisenhower as the ambassador can't get at the truth, what earthly chance has anyone else?

• • •

Does Mr. Khrushchev realize this? If he doesn't, he is as completely under the spell of the Madison Avenue hucksters as ever Eisenhower was, and he may soon be—arrived prematurely at the end of many years more of declining prestige and increasing humiliation.

But if he does, why hasn't he taken the place apart? For Madison Avenue is right when its experts in public life it is not enough to be right, you must seem to be.

Where the soothsayers are fatally wrong is in their assumption that it is enough to seem, and not necessary to be.

It must be admitted that John F. Kennedy faces more trouble than any newly - arrived president since FDR in 1933.

But Kennedy also has an opportunity as great, perhaps greater.

FDR saved capitalism, but Kennedy has a chance to save our self-respect (and to be respected, which is enough to respect ones' self is not a whit-less important) as the U.S. is involved.

Great men in the past have thought it more important.

He Needed A Basket

The Printed Word

About 30 people had dropped in for lunch and a city slicker, male, decided it would be like it he washed some dishes, especially forks, for there was pie coming.

"Well, this is something", said one lady. "I've been married for 4 years and my husband hasn't washed a dish yet.

"Once I left him alone for six days. When I got back I had four women with me, who were brought in the effort and the kitchen door expecting to see an awful mess. But, sir, everything was neat and tidy.

"He got home an hour or so after the visitors had left, and I thought he was saving me embarrassment. He had an odd look and then explained that it had taken him all that time an hour before work that morning to carry all the dirty dishes down to the cellar. Not a dish had he washed".

PREDESTINATION

Is there anything to predestination?

No, if by predestination we mean that God ever sent anybody into the world to be damned. Yes, if by predestination we mean that God has a plan for every individual life and that everything in the universe occurs either as the result of that plan or with His permission.

It is a matter of actual fact, fully ninety-five per cent of our lives are completely predestined. So far as we know, lives never asked whether or not we wanted to be born, when we wanted to be born, whether we wanted to be male or female, rich or poor, handsome or homely, a native of this nation or that, of the white race or some other race. Yet these things comprise fully ninety-five per cent of our lives. God gives us the little five per cent to see what we can make of it. Ninety-five per cent of the condition of our lives appear to have been all arranged for us without our having any hand in the matter whatsoever.

But in that little five per cent lies our destiny. We are not insignificant. We are sentient beings having perpetual beings made in the image and after the likeness of God. We are assured that God is eager to establish and maintain fellowship with us. We are His beloved children.

Most of the issues which brought predestination into prominence four hundred years ago have now passed into history. We interested in the practical application of Christianity and in the problems of predestination or free will.

We face a new and better age.

A Benefit Of Opposing Viewpoints

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A reader has written to thank me for my drama reviews in my hometown paper. "I never fail to read them and act upon them," she writes. "Whenever you praise a play, I stay away, when you pan one, I visit it. Thus far you never been disappointed."

Rather than being annoyed with this back-handed tribute, I was delighted. Here is a reader who has found—as absolute touchstone in reverse: she knows that we are at opposite poles of taste and judgment, and she knows how to utilize this rather like. Reverse psychology, if

I do the same myself, in fact, with drama reviews and with larger matters. It isn't at all necessary for me to read the New York critics if I desire in order to learn about a new play or film. I need do is to read a critic whose judgment I dislike to know precisely how I will feel about any given production.

Over a period of time, non a newspaper, I know people who have come to expect that I am always her prescribed by deliberated. Only occasionally, however — such as when the paper comes out in favor of mental health — am I ever betrayed into a perilous opposition.

Politicians also act as touchstones for a great many more people than will readily admit it. If they are completely intelligent or independent way of arriving at decisions — about plays or politics — will agree. In mitigation, however, it must be said that there is much to read, so many viewpoints clamoring for attention and so little time for sifting out facts and fancy, that active decision making almost depends on this kind of test.

The woman in downstate Illinois could carefully balance all the drama review and decider that, on the whole, she will stay away from a play which does not receive unanimous assent; she might attend all of them. Each path is fraught with time, effort and expense. She has simplified her whole play-going life by finding that exactly-wrong critic for me, and I hope I never let her down.

Editors and publishers, who like to pride themselves on their readers' faithful purchase every day, might be surprised to learn what a large percentage of subscribers use the paper, and its critics for this simplified and standardized system of Negative Sympathy.

This Ethyl Is No Lady

New York Times

One of the more interesting aspects of the fascinating subject of language is that often, words, like W. S. Gilbert's skin of a lemon distilled for cream, are not what they seem.

We have any number of familiar examples. Madison Square Garden is not a garden nor is it on Madison Square. Guinea pigs are neither pigs nor do they come from Guinea. A typewriter is not fonder of lead but of graphite. Ethyl gasoline is not named for a lady but for a chemical element.

A Panama hat has nothing to do with the Central American country but rather is a corruption of palmpata hat, native South American. The burning made from the leaf of the Cardulavia Palmata long preferred cement, despite the claims of Oregon and Maine, is named for an island in the Bay of Fundy, Canada long known for its building stone quarries.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Cigarettes have taken quite a beating in the past couple of years on the grounds of lung cancer. Now they are accused of causing traffic accidents. In the process of lighting a cigarette while travelling at fifty or sixty miles an hour, a car driver is liable to swerve slightly off course. The suspicion is that cigarettes are the cause of a considerable proportion of sideslipes is growing.

A car and a truck were drawn off on the side of the highway with a police car investigating the accident. The driver of the passenger car said he was just in the act of passing the truck when the truck suddenly veered to the left. The truck driver said it was nothing of the kind. The first thing he knew, he said, a car suddenly scraped his fender.

The constable went and looked in the cab of the truck, and on the floor found a fresh, unlighted cigarette. Quite obviously the driver of the cigarette had been dampened slightly by having been hit in the jaw.

"Let's see your lighter," said the constable.

He looked at the driver, felling for it.

It was not in his pocket. It was found on the seat of the cab.

Case concluded. The truck driver had been in the act of lighting a cigarette when the side-swipe collision occurred.

Normal Room Temperature Of Milk Fine for Babies

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Feeding infants cold milk in their bottles and cold baby food from the jars seems to be a common practice with some of the young mothers. Is this a new theory of some kind? What do you think of this practice? Wouldn't warm food be better for the babies? — W. G."

This is a question that I have touched on briefly before.

The idea of cold milk or food for babies is a relatively new concept. I decline to call it a theory, because experience has shown it to be satisfactory.

The milk — or baby food from a jar — need not be really cold. It can be at room temperature. But babies seem to like it that way. We have found no reason to suspect that it harms them, nor that it bothers them at all.

Undoubtedly a warmed bottle helps a baby relax if he's a bit fussy. But on the other hand I don't think that warming the bottle has to be such a ritual as it has in many cases in the past.

Shaking a few drops onto the back of your hand to test the temperature remains a good precaution when the milk is being warmed. If it is too warm, baby won't like it.

I don't think that an icy bottle, fresh from the refrigerator, is likely to be a pleasant thing for a baby. There may be some who develop a taste for such things, but I have my doubts. Let 'em wait until they reach the "early ice cream cone" days of childhood!

I do say that there is no evidence that serving baby food at ordinary room temperature is either dangerous or harmful.

Nor — emphatically — do I think that serving cold or warmed temperature food should be done purely for the convenience of a mother or nursemaid.

If it is obvious that a baby prefers his food warm, then by all means room temperature — or somewhere between, give it to him the way he likes it.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My wife has been put on a strict salt free diet. Can you give me any information or a booklet on this? — D. W."

It means just what it says — no salt!

Of course you get some salt which occurs naturally in food, and you can't help that. In fact, one needs at least a trace of salt. But for a salt free diet, don't use any table salt, either at the table or in cooking. Common salt is sodium chloride — and the sodium is the important feature in the body tissues. For some conditions, this is harmful. Avoid processed foods, which have salt added: Salt meats, pickles, fish, chili, relishes. Milk is high in sodium. Low salt milk, powdered or canned, is available. Many soft drinks have a sodium salt added. This is usually listed on the bottle.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What about a rupture in a four-year-old boy? It is a small swelling at the groin. The doctors say it will get larger and should be operated on now. They don't recommend a truss. How successful are those operations for a rupture? — M. L."

Yes, trusses were recommended because surgery of any sort was much less effective than it is today. We now have better techniques, antibiotics, transfusions if required and a lot of other aids. When we once a perilous undertaking is now just a routine operation. Ruptures don't get better by themselves — they get worse. A truss is a prop rather than a cure, so by all means have the little boy's condition diagnosed correctly by surgery.

Weed-Killers Slay Robins

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

On hearing the birds add a note of cheer to the early spring mornings, one is struck with the thought it is a pity that the whole world without the feathered songsters.

Probably it is getting duller in that respect because chemicals used to kill weeds are also killing off the bird population.

In a recent issue of New Scientists an experiment is reported from the University of Illinois in which robins on 186 acres were found periodically littered with the bodies of robins. Post-mortems showed that these birds had died from poisoning with the chemicals actively in Michigan for spraying trees. The concentrated estimate of robin deaths in Michigan and other parts of the United States where trees are sprayed is up in the millions.

There is an old philosophical truth that every time man solves a problem he creates two more. In trying to make it a weedless world we may wind up with a birdless one as well.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LEARN TO IGNORE

I know many people who see too much. I am constantly one of the fine arts is to ignore — a great deal.

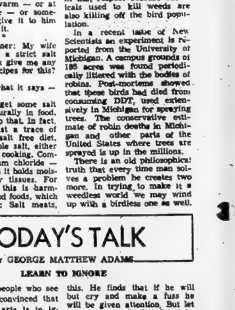
If we are able to see into the hearts and minds of a hundred great bundles of faults and a whole acres of mistakes that we have made time and time again, then just consider the great privilege it must be to whom these faults and mistakes must look very great indeed.

But just the minute I begin to see the beautiful trait in my fellow man, I will immediately begin to take on new lustre.

I am not the one trying to learn this very great art of seeing the good in my friend and ignoring the bad.

How quickly a particular pain or ailment seems to leave just the minute you start to ignore it.

Even the tiny baby knows this. He finds that if he will just cry and make a fuss he will be given attention. But let him be quiet and he is shoved to one side and forgotten.



Learn to ignore the hurts of the world. Don't be in order — but if you want to be strong able, and convincing as a man fact learn to ignore.

It is a common thing to meet people who believe that there is little good in this world — that if they only had the chances they could make much better world than this one God has made and placed us on as a playground for a while. But I notice that the busy, thinking people has no time. It's a great world for him — for there is much to do, and so little time in which to do it.

Learn to ignore. Life is a storehouse of beauty!

Convocation Day at Albert Held in Brilliant Weather; Prizes, Diplomas Presented

By GLADYS WARD

Tribute to tradition Convocation Day at Albert College was brilliant with sunshine, bright with the green of lawns and ivy; and colorful with flower beds. Adding to the color were the girl graduates, looking charming as girls always are on graduation day, wearing floor-length white silk dresses with wide lace bertha collars, long fingerless gloves, and carrying bouquets of sweetheart roses in frilled paper. The whole school assembled for official photographs before the ceremonies on the steps outside, and amateur picture-takers as well as movie photographers were everywhere in evidence.

Inside Memorial chapel, Mr. and Mrs. Egerton Boyce accompanied the academic procession with an organ and piano duo of "March of the Priests", a row of potted plants and four low bowls of flowers were arranged in front of the platform. The invocation was given by Rev. Stephen Bancroft, chairman elect of Belleville Presbytery.

Principal of the college, Rev. Dr. A. E. MacKenzie, was chairman for the ceremonies, and expressed a hearty welcome to everyone. To students who had done well, the Principal offered congratulations, and to those who had failed the hope that they might better fit from their experience, and have the opportunity to try again.

COLLEAGUES THANKED

Dr. MacKenzie thanked his colleagues, who had worked hard for the good of the school, and said with simple sincerity that many had gladly given service beyond the call of duty. The Principal announced the list of those who are retiring from the teaching staff this year or are taking other positions. Dr. T. C. McMullen, although officially retired will be teaching chemistry next year; Mrs. Irene Gillis, Deseronto women, is returning to Nova Scotia to teach in a new High School there; Dr. H. Swann school chaplain is retiring but may teach next year; Mr. Fleming Mr. Dobbin, Miss Widdis and Mrs. Jardine are leaving the teaching staff, and Miss Florence Down, house mistress is retiring. Dr. MacKenzie lauded the outgoing staff in warm tributes and thanked them for their services. Mr. Alastair Haig will succeed Dr. MacKenzie as principal and was widely very complimented.

Mrs. Ruth Myers has been appointed dean of women. Mrs. Myers has had interesting and varied experiences, having taught at Canadian Academy in Kobe, Japan, and recently working in New York City. Mrs. Myers is a daughter of the late Dr. Marian Hilliard.

Dr. MacKenzie expressed his personal indebtedness to the executive of the Board, who had looked after the affairs of the college, and on behalf of himself and Mrs. MacKenzie thanked all who had offered good wishes for their future work. Principal emeritus Dr. Lorne Howard and Mrs. Howard, received a special welcome as guests at the Convocation.

Several musical numbers were enjoyed during the afternoon. The male chorus, directed by C. M. Pearce, accompanied by Miss Marjorie Woodard, sang "With A Little Bit of Luck"; and the college choir, under the direction of J. H. MacKay, sang the Albert College hymn, and the Belfie Hymn of the Republic, with D. B. Hoare as accompanist.

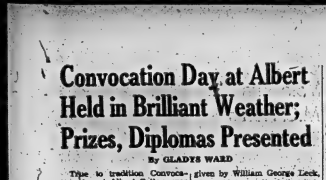
VALEDICTORY GIVEN

The Valedictory address was given by William George Leck, who said he realized that this was the last opportunity he would have of speaking to that student body. In a few hours they would be parting company with the only thing they had in common, the memories to look with them. The speaker outlined some of these memories, the choir trips, the banquets, the dances and the sports events. But of all the traditions and events the greatest memories were of the hours spent in chapel, and the ideas they had grasped which would be their guiding principles in life.

In references to the teaching staff, many of them humorous, the Valedictorian expressed gratitude for the guidance they had given. The students always felt the teachers were behind them showing efficiency, loyalty, and a good example. The parents were above and watching over their children, but although in the background, as most responsible for the pupils' success as they themselves. Ahead was the future which could not be seen in tod good focus. Students in the past have made major decisions so far, but they were going to have to make decisions that would affect their future and the future of others. The question now was, what next? They must be ready to take on responsibility.

Miss Susan Smith, president of the senior graduating class, presented a gracious address system to the school on behalf of the graduation class, in appreciation of all the school had done for them. President Bill Bowles of the junior graduation class made a presentation of a plaque which will carry the class history of future valedictorians.

Golden anniversary graduates were recognized with certificates. This presentation was started about six years ago. The recipients this year were Mrs. Charles Hyde, Belleville; Mrs. Robinson, Calgary, Alta.; Mr. William Ketcheson, Tweed and Mr. George Ketcheson.



Before introducing the guest speaker Judge J. C. Anderson, chairman of the board, spoke warmly of the members of the

Amherst Ferry Saves Disabled Cabin Cruiser

PICTON — A 37-foot cabin cruiser, with three occupants aboard, drifted helplessly in Lake Ontario, about a mile and a half off the village of Bath, for more than an hour before it was towed to safety this afternoon by the car ferry Amherst Islander.

The cruiser, Stardust II, disabled when the motor failed, was being towed from a cove with violent three-foot waves running. The Stardust is owned by R. G. O'Neill of Ottawa, his daughter Marjorie and a companion, Miss Ann Cadadian Navy A. E. Campbell, also of Ottawa, O'Neill had engaged the Stardust in Toronto and was proceeding to Portland on the Bidens Creek at the time.

Captain of the Amherst Islander, William Cochrane, noticed a flare from the disabled craft about a mile and a half to mile off course to reach this Stardust. Members of the crew heaved a line aboard and towed the cruiser to the Millhaven ferry dock. The Amherst Islander was making a scheduled trip from the island to the mainland at the time.

Commander A. E. Campbell of the Royal Canadian Navy, Ottawa, waits on the bow of the disabled 37-foot cruiser Stardust II for a line from the rescue ship, the car ferry Amherst Islander. The cruiser was near capsizing as it drifted broadside to three-foot waves in Lake Ontario, a mile off the village of Bath, yesterday afternoon. The tow of the distress flare began to topple. Captain William Cochrane of the ferry, who proceeded a mile-and-a-half off course to effect a rescue. (Hodgson, Picton).

COLLEGE PRINCIPAL HONORED

sing who were retiring, who had actually devoted their lives to the college. The Board appreciated the nine years of service and consecrated service given to the school by Dr. MacKenzie, and had observed success, and truth had emanated from these halls as he had rendered service there.

PRINCIPAL HEARD

The speaker for the occasion was Mr. Norman Sisco, principal of the Dr. F. J. Dosevea Collegiate Institute in Ottawa, who posed the question of what would be considered the most important thing in the 20th century. Although many would say Albert Einstein, Mr. Sisco chose Abraham Lincoln, the latter, who would leave his mark on the intellectual world. Toynbee opened up a new line of conception of history. It was not proper to talk about one man, but that one must start with an entire society as a basis for research, and Toynbee had done that with a number of civilizations, and after examining them, he came to certain conclusions, namely that people survive when overcoming some difficulties.

"Meeting challenges causes people to develop," said the speaker. "The response theory of struggle and challenge is apparent in us. The development into a nation because she was challenged by a river that overflowed its banks annually. Slowly in response. It developed a type of canal and irrigations until it became a highly civilized nation. When it failed to respond to challenge it began to decline. One of the examples is to look at New England, a cold, rocky area with poor soil, where a living is taken from the sea with great effort. But it has had more influence in politics, culture, literature and education than any other of the States. The dominant New England influence has shaped destiny.

MANY EXAMPLES

There are many examples of handicaps to overcome to attain success. A classic example is Abraham Lincoln, whose father was a drifter, who learned a little. Lincoln gained knowledge from his step-mother, who had little education, and whose reading little by long series of set-backs, an uphill struggle and a help.

He might want to help a baby learning to walk to protect it from injury and bruises. But it must struggle through the process of falling down and getting up. Learning the piano is a skill not acquired except through long arduous practice.

"In the next fifty years we are going to have to struggle with challenging problems. Unemployment is going to be a new one. We are going to have to help countries to develop themselves economically. The battle ground for men's souls. Perhaps in your lifetime this struggle is going to have to be settled.

"These problems can only be solved by tough educated young people willing to work. God works through the individual and the person who struggles with a problem is working with God. I am not going to wish you a life of ease. I hope you have a tough time, and I hope you will have to struggle. That is the secret of life, not as a spectator, but as a participant in it".

SPEAKER REMARKABLE

Mr. Bert Simpson thanked the speaker for his address with its wide viewpoint and historical perspective. Men and women who have successfully striven to attain their ourpose have reminded us forcefully that perseverance leads to achievement.

David Manners presented to Dr. MacKenzie on behalf of the school in recognition of his services to the school. In accepting the gift, Dr. MacKenzie thanked the students for their expression of good-will. The Principal said he had many happy memories of the fruitful years he had spent there, and he treasured the appreciation of the sentiments of the students.

Refreshments were served in Ackerman Hall to the guests after the ceremonies by the Albert College Women's Guild.

Queen Gives Kennedys English Fare

BY EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth gave a "good old English dinner" Monday night, honoring President Kennedy, first U.S. president to dine at Buckingham Palace since 1918.

The Queen, in a dark sapphire gown, had the president at her right. Across the table from the 50 was Prince Philip, with Mrs. Kennedy, in pale blue, at his right.

The scene was the palace's sumptuous state dining room, with its full-length portraits of former sovereigns.

The fact that "it was a good old English dinner" was disvulged by Deputy Richard Colville, the palace spokesman.

He then read it all out in French.

Translated back into good old English, the meal was:

Cold cream of pea soup.

Filet of cheese sole cooked in white wine sauce.

Saddle of lamb and salad mooss.

Souffle of orange liqueur. . .

It wasn't that the pundits of protocol called a full state dinner because the men wore dinner jackets with black ties, not white ties and tails.

GOWNS WERE DAZZLING

But the ladies made it up with the dazzling color and cut of their gowns.

Mrs. Kennedy's silk gown had a loosely gathered bell skirt, a fitted waist. The neckline was bateau and the gown was sleeveless, with a V-neck at the back and a bow at the waist.

The Queen's full length gown of silk tulle had a fitted bodice and a full skirt, gathered horizontally. She wore a sapphire and diamond necklace, earrings and bracelet.

26 'Sweet Girl Graduates' From BGH School of Nursing Receive Diplomas and Pins

One of the most impressive ceremonies of the year was held last evening at the Collegiate auditorium when 26 young women, from the Belleville General Hospital School-of-Nursing received their diplomas and pins.

After three long years of intensive study, meticulous application to duty and undeviating adherence to the code of hospital ethics, their long-cherished hopes were realized.

The stage setting was simplicity itself; a long desk of dark oak with the diplomas and pins was centred by a white, lace-edged cloth with a silver bowl of deep-red roses, and red and white satin ribbons. Behind the desk were the seats for the Board of Governors, the doctors, and the hospital staff; while to the left and right were the seats for the graduating class, 13 on either side.

MUSICAL BACKGROUND

During the assembly of the large audience of proud parents, relatives and friends, Miss Alec Gordon, organist of Bridge Street United Church, presided at the Hammond organ and provided soft musical background.

With the first resounding chords of "Land of Hope and Glory," the audience rose, and the long procession headed by the nurses-in-training in light blue uniforms and white caps, who took the front two rows at the right of the auditorium, followed by the "Sweet Girl Graduates" lovely in their snow-white uniforms, black-banded white caps, and sheaves of red roses tied with red satin bows and streamers, slowly advancing down the aisles to take their places at the right and left of the platform.

Mr. J. N. Yanover, chairman of the Board of Governors, presided and Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan, rector of Christ Church, gave the invocation. Immediately following this, the school choir, under the direction of Mrs. D. Reilly, rendered the hymn, "The Lord Is My Shepherd" from the balcony, adding a delightful tone to the evening's program.

Greetings were brought to the graduating class by Alderman W. E. Jarvis, representing his worship, Mayor Haig, who was absent from the city. He stated the Mayor's regret at his absence on the alleviation of the sick, acting the Good Samaritan.

Though his absence was difficult, needing a "driving" continuance of force, all are to be congratulated on behalf of the nursing staff, he wished to extend the sincere good wishes for their future.

Others who also brought best wishes to the graduating class included the president of the Medical Staff Association, Dr. H. Scott, who stated there is medicine is advancing, so nursing must advance, and he urged each to do her best in the task ahead.

Mrs. D. E. Jones, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, stated that it was the Auxiliary's pleasure to be graduating class go out into the world, and congratulations extended to them her best wishes an those of the Auxiliary.

ADVISES NURSES

Mrs. D. H. Smith, on behalf of the medical staff, said she was pleased and proud to have had a part in the graduates' nursing education. She also congratulated the parents for the sacrificing part they had played in their daughters' choice education and career. The technology and human relations was to be master of your avocation, not its servant; and that self satisfaction lies in self appreciation, and the simplicity of thought, and having a sense of humor. The career in nursing was never one of boredom; the least contribution made in nursing is valuable. Fear springs from the unknown; do not be fearful about your duties or actions. Remember that humor is a rich asset for nurses; be symbol, pathetic, friendly, have calm confidence, with peace, and a twinkle in the eye, concluded Miss Smith.

Before the special speaker the evening, Mr. Malcolm Robb, D.F.C.; Q.C. of Toronto, who was introduced by Dr. Marion H. Hamilton, Dr. H. F. Williamson, rendered a delightful baritone solo "Where'ere You Walk." Mr. Hamilton also extended his best wishes to the graduating nurses, saying how greatly nurses were needed, and how the ministry lifted the burdens of the sick.

In introducing Mr. Robb, he gave a brief review of the speaker's life and achievements to date; mentioning his interest in the sporting field, and humorously remiler him as the head of the Belleville hockey team. A statement Mr. Robb smilingly denied — saying he had 'got out' just in time.

Mr. Robb's address, which was delivered with deep sincerity, both to the graduating class and to the audience, dealt with the causes of the cold war since the close of the war with Japan, mentioning as he did so, General McArthur's statement that the west had had its last chance, and if something better than what had been done was not done soon Armageddon was upon us.

There was approximately 95 per cent of the world starving 200,000 Chinese daily were dying from starvation. Canada did not send any food. The Chinese are cynical about western religion being brought to them while their children are over 5,000 years old; real religion is helpful; Canada has still done nothing to alleviate this condition, and it is the duty of the west to help; the keynote of religion is to give, and it gives back. Nor can the Conservatives nor the Liberals have done anything when Canada has such natural resources then any other country in the world, Canada will do anything to preserve democracy and keep a land for their children to live in.

WHAT WILL YOU DO?

"Meanwhile we are losing, and the enemy is gaining, gaining inspite of Canada's productive power. What do you intend to do in the few years that are left? People are hungry, sick, full of disease; who are their friends? The answer is those who will help. If you want peace you must be friendly.

A hospital is a place of dedication, devotion to duty. Nurses can make tremendous advances in the next 40-50 years. You should act as democracy wants and needs. Man has the power to have a golden age, and the power to conquer his and worst enemy, himself".

Mr. Yanover expressed appreciation to Robb for his challenging address.

AWARDS PRESENTED

Following the address, special awards were presented. The gold medal, awarded by the Board of Governors, was presented by Mr. W. F. O. Deschenes, to Frances Jean Muirhead, of Belleville. The silver medal, by Dr. D. M. Scott, awarded by the Medical Staff to Miss Hilda Marie Park, of Ormsby, Ontario; the medical, surgical, obstetrical and operating room nursing award, was presented by Dr. Scott, to Margaret Mae Hendricks of Vancouver, B.C., and the obstetrical award given by Miss Grace Hessman, of Stirling, also presented by Dr. Scott.

The operating room award, donated by the Medical Association, was presented to Miss Linda Mary Keel, of Belleville, by Dr. Scott. The pediatric award, awarded by instructors, supervisors and head nurses, was presented to Miss E. Davidson by Miss H. Getting Harder to Tell Married From Single Girls

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It is getting harder to tell the married girls from the single girls.

There was a time when it was easier. All you had to do was glance at a certain finger of her left hand.

But customs change. Many of the married ladies in the fashionable work force don't wear their wedding rings on the job.

And many single girls wear rings which give them the air of matrimonial but actually celebrate only the fact they were able to graduate from high school or are members of a winning team in the factory bowling league.

THE SURE SIGNS

But there are other signs. It's pretty safe bet a gal is married if—

Wherever she leaves home after dark, she is trailed (two paces behind) by a tired-looking man who looks as if his feet hurt him.

She pushes her own way through a revolving door instead of waiting for some man to come along and do it for her.

When she's dining out, she tells the man with her, "I'll take what he's having," and you'll take that. It's better for your stomach."

She always kicks off her shoes in a movie house.

She can't name the latest matinee idol, but she can take a vacuum cleaner apart and put it together again in 15 minutes.

MILK VS. BEER

You look in her refrigerator and see eight bottles of milk and six of beer.

At a party you see her to dance, a look of incredulous surprise creeps over her face.

She always carries needle, thread, safety pins and an odd button or two in her handbag.

When shopping in a department store, she rushes past the racks of Paris-styled dresses to see what's in the household linens department.

At a cocktail shindig, she keeps yanking at the same maid elbow while yelping, "Remember what you promised. You said we'd go home after you had two."

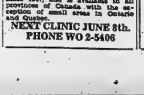
When you shake hands with her, you automatically think not to wipe but of the weather.

KIDS ON HER MIND

She has heard of Dr. Albert Schweitzer, but is sure Dr. Spock's name will ring longer in the annals of mankind.

She'd rather die than have the mumps, measles and chickenpox than ulcers, diabetes or hypertension.

When someone asks her what she does, she hangs her head, sighs, and says deprecatingly, "Me? Oh, I'm just a housewife."



But she wouldn't trade her job for any other career in the world.

IS THE BLOOD TRANSFUSION SERVICE NEW?

No. The National free blood transfusion service has been in operation since 1947, and is available in all provinces of Canada with the exception of small areas in Ontario and Quebec.

Vota Vita M.C. Holds Banquet

The May meeting of the Vota Vita Mission Circle was held at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church in the form of a Mother-and-Daughter banquet.

The highlight of the evening was a delicious turkey dinner with all the trimmings which was enjoyed by some 80 members, daughters and guests who were present.

Ladies of the Dorcas Association of the Church were commended and thanked by the president, Marjorie Hazes, for their fine catering services and for making the banquet the success it was.

The program which followed, was varied and interesting. Marjorie Hazes led in opening prayer and Mrs. Woodcock offered a fitting toast to the Queen. Scripture was read by Mrs. Wynne.

A play by girls of the C.G.I.T. class, with its missionary theme, was presented by Mrs. Woodcock.

Jacqueline Gardner and Brenda Wynne gave reports and their impressions of a trip made to Grand Lynne Mission in Quebec.

Some of the younger daughters present sang a song and two selections were nicely rendered by Mrs. Wynne assistance from Mildred Fox.

A business session was held before the close of the meeting.

Two Belleville Girls Honored At Graduation

KINGSTON (CP)—A class of 41 girls graduated from the Kingston General Hospital School of Nursing Monday night — marking the 75th anniversary of one of Canada's first nursing schools.

Prize winners included: Patricia Lannin, Winchester, gold medallist; Evelyn Beveridge, Ottawa, silver medallist; Elizabeth Gilbert, Deep River, scholarship winner. Prizes will be presented to Helen Milliken, Smiths Falls, Heather Gillies, Ottawa, Margaret Anderson, Cobalt, Harriet Anderson, both of Belleville, and Mary Gibson, Ottawa.

Mary Mitchell of Bale d'Urfe was valedictorian. A scholarship for post graduate study was awarded to Miss Lottie Smith, 1907 graduate of Moose Jaw, who is at present instructing at the Royal Victoria Hospital, London, Ont. Miss Louise D. Acton of Brockville presented the scholarship, named in her honor. She is a former director of nursing at the school.

Miss Barbara E. Chatland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Chatland, 28 Northwood Crescent, Belleville formerly of Burlington, Ont., who graduates from Hamilton General Hospital School-of-Nursing on Wednesday, June 7.

PARKDALE BAPTIST L.M.F.

Mrs. Beverley Foster was hostess for the June meeting of the Ladies Missionary Fellowship. President, Mrs. Stewart Blake, opened the meeting with devotions and prayer.

Mrs. Robert Snyder led the Scripture reading.

Miss Elizabeth Ach opened devotions. "Salvation, the gift of God." God spared not his own son, but delivered him up for us all and could only believe and trust Him: "Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over Him: For in that he died, he died unto sin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God. Likewise, reckon ye also, yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. "Wherefore He is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by Him, seeing He ever liveth".

Mrs. Blake closed the meeting with prayer. There followed a time of fellowship.

MODERN MANNERS

CAROLYN HAGNER SHAW

QUESTION BOX

Question — My husband and I have attended a lot with "coup in our own low-salaried racket. We get together often for dutch-treat trips to the movies, or supper in an inexpensive restaurant. Would it be all right for us to invite this group to our home for a cocktail party sak cachio bring something? Would this be cheap? It would be such fun if we could do this and we simply can't afford it often, and what do you think? — Mrs. R.P.T., Trenton, N. J.

Answer — As you seem to know these people so well, I see no reason why you shouldn't give such a "bring your own" party. The way to do this is to ask five of the wives in the group, and decide among yourselves who is to bring what. If this isn't done, the supper may end up with pounds of hamburger and nothing else! For example you supply the meat, one brings supper (and rolls), Mary can bring a salad, and Susie can be responsible for the dessert — say a watermelon or fruit bowl. Everyone can chip in for a case of soft drinks or beer. The result? A fun and inexpensive party which one and all will want to return.

Question — I am to be married in September and I am planning to have a matron of honor, a maid of honor and three bridesmaids. Can you tell me where the matron and maid of honor walk in the bridal procession? Who walks on the bride? Which one carries the bouquet? Please help me out, your column and think it is most helpful. Please help me out. — Miss Jane Ann Murray Hill, N. J.

Answer — In the walk up the aisle to the altar, the bridesmaids go first — two by two. Then comes the maid of honor all the way (following the ushers) and the matron of honor behind her. Walking alone, is the maid of honor, and next, the bride on the arm of her father. She is just in front of the bridal party at the altar. At the altar is reached, the bridesmaids and maid of honor take their places, with the matron of honor assists the bride by straightening her train and taking her bouquet. After the service is over, as the bride turns to start down the aisle, she gives her train is straightened and the bridal party starts slowly. The matron of honor walks back with the best man, and the bridegroom's ring is given to the best man. He also has the bride's wedding ring. When the Minister asks for them, the best man passes both rings to him.

Question — I am ten years old. My mother refuses to let me wear lipstick or nail polish even though the other girls in my class are allowed to. I am excited to do so. I at least want permission to wear pink nail polish. Please help me with my problem. — Miss Judy, Conn.

Answer — I'm sorry, young lady, but I agree with your mother on this point. There will be plenty of time to wear them. You will always you didn't have to when the time arrives! Don't be in such a hurry to grow up. Enjoy your childhood while you can. I'm not sure what you mean by "pedx." May I be more familiar with you? I nicely written letter!

Many Enjoy School Concert

CAMPBELLFORD — The pupils of Bridge Street Public School entertained a large and appreciative audience one evening in the High School auditorium with their annual concert, which had been prepared for the Northumberland Music Festival, held recently, in Brighton.

To provide a change from singing, several items portraying other activities carried on in the classroom were also performed by groups of students.

The concert opened with O Canada, followed by the School Boys, was the master of ceremonies for the evening. Mrs. Tredree and Mrs. Donald Rutherford were the accompanists.

TUESDAY

FRENCH COFFEE CUSTARD:

3 cups whole milk, 1 cup 10 per cent cream, 3-3 cup instant powdered coffee, 1 teaspoon finely grated orange rind, 4 large eggs, 2-3 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-8 teaspoon salt.

In top of double boiler heat milk, cream, coffee and orange rind. Meanwhile beat eggs just enough to mix them — not foamy. Stir in sugar. Slowly pour hot milk over, mixing just mixture stirring. Stir in vanilla and salt. To serve 8, pour custard into 8 custard cups, ramekins or 4 3-4" x 1 1-2" (or 3 or 10 6-ounce) glass custard cups and oven pooch (stand dishes in large pan containing 1-2" of hot water). Bake 325 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes. Smaller custards would bake in 30 or 40 minutes. Cool and chill. When ready to serve top with generous mound unsweetened whipped cream and sprinkle with toasted coconut mixed with shaved Brazil nuts or filberts. Serve in the custard pots in which they were baked, which should be on dessert plates.

Last night I had dinner at my sister's home. As you know Peady is an expert cook. She served us up with great relish pork cutlets. These are so bat, tasty and easy cost 75c per pound but there were no bones.

There is a nostalgic story connected with these. When we were children our mother used to send us to the butcher market to buy "pork cuttings". These were 3 pounds for 25c. When cooked them she produced a Sunday dinner par excellence. We still think back on that heaped up platter of succulent and tender meat and prayer for the good old days. At ten times the price here is a reasonable facsimile.

PEADY'S PORK CUTLETS:

For 1 1-2 pounds tender slices of pork cut into 2" pieces, put together in a flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt and 1-4 teaspoon freshly ground white pepper. Dredge the meat all over with this. Place in shallow baking dish, add about 1 1-4 cups milk and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 1 to 1 1-2 hours or until milk has nearly evaporated. The result: slightly crispy nought tender-tender meat. Delicious with rice.

Made-In-Advance Dessert For Dinner Party

By Mary Moore

Last week I promised to tell you how to make a very simple but elegant dessert which I served when the Huffs were my guests at dinner.

Actually this is a custard which may be made in advance. This is a welcome factor when you are having guests for dinner. It may be made in the refrigerator to chill and therefore, until serving time.

My new daughter, Margy, made it with almost no bribing. Both my daughters-in-law prefer cooking if you are lucky enough to have a cook to help.

Retarded Assoc. Topic 'Recreation'

CAMPBELLFORD — The regular meeting of Merrywale School for Retarded Children was held early this week with a good attendance. In the absence of the Rev. G. Whitehorne, the 1st vice-president, William Petley presided.

Reports were given of two conferences. One held at Dunlop by nursing, nurses and medical personnel was given by Mrs. A. E. Toombs, and the other a report of the general conference of O.A.R.C. given by Mrs. F. M. Rutherford. Both of these reports revealed the interest and zeal for education and welfare of retarded children, not only by the parents, but also by many othe dedicated persons.

It is expected that by September 1st, there will be 50 associations opening in Ontario. These Associations are rallying in some areas. Hence the pressure on already over-burdened institutions and after the retarded child a chance to develop to the best of his ability. Lots of problems within the family circle.

GUEST SPEAKER

Miss Joyce Foster of the Ontario Recreation Commission was guest speaker. She showed the delegates a film and outlined a program for retarded children. She stated that many of a number of summer camps in Ontario organized and supervised by a great many instances by service clubs and Lions, Loyal Order of Moose, Ontario. Skating, swimming, bowling, curling, basketball, baseball and even golf and golf can be taught to retarded children as well as music and limited drama. Most important is the fact they learn to live in other people in a normal way.

Mrs. Brake was introduced by Mrs. J. Smith and thanked by Mrs. J. Rannie.

Lunch was served by the social committee.

Sweet Adelines Of Kingston Hold Chapter Party

Saturday evening the Kingston Choralnes Chapter of Sweet Adelines gave luncheon for an inter-chapter party at Queen's University. Fifteen members from Belleville Sweetabelles Chapter attended, and guests were entertained also. members from the Ottawa Sweet Adelines.

Members of the Kingston chapter, Julie Beard, welcomed the visitors and introduced the program over to Evelyn Lohnes, their director. The three chorused had been busy singing, "on stage" and three quartets contributed also.

Miss Lomax taught the combined choruses two different songs by ear and they really made the rafters ring.

A most delicious lunch was served buffet style by the Kingston girls. The Ottawa chapter brought a beautifully decorated birthday cake with 15 candles on it for their director W. S. "Bill" Taylor, whose birthday was that day.

The program at the two visiting chapters s x pressed their thanks to Kingston for such an enjoyable evening and commented on how much enjoyment the Kingston Choralnes have in their chapter.

Another pleasant half hour was spent in "wood-shedding" and tag endings were exchanged by many individual groups.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Quits Every Job

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Can you tell me what is the meaning of the term "unemployable?" I saw it the other day in a report on employment and am wondering if my husband is one of those unemployables.

I am nearly frantic for I just don't know how much longer I can go on working to support the four of us. I do love my husband but he has never been able to keep a job for longer than a few months. He never finished high school and has no trade or skilled worker standing.

He has a wonderful personality and until the current unemployment situation, could always get a job — trucking, construction or garage work—but just couldn't stay with it. What can I do to help him—and myself?—FRANTIC.

DEAR FRANTIC —Your husband would not come within the government's definition of the term "unemployable." Yet the person you describe may be almost as handicapped as the physically disabled or mentally incompetent.

He is limited by two things—lack of emotional maturity and lack of education. If trucking or garage work is not sufficiently challenging to his intelligence he can only hold on so long. If he had learned a special skill this might have given him the confidence that could in turn breed stability on the job.

Try to get him interested in his own potential. A proper evaluation of his native ability and aptitudes might open his eyes. It could lead him in a course of study or training which would eventually provide the job satisfaction he needs. This in turn would help him to mature.

Your local branch of the National Employment Service can steer him to vocational counselling.

DEAR DORIS:—My husband comes from a poor family but is now fairly well off. Our argument is over having a cleaning lady one half day a week! He claims that this is extravagant as we live in a small home (but entertain lot.)

As I loathe housework and am willing to go without other things to have this help, it really boils down to a difference in how our money ought to be spent. I manage our house on considerably less than others in our circumstances, and cannot see the point of doing all the heavy work when it is not necessary.

However, I would do anything to get along with hubby (He is unwilling to do anything around the house at all)—HOMEMAKER.

* * *

DEAR HOMEMAKER:—Does hubby run his job according to your ideas?

Home is your bailiwick. He counts on you to organize meals, to buy food, to arrange for entertaining. To tend to laundry and all the special things that are involved in keeping house.

If there is no question of finding the money, he should accept the new order of things and leave it to you whether you get help with heavy work or not. What mother did about it is beside the point.

TORONTO (CP)—Match Girl, owned by Miss Olive Armstrong and trained by Willie Morrissey, won the $3,985 Selene Stakes as the 33-day summer racing meeting opened at New Woodbine Monday.

Match Girl paid $5.40, $3.80 and $3.00 as she ran the six furlongs in 1.12 1-5.

Gramp's Pride, owned and trained by Morrissey, remained in the Queen's Plate picture as he scored a rather handy win over six other three year-olds in the sixth race, defeating Rambling Wreck by slightly more than a length while Cut Steel finished third.

Gramp's Pride ran the mile and 70 yards in a mediocre 1.44 1-5 as he paid $12.10, $3.50 and $3.30.

The meeting's opening daily-double paid $136.90 on Gay Dust and Mr. Kip.

The quinella paid $78.90 when Royal Spirit won the fifth race, with Sharmrock Less second.

TORONTO (CP) — Hidden Treasure, winner of $82,787, seeks his first stakes victory of the current season when he runs in the $7,500 Jacques Cartier Stakes at New Woodbine Wednesday. Hidden Treasure, owned by Bill Beasley of Brantford, has started only twice this year and was beaten by New Providence on both occasions.

Jockey Avelino Gomez, who will ride Hidden Treasure in the six-furlong sprint, predicts the Beasley colt is just about ready to begin a lengthy winning streak. Said Gomez, as he dismounted after Hidden Treasure finished second to New Providence in the Inferno Stakes: "They won't beat us again."

New Providence won't run Wednesday. His owners, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Taylor, are coaxing him to long - distance races for the remainder of the season. However, the Taylors have nominated Menantic, Welland Canal and Windsor Field for Wednesday's race.

Other possible starters are: Bold Seafarer, Reactor, Theo Geo, Oil Can, Admiral Arnbro, Skinny, Minny, Bocage, Rash Decision and Brown Panther.

Theo Geo, owned by B. S. Chris of Kitchener, won last season's running of the Jacques Cartier.

Sport Snapshots

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—Poor attendance is one of the major problems facing teams in amateur sport.

But one of the four teams in the New Westminster Major Men's Softball League has no such problem, and probably never will.

The Seals play only home games and they're watched by more fans over a season than the combined total of the other three.

They have what you might call a captive audience. The team is made up of prisoners of the British Columbia penitentiary located in the east end of this city.

Softball games "draw" about 400 of the institution's 700 inmates.

The 400 figure is not exceptionally high, but is more than double attendance at league games outside the prison grounds.

Some of the prisoners take in the games because they enjoy them. Others go because they can at least get some fresh air.

The Seals are perennial contenders for the league title, and should be. They practise seven days a week, before or after work.

There's never a shortage of players. Some of the better players from the Seals' many farm teams are always ready to replace players stepping down from the senior club or being released from prison.

At one time or another, the Seals have had two or three players who had a fling at professional baseball.

And while some of the better players leave for the outside world, a few return.

The Seals are a serious bunch on the ball field but the other prisoners take great delight in exchanging witty remarks.

A ball is hit over the prison wall, or wire fence. Immediately the cry goes up. "I'll get it."

A Seals' pitcher is experiencing a rough inning and the remark is heard. "Take your time you've got lots of it."

A close play at home invariably brings a yell of "kill the umpire."

And while the Seals have the best following in the league, you can bet on one thing. The spectators would far rather be somewhere else.

Versile Will Stay

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Gene Verbis said Monday he would continue as manager of the last-place Syracuse Chiefs of baseball's International League. Verbis, 32, offered to resign last week after a club dispute that involved pitcher-coach Bob Porterfield who was quoted as saying Verbis was "a lousy manager." Porterfield was fired.

Minor Softball

The Rockets defeated the Comets 11-9 in one of the Bantam league softball games played last night.

D. Machmillen pitched the win, allowing 13 hits and helped his own cause with a home run. The catcher was R. Lecuntinl. Flindall had three hits.

R. Emberry buried for the Comets lagged foe 14 hits. D. Niles was the receiver and collected three hits as, did H. Lark.

The Rockets scored six runs in a big third inning and the Comets never did catch up again.

In another bantam tilt, the Colts defeated the Bears 5-2 by scoring four runs in the sixth inning.

The battery for the Colts was Al Mott and Moon, for the Bears, Grieves and Clement.

The Bears, shutout for the first six innings, scored two runs in the seventh but were unable to continue their rally.

Forty-Four Qualify For Open

NEW YORK (AP)—Forty-four golfers, headed by Don January and Bill Bisdorf, won places in the U.S. Open tournament Monday as the second and last phase of qualifying began from coast to coast in the U.S.

Eighty-five more berths will be filled today to set up the final 150 - man field for the championship proper at the Oakland Hills Country Club in the Detroit suburb of Birmingham, Mich.

The two-day sectional qualifying over 36 holes found 493 competing for 129 of the 150 berths. Twenty-one stars, including defending champion Arnold Palmer, were exempted from the qualifying test.

It Could Have Been

Moon Suspension Phony?

By CHARLES MARKE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Did you know a major league baseball player could be "suspended" by just about anybody, including a gambler, a practical joker, a crackpot, an angry fan, or even your own Aunt Martha?

As a matter of fact, if you've got relatives in Cincinnati or Boston (the league headquarters cities), you might be able to pull it off yourself.

This curious loophole in baseball's administration became apparent again the other night when outfielder Wally Moon of Los Angeles Dodgers was set down three days on a charge of making bodily contact with an umpire.

Moon was engaged in a pre-game cow-milking contest at the Coliseum Saturday night — just about five minutes before the Dodgers took the field against the Giants—when word of the suspension arrived by wire from National League president Warren Giles.

A reporter asked him later how he knew the telegram was legitimate—that it really came from Giles? There were no code symbols on the telegram to demonstrate its authenticity.

"I didn't know," Moon said. "I just had to accept it."

In other words, the telegram could have been sent by anybody.

(The district attorney's office said Section 474 of the California Penal Code makes it illegal to send a forged or false telegram.)

"Now just suppose," a sports writer was saying later, "that you're a gambler looking for a way to increase your percentage on a baseball bet. Let's say the two key players on a particular club have had a big run-in with a certain umpire a couple of days back. You know this, so you get your Aunt Martha in Cincinnati to send wires to the two players, telling them they're suspended three days. You also have auntie send a similar wire to the general manager of the club the two players work for, just to make it look more legitimate.

If your wires arrive just before game time, chances are the players don't start that day."

Whooping Indians Ride Tigers' Back

Win 7 In Row Bengals Beaten

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cleveland Indians, barred from high-stake card games by manager Jimmy Dykes, are playing a hot hand in the American League race, moving within one game of first place with a seven - game winning streak.

Dykes ruled out the big pots to make sure the Tribe kept their minds on baseball. The Indians have done just that. They have won 19 of their last 23 games.

The three-man relief brigade of righthanders Frank Funk and Barry Latman and lefty Bob Allen has a 13-3 won-lost record. They have been in on 30 of Cleveland's 51 victories.

Latman ran his record to 4-0 Monday night, breaking a 5-5 tie with a wild and blazing Washington Senators in four innings of two-hit relief for a 7-5 victory.

TIGERS LOSE

That put the Indians even with the league-leading Detroit Tigers in the decision "loss" column as the Tigers' Phil Regan knocked off the Tigers 8-0 behind his seven-hit pitching of Frank Baumann.

The third - place New York Yankees joined the parade with four games of the top with a 6-1 and 6-2 doubleheader sweep over Minnesota Twins. The Los Angeles Angels beat the fourth - place Baltimore Orioles 3-1 on southpaw Ron Moeller's six - hitter, Kansas City Athletics split a doubleheader with Boston, winning 10-5 after the Red Sox had won the opener 6-2.

The Indians, after blowing 3-0 and 5-3 leads behind starter Johnny Antonelli, Bobby Locke, finally made it with two unearned runs in the seventh inning against losing reliever Jo. John Gabler (2-2).

Cleveland collected 15 hits including a 6-for-4 show by the three pitchers — with Jimmy Piersall cracking a triple and three singles and Johnny Romano extending his hit streak through 20 games with a double.

Baumann (4-4) gave the White Sox staff its first shutout and became the first lefty to go all the way against Detroit this season. He also had three hits and drove in three runs. Righthander Phil Regan, a five-game winner for Detroit, lost his second in a row when the White Sox scored twice in the second inning on Walt Moryn and Minoso plus by Jim Landis and Sherm Lollar.

SET RECORDS

The Yankees set league home run records for 13 and 14 consecutive games while tagging the Twins with an 11-game losing string. A three - run pinch homer by Johnny Blanchard did it in the seventh inning of the opener. Mickey Mantle regained a tie for the league lead with his 15th homer, a two-run shot in the eighth.

That made it 27 home runs in 13 games for New York, and Tony Kubek made it 28 for 14 in the nightcap with a two-run homer in the seventh that gave the Yankee shortstop a 16-game hitting streak.

Jim Coates (4-2) won his fifth straight game, first as a starter, with relief by Luis Arroyo in the opener.

Ted Kluszewski hammered a two-run homer in the first inning for the Angels off Hector Brown (5-2), who had won four in a row. It was Klu's sixth hit off Baltimore pitching this season — all home runs. Moeller struck out nine men — fanning Brook; Robinson and Jim Gentile with the bases loaded in the fifth. It was his first victory and complete game in the season.

Mike Fornieles (2-2) gave up 10 hits but went all the way while making his first start in three seasons for Boston in the opener. Joe Nuxhall (5-3) was the second game with relief help from Bill Runkel. Norm Siebern reached base eight times in a row for the Athletics in the twin bill, hitting a home run and a single in the second game.

Will 'Ad Lib' This One

Ole Archie Ready For Italian

By ED CORRIGAN

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP) — Archie Moore, venerable king of boxing's light - heavyweights, figures he is ready for anything — even a trip to Italy.

"Let's say that I will ad lib this one," he said Monday. "Whatever Rinaldi does, I expect to do something better."

Rinaldi, who gained a 10-round decision over Archie in Italy earlier in the year, has made no secret of his plans. He intends to unseat the champion, keep him off balance and stay away from his right hand.

"Hmmm," mused Archie, rubbing his goatee. "The last time we fought, Giulio was not particularly aggressive and he didn't crowd much.

"But it really doesn't make any difference. I am completely prepared against such tactics. I am also prepared if Rinaldi tries to do something different."

There had been rumors that Moore would have trouble making the 175-pound limit. They were not without reason, for in the past he has boasted to fearsome proportions. But he hopped on the scale Monday and it showed 174½ pounds.

Moore has been floating up to this Catskill Mountain retreat of Moore's that Rinaldi has looked something less than sensational in his workouts in a restaurant gym-loft in New York.

"I've been around a long time," Archie sniffed. "And have heard that sort of thing before. I seem I've been hearing it about one Archie Moore. But it is well not to be influenced by such talk."

Dr. Alexander Schleff of the New York state Athletic Commission said Moore is "a physical marvel. What's the difference how old he really is? He has the reflexes of a man of 30."

Archie admits to 44 but his mother says he's 47.

Hell Drivers Show at Fair Grounds

The Lucky Hell Drivers put in one of their periodical spine-thrilling events tonight at the Fair Grounds.

A dozen 1961 cars will be put through their tricks by expert drivers who guarantee a thrill a minute.

A feature of the event will be the propulsion of an automobile by a giant cannon.

Usually there are a couple of clowns around who take care of the comedy and who are expert drivers themselves.

The drivers say there will be "two hours of automotive fury" guaranteed to keep the fans on seat-edge throughout the show.

Free round trip tickets to Paris will be drawn at every show, it says here.

BEES WON'T PLAY

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cat Bees will not enter the Ontario Rugby Football Union's intermediate series this season, the team manager announced here Monday. Donald Cooper said the club will pay the annual fee and review the situation before the end of July. Fifteen of last year's intermediate players have been invited to the rookie training camp to be held starting June 26 by the Bees' current club in the Big Four League.

Sox Offer May Be Withdrawn

CHICAGO (AP) — The indefinite stock to accept or reject a bid of $4,800,000 for controlling interest in Chicago White Sox of the American League could result in a withdrawal of the offer today.

President Bill Veeck of the White Sox said Monday that he, vice-president Hank Greenberg and A. C. Allyn Jr. had not reached a decision on the offer made by Chicago lawyer Bernard Epton, spokesman for a syndicate which includes comedian Danny Thomas.

Epton scheduled a press conference today and said if the Veeck group didn't reach a decision in the "immediate future" he would recommend that the syndicate that the offer be withdrawn.

Greenberg, in charge of White Sox affairs because of Veeck's ill health, says there can be no sale when there is no money.

"Epton keeps talking about the millions he has behind him," Greenberg said. "But he never came up with enough cash to warrant our giving him an option. It's customary to put up five to 10 per cent of the money to get an option and he hasn't come up with it."

Greenberg was reminded that Veeck put up only $100 for an option from Mrs. Dorothy Comiskey Rigney which enabled him to purchase the 56-per-cent stock held by the group.

Epton said his offer is "firm and clean" and that his group has no money problems.

Giants Drop to Third

Reds Back On Perch In National

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

A year ago Vern Law was a 20-game winner and Pittsburgh Pirates were on top of the National League race. Now it's news when the big righthander wins—and the Pirates are in fourth spot.

It is easy to spotlight the Bucs' slump, which sent Law losing four of his first five decisions and Bob Friend, an 18-game winner last season, losing seven in a row as a starter.

Law picked up his first win in more than a month with a 5-2 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers Monday night that moved the fourth-place Pirates to within 2½ games of first place. The loss knocked Los Angeles out of the lead.

Cincinnati Redlegs jumped back on top by beating Milwaukee Braves 5-3. Last-place Philadelphia Phillies dropped San Francisco Giants to third place with a 3-2 victory and St. Louis Cardinals defeated Chicago Cubs 10-4.

Law, bothered by a sore shoulder and home runs, avoided both troubles Monday night. He gave up eight hits and blew a 2-0 lead, but then singled home the tie - breaker in the sixth inning against losing reliever Ron Perranoski (3-3) before giving way for a pinch-hitter. Elroy Face saved the decision with two innings of one-hit, shutout relief. Bill Mazeroski and Smoky Burgess homered for the Pirates who collected 13 hits.

The Reds came from behind and beat Lew Burdette (5-4) with a three-run eighth inning on homers by Frank Robinson and Jerry Lynch. Robinson singled and Lynch doubled as they scored Cincinnati's first two runs in the second inning on a single by Gordie Coleman after the Braves had counted three in the first on home runs by Ed Mathews and Joe Adcock.

Joey Jay, a former Brave, worked the first seven innings, blanking Milwaukee on one hit over the last six. Jim Brosnan (3-1) won in relief with help from Bill Henry in the ninth inning.

A six-run seventh inning, triggered by Carl Sawatski's two-run homer and capped by Bill White's grand-slammer, moved the Cards from behind. Maury McDermott, gaining his first National League decision, was the winner in relief. Ed Bouchee and Ernie Banks homered for the Cubs. Reliever Joe Schaffernoth (0-3) lost.

Robin Roberts, who had lost his first seven decisions, beat the Giants with a six-hit performance. Chuck Hiller hit a two-run homer for San Francisco in the second inning, but then put the tying run on base with an error ahead of Pancho Herrera's winning three - run homer in the third. Mike McCormick (5-5) dropped his third straight decision.

Pitching: Frank Baumann, Chicago White Sox, became the first lefthander to pitch a complete game this season against the first-place Detroit Tigers, winning 8-6 with seven-hitter.

Hitting: Norm Siebern, Kansas City Athletics, reached base eight straight times after being put out in the first inning of a double - header against Boston Red Sox. He hit a home run and three singles and drew three walks as the Athletics lost 6-2 and won 10-6.

Yanks Recall Vee Hurler

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees Monday night brought up righthander reliever Hal Neiff from their Richmond Virginian farm club of the International League. Neiff, 22, had a 4-2 pitching record with the Virginians this season.

Carry Back Taken Out Of Training

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP) — Carry Back has been taken out of training and how long he remains on the inactive list depends on the recuperative powers of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner.

Dr. William O. Reed, chief veterinarian of the New York Racing Commission, examined Wednesday Mrs. Jack Price's little thoroughbred who finished a dismal seventh in the Belmont Stakes and took a dozen more x-rays of an ankle injury.

"I found no fracture," Reed said on returning to New York and studying the x-ray pictures. "He has an abrasion on the rear of the left front ankle, and the entire leg is swollen. He is temporarily out of training, but I could not say for just how long."

The horse is running a slight temperature from the infection resulting from the injury, believed to have been suffered during the running of the Belmont.

Fulham Star Joins Toronto

Garroway's Departure Date From Show Still Up in Air

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Dave Garroway obviously is going to leave NBC's Today show, as he requested, but the date of departure still is up in the air. Garroway was pleading to take things easy this summer by taking a couple of shows one day each week anyway.

John Daly is considered the most logical replacement. The network officials say that a number of names have been submitted for consideration.

NBC's The Nation's Future will have Edwin Newman as its new moderator. John K. M. McCaffery, who has been moderator since the series started last November, is out of the program and will soon undergo surgery. He will not be back.

Harry Belafonte, who has appeared as the Mystery Guest recently, will be a guest panelist on next Sunday's What's My Line? and Dina Merrill seems to be a regular fill-in for Polly Bergen on To Tell the Truth.

What-a-game note: The name of the June 17 episode of Checkmate, according to a correction sent out by CBS, has been changed from The Importance of Being Dead Earnest to A Slight Touch of Venom, which makes all the difference.

Recommended tonight:

Summer on Ice, NBC, 10:41 EDT—Skating show with Peter Lawford and Peggy Lee.

Garry Moore Show, CBS, 10:11 —with guest stars Alan King, Eileen Farrell and the Jonah Jones quartet.

Will Video Five College Grid Games

TORONTO (CP)—Five games of the Senior Intercollegiate Football League will be televised by the CBC this fall, it was announced Monday.

It will be the first television appearance for the 73-year-old league which comprises McGill University of Montreal, Queen's University of Kingston, the University of Toronto and the University of Western Ontario, London.

Each team will be seen at least once, a CBC spokesman said. There will be no blackouts and the games probably will go on the national network as part of the CBC's new World of Sport series.

Contract terms were not divulged but it was announced the university officials, represented by athletics director Warren Stephens of the University of Toronto, had no objection to brewery sponsorship.

The CBC, which previously carried the professional Big Four games, last cut in to hold its year to CFTO, a Toronto private station.

Point Anne edged Rolling Construction by a score of 4-3 in a Commercial softball league game played at the Point last night.

The winners scored one run in the first inning and three in the third while both the Belleville team's runs came in the third.

Jim Hunter pitched for the Cementmen, allowing half a dozen hits, fanning four and walking two.

Holloway and Genereaux in the third worked on the Rollins mound. They allowed just three hits while striking out six and walking five.

Pete Green had two of the Painters' hits, including a three-run homer in the third. Art Genereaux bagged the other safety.

The Rollins hits went to Donovan, Burley Ritter, Ashley Begley, G. Duggan, C. Merara and Holloway.

Jersey Nips Wings 3-1, Leafs Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mention the word move or transfer and it must perform wonders in the International League.

Charleston Marlins won seven straight games after their move to the United States from San Juan, Puerto Rico, last month. Jersey City Jerseys, rumored heading for Miami later this month, have reeled off five victories in a row.

However, league president Tommy Richardson might have put an end to the spell when he said from Charleston, W. Va., Monday night that "it would take a $20,000 gift to move the club to Miami" and it would buy nothing more than the satisfaction of taking baseball back to Miami. He indicated that such would not be the case.

But the Jerseys made Rochester Red Wings their victims Monday night with a 3-1 victory. Richmond Virginians broke a seven - game losing streak by beating Toronto Maple Leafs 5-4. Columbus Jets gained a half-game on the first place Marlins. They were idle, with a 5-2 decision over Buffalo Bisons.

LOSER SECOND

Singles by Cookie Rojas and Frank Obregon, a sacrifice fly, a walk and an error helped the Jersey break a 1-1 tie in the seventh inning with two runs. Zack Monroe, 3-4, won and Johnny Anderson lost his second in eight decisions.

Don Lock's fourth - inning, three-run homer and a nine-hitter by Bill Bethel snapped the Virginians' losing string after they staked him to a three-run lead in the third off loser Bob Smith. Bill Moran and Fritz Brickell homered for the Leafs.

Don Clendenon's steal of home, climaxing a triple theft by Columbus in the second inning, opened up a three-run decision that helped beat the Bisons. Two errors and a walk preceded the triple steal, after which Ed Sedi singled home two more runs. John Schaive and Fisher of Columbus as Bob Veale beat Dick Ricketts for the victory.

The Trots

HULL, Que. (CP) — High Brooke, a 10 - year - old gelding owned and driven by Jack Fisher of Owen Sound, won Monday night's $500 Invitation Pace at Connaught Park. High Brooke finished with a time of 2:18 for the mile.

The winner paid $16.20, $6.60 and $6.10 while runner-up Bert Gallon paid $9.40 and $6.00. Stuffy Dean returned $4.80 for third.

AT THE PARK — May Britt starts with Stuart Whitman, Hoyo Miyazaki, Peter Lorre in the Cinemascope attraction "Murder, Inc." now showing at the Park Theatre. On the same program is CinemaScope and Color, "From the Terrace", starring Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward, and Myrna Loy. One complete show for three attractions starting at 7.30 p.m.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — This scene from Jerry Wald's production for Twentieth Century-Fox of "In Love and War", resembles in feeling the famous Joe Rosenthal photograph of the Marines raising the U.S. flag on Mt. Suribachi during World War II. The still, also taken by the Pulitzer Prize photographer, shows stars Robert Wagner, Jeffrey Hunter and Bradford Dillman as combat Marines in the Philip Dunne directed CinemaScope, De Luxe Color production, opens Wednesday evening at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. 2nd CinemaScope feature is "No Down Payment", featuring Joanne Woodward, Sheree North and Tony Randall.

AT THE PARK — Ina Balin, beautiful co-star of Mark Robson's Twentieth Century-Fox CinemaScope production of "From the Terrace" now showing at the Park Theatre. On the same program "Murder, Inc.", starring Stuart Whitman and May Britt. One complete show starts at 7.30 p.m.

HELD OVER AT THE BELLE—Carol Lynley, Gig Young, Eleanor Parker and Mark Damon head a fantastic cast in "Return to Peyton Place". Jerry Wald's follow-up screen production of the new best seller by Grace Metalious, in Technicolor.

The ambition of every actor traditionally is to get behind the camera, making his debut as a director with the Paramount production of "One-Eyed Jacks" coming to the Belle Theatre tomorrow and Wednesday.

NO EASY WAY OUT

Never one to take the easy way out, Brando starred and directed simultaneously, although the scope of "One-Eyed Jacks," a drama set against the unusual background of the Pacific Ocean area of Northern California, constituted a formidable challenge in itself for even the most experienced of directors.

Brando as a film-maker, proved to be as painstaking a perfectionist as he is an actor. But the unique spark of imagination that is Brando's trademark as an actor is firmly imprinted on all phases of "One-Eyed Jacks," according to Hollywood observers.

Dr. Frank Baxter Retires After 31 Years of Teaching

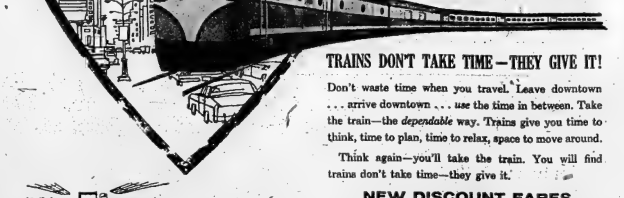
By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD(AP) — Dr. Frank Baxter, who achieved wide success with his TV lectures, is retiring as a college professor but not as a lecturer.

For 31 years, Dr. Baxter's English classes have been one of the notable assets of the University of Southern California, along with its football team. In 1953, he enlarged his classroom for Shakespeare on TV, a pioneering venture for the new medium. Since then, his TV lectures have garnered a harvest of awards, including seven Emmies.

Now 65, he is retiring from USC. He has given his last class lecture. "No, I'm not sorry to be quitting," he said. "After all, I've been at this teaching game for 41 years."

His future schedule sounds athletic. He has lined up lectures all over the country. He will start a 15-minute radio series of his choosing for Westinghouse, which has been doing him for three years. He will tape introductions for An Age of Kings, the Britishmade series of Shakespeare's chronicles which will appear in TV. He may continue narrating a film biography of Shakespeare.



Marlene Tops Test Field

HAMILTON (CP) — Marlene Stewart Streit led a field of 37 entrants in the first Ontario Ladies' Test Match Monday at the Burlington Golf and Country Club, coming off the tricky course with a 74.

Mrs. Streit, representing the Lookout Point Golf Club, was three strokes over the Burlington par of 71.

Runner-up to Mrs. Streit was Mrs. J. C. Whitelaw of Mississauga with a 77.

Aquarius (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Important you incorporate now and more efficient system into whatever may be your job now. Also an excellent day and evening for contacting experts in monetary affairs and getting all the information you need with which to be progressive.

If your child is born today ... there will be such a dynamic nature here, plus a pioneering spirit, that it behooves you to early see that what is once commenced is completed before he, or she, delves into something else, otherwise you will have a lack of all trades and master of none. The career can them start very early in life and the earning power will be considerable, provided, you parents, take analytical, personal interest, even with school work.

PRICES ARE LOWER

STE. ADELE, Que. (CP) — Mass Production and competition have brought drug prices down, H. J. Brown, president of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association, told the association's spring meeting here Saturday. Mr. Brown, president and general manager of Burroughs Wellcome and Company, said the average belief that drug prices are rising was not true.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this incredible substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific laboratories. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Council Turns Thumbs Down On New Hall

TRENTON — Council last night voted 4-to-3 against a by-law which would provide for the building of a new hall on the east side of the river.

At last month's council meeting a resolution by Councillor Ross Burtt suggesting that the hall be built this year was passed by a 5-to-3 vote. At that time, Councillors Burtt and Graham voted in favor of the hall, but Councillors Worrall and McNair against said Mayor MacDonald broke the tie by casting a vote in favor of it. Councillors Prasser and Lange did not attend the last meeting.

At last night's meeting Councillor McNair charged that the issue was being introduced as a "vote-catcher." In reference to a petition signed by more than 300 east-side residents, and recently presented to council, asking that a hall be erected, Councillor McNair said that he would go around on the east side and gather up as many names against the idea as the petition contained in favor of it.

Mayor MacDonald said that he had made enquiries from the Public Utilities Commission and that the company had recommended that a strand steel building which would be "colour-full" and "attractive." The cost of this building, he said, would be $15,000; equipment would cost $3,000, or $2,000 should be allowed for contingencies, bringing the total cost to $20,000. Mayor MacDonald said in spite of opposition from the police commission, he had worked out what would be a proper site which provided for the erection of an east-side fire hall.

Councillor McNair said that he thought one good hall should be built on either side of the river if a new hall must be built.

"POLITICAL" ISSUE

Councillor Vern Lange said that what with "letters to the editor" and petitions, the affair had become a "political issue".

He said that he agreed "with Councillor Burtt that one hall should be sufficient for the town. He said he was not counting on the initial cost of erecting the hall, but rather the cost of staffing it.

"If we have two halls, we're going to have to man them," he said. "The fire chief, who should be commended for his excellent work, couldn't get along with three additional men if we have two halls. In two years, we'd need six or eight more men. The chief can't hope to get them and he could get along with three extra men."

Do you realize, he said, that I brought pressure to bear on the chief to say that he could get along with three additional men," asked Councillor Burtt.

"I said whether he could or "am personally sick and tired of being accused of not wanting proper fire protection for the town. At the Creosote fire, some people said to me, "I'll bet you're sorry we haven't got an east-side fire hall." My own business is on the east side. I think the RCAF will continue to give us co-operation."

"The RCAF might have a condition of their own that would prevent them sending us assistance," said Councillor Burtt.

"It's not a question of a town to bow to petitions," said Councillor Prasser. "At budget time, Councillor Lange agreed that we couldn't afford a new hall. With the Victoria Street Fresh Air carter, WO 2-4197.

editor, it has become a political issue in the minds of the people.

"It HAS a political issue," said Councillor Graham. "I've fought for an east-side hall for the past eight years. Now, there are more houses on the east side than there are on the west side. Trenton is really two towns, divided by the river. We need an east-side hall."

When the by-law had been read by acting clerk Alan Weaver, the vote was polled. Councillors Worrall, Lange, McNair and Fraser were against; Councillors Burtt and Graham for.

Barbecue Fires Okay if Fuel Is Charcoal

TRENTON — Health board chairman H. S. Pane said at last night's council meeting that it was permissable for town residents to have barbecue fires provided they use charcoal as fuel.

Councillors had asked Mr. Pane to clarify the recently-adopted air pollution by-law. However, Mr. Pane said that the burning of refuse in the open was a violation of the by-law and council now will have to decide whether residents should be allowed to burn leaves in the fall or if council must pay to have them carted away.

Rev. W. H. Carty Drowns When Fish Boat Sinks On Wind-Swept Buck Lake

TRENTON District residents of all religious persuasions were shocked to learn of the death by drowning last night of Rev. William H. Carty, 63, who for the past nine years had been the Spiritual leader of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church here.

Father Carty drowned in a boating accident while fishing with a nephew, Rev. William Andrew Tigner, on Buck Lake, north of Trenton.

Fr. Carty had gone to Elgin on Sunday to hear another nephew, Rev. John Patrick Carty, say his first Mass. The following day he went fishing with Fr. Dwyer. Their small boat filled with water and sank when a strong wind came up. Fr. Dwyer clung to a half-filled gasoline tank and pushed a pale of oars toward Fr. Carty. Fr. Dwyer reached shore about 300 yards away he looked back and saw that the oars had floated beyond Fr. Carty.

Fr. Dwyer ran to a small boat he spotted on the shore and rowed to the spot where he had last seen his uncle. On Thursday at 10.30 a.m.

But Fr. Carty had disappeared. His body was recovered at 8.00 p.m.

Pontifical Mass will be celebrated at St. Peter's Church on Thursday at 10.30 a.m.

Dentists Say Uninformed Are Against Fluoridation Of Town's Water Supply

TRENTON — Councillors will consider a report from the Public Utilities Commission and enquire further into the costs involved before making up their minds about fluoridating the town's water supply.

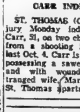
The town's dentists favored fluoridation, but the council was advocated the move.

This was the decision taken by council at last night's meeting. A delegation of dentists attended the meeting. Spokesman Dr. Robert Patrick said that that if council wanted to do a service for the town's children now was the time to do it".

"Why is Derry on record in opposition to fluoridation in certain parts?" asked Councillor Ross Burtt. "What class of people is against this treatment?"

Dr. Patrick said that "uninformed people" were against the move. He said that as far as being poisoned" from the presence of fluoride in water was concerned, it was safe even to drink "400 glasses full of water which had been treated properly" — the amount would be fatal.

Councillor Burtt wanted to know if the dentists would be satisfied to have the matter brought before the public for a vote in December.



Dr. Patrick said that last year only 30 percent of those eligible to vote exercised their franchise. He said that those who had been elected to make decisions for the people. However, he said that if dentists, who have come out as being 100 per cent in favor of fluoridation, would be satisfied to have the voters decide if council thought it was necessary.

Mayor MacDonald said one problem was that Trenton would need two plants to handle the treatment. He said that the cost would have to be considered as well as the attitude of the Public Utilities Commission towards assuming the application of the treatment. After the cost of installing equipment is considered, fluoridation would cost the town roughly $500 a year.

"Our water is good enough for me," said Councillor McNair. "It won't affect my teeth".

CASE INDICTED

ST. THOMAS (CP)—A grand jury Monday indicted Luther Carr, 31, on two charges arising from a fatal shooting here last Oct. 4. Carr is charged with possessing a sawed-off shotgun and with wounding his estranged wife, Margaret, in her St. Thomas apartment.

Q. How long will it take to give my donation?

A. Approximately 45 minutes, including time for testing, registration, rest and refreshments. The actual giving of blood takes only 4 to 5 minutes.

Air Force Day At Trenton On July 1st

TRENTON — All roads in the Quinte district lead to Trenton on Saturday, July 1, when the RCAF will present its annual Air Force Day program for the benefit of the public.

Headlining the activities for the third consecutive year will be the internationally - acclaimed Golden Hawks, the RCAF's precision aerobatic team flying F-86 Sabre 6s. The Hawks, led this year by Sqdn. Ldr. Jim McCombe, have already started their annual coast-to-coast flying tour and are also participating in a number of invitation air shows in the U.S.

Sharing the limelight with the gold, red and white Hawks from RCAF Station Chatham, N.B., will be the newest addition to the Air Transport Command fleet, namely the CC-106, CC-130H Hercules, CC-109 Cosmopolitan and the Carribou. Much attention is expected to be focused on the huge new cantilever hangar housing the giant CC-106 aircraft flown by 426 Squadron which is commanded by Wing Cmdr. G. E. Maitland.

The thousands of people who will visit Station Trenton for the open house activities will have an opportunity to see both air ground and in the air performances by aircraft from all the formations of the RCAF in Canada and Europe.

Set Standard $200 Annual Fee for Sewer

TRENTON — Town council voted last night to compel all persons "who live outside the town and who are hooked on to the town sewer a standard fee of $200 a year.

The question arose when a letter from Fred Hendricks was read asking for a renewal of contract at $75. Mr. Hendricks was excluded from a blanket charge by-law passed last year, in view of the fact that he had installed the original sewer at the town's west end several years ago at his own expense.

Councillor Fraser said that Mr. Hendricks had allowed other persons to hook onto the sewer without council's permission.

Councillor McNair voted against the resolution, contending that Mr. Hendricks should receive special consideration.

Other members of council felt that the charge should be standardized for all private residents using the town service.

PROFESSOR BURIED

TORONTO (CP) — Funeral services were held Monday for Robert Charles Wiren, 63, professor of mechanical engineering at the University of Toronto, who died Friday. He was Ontario chairman of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, from 1944 to 1946, a member of the Engineering Institute of Canada, the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario and the Royal Canadian Institute.

Ban Raising Of Nutria In Town

TRENTON — Milady will not be able to pick out next winter's fur coat while it is still on the hoof, so to speak.

Town council last night refused a request by a Trenton resident that he be allowed to raise fur-bearing animals which yield nutria fur, in a building which he proposed to erect on Byron St.

Council's decision was based on the fact that the area is zoned as residential and the project would be a commercial enterprise.

A petition signed by 39 Byron Street area residents, protested the proposal. The petitioners said that children in the area might be bitten by the animals and contract rabies.

H. S. Pane, chairman of the Board of Health, who was present at the meeting, said that the board was "not in favor" of the proposal.

LOOKS TO FUTURE

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—President Kennedy's personal physician predicts the goal of medical science soon will be the cure of human behavior rather than the cure of human physical illness. Foreseeing a world free of physical disease in which "only death will be accepted as inevitable," Dr. Janet Travell told the graduating class of Meharry Medical College Monday: "The challenges and future for medicine lie in the possibilities of modifying the behavioral patterns of the human race for the good of society."

Cross-Canada Survey

Must Have Good Weather If Canada's Farms to Enjoy Overflow of Market Crops

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Given good weather, the horn of plenty will overflow with the products of Canada's farms this year.

Increased acreage is reported for almost every major field crop.

A Cross - Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows seeding generally on schedule throughout the Prairies and most of British Columbia; fairly well along in Ontario but delayed by late spring in eastern Quebec and most parts of the Atlantic provinces.

Farmers in the Western grain belt would be happier if there were more subsoil moisture but the situation hasn't reached the critical stage yet.

PLANTING PLANS

Early in March the bureau of statistics reported that farmers intended to plant more oats, rye, flaxseed, corn, soybeans, potatoes and wheat than last year, and less barley and rapeseed.

This is generally borne out by reports from each province early in June although Alberta is bucking the rapeseed trend by increasing its acreage substantially.

The province - by - province story:

British Columbia: Growing conditions have been good except in the Peace River area where it has been unusually dry and cool. Wheat acreage is estimated at 53,500, up six per cent, and an agricultural department official says he suspects some farmers put in extra grain crops under the deal to sell wheat to Red China. Hay, oats and corn. Growing weather in the Okanagan Valley has been ideal and tree fruit crops are coming along fine although there are some slight problems with fruit formation of pears.

Alberta: Seeding is almost completed with some flax and barley still to be planted. Showers have brought good germination and early growth over most of the province but good rains are needed to restore subsoil moisture, particularly in the east-central region. An earlier survey indicated farmers would boost rapeseed acreage by about 26 per cent over last year's 170,000. Now it appears it will be even greater, with an increase possibly as much as 36 per cent in the northern part of the province.

WELL AHEAD

Saskatchewan: More than 90 per cent of spring wheat acreage has already been sown compared with less than 80 per cent at this time a year ago. With intended acreage of 14,722,000—about two - thirds of the land planted with spring wheat on the Prairies — Saskatchewan is the only province with a slight reduction from last year. O. A. Turnbull, minister of co - operative development, who farms in the Kindersley area, says the west-central region will have a normal crop. Carman C. Cook, agriculture representative in Estevan in southeastern Saskatchewan, says that if there is no rainfall in the next two weeks, "the situation will be serious." Moisture conditions are unsatisfactory there and with continued hot weather the grasshoppers have begun to hatch.

Manitoba: S. E. Ransom, president of the Manitoba Federation of Agriculture and a farmer at Boissevain, says: "Up to this point, seeding has been very good. Germination has been excellent — there's plenty of moisture. But it won't be long until we will need rain badly." Seeding of wheat generally is almost completed with oats and barley 60 to 75 per cent along. Rudy Usick, president of the Manitoba Farmers' Union who farms at Erickson, says: "Seeding in the west - central part of the province has been fairly late but in the last two weeks it has been wonderful." Manitoba farmers had indicated they intended to plant 2,686,000 acres with spring wheat. This may be boosted in some areas.

Ontario: A. H. Martin, director of the field crops branch, says: "We're late this year but not in a hurry any serious trouble yet." Some cereal crops have been sown earlier than last year. "Growth is slow because cold weather is holding it back but crops have adequate moisture at present." Barley tobacco returns to the fields of southern Ontario this year following tilting of a planting ban imposed by the tobacco board last year to cut surpluses. But the 1961 acreage of 5,470 is still only 60 per cent of 1959.

COLD SPRING

Quebec: Seeding is up to three weeks late in the eastern regions as a result of a cold spring. In Montreal and the Eastern Townships it is on schedule. In parts of the former St. Lawrence and Gaspe Peninsula there are still banks of snow on the ground. Last year 3,241,333 acres were under crops; this year it may be a little lower with less spring wheat, oats and barley but more mixed grains and potatoes.

New Brunswick: Flooding late in May set farmers back another two weeks and this means a month delay in many areas. Some early land was badly washed out and the land may be sown again this year, R. D. Gilbert, deputy minister of agriculture, says the season varies but generally planting is the latest of recent years due to cold, damp weather. New Brunswick's biggest cash crop is potatoes, ranging from 97,000,000 to 105,000,000. Acreage may be up about four per cent over last year's 50,000.

Prince Edward Island: Seeding in a week to 10 days behind normal and three to four weeks slower than last year which was unusually early. Farmers are planning to sow 46,400 acres of potatoes, a three - per-cent increase, but Agriculture Minister Andrew MacRae says "I wish it were down 10 per cent." He would like to see farmers take some of the fertilizer they use for potatoes and use it to develop grassland and grow more grain to develop other branches of agriculture, particularly dairy farming.

Nova Scotia: Spring was about two weeks later than usual but there has been no frost damage and good crops are expected. "Nova Scotia is a grass province and the grass is good this year," says W. J. MacLeod, director of services for the agriculture department. A modest start is being made on a tobacco industry with 50 acres being grown commercially for the first time near Canning in the Annapolis Valley. The apple crop is expected to be good, with between 1,800,000 and 2,000,000 bushel.

Newfoundland: Early crops are two to four weeks behind normal because of cold weather and heavy frost. Early cabbages are usually on the market by July 1 but it will be the middle of July before they appear. Market value of Newfoundland agricultural products last year was $10,000,000 and the weather in June will be the determining factor in whether it goes up or down.

PRECIPITATION

COLD MONTH EXPECTED — Below-normal temperatures are predicted for Central Canada in the 30-day outlook of the United States weather office.

The outlook is based on long-range predictions. It is not a specific forecast and a change in weather pattern may produce major errors.

Heavy precipitation is expected in Quebec and the Maritimes. Normal precipitation is given in inches of rain. (CP Newsmap)

McGill University Houses Air, Space Law Institute For Postgrad Legal Studies

By GERRY McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—This Canadian city, virtually the world capital of civil aviation activities, is the natural home for an aviation law centre.

The Institute of Air and Space Law, located in a green corner of McGill University's mountainside campus, was established here in 1952. It was then called the Institute of International Air Law but the name was brought up to date a few months after the Soviet Union put the first satellite into space Oct. 4, 1957.

Counting the 14 members of this year's highly-cosmopolitan class, 117 postgraduate law students or accredited lawyers have come here to attend the institute and earn Master of Laws (air and space law) degrees.

The six students in the 1959-60 class came from India, France, South Viet Nam, Italy, the United States and Canada.

The director is a tall, erect Montrealer who flew a Sopwith Camel in combat in the First World War. One of the Camel's peculiarities was a tendency to swing turned to propeller, something like a tail wagging a dog.

WAS TCA SOLICITOR

Alfred Beatty Rosevear, now 68, survived this phenomenon and went into law practice after the war ended. In 1919, he went to Winnipeg and joined Canadian National Railways.

He came back to Montreal in 1946 as the railway's general solicitor, retiring in 1958 to take on what he calls "institutes."

His ability to direct the institute—the only one of its kind in the world—stemmed from more than 30 years' experience handling legal details for Trans-Canada Air Lines, which is owned by the CNR. Mr. Rosevear started learning aviation law when TCA was formed in 1937.

Students get two hours of lectures weekly on international and domestic aviation law and must do "a tremendous amount of reading."

For reference, they have the broad files of the International Civil Aviation Organization, a United Nations specialized agency with headquarters here, and the international Air Transport Association, trade association of the airlines.

STUDY THEORY

MAG's files contain the air laws of most of it s more than 100 member states, plus international law in detail.

These files are raked for thesis material each year.

Mr. Rosevear says the course is 90 per cent air law and the rest speculation on space law, which has yet to be worked out among the nations. However, some theoretical cases can be studied.

What if Yuri Gagarin, the first spaceman, and his spaceship had crashed into Montreal? The Soviet Union likely would have had to pay damages, Mr. Rosevear thinks.

Dr. G. F. Fitzgerald, head of KAO's legal bureau and an occasional lecturer, says the institute is "the place you excellence" for aspiring legal eagles.

"There is no other city in the world so well-equipped for such an institute," Dr. Fitzgerald says.

Mother Shoots Three Children

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Police said a 25-year-old mother shot and killed her three small children with a 22-calibre pistol in her home Saturday and then called officers.

She was identified by police as Mrs. Josette Conner. The children were Nicholas Sampson, 6, a son by a previous marriage; Ransom, 16-months, and Ouille Jr., six months.

"They're better off," a policeman quoted Mrs. Conner as saying.

Police said that after the shootings, Mrs. Conner took the bloody clothes off the children, redressed them and laid them side by side on a bed before she called police.

ARRIVES FROM MOSCOW

CAIRO, Egypt (Reuter)—Somali Prime Minister Dr. Abdi Rashid Shermarke arrived here from Moscow by air Sunday on a two-day visit to the United Arab Republic for political and economic talks.

HEADS INSTITUTE

Albert Beatty Rosevear, 68, of Montreal, is director of the institute of Air and Space Law at McGill University. A First World War pilot, he was solicitor for the Canadian National Railways before becoming director of the institute, the only one of its kind in the world. (CP Photo).

U.S. Considers Quitting Laos

Rebel Assault On Meo Village Enrages West

Geneva Delegates Ask Capitals for Orders

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is seriously considering leaving the Geneva conference on Laos if, after all, the continued violations of the cease-fire agreement, officials said today.

State department experts were consulting on the latest developments, particularly the rebel seizure of Padong, a tiny mountain village which has been considered a symbol of government resistance.

High officials said the state department considers the fall of Padong an unmistakable sign of Communist bad faith and a deliberate, unconcealed flouting of the cease-fire agreement.

GENEVA (AP)—Angered by the fall of Padong, Western delegations today called their capitals to see if there is any point continuing the 14-country conference on Laos following the major Communist violations of the cease-fire.

Canada is one of the Western countries attending the talks.

Britain's Malcolm Macdonald, who was to be chairman of the 14th session today, called it off. The British delegation issued a statement regretting the fall of Padong and agreed to attend the conference on the clear understanding there would be an effective cease-fire throughout the negotiations."

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Padong fell today under an all-out assault by pro-Communist rebels supported by heavy artillery. The tiny mountain village had been a symbol of government resistance—and of rebel violation of the cease-fire proclaimed five weeks ago.

A United States military adviser radioed from the front that the Pathet Lao rebels had driven down an "extremely heavy" barrage and then attacked with infantry.

The royal government forces had about 1,000—mostly tough Meo tribesmen — began falling back in the early hours of the counterattack. The defense line collapsed.

The attack began Tuesday in the north-south valley running around the government-held village on a 6,000-foot mountain known as Phou Khe, northwest of rebel headquarters at Xieng Khouang.

Reported to Vientiane did not give the number of men the rebels threw into the attack nor any idea of casualties.

The rebels earlier justified their attack on the ground that despite the cease-fire by forming a coalition government, Padong was typical of a number of pro-government pockets scattered throughout the northeast sector of Laos which is nominally controlled by the Pathet Lao.

Enemy shells raining on Padong were identified as from North Vietnamese and Soviet-made 82-mm. cannon.

The strategic setback in the loss of Padong could not be immediately evaluated, but the village is regarded as important prestige point in the tug-of-war.

The Meos are tough mountain tribesmen who are loyal to the royal government. They have provided the Vientiane army with their best fighters.

The nearest military base Padong are some 5,000 Meo refugees who have been precariously subsisting in the valley on the Happy Pig on American airlifts of food.

Doctor Who Said He Was Hostage Cuts His Throat

CIUDAD TRUJILLO (AP)—A doctor who claimed last week he was forced at gunpoint to shelter the assassins of dictator Rafael L. Trujillo died Tuesday night after cutting his own throat, the government reported.

The doctor, Robert Reid Cabral, died in hospital after surgery failed to save his life. Informants said he was on the operating table for hours.

The government said Reid Cabral's wife, Jugular veins cut with a penknife Tuesday, a day after he claimed he had been forced to harbor Brig.-Gen. Juan Tomas Diaz, charged with being the chief assassin and three accomplices. Diaz was 43, and killed and a companion wounded Sunday night by security forces. Reid Cabral said Diaz's daughter drove them into the streets.

Meanwhile the newspaper La Nacion, considered a government spokesman, launched a blast at Vice-President Rafael Ronula Betancourt, arch opponent of the slain Trujillo.

It called the Veseuz Pa president a traitor to the cause of the Americas and "the man who brought chaos to Venezuela."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Cooler air edging southward through Northern Ontario is giving increasing cloudiness and showers. Southern and central Ontario are still enjoying pleasant sunny weather. During the evening and overnight skies will gradually cloud through southern Ontario, showers will reach extreme southwestern Ontario this evening and will be spreading throughout all of southern Ontario Thursday. Cooler air moving down from the north will not make itself felt through southern Ontario until evening. Consequently, while Thursday will be markedly cooler in the north, temperatures in southern Ontario will be little changed from those of today.

Children Find Radioactive Powder Forgotten Since World War Days

TORONTO (CP)—A harmless-looking white powder sent 16 children to the hospital for Sick Children Tuesday — but tests showed they had been exposed to radiation.

The children were released after a thorough scrubbing.

They were to be taken to the department of physics at the University of Toronto today for further tests, including blood examinations, to determine if they were contaminated internally.

The powder, a radium compound used during the Second World War to illuminate aircraft instrument panels, was found by the children in a warehouse Monday night. They broke open a sack box and some of the 1½-inch glass vials to get at the powder. Tests showed the radium was spread over a two-block area.

Dr. John D. Munn of the Hospital for Sick Children said the children ran little danger. He said the radiation was of low penetrating power.

JURY HEARS STORY OF 2-WAY DOUBLE CROSS

Diary of Accused Read in Court

TORONTO (CP)—Exhibit 37, a small, black policeman's notebook used as a diary, led an Ontario Supreme Court jury Tuesday into a tale of a two-day double cross.

The notebook was kept by Const. Robert J. Wright, a member of the provincial police gambling squad who was transferred to outside duties in Belleville.

It contained entries, which showed that Wright was suspicious of a brother officer — a member of the gambling squad who was "setting up" on my own time and with my own money" to expose him.

Wright is charged with bribing the other officer — Const. Conrad Scott—who was working as a police double agent gathering evidence on gambling payoffs.

Facing a conspiracy to bribe charge with Wright are Joseph McDermott and Valcent Feeley.

READS TO JURY

Special prosecutor Gordon Ford, while questioning one of the arresting officers who found the diary in Wright's locker, read it from beginning to end before the all-male jury.

It was the second diary that the jury had heard read at the trial — the first was kept by Const. Scott and told of his undercover activities while he conducted under instructions from his superiors.

Wright's diary stated that he had not been given sufficient reason for his transfer from the gambling squad and that he felt he was under suspicion.

"I am conducting an investigation on my own time and with my own money," it said. "I am going to vindicate myself."

It began:

"Start special investigation of alleged corruption among officers of the and — gambling squad and the office of the commissioner. . . ." The first entry was dated Jan. 30, 1960.

EXPECTED RAID?

Further entries noted that gamblers appeared to be expecting police during a simultaneous raid by Belleville O.P.P.

"I felt Const. Scott and other officers should be investigated.

"I spoke to Staff Sgt. Coulson if there was any suspicion that I was corrupt, police, said there was suspicion all the way down the line."

The last and only three persons knew of the raids—Wright, Anderson and Coulson.

"I knew it wasn't me and I didn't think it was Anderson. So

PM Says Canada to Make Grain-Handling Devices After U.S. Blocks Purchase

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is determined to maintain the pace of grain exports to Red China and may make and fly its own unloading equipment if that country to replace machinery which is under United States export ban, Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the Commons today.

He said the United States is not entitled to apply its ban to American companies within its borders but that Canada is determined nothing will halt shipments of grain to China.

His statements came after a portable suction unloader needed by big tankers in Red China ports was blocked mainly only in the U.S. and denied to Canadian ships "on my own time and with my own money" to expose them.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he has been assured that an Ontario firm can build the unloaders and have them ready within three weeks. If so, they would be flown to Red China to avoid any halt in shipments.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the incident has been blown out of proportion.

The loss of the U.S. equipment affected only tankers—which involves only a few of the many vessels under charter by Red China. The tankers were banned from using the U.S. machinery under a U.S. law which forbids trade with that country.

The U.S. machine costs about $12,000.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Canadian machine will have a daily capacity of 300 tons—only half that of the U.S. model. Talks are being held today with the Canadian Shipping Federation to work out new timetables.

Canadian Ambassador Arnold Heeney in Washington has talked to appropriate U.S. officials about the matter.

The government's trade commissioners were shopping around the United Kingdom and Europe for an alternative supply but it was felt that such an Ontario plant could meet models which would be flown to Red China.

The government is "quite determined" that shipments to Red China will proceed "without delay or interruption," Mr. Diefenbaker said. Shipments had been on schedule so far.

He said he wanted to emphasize that there is "no basis whatsoever" for suggestions that the U.S. ban would endanger the execution of the Red China grain deal terms.

Most of this is going from

Castro Okays Tractor Deal But Insists Upon Meeting

DETROIT (AP) — The hour be set up among the committee group, which includes Detroit banker Joseph Dodge, treasurer of the committee. Presumably a reply then will be sent to Castro.

Castro stipulated that a delegation of the committee go to Cuba to negotiate with him. He suggested Mrs. Roosevelt or Dr. Eisenhower.

Castro said if the delegation would discuss not only details of the tractor purchase but also the exact number of prisoners to be involved in the exchange.

The Eisenhower group would be one of "freedom for freedom." Mrs. Roosevelt is another proposal by him that the captured invaders be exchanged for "political prisoners" in the United States, Puerto Rico, Guatemala, Nicaragua and Spain.

The International Longshoremen's Association and the Kelvin Shipping Corporation of Detroit offered to transport the tractors to Cuba without charge. Kervin offered its ships and said it would also move its boycott against loading shipments for Cuba.

Voice From 'Another Planet' Is Raised Against Eichmann

JERUSALEM (AP)—A noted Jewish writer who rose from the ashes of the Auschwitz concentration camp took the witness stand against Adolf Eichmann today, spoke in rambling terms for about 10 minutes, then got off the stand in a huff.

The witness was introduced by the Israeli prosecution as Yehiel Di-Noor, Polish born. The packed audience gasped when he was identified in court at this time in public—as the writer K. Tzetnik, a pen name he assumed after he was released as a prisoner of the concentration camp. His best known work is "The House of Dolls," a story of the two years he spent in the Auschwitz death mill.

The witness acknowledged his double identity, and in a curious statement said: "I am certain that K. Zetnik "is not a song or plume."

"I do not consider myself a writer," he said. Instead, he maintained, he only chronicled the history "of another planet, Auschwitz."

It was there on that planet for two years. There time was not a concept as on our planet. The inhabitants had no parents, no children. They did not live or die in accordance with the laws of this world. Their name was a number — K. Zetnik so-and-so.

Attorney - General Gideon Hausner showed Di-Noor the blue and white striped Nazi death camp uniform and he identified it.

Di-Noor paled and blinked behind his spectacles. The audience shown him saw his arm. He had brought it and was presumably showing it, the attorney-general thought.

As he sketched the back-breaking toil in the pits at Auschwitz, President Judge Moshe Landau suggested that the testimony now take a question-and-answer form.

Hausner hung up from the witness chair, and in a weird voice began to call for Hess. Eichmann in his glass cage leaned forward and stared.

The man's mother, sitting in the second row, leaped to her feet and screamed. Spectators once rumbled. Guards pulled Di-Noor to a chair, and forced water into his mouth.

Still ringing in the ears of court and audience were Di-Noor's last words on the stand

MAY NEED COURT TO DECIDE ISSUE ON 'GOOFBALLS'

House Turned Into Courtroom on Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons could have been mistaken for a courtroom Tuesday night.

At issue was the application of one of the most basic of all common-law rights—the right of every man to be presumed innocent until proven guilty by law.

A battery of Liberal lawyers argued that the government would violate that principle in its proposed bill to stamp out trafficking in barbiturates and amphetamines — the drugs that make "goofballs."

Justice Minister Fulton, backed by the Conservative majority, said he is convinced that this was not the case.

The argument ended in temporary stalemate as it agreed that the courts will have to settle the question.

PUT TO COURTS

Thus, the Commons put itself into the hands of the courts—on the assumption the Senate will not intervene. The bill is scheduled for third and final reading today.

The contentious section of the "goofball" bill says plainly that the Crown must first prove that the accused possessed the drugs —although possession in itself is not the crime. The offence is possession for the purpose of trafficking.

Then the accused "shall be given an opportunity" of establishing that he possessed the drugs lawfully, or that he did not possess them for the purpose of trafficking.

Sochia provision means that the accused has to prove his innocence, said the Liberal lawyers. Speaker after speaker from Ralph Campney (Nelson — Essex East), Leon Crestohl (Montreal Cartier) and others. They said the bill would be a breach of the 1960 Bill of Rights, with which it cannot square.

It is a well-understood principle of criminal justice, said Mr. Crestohl, that in cases of possession — possession of explosives or firearms, for example — "certain inferences can be drawn from certain facts . . . which would establish a prima facie case of possession, but the accused can rebut the presumption hinted there would be further diplomatic exchanges. Foreign Minister Howard Green in the Berlin and German issues would be the subject of "numerous communications."

"Our most sombre talks" with Soviet Premier Khrushchev at Vienna, Kennedy said in his report to the nation, left him convinced Kennedy said he made clear the U.S. is determined to maintain its rights there by force if necessary.

The talks were not cause for "undue optimism" nor for undue pessimism or fear.

Sombre Kennedy Presents Report On Vienna Meet

'War by Miscalculation' Danger Seen Lessened

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy, in a sombre report on Vienna summitry, says Soviet Premier Khrushchev dealt a "serious blow" to Western hopes for an effective treaty to ban atomic explosions and reduce the world's arms race.

While Khrushchev wouldn't budge an inch from his demands for a veto over inspection to control against possible cheating, Kennedy said the West would continue its patient struggle for a treaty in the belief that the stakes were too important to abandon negotiations at this stage.

On the brighter side, Kennedy found his two-day talks with the Soviet leader in Vienna brightened hopes of obtaining progress in seeking a peaceful solution to the Laotian problem through the 14-country Geneva conference. The parley has been described by Western diplomats as the chances of a world war by miscalculation would be reduced now that each leader knows better where the other stands.

Kennedy reported this to the country Tuesday night in a 22-minute report to Congress in which he talked "candidly and publicly" about "a very sombre two days" with Khrushchev of June 3-4.

MEETING USEFUL

In London, the president found his first personal meeting with the Soviet leader "immensely useful"—even though a result was to expose more clearly the prospect and a long term struggle between East and West.

The gap between us was not in such a short period matematically reduced, but at least the channels of communication were opened more fully," Kennedy said.

"At least the chances of a world war by miscalculation on either side should now be less and at least the men on whose judgment the peace of the world depends have agreed to remain in contact."

Kennedy and Khrushchev didn't plan any future summits, but agreed to establish a procedure which the world's top leaders would meet from time to time and the Berlin and German issues would be the subject of "numerous communications."

"Our most sombre talks" with Soviet Premier on Berlin, where Khrushchev wants to end the Western right there Kennedy said he made clear the U.S. is determined to maintain its rights there by force if necessary.

The talks were not cause for "undue optimism" nor for undue pessimism or fear.

They simply demonstrated "how much work we in the free world have to do and how long

Psychiatric Clinics Urged In All Schools

MONTREAL (CP)—A special services department should be established in all schools to work closely with children needing psychiatric help, Dr. G. Dunsworth, associate professor of psychiatry at Dalhousie University, said Tuesday.

He told the third World Congress of Psychiatry that such a program in the Halifax area has in the last 12 years helped retard 3,000 children mentally or mentally disturbed children.

The area covered by the Halifax Mental Health Clinic for Children—the city and county of Halifax and Dartmouth — included more than 30,000 school-age children.

Dr. Dunsworth said the pupils seen by the clinic showed three types of mental disorder. One-third were neurotic and needed long-term therapy, one-third suffered anti-social personality disorders and one-third were a mixture of conditions including habit disorders, mental retardation, organic defects of the brain and various learning problems.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

CITY COUNCIL WILL HAVE ROLL CALL AT EACH MEETING

Maybe they got the idea from the fact that the 1961 Canada census is being taken this year, but members of Belleville city council are themselves being counted.

Under new rules of procedure for council meetings, the first item on the agenda for the city fathers is to have a roll call.

So after the meeting is called to order the city clerk calls out the councillors' names.

But just to keep the record straight council members will still be required to sign the attendance sheet at each meeting.

Motion Could Change Address Of Many Tenants

The prospect of getting new addresses without the formality of moving from their present location will be faced by roughly one dozen tenants and businesses on upper Front St., if a motion to be presented at the next meeting of city council carries.

At Monday's meeting Aldermen George Wishart and Jack Ellis introduced a notice of motion asking for the Front Street area between the Upper Bridge and Pinnacle St. to become part of Station Street.

It seems that a few city council members and possibly many Belleville residents as well, have been under the mistaken impression that Front Street did actually end at the Upper Bridge.

But such is not the case as roughly a dozen tenants in the area in question well know. They have been getting their mail at Front Street addresses for years.

But even though council at their next meeting approve of the change, tenants in the area will still have their opportunity to object and the change have to be duly advertised before it comes up for judge's approval by all.

Civil Servants Hold Meeting, Elect Officers

The annual meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Civil Service Association of Ontario was held at Tweed on Tuesday, with representatives present from the following departments: Lands and Forests, Highways, Attorney-General's, Education, and Hastings County Jail.

Departmental Representatives

Attorney-General's, Mr. H. G. Bolster, Picton; education, Mr. Lee Morrison and Miss Mary Richardson; highways, Mr. C. F. Patterson, Belleville; ferry and dock, Mr. Don Sinclair, Tweed; lands and Forests, Mr. Russell Whitfield, Tweed; health, Mr. Ray McLennan, Belleville; welfare, Mr. H. M. Sutton, Consecon; county jail, Mr. Ron Rompson and Mr. J. Keary, Belleville auditors, Mr. William Wills and Mr. N. C. Kirkwood, Miss Florence Fitzgerald, Mrs. Dorothy Finn and Mr. Don Sinclair.

The next district meeting of the association will be held in Lindsay on Wednesday, Sept. 20th, 1961, and the annual meeting will be held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, from November 8th to November 10th, 1961, inclusive.

Tweed will be host for and a social time enjoyed by all.

Plan to Pave Four Blocks In South of Business Area

Local citizens should see the start, or rather the continuation, of paving on Front Street by July 1 if the city works committee gives its approval to the plans which the public works department is just completing for this project. The plans call for the paving of Front Street south from the "Four Corners" to Dundas St., Dundas St. between Pinnacle and East Bridge St. between Front and Palmerston Sts.

All sewer program is also planned for College St. between North Front St. and Sidney St. and it is hoped that construction will get underway on this project by the beginning of July, after the completion of the water main construction which is being carried out.

At Herchimer Ave., between East Dundas and East Bridge St. sewer drainage improvements are currently being effected. Following this work will be the widening of the road.

The sidewalk approaches to the Sidney St. bridge have just been completed and City Engineer Turnbull advises that pedestrians should not use the bridge.

Another project on which work has been carried on for some time is the Bell and should be completed shortly is the grade improvement on Moira Street East at the CNR crossing. This work was approved by the Board of Transport Commissioners. City council has reportedly accepted a contract to have this section.

PLAN DRAINAGE WORK

Planning has been carried out and the public works committee is to be presented with a report concerning the improvement of the drainage conditions on Bridge View Ave. at both Rumsewood Drive and Goldale Road in the near future.

Work will be commencing in the immediate future on the paving contracts for Season Gardiss, Bradgate Road and Rosemount Crescent which approved these this past Monday. This installation of concrete curbs on Malcolm Turnbull advises that pedestrians should not use the bridge.

west-coast ports.

The Chinese arrangements—two of them earlier this year—involve delivery for 217,000,000 bushels of wheat and 58,000,000 bushels of barley over the next 2½ years. The total price is $665,000,000.

Opposition Leader Pearson was critical of some newspaper reports on the situation. He said one report, which he did not identify, stated flatly that Canada planned to make strong representations to the United Nations.

"It is unfortunate that this kind of difficulty could and have been avoided without this kind of publicity," Mr. Pearson said.

He asked that Mr. Diefenbaker said the possibilities of Canadian production of pumps be kept studied. Mr. Pearson said another alternative could be to have the Crown-owned Canadian Commercial Corporation buy the pumps directly from the U.S. firm, and in that way the American law would not be involved.

"We have enough real problems in the world today to avoid the manufacture of issues of this kind," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he didn't feel that the matter had been "overblown up beyond proper proportions."

It was a reflection of Canadian s attitude that the deal said there have been published reports that the Communist countries of American milling companies have refused to accept shipments of flour from the U.S.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he was glad to hear Mr. Argue report that because the CCF leader earlier had criticized the wheat deal as speculative. Mr. Argue said his criticism was that because of the huge bushels of wheat and 17,000,000 bushels of barley sold this year, there was a danger there would be a carry-over.

Since the start of the year Canada has signed agreements with China to ship 217,000,000 bushels of wheat and 58,000,000 bushels of barley, and Australia pledged land. The agreements are for the years 1961-62 and 1963 with payments totalling $425,600,000.

The initial phase of the agreement calls for shipment of 28,- 000,000 bushels of wheat, 11,000,- 000 bushels of barley and 32,500 tons of flour between June 1 and December 31, 1961.

Some of this initial amount has already been sent but the bulk of it still is in Canada.

The Batavia firm seems to be the sole source of the unloading equipment—a key to fast delivery of bulk grain cargoes at Chinese ports. Hand - handling by Chinese laborers would bog down the whole delivery operation in so far as tankers are concerned.

A spokesman for the company-Dunbar - Kaptie Corporation—said there may be some difficulty in getting similar delivery from other countries although it is possible a substitute can be found.

Each of the 187,000 unloading units from the U.S. manufacturer were already on the docks in Montreal when the U.S. government moved to prevent their delivery. They were then sent to the U.S.

Mr. Margaret Schwartz, acting director of the U.S. foreign assets control office, said in Washington that the Canadian manufacturer had been told to stop the sale because the equipment was to be loaded on ships directly or indirectly under Communist Chinese charter.

"The law has to be obeyed," she said, referring to an American statute by which penalties trading with Communist China.

This law has upset Canada in the past when it stopped possible sales to Communist China by Canadian subsidiaries of American firms.

John J. Wardlow, who testified the numbers of the bonds had been given to him by a bank manager. The judge ruled his hearsay and not him identifiable.

In removing the case from the jury the judge said he did so because "with diffidence, as I am suspicious of the situation here."

Operation and Functioning Of Fair Outlined to Kiwanis

Local Kiwanians were given an inside picture of the operation and functioning of the Belleville Fair by Board treasurer Bob Phillips at their regular luncheon dinner meeting yesterday afternoon. The Moira Secondary School agriculture and horticulture exhibit that the fair was well over 100 years old, the first recorded account of the fair being held in 1846 with reference in the article being made to "previous fairs."

The fair grounds used to be located on the present Ameliasburg fair grounds as far back as 1905 before moving across the road to the current site. Now a 200 acre Agricultural College graduate said.

Mr. Phillips told of the Belleville Fair Board, formed of members of the Belleville Agricultural Society, the 18 board directors, some 17 of them, are elected at the annual meeting of the Society, held each January. It is at this time, also, that a report on the previous year's fair is made and suggestions for the future fair's improvement are put to municipal

The elected directors then appoint associate directors from the community at large. The speaker pointed out, there are many citizens who donate freely of their time and services to ensuring the success of each fair. "Some," he said "have been active for over 40 years."

It is through the combined and co-ordinated efforts of these many people that the annual exhibition in this area is created and carried out. An explanation of the many factors involved in the financing and maintenance of a first-rate fair to supplement the annual base grant people was also given by Mr. Phillips.

At the conclusion of last year the local fair had assets of close to $80,000 with land, buildings, equipment and liquid assets, he said. An annual turnover of approximately $60,000 is experienced in the running of the fair. This includes such items as gate receipts, grant from provincial government and municipal grants and midway receipts. A detailed explanation of the system of federal and provincial grants was given by the speaker in the construction of new buildings and the provision of new services was given by the speaker.

MAKE FAIR ATTRACTIVE

The fair grounds have over the past two, through the years, become an exhibition of local industry, industry's main gateway, and a grandstand show as well. Mr. Phillips said. He explained how this changing aspect of a fair's character was the reason for the fair council to make the fair attractive to all segments of the community.

The grandstand show is usually the main attraction for the general public, he said, also the most expensive item of a fair and also, usually the least remunerative as far as profits go. No one way was concerned said the past president, he explained that perhaps local service clubs or other organizations could take over the show as a quality stage show using local talent if they were to put their minds to it.

This year, he emphasized, the fair's theme is "Progress" meeting with a five-day fair including a Saturday and in order to see this would find better favor with the community, the fair is now a "one-week-end-of-the-week fair. If it is found that the people attended this kind of show then the fair in previous the new schedule will undoubtedly be adhered to in the future.

The speaker was introduced by Dick Lumbers and thanked by Clarence Fuzzen. During the preceding part of the meeting members present were surrounded with a carnival type atmosphere with the presentation of several distinguished awards. Kiwanian Ken Tinder received the award for largest peanut butter spreader measuring some four feet in length and about eight inches in width for heading the leading team during the recent club peanut campaign.

Kiwanian Ron Kent was presented with a rare species of "peanut tree" for his part in organizing the campaign which netted some $732 for the club's good work in the community.

A new member, Frank Fellwell, former Member of Parliament for Hastings South, a past city alderman in Belleville and a three-term Mayor of that city, was introduced to the club by sponsor Doug Stork. Past Lieutenant-governor Bill Slade formally inducted the member into the club.

President Bob Brain presided over the meeting.

Bowling Alley Manager Freed

KINGSTON (CP) — Benjamin Low, bowling alley manager, was acquitted Tuesday of possessing three stolen $1,000 bonds of Canada savings bonds of $5,000 apiece.

Judge W.S. Lane of Picton withdrew the case from a jury because he said there was no concrete evidence that bonds in the possession of Low, which had been seized from Lowe, were those stolen from an Orangeville law office Oct. 3, 1960.

The office was that of solicitor

Some Reluctant to Give Information About Money Matters to Census Takers

With five days of the 1961 census taking completed, Belleville enumerators are finding out that some people just don't like to talk about certain matters.

"We are getting 99 per cent co-operation from Belleville householders, but there are a few" who don't seem willing to give all the answers — particularly about money matters," boted Mrs. Merry Yorke, census commissioner for West Belleville.

"It is the questions about income which some seem a bit reluctant to answer," she said.

But on the whole the enumerators now making their rounds of Belleville homes to make the actual count of population are receiving very good co-operation and answer all questions readily.

The questions about income, especially the more detailed ones being asked at every 20th household, seem to be the sticker.

And this is despite assurances that such information is strictly confidential and is not available to other government departments. Such as the Department of National Revenue.

UNAWARE OF CENSUS

One thing which surprises the enumerators is the fact that many Belleville householders seem to be unaware that a census is being taken.

Many times enumerators have been told by householders "that we didn't know a thing about it."

And this despite the advance publicity by way of the press, radio and television, and also postal delivery of pamphlets listing the questions to be asked by the census enumerator when he or she calls.

Many householders say they didn't get the pamphlets while others have not yet called, or threw it out thinking it was some promotional matter.

Also many householders, particularly in the case of new Canadians, do not realize that they are required by law to answer the census questions admitted.

Some have even gone so far as to refuse to let the census taker ask the questions.

However the census commissioner says that she is pleased and encouraged by the way the census is being taken.

In Belleville there are approximately 50 enumerators making the rounds of the households ferreting out the answers to the census questions.

TAKERS EARNING MONEY

On the average they spend close to an hour at each household and at every fifth house they are required to complete and take back for issue. Then, as requested, a close to an hour and a half.

The general consensus is that enumerators are earning their money as it is a long, tedious game which they receive. Particularly when they have to do considerable coaxing to get the information required.

In view of the number of persons apparently unaware that a census is being taken, Belleville census commissioners fear they may be of some assistance to households where the enumerator have not yet called.

If there are any questions not understood either, Mrs. Yorke, census commissioner for West Belleville, or George Olsen, census chief for East Belleville would be happy to help out. Their telephone numbers is WOodland 2-3849, while Mr. Olsen's is WOodland 5-3131.

PRICE WAR ENDING

BRANTFORD (CP)—Gasoline stations started changing normal prices Tuesday and indications were that by today a 24-day price war will be ended. Prices Tuesday morning were as low as 27.9 cents a gallon at some stations but are compared to the normal 29.9. Later in the day the stations gradually began returning to normal. The price war started because stations at the junction of Highways 2 and 3, six miles west, were selling at lower prices.

Talks Fail, Cement Workers Ask Conciliation

On June 2nd, negotiations between the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International Union, C.L.C. and Canada Cement Company Limited, broke down after a week of serious negotiations at the Sheraton Mount Royal Hotel, Quebec.

The union is bargaining for some 1,500 members in nine plants and two distribution plants. These plants are located at: Exshaw, Alberta; Clover Bar, Alberta; Fort Whyte, Man.; Port Colborne and Woodstock, Ont.; Belleville, Ont.; Toronto (two), Hull, Que., Montreal, Havelock, N.B. and Quebec City. All of these plants were represented by their local union representatives at these negotiations.

Fourth General Vice-President Knapik said, that the Canada Cement Company has enjoyed labor peace for seventeen years. "We have never had a strike in all of these years, but apparently the Company is not willing to settle peacefully so we are applying for conciliation services in all of the provinces in which the plants are located", he said.

SWING YOUR PARTNER — The RCAF Station "Pairs and Squares" were hosts Saturday night to more than 270 square dancers from nearby communities at their first summer square dance jamboree held in the South Station recreation centre.

Square dance tribute from Perth-Smiths Falls, Kingston, Campbellford, Belleville and Trenton were represented.

Wing Cmdr. Fred Craig, chief administrative officer of RCAF Station Trenton, welcomed the visitors.

Guest caller for the jamboree was Harold Horton of Toronto on TV program "Country Style".

Highlight of the evening's enjoyment was an exhibition of modern square dancing by the Trenton Hoedowners, a group of grades 4 and 5 pupils from St. Mary's school under the direction of Ernie and Lucille Dempster.

Later everyone sat down to a meal of southern fried chicken. The recreation centre was decorated in a western style.

Council Briefs

TRENTON — At last night's meeting of town council, a request that the town provide fire protection for the Miller Brothers paper plant at Glen Miller at the same price charged residents of Murray township, was granted. In event of a fire at the plant, fire departments from Frankford and Batawa would be called in if the circumstances warranted, the Trenton department would then be called. "It's nice to have such good neighbors," commented the plant official who made the request.

• • •

Council also gave a tentative go ahead to the planning committee of King Street United Church for a proposed change in design of the front section of the church. The building committee at the church has embarked on an extensive reconversion program.

• • •

The Trenton branch of the Royal Canadian Legion was granted tentative permission to hold a carnival of the Legion grounds June 14 - 17.

• • •

Council accepted in principle the proposed service by the National Film Board to supply non-theatrical films to the Memorial Library at a cost of $115 a year. The library board will be consulted on the matter.

• • •

Applications from two area residents to be allowed to tear down and salvage material from two town-owned properties were accepted, provided the applicants observe safety rules and clean up the properties after the demolition work had been carried out.

Plane Forced Down in States Goes to Trenton

CLAREMONT, N.H. (AP)—"I was flying over Montreal at 25,000 feet when all my navigation and radio equipment broke down. I started to come down and the next thing I knew I was over Claremont."

That's how Flying Officer Barry Smith described the event that led to his spectacular emergency landing here in the Canadian F-86 Sabrejet fighter.

The Claremont airport runway is 2,650 feet long—less than half the space usually required for an F-86.

Smith slammed on his brakes as soon as his plane touched down Tuesday and friction set fire to its tire half way down the runway.

The plane rolled to a stop with only 50 feet to spare. Airport workers quickly put out the flames.

A reporter congratulated the Canadian pilot for his "excellent landing on such a short runway."

"I hope they feel that way back at home base," Smith replied.

Officials said the plane was en route from Chatham N.B., to Trenton, Ont.

Escapee Got In Wrong Car

DESERONTO — Hitch-hiking is a poor method of transportation for an escaped convict as was proven on Sunday, Robert McKelloy, 20, who was serving a term for armed robbery found this out when he accepted a ride to near Deseronto. Unfortunately for him the owner of the car he picked him up was Roy Cole of Deseronto, who was returning to the Deseronto Reformatory, where his now stationed. Cole who was wearing sunglasses failed to recognize McKelloy but knew that McKelloy would still be Collins Bay as he still had three years to serve. Roy engaged McKelloy in conversation until they reached Peterborough and then, in the convict car of the car, He proceeded to the Provincial Police and returned with two constables and picked the unsuspecting escapee up again to return him to custody, where he will finish his term.

made no defence? Would he be convicted?

Always, Mr. Fulton said. It was basis in criminal law that once the Crown makes a prima facie case, the accused must rebut or stand convicted.

Mr. Fulton said he and his colleagues are certain the legislation as it stands will be constitutional in the courts and the act will become inoperative.

Mr. Pickle was prepared to admit the bill will be contested. But he added, referring to Mr. Martin:

"He has not convinced me that he is right. If the court agrees with my honorable friend, I shall be the first to admit he was right."

In other business Tuesday, the Commons gave swift passage is a government bill providing for appointment of additional judges, including two Ontario county court judges.

Waterfront Development Authority is Planned

TRENTON — This town may soon have a Waterfront Development Authority if plans formulated here last night by members of area municipal bodies materialize.

Town council will be asked to appoint members to the authority it was suggested that the authority be comprised of one community-minded citizen with records of achievement who would operate, devise and be capable of handling various government grants which are given for projects involving community betterment. The authority must be incorporated and it is believed it will be recognized by the Ontario Municipal Board and be capable to receive grants.

Chairman of last night's meeting was Dr. W.A.L. McDonald, chairman of the Trenton and Area Waterfront Board. Dr. McDonald pointed out the need for an authority to develop waterfront development in the town may be carried out.

According to long range plans contained in Trenton's recently acquired waterfront development on both sides of the river embraces a $600,000 project which includes the construction of indoor and outdoor swimming pools, tennis courts, baseball diamonds, parks, a yacht basin, marinas and other recreational facilities.

E. M. Parker Jr., chairman of the Board of Parks Management said he thought it would be expedient for all lands, designated as parks areas by the official plan to be placed under the jurisdiction of the parks board. He said the board would not pretend to be responsible financially for the whole area, but that transferring it to the board would ensure that the established authority would not be thwarted in its plans by having future councils put the land to some other use.

INDOOR POOL

Mr. Parker, representing the recreation committee, said his committee was interested primarily in a heated swimming pool. He said that this would benefit Trenton citizens of all ages. Also of interest to the committee are the proposed tennis courts and ball diamond.

Paul Tripp, representing the Board of Education and the Kiwanis Club said that the proposed swimming pool was of interest to the board of Education as swimming instruction might be included in the school curriculum in this way. As a Kiwanian, Mr. Tripp said that he had been authorized by Norman Davis, club president, to offer assistance towards waterfront development. He said the lawn clerk, O. W. Larry, had suggested that the club might install curbs and plant trees in the sanitary fill area "to get the ball rolling."

Members of the planning board, the parks board and the recreation committee agreed that the first step would be to make enquiries about the establishment of an authority to handle waterfrop development. It was thought that the authority should be comprised of at least 15 members, with a small executive responsible for decisions and other members acting in advisory capacities.

O. W. Larry, who was unable to attend the meeting, had outlined a series of suggestions for proceeding with the development with emphasis on the sanitary fill area. Mr. Larry said that the development of it into a park area would provide excellent opportunity for east-side residents to assist in improving their side of the river. He suggested that the goal of 1967, Canada's centennial, could be set up for the completion of the project. Mr. Larry outlined various grants available for such developments and said that service club contribution, individuals' gifts, small weekly amounts donated by all town citizens over 15 years of age, could finance the project.

Three Youths Given 14-Day Jail Terms

TRENTON — "Is magistrate's court here yesterday, Robert Coulter, Gordon Gorreau and Gasion Champagne, who last week pleaded guilty to obtaining a ride on a CPR train without purchasing tickets, were sent back to Hastings County Jail to serve three additional days, which, added to the 11 days they already spent in the jail, rounds out a two-week postponement in their cross-country trip from Montreal to Vancouver.

The interrogation of the youths, complicated by the failure of an interpreter to appear, Crown Attorney John Pringle called upon Couture, who said he could speak English "a little," to translate the charge and the sentence into French for the other two.

C. H. Fitzgibbon, charged with failing to obtain a licence to operate, asked the court to define the border line between a dog and a pup, but ended by paying a fine.

Murray Ferguson of Trenton, charged with the same offence, said that he did not own a dog. He said that his wife had bought a pup in a tag sale that she had longed to her. The case was dismissed.

Mixed Bridge Club Ends 1960-61 Season

TRENTON — The last evening of the 1960-61 mixed bridge club of Station Trenton was held in the main auditorium of the officers mess. It was an evening of "supervisies". Nineteen tables were in play, and some extraordinary scores developed.

Jessie and Keith Roulston set a new scoring record with a total of 6,370 points in 19 hands, and drove home happy with the high prize, in addition to a dessert set.

Other evening winners were Kay and Bill Hoy, average scorer; Elsie and Addy Anderson low scorer; Mary Morson floater after 45 changes of winners; and Alex McRae for nightly draw prize. The prize of the year was captured by Claire and Bruce Tetimar. This was a mixed handicap and was awarded for taking the most tricks throughout the year with a deuce.

In addition to the butler, the Tetimars also contributed to win the top-point-score-bang with a total of 1,470 points. This was one of a year's requirement of seven no-trump, doubled, redoubled and vunerable.

Once-a-year prizes were awarded to Jim Ritchie, Carl Longmuir, Jack and Sissy Keith, Phyllis and Larry Beck, Betty and Bud Irving, Audrey and Roy Longworth Ann Dyman, Merv and Ken Ridout, Gwen and Ed Green, Elva and Fred Ward, Maxine and Bob Tirrie, Barbara and Bill Turner, Rae and Bus Farmer.

A meal of Chinese food provided for the last night of bridge was fit for kings and queens. The convener of the bridge club, Audrey Daly was accorded a hearty vote of thanks and presented with a chrome lawn chair by Bruce Tettmar on behalf of all the bridge players.

Pays Tribute To Canada's Dairy Herds

TRENTON — Tribute to the cow was paid by Jack Hartwick, president and general manager of Quinte Milk Products at Wellington, when he addressed the Rotary Club on Monday night.

"The cow is one of the greatest blessings to mankind," said Mr. Hartwick.

There are 3,000,000 cows in Canada, one cow for every six human. The cow produces three times its own weight in milk each year; 1,000 pounds of milk for one pound of butter.

The fact that milk and milk products produce more than $1 billion in revenue each year for the dairy industry a significant addition to the agricultural economy, he said. He advanced the theory that dairying and agriculture built the country and added that countries like Canada, the U.S., Russia and Canada, noteworthy as democratic nations, are also famous for their dairy herds.

Mr. Hartwick said there was no substitute for milk and urged his audience to use more milk products for health and economy reasons.

Mr. Hartwick was introduced by C. V. Graham and thanked by Robert Baker.

R. J. Whitley, who recently returned from a Rotary International convention in Tokyo, spoke briefly concerning the Japanese Rotary Club he had visited.

Cross-Canada Survey

While Young Still Prefer Life in Suburbs, Oldsters Now Are Heading for City

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HOUSING TRENDS CHANGING — The trend to the suburbs is still continuing in most Canadian communities, but in many of the larger centres families are moving back into the city. High-rise apartments (right), which line both sides of Jamieson Avenue in Toronto's west end provide luxury accommodation within 15 minutes' drive from Bay Street, heart of the city's financial district. Suburban living is the way of community is the sub-division at Georgetown (left) from which commuters drive more than 30 miles over traffic-clogged roads to reach downtown Toronto. (CP Photo).

The trend to the suburbs, which probably began when man first was nagged into giving up his cave for an airy skin tent, has come full circle.

Lots of people still are moving toward the light and air at the end of the bus line, but a Cross-Canada survey indicates a reverse trend is shaping up.

In some centres such as the crowded "golden horseshoe" of southern Ontario—it's hard to tell who's moving where. There, it's possible to get so far into the Toronto suburbs that you end up in Hamilton, 45 miles west.

But the trend to the suburbs remains strong—it's evident in most parts of the country.

But The Canadian Press found, especially in the larger centres, that the movement is taking a young family to Outer-Suburbia is frequently refused with an elderly, retired couple seeking the conveniences of city dwelling.

The suburban trend is evident in the Atlantic provinces, where it is described as "definite" in Sydney and "reluctant" in Halifax. Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick are also experiencing it. Newfoundland is an exception.

TWO—WAY TRAFFIC

There is similar evidence in the Prairies. Greater suburban land costs exert a pull in Edmonton and Winnipeg. Regina, too small to reflect a definite trend, is described as "just one large suburb."

In Ontario, the outward movement is felt in Ottawa, Windsor and Hamilton. The two-way traffic is becoming more pronounced in Toronto, bearing out the experience of major United States cities.

No clear picture has emerged in London since the city annexed large areas Jan. 1. Between then and now, only 40 acres in the city were available for housing. Two recent figures indicate a building boom in the newly-annexed areas.

In suburban two permits for single-family dwellings issued in October in the first three months last year, 172 permits covering $2,023,800 were issued in the same period this year—of 258 year.

Stout resistance to the siren call of suburbia is being shown by the individualists who inhabit such areas as Montreal, Quebec City, Vancouver and Victoria.

In Quebec, people are inclined to move to the suburbs as a healthy place to raise children, returning to the centres of their culture and religion when the children are grown and away from home.

Jean-Claude Lahay, Quebec City's town-planning consultant, says however that many who move to the suburbs really can't afford it and have to cut down on food to meet the many extra costs. As a result, their children are no better off.

S. F. Reynolds, Vancouver's planning director, says there is not much property available near the downtown area and many persons find they have no choice but to live in the suburbs.

Phillip Holmes, a Victoria real estate agent, says suburban living booms have levelled off there. Persons who want to live in the suburbs left vacancies in the city and these vacancies began filling during the recession.

The big reasons behind the trend to and from the cities? Economic, as one expects.

In Charlottetown a building lot in a middle-class urban area sells for about $1,000. A lot in the suburbs would bring $1,000.

G. R. Day, loans office manager for Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in Fredericton and Saint John, cites scarcity of city lots, usually lower taxation and the fact that people hunting good homes can't find them in the city.

One of the largest real estate dealers in St. John's, Nfld., Stan Condon, says no great trend has developed either way because of the high cost of land and lack of serviced land both in the city and on its fringes.

ESCAPE HIGH TAXES

George Schurman, Halifax home-builder, says congestion on the peninsula on which the city is built has brought the "reluctant" trend to the suburbs, where homes are also cheaper. Contractor Douglas Chapell of Sydney, says people move out to escape high taxes, and the dirt of the steel plant.

Economics also rule in the West. CMHC officials say every two-bedroom house in the suburbs of Winnipeg may go for $13,500 to $14,000, compared with $14,000 to $15,000 for similar accommodation within the city.

The percentages tell the tale in Edmonton.

In the 1950-55 period, the urban population jumped 41 per cent while the total of the four main suburban areas increased by 62 per cent. In the following five years the urban increase was 39 per cent while the suburbs jumped ahead by 116 per cent.

An official of the Ottawa Real Estate Board pointed out that the economic factor is not limited to the relative cheapness of suburban housing. A buyer can get an NHA mortgage covering most of the purchase price of a new house, while the maximum mortgage CMHC will cover on an older home is 60 per cent of its value.

and hard a struggle must be made for it, and in this present generation as chief defenders of the cause of liberty."

To say who might suspect secret deals, Kennedy said:

"No advantage or concession was either gained or given; no major decision was either made or taken. . . No new aims were stated in private that have not been stated in public on either side."

Kennedy didn't talk in terms of war but of winning the global struggle through support of so-called wars of national liberation and by outpacing the West in industry and trade.

"He was certain," said Kennedy, "that the (where) the less developed countries) were moving his way; that the revolution of rising peoples would eventually be a Communist revolution; and that the so-called wars of liberation supported by the Kremlin would replace the cold methods of direct aggression and invasion."

Denying this inevitability of Communist victory, Kennedy appealed for national support of $40,000,000 programs of foreign aid for the coming year, much of which is earmarked for newly developing lands. "We have no more crucial obligation now."

AGREE ON LAOS

Both Kennedy and Khrushchev recognized the need of reducing tensions in Laos to endorse adoption of a neutral and independent Laos. Kennedy felt it was urgent that this be translated into new Russian attitudes on Geneva to make sure an effective cease-fire is ordered and maintained in the Laotian kingdom.

But there was no such hope for the protracted Geneva talks on a nuclear test ban treaty. Khrushchev made it clear to Kennedy said, "there could not be a neutral administrator in the control posts—they would be truly neutral."

Khrushchev demanded a Soviet veto on enforcements of controls, maintaining that inspection of Russian territory to see whether any explosion had taken place would be only a subterfuge for espionage in the absence of total disarmament. Khrushchev felt the current test ban negotiations appeared futile.

The president spoke partly without text as he recounted the high points of his seven-day, mid-week's trip to Europe from which he returned Tuesday morning.

He was most enthusiastic over his stops at Paris and London. There, he said, he accomplished his goal—"to strengthen the unity of the West."

During his May 31-June 3 visit with French President Charles de Gaulle, Kennedy said, "certain doubts and suspicions were removed on both sides. . ."

LAUDS DE GAULLE

"Can de Gaulle could not have been more cordial, and I could not have more confidence in any man, in addition to his individual strength of character."

The June 5 stopover in Britain on the way home, where Kennedy saw Prime Minister Macmillan and the Royal Family, "was a strong reminder at the end of a long journey that the West remains united in its determination to hold to standards."

Congressmen of both parties joined in praise of Kennedy's report. They generally agreed that little had been accomplished beyond putting Kennedy and Khrushchev on a first-hand basis for the future, but they figured this at least was a step forward.

VOICE FROM

as he described how he continued to survive and others were murdered: "I always kept left behind."

When the trial resumed some minutes later, it moved into other phases of the Auschwitz story, without Dr. Nyiszli. He decided he was unable to testify.

JEERS AT DEATH'S

The next witness, a five-foot-three Israeli carpenter, told the court Lagleben was before the alleged killing of 6,000,000 Jews that as a boy of 14 he endured the terror of Auschwitz and saw "the angel of death arrive on a bicycle."

The "angel of death" was Dr. Kurt Mengele, the SS doctor who chose those for work and those for death. He is still being sought and is believed to have hidden his trail somewhere in South America.

Joseph Kleinman, looking just like his name which means "little man," testified how his own slight stature subjected him to a long ordeal on one occasion when Mengele was conducting one of his infamous "selections."

The witness said: "The angel of death came on his bicycle, dropped it, grabbed a hammer and then inspected 2,000 teen-age Hungarian girls. He asked me, a freckle-faced kid of 14, how old he was. The lad replied was 18 years old.

"Mengele was furious. He said 'little man,' and he ordered hammer, nails and a plank."

Mengele ordered the plank placed parallel on the four-foot ball field at such a height that only six inches could touch it with their heads.

All had to pass under it, the witness said. Those who were too short were to be sent to the gas chambers.

Kleinman started to worry. He knew he couldn't make it. "My brother, I'll do something." I stuffed rocks in my shoes but then I couldn't stand on my toes. I took a hat and tore it in hal fand stuck that in. I was desperate. I'll do anything but I knew I wasn't. We all stretched ourselves trying to win a few inches.

It was a slow process.

Kleinman said he knew finally he had to resort to trickery so he "infiltrated" a group already passed the height test. Mengele suspected something was up and had those left beneath the plank once more.

Again I infiltrated the big boys," the witness said. This time I made it.

The 2,000 were thus divided about evenly.

WHAT happened to the thousand short ones?" Hausner asked.

"They were locked up for several days and then gassed."

Yehuda Bakon, an Israeli artist who also was 14 when he came to Auschwitz in 1943, said that on Jan. 18, 1945, he was one of only 600 Jews left alive to attend the day's march to Mauthausen as the Germans evacuated the camp. Death was overwhelming Soviet armies.

Mauthausen was a hell-camp with filth, filth and disease-ridden. Taken to another camp near Linz, Bakon was back in the raid which hit the SS camp and also the area where the Jews were confined. When the bombing stopped, he said he saw "a blazing inferno" in which those who were killed in the raid.

Representatives from many Central and Eastern Ontario Masonic lodges were among the 350 guests present at the 150th anniversary celebration of Prince Edward Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 18, Picton. The Picton lodge, instituted in 1811, has been in continuous existence for 150 years, meeting upon the same ground for the past 133 years.

JURY HEARS

I decided to check on Scott." Wright wrote in his notebook this is for life" His suspicions that someone on the squad was talking to bettor was shared by the commissioner's office and that was the reason behind his transfer to Belleville that he was under suspicion himself.

The jury also heard evidence that provincial police investigated the files of the Bell Telephone Company and found long distance toll sheets showing calls made from the vicinity of Wright's home in Belleville and from near the Belleville provincial police office to Const. Scott, McDermott, Feeley and others. Const. John Wesley Moore testified that, when he arrested Feeley at 8 a.m. one day "he had in his pocket a total of $6,086." Of this, $5,000 was in $100 bills held together by elastic bands.

This development has already been described by some technologists as challenging the present processes used in the United States-Canada sulphite pulp industry, the foundation said.

MAY CHANGE NAME

LONDON (Reuters)—A court ruled Tuesday that a bride-to-be was not bound by a will stipulating she would inherit £200,000 ($560,000) only if she retained her maiden name after marriage. Anne Millicent Delmege-Radcliffe, 19, will take her husband's name on her wedding Saturday to Christopher Ropper, 23, son of a member of Parliament.

New Process May Affect Pulp Industry

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Research Foundation announced today that one of its research associates will unveil Thursday a new process that could profoundly affect much of the North American pulp industry.

W. R. Effer will present the process in a paper co-authored with Dr. H. B. Marshall, director of the foundation's department of chemistry, at a meeting of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association at Saranac Lake, N.Y.

The process is a method for recovery of ammonia and sodium from sulphite pulping wastes.

Council of Women Scraps Over Capital Punishment

WINDSOR (CP)—A resolution abolishing capital punishment which has come before the National Council of Women at the three previous annual sessions Tuesday threw delegates into a state of confusion.

After almost two hours of complicated parliamentary procedure the 100 delegates decided to bring up an emergency resolution at another meeting.

Delegates amended a resolution carried by the executive council that, by including it, the council advocate the abolition of the death penalty except for:

1. The person who kills while committing murder; 2. The killer who, while serving a murder sentence, commits another.

Mrs. Rex Eaton of Vancouver criticized members for not taking a stand on capital punishment and said it was a sign of weakness.

SUGGESTS STUDY

Mrs. W. P. Augustine of Windsor suggested the resolutions committee study the problem before next year's meeting in Halifax. However, members said it should be studied now and presented as an emergency resolution.

Delegates defeated a resolution asking the federal government to implement "its recentary changes in law and create the necessary diagnostic clinics and to establish a system of parole."

Please, Honey, Pick Me Up A Conservative Necktie

Ecuador Film To Be Shown At WMS Meet

By DEIRDRE MUNGOVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — This is the time of the year when the ladies descend on the men's clothiers and grab up just about every necktie and shirt in sight.

Father's Day is coming, and Sunday, June 18, and the man of the house is probably expecting the usual sort of gifts.

But for anyone who'd like to try something different, and providing you've got the money — plenty of money — here are some results of a tour of luxury shops in search of gifts for the man who has everything.

First, stop in at an exclusive Swedish store. Husband like to drink? How about a copper wine jug for $1,500 fashioned by Van Koppel, the Swedish designer? Too much? Then maybe a small wine decanter in sterling for $440. There's also a tiny silver wine goblet-at $165.

If we're still well out of range of your pocketbook there's an assortment in stainless steel that includes a $290 silver ice bucket designed by Bernadotte, son of the king of Sweden.

Getting away from the drinking equipment, there are some suggestions for furnishing your husband's office, assuming he's not the office that lends itself to this sort of thing. For example, there is a "egg chair" fashioned by Hans Wegner featured in New York's Museum of Modern Art. The price is $1,000 in fabric; $500 in leather.

If Dad still has his own teeth, perhaps he'd be interested in a 14-carat gold toothpick at $25. It comes in a case with a push-button control that flips the toothpick out on a mechanical notice. The case can be monogrammed, too, at no extra cost.

For the man whose eyesight isn't so good but who is too vain to admit it to body specialists, you can pick up a gold magnifying glass at $200. The feature of this particular glass is that it is focused so there's no distortion no matter how far or near it is to the object in sight.

GOLD CIGAR HOLDER

There are belt buckles in gold with matching tip (for the other end of the belt) at $100, gold cigaret lighters at $240, a tiepin at $140, a money clip at $125, gold cigar holder at $50.

A pure gold ballpoint pen comes at $25 but you'll need an extra few cents for this gift because it hasn't been a cartridge.

There are some unusual gifts for the sportsman, too, such as an electronic fish finder at $140. And for the golfer there is a leather case with watch and clock at $40 with compartments for tees, golf balls, lighter, cigarets, keys, money, pencil and scorecards.

At one time you could get mink - trimmed golf tees and mink - painted golf balls but they didn't sell too well and seem to have passed from the scene.

Really, if you're still determined to buy your man a shirt, you can pick up one for wear with a tuxedo. It has grey lace down the front and goes for $30.

But benefit for the churches themselves is not the goal. Steadfastness to Christ and conviction that He is the "Light of the World", must be the prime objective of the Women's Unity.

At the conclusion of the Study Hour the ladies enjoyed a social half hour, with refreshments being served by the hostess convenors, Mesdames H. Empson, W. Brenton, R. Pound and C. Bird. Mrs. Empson presided at the piano during the meeting.

The Gospel In Art' Topic At St. Columba

The June meeting of the Ivy Group of St. Columba Presbyterian Women was held at the church recently.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. P. Van Nostrand, Mrs. H. Hutchison presided.

Mrs. L. Williamson read the Scripture from St. John.

Mrs. Hutchison extended a welcome to the guests present.

During the business period, an offer to cater at the International Fiesaging Match this fall, was rejected. It was decided to send a representative from the group to a training school to be held at Albert College in July. A new year end tea was discussed. Mrs. G. Miller and Mrs. L. Williamson were asked to investigate the possibilities of the group corresponding with one of the Presbyterian Missionaries.

Mrs. J. Fullerton gave a report of the 75th W.M.S. anniversary held recently in Kingston, Mrs. R. Ashley reported for the committee appointed to form an Association and it was decided that a constitution be drawn up.

An invitation was received and accepted from the Iona group to be joined a pot-luck supper in June.

The devotional period opened with prayer by Mrs. G. Miller.

The guest speaker Mrs. P. Ransom of this city who gave a most interesting lecture on "the Gospel in Painting", down through the past 19 Centuries. Agreeing with such scholars as Augustine, Chrysostome, that a speaker suggested that while painting communicate messages, other forms of art, such as wax works fail to do so. Many forms of Liturgical paintings covering various style periods were displayed and explained.

Mrs. A. Woods expressed the thanks of the group to Mrs. Ransom after which Mrs. G. Fisher was hostess for the social hour.

Lunch Was Served Regardless . . .

By Mary Moore

Planning and organizing to reduce or eliminate confusion is one thing. Accomplishing this put resolve is another.

This is past history now for what I am about to tell took place at noon on Tom and Mary's wedding day. In the space of two hours Mary and I returned from attending the ceremony, hurry to the church pews. The baby-sitter turned up with my three tiny grandchildren in tow asking Marianne for their lunch (which they ate in the nursery with Danny (best man) arrived with a Cadillac borrowed from his father and stunned all other easy as his weight be at the helm of the vehicle. Jon, Jerry, Dave, Joan and Jim arrived from Detroit. Eleanor brought silver cutlery cups and saucers for the reception. Marbo couldn't find Gary's (page boy) cuff links and showed all over the neighborhood until Helen's fingers need not be found an appropriate pair. Pete polished his shoes — for the third time.

Meanwhile I prepared lunch for anyone who was not too excited to eat it. To my consternation, I actually rejected and they even noticed what it was and liked it. The main dish was Macaroni Newell and want you to pay attention to this dish as it is dandy buffet dish and cost very little I tripled the recipe but am sure you can economize on it.

SCALLOP NEWBURG (serves 6):

1 pound fresh frozen scallops, 3 tablespoons fresh margarine, melted, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1-2 cup heavy cream, 2 egg yolks, beaten, 2 tablespoons sherry (optional), toast cups or toast points, or split biscuits, paprika.

Thaw frozen scallops. Rinse thoroughly in cold water, drain, and pat dry. Cut large scallops in half. Cook in butter or margarine 3 to 4 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add lemon juice. Blend in flour, salt and pepper. Add cream and cook and stir over low direct heat or over hot water until slightly thickened. Stir a little of the hot sauce into the egg yolks; pour mixture back into remaining sauce, stirring constantly. Heat gently and stir a minute or two longer, heated with sherry.

Has Gumption: Will Travel

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I want to fly to England to visit my only granddaughter, who is alone there and has an apartment. I could cook for her and we would do some sight-seeing together. We have always enjoyed each other's company.

My son thinks that is very foolish, as my health is not good. I have arthritis in my knees and this makes it hard to get around, but the doctor says it is up to me.

Do you think I am too ambitious in wanting to travel at my age? I am 81.—DONGA.

DEAR DONGA:—Better you should stay home and nurse your arthritis—and miles all like fun. Not on your life.

Tell your son you are still young at heart and that your granddaughter needs you. That'll stop him. Save your legs all you can by taking taxis or even renting a wheelchair when you need to; by sitting on a stool to prepare meals. But don't miss any chances to see the world and enjoy the company of a young person to whom you are obviously devoted.

When you get tired you can lie down.

DEAR DORIS:—My sister-in-law's idea of making her little son do things is to bribe him. If he puts his toys away he gets a cookie. If he goes to bed without grumbling, it's another cookie. And so on.

I think this is wrong. My little girl knows she has to do these things because I say so. If she doesn't, she gets a slap or spanking. I get good behavior. Isn't that what counts?—SLAP-HAPPY.

DEAR SLAP-HAPPY — You are happy with results, but is your little girl's?

Praise and encouragement are better than a cross face and a slap. There are times for sternness but a little thought can often bring about more cheerful methods.

"Bribes" sound illegal—"Rewards" is a better word. The only issue I would take with your sister-in-law is the type of reward she is using. Cookies are sweets and are probably interfering with the development of good eating habits in her son. Charts with gold stars and little animals to paste down on the record often turn the trick.

DEAR DORIS:—My son is being married in July and I would like to have a luncheon of old friends of mine and their daughters for the bride-to-be, who knows none of them. Naturally I would include the guest-of-honor's mother.

I would like to invite a niece of ours. Her mother lives many miles away so shouldn't mind not being invited—or should she be included? Oh yes—do I wear a hat?

This luncheon would be in a lovely restaurant overlooking a park. How would you suggest the guests be seated? Also, being in a public place, how do we go about receiving the guests? How can I make everyone at ease? Or should I just perform the introductions and hope for the best?

After the luncheon should we linger at the table or should I provide some entertainment to follow? Do I make the first move to break it up?—M. J.

DEAR M. J.:—Invite the niece's mother and let her decide whether to make the trip herself. For a luncheon you wear a hat.

As hostess you preside at the head of the table. The bride-to-be sits on your right. Put your closest friend (perhaps this is your niece) at the other end of the table with bride's mother on her right. To insure good conversation seat the others with a view to interspersing those whose personality and "gift of the gab" can keep things bright around them. Guests will probably arrive at different times. If there is an anteroom where you can seat them while others are coming, the bride and her mother may be introduced to each in turn, as they arrive. At a luncheon this is better than any formal receiving line.

Don't try too hard to get your party going. Relax and let your guests become acquainted, and talk will naturally flow. Entertainment to follow luncheon is not necessary. Background music in the form of a pianist to play during the luncheon is pleasant and can lend the air of a special occasion—but is highly optional.

As hostess you make the first move to break it up, but make it easy for people to stand around and chat if they wish.

The easy tunic-type dress does well for summer, in town or out.

Morgashel linen, in white or shades of light beige or beige, is used for a nice version of this comfortable fashion.

The tunic is straight, with a half belt buttoned on. What little shaping there is, comes via seaming.

While it is shown here with a matching skirt, the tunic is nice, too, when worn over a black skirt.

Many Attend At Home for 82nd Birthday

TRENTON — On Friday, June 3, Mrs. Emma Nelson, was "at home" to a large number of friends and relatives at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. Rowe, 207 King Street, Trenton, the occasion was her 82nd birthday. Mrs. Nelson, the former Emma Down is a lifetime resident of the Trenton area, having been born in Murray township.

The centre tea table was decorated with a bouquet of red roses, sent from Winnipeg by Mrs. Nelson's granddaughter, Mrs. Joseph Shields (Marlene Rowe).

Throughout the afternoon tea was poured, by Mrs. E. Seborne, from a gold-embossed tea service presented to Mrs. Nelson by her late husband on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary a number of years ago. Mrs. Fred Mitchell also poured tea from the 25th anniversary set presented to Mrs. Rowe.

Mrs. Nelson has one other daughter, Mrs. W. (Clairbel) Hill, of Gardenville.

She received many gifts and congratulatory cards from her many well-wishers.

418 Wing Holds Ladies' Social Night

June 1st was Ladies' Night at the 418 Wing monthly meeting at the 6-RD social centre, where a small crowd of 30 braved the heavy rain for a most enjoyable evening. The opening ceremony and a short business session was held, with, dancing and a buffet lunch following.

In early July a Wing family picnic will be held at Cove Beach (in Cherry Valley).

President Len McGaughey of 413 Wing, Trenton, invited all Wing members to a dance next week at 6-RD social centre.

June 13th the wing is invited to the Prince Edward Flying Club for an evening of flying with a social hour following. The medical equipment is being put to good use as seven wheel chairs and two pairs of crutches are out at present.

NEIGHBOR'S AID

2nd THURLOW — The May meeting of the Neighbor Aid was held at the Hall on Wednesday afternoon with about 30 in attendance.

Mrs. Russell Baldrick was the hostess for the meeting. The president, Mrs. Gerald Stratton, presided with Mrs. Manley Mitchell at the piano.

The president welcomed everyone and thanked the hostess. The secretary read the minutes and correspondence. Thank you notes were read from Mrs. Archie Greatrix and Little Miss Marion Greatrix who had been ill. A donation of $5 was voted to the Salvation Army. The flowers for Mrs. A. Mitchell gave the report of collections from the anchre, expenses and other items.

Thirty cups and saucers were purchased for the Aid.

It was voted to rent the Hall to the 20th Jr. Club Pack, Boy Scouts Mother's Auxiliary in June for a euchre in aid of the Scouts. Hostess for June will be Mrs. Manley Mitchell, with Mrs. Harold C. Chamberlay and W. Lazaruik to arrange the program.

Mrs. M. Mitchell, Mrs. Robert Atkins were in charge of the following program: community singing; a reading, 'My Get up and Go Has Got Up and Went', Mrs. M. Mitchell; reading, 'A Recipe for Beauty' Mrs. R. Atkins.

An auction sale, displays of fancy ribbons were next interesting showing what can be accomplished in one's spare time. The sale brought $17.70.

The president thanked, Vera and Doreen for their efforts in arranging and a profitable afternoon for the Aid. June basket social dates are as follows: Mesdames, M. Dent, E. Vivian, B. Portt, and J. McCormack.

The meeting closed and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

St, Columba Jr, Choir Holds Carnival

Last Saturday afternoon, with ideal weather, children's energy and enthusiasm were released at a penny carnival.

In order to do their part in raising funds for the sanctuary the children's choir of St. Columba Presbyterian Church sponsored a lively carnival on the church grounds at Bridge St and Farley Avenue. Everyone who participated in any games received some token or prize.

Races for all ages, under the supervision of Mr. Robert Lloyd and Mr. George Fisher, were continuous throughout the afternoon.

The popular food booth of hot dogs, popcorn and 7-up drinks was shandled by Louise Fisher, Leigh Bowles, Mrs. G. Rendell and Mrs. W. Royle.

In a weefernoon manner, Johnny Hayman held a well-attended auction booth.

The Penny Drop and Guessing Game were ably conducted by, Ellen Moreau and Brian Sutter, respectively, while in charge of the Ring Toss were, Sherrill and Mary Lou Taylor, and game of quiet rubber horseshoes was supervised by Dianne Bartlett.

Off in the field, where space was needed, was the ball game. Keeping score were Galle Rawlyck and Susan Rendell.

Prizes were assembled by Mrs. George Fisher while Mrs. John Hayman acted as treasurer.

A steady lineup for the Plan pond kept Jane Weaver and her helpers busy. To complete the midway scene, a "Horror Show" was presented by Gayle and Marilyn Hayman and Suzanne Alexander. The eerie atmosphere of a dark room, dimly lighted by a candle, greeted the brave children who ventured into the "Horror Show."

Also assisting the choir children were: Mrs. George Ward, Mrs. P. Rawlyck, Mrs. William Bowles, Mrs. R. Alexander, Mrs. E. McLaughlin and Mrs. R. R. Brain.

Club Activities

WOOLER MISSION BAND

WOOLER — The June meeting of the Wooler Mission Band was held on Sunday, June 4, with a large attendance.

Mrs. N. Crosby and Mrs. J. Putnam were in charge with Mrs. P. Smith assisting. Mrs. Putnam opened the meeting with a poem and the Purpose was repeated in unison.

Offerin, was taken by Dennis Dorland and was dedicated by Kim Haggarty.

Mrs. Crosby took charge of the pre-school children and Mission Band members enjoyed a story from the study book "Here and There With the Bible."

The children spent the remainder of the meeting working on the world map.

Miss Smith distributed 'World Friends' and the meeting closed with Benediction.

PROVIDE STABILIZER

MONTREAL (CP) — Young families need the 'influence of the elderly' says Dorothy Fleming, Montreal social worker. "Older people," she says, "take things more in their stride, have the wisdom and the time and patience to give what younger, busier people can't."

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

There are those who are fanatically fond of picnics and outdoor eating, there are those who are lukewarm and there are those who won't come out of doors. This last group, while enjoying the summer, world of nature, still wants to put food under table for food. However, all the new gadgets and accessories that have been dreamed up for outdoor barbeque or garden living may have some effect on Groupe One and Two.

The fire itself has become a civilized thing and not a "monster to be dealt with for some have all the facilities of a modern kitchen stove; the fuel now is wrapped cleanly, is easy to get going, there are warming storage areas under the grill and handy side work areas. Both the moving and permanent grills have their followers.

NEW BUG KILLERS

Those who worried and complained about flies and bugs may now set in motion torch lights repel and kill bugs as well as give light. If you are not wired for electricity outside or would like to sustain the charm of candles in your backyard, these torches are on five foot high wooden sticks and burn from four to six hours. There are also Turtlites, candles in brightly colored tin tropical metal containers with removable wire legs for anchoring into the ground. Then for the table there are slow burning candles in fancy teardrop shaped glass containers which keep the breeze away. If you like electricity, there are bulbs which are insect repellant.

What seems to us to be really paradoxical is the new electric barbecue lighter—an electrical gadget to light your charcoal! There may be comfort though in the electrically operated night-flying insect trap which catches all the bugs that would like to join you.

It seems that the gentlemen who operate the outdoor barbecues have more utensils especially for his work than the box of the inside kitchen. However, we are sure she does not mind this since all she has to do toward a family meal or entertaining is to stop, prepare and store the food ready for the cooking.

Now for the cool food, mostly in the sweet line, there are double-wall insulated pottery bowls in the shape of half a cantaloupe or half a small watermelon, ice cream or frozen desserts will not drip or melt in these serving dishes.

There are still the hardy souls — we must admit they are mostly men — who like to eat with very little equipment and cook over the original small grade fire built with what materials they can find. This fire, we are told, is intended for fish, but we are also told that most of these men like eating — just in case the fish have all swum away.

ASH GIVES "FLAVOR"

One young man who has a store on Front Street told us that he and his nine-year-old assistant, after the mail boat's day weekend, slept outdoors and did their own cooking. The lad, watching the cooking, seemed worried about the bits of ash, and other foreign material which was getting on the food. His father told him that it was all seasoning and would make the eating all the better. And as he ate the steak and potatoes that had been baked in the coals, he grinned at his father and said, "The ash sure makes it better, Dad."

And so, each to his own liking.

May we give some further information about the young lady from Trenton and the horse? It arrived, even ahead of time, is a beautiful chestnut gelding and is being given loving care. But if we may jump from the sugar cube cadging that is going on, Trenton is going to have one diabetic horse.

WMS Views Bermuda Slides

On Tuesday afternoon the W.M.S. of Holloway Street United Church held its June meeting with the president, Mrs. Bertrand in the chair.

In her opening remarks Mrs. Bertrand asked each one to look into her life and see if she had accomplished anything worthwhile.

After roll call, Mrs. Bertrand offered prayer. The treasurer's report showed the net proceeds of the blossom tea to be $117.18. At this time Mrs. Coulter thanked those who helped in any way to make this a success.

Mrs. Wilson and her group were in charge of the meeting and Mrs. Townsend was in charge of the devotional.

Anon, "Closer Each Day With A Prayer," was given by Mrs. Boyd, accompanied by Mrs. Hobbs at the piano.

Mrs. Coulter introduced the guest speaker, Miss Unger, who is interested in missions, and while travelling in Bermuda, Trinidad and other countries, was able to secure some good slides, which she showed.

Miss Unger told of the feeling of heartbreak among the school children when the time came to choose those who were to go on to school as the number was limited. She also stressed the need for full-time workers in the mission field.

Miss Wilson thanked the speaker and expressed the feeling of gratitude both for the talk and the pictures.

At the close of the meeting a social time and a cup of tea were enjoyed by all.

Women's Activities

W. A.

WELLINGTON — The United Church W.A. held their May meeting in the centennial parlor, on May 23rd.

Mrs. R. H. Smithrim, of Trenton was the guest speaker.

The meeting opened with quiet music played on the piano, by Mrs. Percy Elliott.

Mrs. Harry Pierson, the president, welcomed all and especially the guest speaker.

There were 32 members present. A short business session followed. The correspondence, secretary read letters and cards from Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Fleming, Mrs. Tripp, Mrs. Lewis McPaul and Mrs. Harry Pettingill. It was moved that money be donated toward the W.A. bursary fund, of the United Church. An executive meeting was planned for May 25th.

Group 1 was in charge of the program. Mrs. Harold Nash assisted by Mrs. W. H. Teskey gave a fine devotional. The study topic was "Christ and His Life on Earth as a Witness for Us". A beautiful solo was rendered by Mrs. McCullough accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Elliott.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Potter introduced the guest speaker and told of the busy life she lived in the community and church. Mrs. Smithrim in opening her remarks offered a short prayer. Her topic was "Let's Be a Witness for Christ," asking the question, "Do We Act Like Christians When We are Out in Public?" She gave many helpful hints how to prepare worship services and closed her message with a prayer.

Mrs. Clifford Cleave graciously thanked the speaker for her most instructive message.

Group 3 served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

HONEY-BUG HAIR

Awards Given At Brownie M-D Banquet

The First Belleville Brownie Pack marked the end of this season's activities with a Mother and Daughter banquet, Friday evening, held at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Anglican Church.

At the head table, Brown Owl, W. Eakin, had as guests: District Commissioner, Mrs. T. Hay; her present Tawny Owl, Mrs. W. Irvin and her two former Tawny Owls, Mrs. D. Hannah and Mrs. W. Wringle. Only three members of the Pack were missing from their places at the lilac and tulip decorated tables. Cleverly made miniature Brownies were used for place cards.

After the playing of "The Queen," by Nancy Devine, the girls introduced their mothers.

A short period of speeches and entertainment followed the meal; Susan Riley led with a piano solo; Mrs. Eakin spoke stressing the importance of courtesy and added that the Pack could return to Sir Winston Churchill school in the fall. Nancy Green recited her mothers with Mrs. Dorothy Riley, replying. Double baton twirling was presented by Elaine Sickle and Vicki Rump; Darlene Greatrix contributed a piano solo.

TRIBUTE PAID

A tribute to Mrs. Branscombe ,now 81 years old, who started Belleville's First Brownie Pack in 1921, was made by Mrs. Hay. A novelty tune, "Chinaman" was sung by Jane Riley.

Representing the Mothers' Auxiliary, Mrs. Dorothy Green and Mrs. Hume thanked both, the ladies for their co-operation and the leaders for their services, and called on their own daughters to present gifts to the Brown Owl and the Tawny Owl.

In conclusion, the Brownies shook hands with the leaders and Mrs. Hay, after receiving the badges they had earned.

The Golden Hand was presented to: Nancy Devine, Beverly Dymock, Heather Mann, Gail Naylor, Nancy Green, Diana Gerrow, Melanie Levitt and Vicki Rump. Vergina and Brenda Wilkinson along with Debbie Fournia had not quite completed the project to qualify for these.

RECEIVE GOLDEN BARS

Those receiving the Golden Bar were: Debbie Bertram, Patsy Chambers, Terry Chambers, Annis Culhoden, Cathy Desmond, Laurie Hart, Lauren Irvin, Candy Mooney, Dorothy Maddocks, Jane Riley, Jane Swaffer, Susan Williams, Heather Wood, Nancy Welsh and Judy Levine.

Leaving the Pack to go into Guides are: Heather Hume, Judy Potter, Diane Parnell, Elaine Sickle, Cindy Davis, Carol Green, Susan Riley, Holly Dodge, Darlene Greatrix, Heather Mann and Vergina Wilkinson.

The uniform exchange for the coming season remains with Mrs. D. Fournia, who can be contacted at WO 8-9219.

GREAT CATHEDRAL

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Irma N. — He wants to make my wedding a model of economy!

Mr. O. N. — I'll show her that a wedding can be be low cost and still very nice.

Irma N. — Ever since my father ran into an old friend of his, he's been ball-bent to try out some of that fellow's ideas. It seems this man married off his last daughter about 10 years ago and it only cost him 50 cents a head, or one dollar a couple!

Up to the time of the encounter, Dad was coming along fine with the plans for my wedding next October. We were about to pay a deposit on a lounge in a high class hotel. It's just right for a sit-down dinner for 50 couples and it has a dance floor, too.

But now he wants to turn it into a beer party!

Mr. O. N. — If I could only get a word in edgewise when Irma and her mother get started on this subject, I might be able to show them the advantages to my idea. The way I'd run the wedding celebration, Irma could invite 100 couples instead of 50, and still have about $200 left over to use in other ways.

I doubt that I can get things for what my friend Bill paid. But even so, what's wrong with doing what he did — renting a hall over the firehouse and setting up a giant automatic record-player there? He found a wholesale catering shop to put up a buffet, including plenty of beer, soft drinks and spiked punch. Despite paper plate and cups, a grand time was had by all.

* * *

The Council — It was bound to come, the uprising threatened to make the wedding "different." Irma's will certainly be that, if Mr. N. has his way.

But even his friend's conniving seems extravagance when compared to the Russian wedding which, in its recently romanticized form, cost a total of $1.66: including the vodka.

Our advice is for Papa to put it up to Irma There's this money available, period. Do you want to blow the bank roll on swans carved from ice, and squabs wearing fancy paper panties? Or would you rather have a simple fun party, built around a towering wedding cake with beverages, and then sock away the bank roll that's left over?

From what we've heard, Irma, your guests can work up the same "glow" on beer, as on hard liquor. The spirit can be just as convivial. What you must decide is whether the wedding they'll dance at will be a fancy banquet one, or a plain informal but affectionate one?

After thinking it over, Irma, and her fiance may decide to postpone The Maroon Room for, say, their silver anniversary. There's an occasion to celebrate, because it represents promises kept, rather than promises freshly made. It seems logical, when money is scarce, to put it on a sure thing.

Whatever the decision, we're certain Irma will have a colorful, memorable wedding. And regardless of its splendor, or lack of it, the important consideration is that the marriage lasts. That's really first. Then, should it does, we repeat, that's the time for all-out, bang-up no-holds-barred celebration.

MODERN PARADISE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Burma is a modern Shangri-La, where people are happy and well-fed, says Tracy Thein, assistant to Burma's, Prime Minister U Nu, on her way to Ottawa to study public relations She says women have equality with men in Burma and that marriages are no longer "arranged."

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

DON'T BE A NEIGHBORHOOD PEST

The irate lady who wrote me the following letter, has some excellent questions regarding correct behavior and thoughtfulness for your next-door neighbor. I'll break it down to the questions themselves, as she gave them. The indented answers are mine.

Why is it that people are so thoughtless when it comes to cooking an outdoor grille?

Due to the fact that windows are open during this time of year, it is very unkind neighbor who does not place his grille in such a position that the smoke will not blow into the house of the person next door. Nothing is more unpleasant than to spend an evening being smoked out of your own home! Those responsible for this would undoubtedly be the first ones to squawk if you returned in kind!

When you make every effort to keep the grounds around the house in nice condition — by keeping the grass cut, the flowers weeded, etc — it is very upsetting to have the next-door neighbor neglect the appearance of his plot. What to do to make him clean up?

The only recourse here is to be perfectly frank. Ask the careless neighbor to please join in with the rest of you in making his place presentable. Litterbugs are always with us, and some folks just don't seem to recognize how unsightly tall grass, broken toys and open garbage pails can be. Be courteous, but firm, in your request. If you are tactful, maybe you can shame the guilty one into doing something.

How can you ask those who are guilty of any of the following bad habits to desist? The one who runs his electric lawn mower at seven o'clock on a Sunday morning; those who allow their active, noisy children to run loose in the yard at the same hour; those who turn their TV sets, radios and hi-fis to top volume at all hours of the day or night; the departing guests who leave at one o'clock in the morning with shrieked goodbyes and loud talk and honking of horns.

As I said in answer to the last question, be frank and discuss any of the above actions with the wrongdoer. Just be sure that you, yourself, are never guilty of acting likewise! When people live side by side, thoughtfulness is a must between neighbors, or life will become miserable for all concerned. Manners, based in consideration for others, is very important here.

Pearson's Manner Sharply Changed; Liberal Leader Now Classed as Politician

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Lester B. Pearson will hit the hustings in two weeks for the next general election with a campaign style tremendously improved from his freshman performance as national Liberal leader in 1958.

This is the unanimous opinion of parliamentary reporters who have watched the 64 - year - old opposition leader in action during the frazzled seven-day tour of the four constituencies with by-elections May 29.

Three years ago Mike Pearson was a diplomat who didn't know beans about politics," said one veteran correspondent. "Now, all of a sudden, he's a politician."

Mr. Pearson's campaign in 1958 was mostly stiff and formal, much of his main pitch based on international themes. Fresh from the other - world atmosphere of the diplomatic set, the former external affairs minister had difficulty adjusting to the handshaking and back-slapping of a domestic grass-roots tour.

MIXES WITH CROWDS

Today his manner is sharply changed. His speechmaking is vigorous, pounding hard on regional issues. At political functions he mixes with the crowd in a friendly, more relaxed manner, arranging by-standers to chat about local affairs by going over to them with a big smile and outstretched hand.

The four-riding tour touched Leeds in Eastern Ontario, Kings on Prince Edward Island, Restigouche-Madawaska in northern New Brunswick and Esquimalt-Saanich on Vancouver Island. The Liberals won only in Leeds, the Progressive Conservatives retaining the other three seats.

Mr. Pearson went into battle the election campaign of March, 1958, after less than two months in the party leadership, set himself a rugged schedule for the by-election tour. It had all the earmarks of a practice run for the big one.

He went into Leeds on a Friday. Kings the next afternoon and spent Sunday in travel and rest before campaigning Monday in Restigouche-Madawaska. He was back in Ottawa Tuesday afternoon to clean up a backlog of paper work and boarded a jet airliner early Wednesday bound for B.C.

EASILY RECOGNIZED

Eight press gallery reporters accompanied him into Leeds and the Maritimes along with Pearson, with all the hustings in two sides, a special assistant Richard O'Hagan and economic adviser Maurice Lamontagne.

Mr. Pearson made seven stops in his swing through the back-country farming area of Leeds, chatting on village street corners and strolling into general stores. Rain all but washed out position leader in action during the outdoors rallies planned along the way but small crowds of 50 to 100 people turned out to greet him.

His boyish grin and jaunty bow-tie were instantly recognized on the streets. But where three years ago Mr. Pearson seemed too embarrassed to make the initial approach, this time he was open and almost gregarious at times. He broke the ice quickly before shyness drove off his admirers.

TALKED TO FISHERMEN

In Souris, a small fishing village near the northeast tip of P.E.I., the former career diplomat headed into the midst of a group of ruddy-faced lobster fishermen and spoke sympathetically about their problems with late spring lobster catches.

He moved on to a group of housewives and deftly worked up a chat about their difficulties with rising prices and an uncertain income.

The Liberal Leader talked to school children at a dozen different places, always stressing the need for higher education. He signed autographs obligingly and answered questions about the other parts of the world he has visited.

At Edmundston, N.B., the last Maritimes stop, he showed the first signs of fatigue. But a jam-packed crowd that turned out for a rally there seemed to lift his spirits and inspired his best platform performance of the tour.

GRASS ROOTS CAMPAIGNER — Reporters who travelled with Lester B. Pearson on his tour of constituencies where by-elections were held in May were impressed with his development as a political campaigner. Rather stiff and formal in the 1958 general election campaign, the Liberal leader now finds it easier to mix with crowds and talk to people about their problems. Here Mr. Pearson tells an old man in Souris, P.E.I., about his difficulties during a visit to Toronto. - (CP Photo).

Dr. Carl Gustav Jung Dies, Was One of Three Founders Of Modern-Day Psychiatry

ZURICH (AP)—Dr. Carl Gustav Jung, 85, one of three founders of modern psychiatry, died Tuesday.

The psychologist died of a heart attack at his villa in the Zurich suburb of Kusnacht, where in recent years he had lived quietly. His health had failed steadily for several weeks.

He had long outlived the other two members of psychiatry's dominant triumvirate—Sigmund Freud and Alfred Adler. Adler died in 1936, Freud in 1939.

Despite his advanced age, Jung until the last few weeks had continued to read daily and corresponded with disciples and friends in many countries. A prolific paper on dreams.

Jung, whose father was a Swiss evangelical minister, was often called a mystic. Critics challenged as unscientific the importance he attributed to religion's influence upon the human mind.

MYTH COLLECTIVISM

He held that the soul is an entity beyond time and space and repeatedly warned against the rising collectivism which he claimed is the true cause of the growing neurosis of modern man.

An early student of Freud, he broke with the Austrian master's school of psychiatry because not enough attention to nearly all mental troubles resulted from sexual conflicts in infancy. Jung contended analysis of man's immediate conflicts would usually be more outstanding neuroses than uncovering the conflicts of childhood.

Freud held that God was only man's recreation of his own father; Jung insisted that there had a conscious urge toward religion coming from the collective experience of his race stored up in his subconscious.

Developing his own school of thinking, Jung introduced the curves of "introversion" and "extrovert" as a description of mental attitudes. His studies of schizophrenia—split personality—drew many converts. He defined the subconscious as "unconscious" as the nucleus of the individual's soul.

The Jungian concept of harmful collectivism goes far beyond the communist accepted idea of state totalitarianism. He held that mankind is in one mass which drives him towards development of his personality and speaks to him in his dreams in the language of archetype symbols which can be defined only by reason and logic.

When a powerful, middle-aged, flying objects attracted wide attention a few years ago he said: "Everything I am sure of so many have claimed to have claimed to have seen recent years are just an archetype, nothing else."

Voodoo Priests Grasp Theory Of Psychiatry

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. J. A. Senanayake of Ceylon said Tuesday that although he believes in white doctors or the evil-eye, but they seem to work in some cases of mental illnesses.

He told a session of the third World Congress of Psychiatry that it is a fact some psychoneuroses are cured by tribal rituals.

He showed they had been exposed in the belief that the illnesses were caused by evil spirits, the treatments invented by the witch-doctors naturally consisted of invocations, offerings and rituals of driving out evil spirits to that had to be pacified to bring relief to the patient.

He described four types of treatment—a special dance to drive the devil out of the victim, protecting the patient from further harm by using a special charm, a symbolic ceremony to keep the evil-eye away, and the use of the patient's faith to create some occult effects in the mind.

Dr. Ari Kiev of Baltimore told the same session that voodoo priests have a fairly solid knowledge of the theory of psychiatry.

In addition to a prolonged training period, in which they learn to observe the subtle behavior, they made effective use of hypnosis and suggestion to enhance the results of their treatments.

They are well aware of the value of their patients having complete faith in the success of the treatment, Dr. Kiev said.

Waterloo South Member Dies Of Heart Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons adjourned its after noon sitting Tuesday in mourning for the death of a member — one who had driven through the night to get back to his duties as an MP.

William Anderson, 55-year-old Progressive Conservative member for Waterloo South, suffered a heart attack in his parliamentary office shortly before the start of the morning sitting of the House and died later in hospital.

In suggesting that the Commons adjourn, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said:

"By our adjournment we reveal that in a tangible way something of the feelings that are in each and in some time do that which he would have expected us to do, namely to carry on our responsibilities."

The Commons had been back in its 25th-session strength only since the May 29 byelections in Esquimalt - Saanich, Brant, Peel-Dufferin, Kings, Hants and Restigouche - Madawaska, N.B.

With the death of Mr. Anderson, who first came to the Commons in the general election of 1957, the standing is: Progressive Conservatives 204, Liberals 51, CCF 8, New Party 1, Vacant 1.

Attending a plaque-unveiling ceremony a few minutes later at the Connaught home of Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister, Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Anderson's death was another indication of the dedication to duty in public life who do not live out their allotted span.

Clarence E. Rindt (PC—Macleod) brought into his tribute to the late story of Mr. Anderson's drive from his home city of Galt, of which he was mayor from 1954 to 1957.

LEFT MONDAY NIGHT

"He left his home at 11 o'clock Monday night and arrived in Ottawa at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning," Mr. Rindt said. "And in the restaurant he said that he had driven all night in order that he might be here for the opening of Tuesday's session.

"He mentioned that he had only missed four of the 58 votes since he came to the House, and I am sure we will all say that is an amazing record of faithful service."

The last time the Commons adjourned because of the death of a member during sitting was in March, 1926, following the deaths of then External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith and J. Dunn (Yukon) MP from Russell.

Mr. Diefenbaker said in his tribute to Mr. Anderson: "He lived to serve others. In the House and on numerous parliamentary committees, he gave of his best in the service of his constituency, his province and his country."

FRIENDLY KIBITZER

Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) said Mr. Anderson had been a friend to him "in a busy, with competence, faithfulness and loyalty and constituency work in the Commons and his committees had taken a toll on his physical strength."

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington) also praised Mr. Anderson for the great service he rendered to Galt.

"He was most interested in the work with retarded children, so much so that the first school in Canada for retarded children was built in Galt. That school bears Percy Bonadale Anderson School for Retarded Children, and it has been there for years to come as a tribute to the memory of this great and humble public servant."

Other tributes were paid by Progressive Minister Fleming, H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) and Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka).

Mr. Anderson is survived by his wife, Jessie, and three children, Beth Wickens of Galt, and a son and a daughter, Jess Elizabeth and Donald William.

Khrushchev and Sukarno Life of Party in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Swaying to a cha-cha beat, Premier Khrushchev danced hand in hand with President Sukarno of Indonesia tonight at the gayest party seen in Moscow for a half - dozen years.

It was to celebrate the Indonesian leader's 60th birthday, and before you knew it the music was playing "Indonesia" is free, cha cha cha." And the Soviet premier, six years Sukarno's senior, was out there trying it up with him.

Khrushchev, just back from his Vienna talks with President Kennedy, appeared carefree and completely relaxed.

Sukarno, who ordinarily prefers the traditional dances of his island nation, was a surprised host. The party was held at the Indonesian embassy.

The official party was out on the lawn when the band struck its dance tunes.

Khrushchev pushed President Leonid Brezhnev and First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan up from a card table at which they were drinking orange juice and the two began a Caucasian folk dance called the lez ginka. Brezhnev played the girl's part, holding his white linen handkerchief over his head in the traditional gesture.

Scores of diplomats and prominent Russian guests kept time to the music with rhythmic handclapping.

Khrushchev grabbed Soviet Marshal Malinovsky's baton from him and conducted the orchestra.

When Brezhnev and Mikoyan were exhausted and sat down, Sukarno stood up and took Khrushchev by the hand.

Mrs. Khrushchev danced a bit, then smilingly begged off and sat down.

Sukarno began choosing partners from the crowd. Mikoyan and Brezhnev found girls and began dancing too.

Sukarno went over and brought Khrushchev in to dance with them.

Among other steps, the Soviet premier did the one which involved bending as in the Cossack dance, and kicking out his legs.

It marked the gayest occasion here since Khrushchev quieted down from the days back in 1955 and 1956 when he was the life of every party.

The conversation was almost all jokes.

For instance when Mikoyan was dancing the Caucasian dance, Khrushchev commended: "You know, we had a meeting of the central committee about this, and the only reason Mikoyan is allowed to hold his job is because he can dance this dance."

Premises Said Unsuitable By Registrar of College

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario College of Pharmacy took action against a Toronto mail order druggist because his premises were considered unsuitable, not because his prices were low, college registrar P. G. Mobley told the Ontario select committee on prices Tuesday.

Another pharmacist who sought permission to move his business which had failed into a Toronto shopping centre was refused because of the unsuitable location, he said.

Mr. Mobley said the college sets no prices although it does recommend price schedules and dispensing fees. "What can I do to make you understand we are only a licensing body?" he asked the committee.

Albert Wren, Liberal member of the legislature for Kenora, replied that the college is trying to control prices when a pharmacy was "directly getting fat prices." He said the price list includes the druggist makes a 100 - per - cent profit on prescriptions and proprietaries.

Thomas E. E. Greenfield, chief inspector of the college since 1954, said the main reason the increased use of amphetamine and barbiturates — pep pills and goofballs — has not reestablished the addition of three new inspectors to the college's inspection staff.

He said cases of forged prescriptions for stimulants and tranquillizers are being reported every week in Ontario.

The college laid 60 charges under various statutes in 1960, out of which 51 convictions were registered, he said.

James Trotter, Liberal member for Toronto Parkdale, said patients are caught in a "price squeeze" when they purchase pills and medicines. He said 50 pills of a certain kind cost $5.50 but if the patient purchased them 10 at a time they cost $12.

Mr. Greenfield said the pharmacist has more work to do in compounding several small pills instead of one large prescription.

He said a pharmacist must keep his store up to date, modern and sanitary and this he can only do if he makes a profit.

Former Internee Dinner Guest At Service Club

BOWMANVILLE (CP)—Horst Ehle, 40-year-old West German contractor and former German U-Boat commander, received here Tuesday to be guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Bowmanville Kinsmen Club.

Bowmanville is not new to Ehle. He was interned here as a prisoner of war for three years during the Second World War, after he was interrupted his attempt to escape from Camp 30 internment with successful escapes and each time he fled to the U.S. before being recaptured.

A manager of a Toronto airline agency, Ecki Priebe, has been named honorary consul. Mr. Priebe was shot down during the Battle of Britain and spent the years interned in Canada, including 18 months at Bowmanville.

FIEND WOMAN'S BODY OWEN SOUND (CP) — The body of Mrs. Peter Draper, 43, was found Tuesday floating in water just north of the harbor here. She had been missing since she left her home May 27. A search had been carried on for three days after her disappearance.

20,000 Trout Stolen From Fish Hatchery

APSLEY, (CP) — About 20,000 year, - old trout worth $10,000 are missing and believed stolen from the Cavan Lake fish hatchery near Highland Grove, 60 miles north east of Peterborough.

Hatchery manager John Hunt discovered the loss when trout - planting operations ended last week.

Lindsay District Forester Don Wilson said other possibilities have been ruled out.

"The conclusion is that almost 30,000 speckled trout averaging five inches in length have been stolen," he said.

Mr. Wilson said "I don't know what type of person would do a thing like this—possibly someone wanting to stock a private lake or someone local like they have an interest in."

He said if a person entered the hatchery at night and walked around the pond, it would have taken him less than an hour to scoop the 20,000 trout into a net.

Home Becomes Historic Site, Unveil Plaque

OTTAWA (CP) — Earnscliffe, the old Victorian home from which Sir John A. Macdonald pushed Canada's expansion westward, became a national historic site Tuesday.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker unveiled plaques recognizing it as the last home of Canada's first prime minister and architect of the nation. The grey stone house is on the Ottawa River shore east of Parliament Hill.

Sir Saville Garner, United Kingdom high commissioner to Canada, in London, England, emphasized that it was now owned by the British government and indicated it might remain so. It serves as the official residence for U.K. high commissioners.

Earnscliffe may well serve as a symbol of the partnership between the peoples of Britain and Canada, Sir Saville said.

"It is now in the possession of the government which gave Canada her freedom and set her on the road to nationhood, and of the political leader of the man who was the chief architect of that nation."

The prime minister recalled that Sir John had been a tenant of Earnscliffe in 1870 and 1871, and bought it in 1883. He died there 70 years ago Tuesday.

"Just a Second"

"It's your baby sitter. She wants to know where you keep the Scotch and soda."

Prince Philip Turns Forty On Saturday, His Influence Growing in British Life

LONDON (AP)—Prince Philip turns 40 Saturday with his influence receding but his influence growing.

Aggressive, quick-witted and in tune with the times, Philip has humanized the throne and the woman who occupies it.

In almost every field of British life the husband of the Queen increasingly makes his presence felt.

Science, industry, education, the services and have had an occasional shake-up from the end of Philip's finest fingers.

Not everybody likes him.

Some members of the royal entourage shudder as the helicopter roars away from the Buckingham Palace lawns with Philip in the pilot's seat.

A great many churchmen would be happier if he gave up playing polo on Sunday afternoons.

But the majority of the British people heartily approve the Duke of Edinburgh, husband of the Crown.

With Philip at her side, the Queen has matured from a shy, plumpish and often awkwardly dressed girl into a poised and even sophisticated sovereign of 35.

HAS SHOCKED ELDERS

Philip's breezy but deft informality and his wide swipes at established institutions have shocked and staggered some of the elders.

At the 450th anniversary banquet of the Royal College of Physicians, Philip told the surgeons' president made a long and impressive speech: "In conclusion, he turned to the guest of honor."

Fingering a silver object—model of a utensil used by doctors in the 16th century—Philip asked: "Is this an instrument designed for inducing boredom?"

And now, sir, may it please your royal highness to accept this bleeding cup?"

This was too good. Philip couldn't resist.

Smiling, the Queen's husband replied:

"You can only say—it's bloody kind of you."

Twenty-five years ago bloody was not a word to be used publicly in Britain. Ten years ago it wasn't used often in any mixed company. And today it's seldom used from the head table at dignified dinners.

But Philip got away with it. He usually gets away with it.

Although he has difficulty resisting the urge to be funny, he is a conscientious worker.

He is constantly hammering home the message that Britain must streamline its industrial apparatus, must keep abreast of new methods and must sell at sible. Yet they seem to get along.

A close friend of Philip's explained it this way:

"Philip was glad to see Margaret get married that he would have welcomed almost any fairy tale ending for Tony's a nice young man helps."

HEADS SYNOD

PRESTON (CP)—Rev. Albert W. Zoltt, rector of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Kitchener, has been elected president of the Evangelical Synod of Canada at its centennial meeting here. He succeeds the Rev. J. Lacobi of Kitchener, who retired after eight years in office.

Frost Honors Sir John A. At Ceremony

KINGSTON (CP)—Sir John A. Macdonald, "the old chieftain," was honored Tuesday by the Ontario section of the society to which Macdonald belonged.

Progressive Conservative Premier Frost attended the ceremony here at about 75 persons gathered to pay tribute to Macdonald on the 70th anniversary of his death.

Those placing wreaths on his grave were Premier Frost; Commerce Minister W. M. Nickle; R. G. Allmark, Conservative member of Parliament for Kingston; F. B. Simonett, Conservative member of the Ontario House; Lawrence Addington, and Mayor W. T. Mills of Kingston.

The premier said, Macdonald's political life, encompassing nearly half a century, was devoted in essence to the great events of the Confederation. The first half was engaged in those things which led to the creation of the federal union of our country, and the last half was devoted to its practical operation."

More attention should be paid to Macdonald as a statesman, he said, because of his recent political friendship in the parliamentary system, Premier Frost added.

Will Expand Whig Standard

KINGSTON (CP)—Work has started on clearing a site for a $200,000 extension to the Whig-Standard.

The Whig-Standard will erect a building to house its printing and distribution facilities. New printing equipment will be installed, including a new high-speed rotary printing press. It is hoped the new premises will be ready for occupancy by September.

The existing Whig - Standard building will be renovated and used as an editorial only for newspaper office space.

JFK Believes New Approach Must Be Found to Stop Reds

By ALAN HARET
Canadian Press Staff Writer

John Kennedy went back to Washington from his first presidential meeting with the conviction that the free world must make fresh efforts to meet the economic fight against totalitarianism.

In his whirlwind circuit of capitals—from Ottawa to Paris, Vienna and London—this young man in a hurry has been fortified in his belief that a new approach is needed to keep Russia from overwhelming the bloodless advances in the uncommitted countries.

The summit meeting in Vienna showed plainly that Nikita Khrushchev is in no mood for concessions. The Soviet leader feels events are going his way.

Recent developments appear to support his case. While the nucleus powers keep the major war, Russia keeps the free world jittery by sponsoring revolution and disorder in weak spots round the globe.

MONEY DRIVE PLANS

American economic measures usually take the form of financial aid or credits. But sometimes the money disappears strangely and the men who get them can be left to face warm soldiers.

In Laos, for instance, the U.S. shelled out more dollars per capita than to any other country. But in five years a few thousand hard - core Communist strike - hard advanced from the northern hills to establish control of perhaps half the country.

To prevent similar experiences elsewhere, Kennedy wants to make sure the money goes to projects educational, economic and social.

Most of the new economic causes for dissatisfaction lie in the non-aligned territories.

Says Govt. Is Afraid to Call Two Byelections

PEMBROKE (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said Tuesday night Premier Frost's government is afraid to call two byelections because of recent municipal scandals, the crime issue and the pipeline.

He told a New Party rally the government's decision to postpone nominations until committee of the legislature studies and reports on the redistribution of ridings is only an excuse.

He said the main reason for postponing the byelections was Toronto Beaches and Toronto Riverdale. The two Ontario capital sales tax of three per cent, effective Sept. 1.

But he added that municipal difficulties in Belleville, York Township and Fort William-Port Arthur, Thessalon and Minico, and the growing evidence of organized crime in Ontario, added to "Premier Frost's fear of going to the people in the byelections."

Tries to Lure Mosquitoes To Death With Mating Call

PEMBROKE, Ont. —(CP)— Norman Whitaker hates mosquitoes—they raise human density of half-dollars on me."

But while most people with similar feelings keep as much distance as possible between themselves and the pests, Mr. Whitaker plans to do his best to attract them—with a record-ing of a female's mating call.

"Thinking of some way to eradicate the pest, I bought of a man walking down the street with pockets full of money see-ing a burlesque theatre sign flashing '26 girls, 26 girls, 26 girls'."

In his capacity as health in-spector for this Ottawa Valley community, he decided it would be worth trying to lure the be males to their death by sowing a poisonous fog 180 feet long and 75 feet across with the fe-male's love-song recording play-ing at the end of it.

While this won't kill the fe-males, it means some will go unfertilized and thus will neither reproduce nor...what's better...bite.

One difficulty is that there are 1,300 species of mosquito, each with its own mating call. Mr. Whitaker hasn't isolated Pem-broke's species yet "but with the help of two physicists from Chalk River, we hope to do so this summer."

In the meantime, he figures to work on the anopheles class, most common of mosquitoes. A male and female are placed in a cage backed by speakers and amplifiers. The sound of the female is picked up on $1,300 worth of stereophonic equip-ment, amplified and recorded.

As another method of attack, Mr. Whitaker, drawing on his experience in insect - fighting gained at the British Army School of Hygiene in England during the Second World War, has bought the city two con-verted flame throwers and other mechanical sprayers.

Woolworth's, Kresge's Plan Discount Shops

NEW YORK (AP)—A revolu-tion in retailing is underway.

It was brought on by the tre-mendous success of the discount and fancinese to sell at lower costs.

Apparently on the theory that "if you can't lick 'em, join 'em," some big department store and variety chains are diving into the discount business.

For a long while the depart-ment stores looked down their noses at discount newcomers in confidence that low-priced stack-ed goods could never woo the customers who were used to high fashion, good service, credit and delivery.

But the discounters flourished and now there are some 3,000 across the United States. Their sub-rate prices slashed into de-partment and variety stores' business.

So some of the big chains de-cided to compete with them at their own game.

CHAIN OF STORES

Latest to get into the act is the giant variety firm, F. W. Woolworth Co., which announced plans to build "the biggest dis-count chain this country will ever see," its first unit will be opened this spring.

Woolworth's discount stores will operate under the name of Woolco department stores. Ini-tial locations have not been an-nounced.

Another big variety chain, S. S. Kresge Co., said it is "as far or further along" as anyone in preparations for discount op-erations, but did not elaborate.

Mixed Feelings Among East Coast Businessmen About Effectiveness of Council

By DAL WARRINGTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — Six and a half years ago, in the then allegedly downtrodden Maritimes, a group of businessmen set up a regional self-help organization called the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council.

Their aim was to make it more profitable to live and do business in this part of Canada. Whether they have succeeded or failed depends on the measuring stick you use. One thing seems certain: They have given a clearer idea of why they are not, in general, as prosperous as Canadians elsewhere.

Not long ago some APEC members in Newfoundland said they couldn't see that the council had done anything for their province. But APEC president Arthur Johnson, a Newfoundlander himself, disagreed. He said the council should be proud of its accomplishments so far. Furthermore, these were only the beginning.

In any case, Maritime businessmen have thought APEC worthwhile enough to back it with more than $500,000 in cash since 1954.

PROBLEMS IDENTIFIED

What are APEC's accomplishments? In the view of its leaders the most important is completion of a long-range research program to find and identify the basic problems afflicting the Atlantic economy. Now that this has been done the next step is to tackle the problems themselves.

Nelson Mann, the council's executive vice-president, says: "These studies were necessary to enable APEC to stand on a bedrock of fact when proposing ways and means of improving the economic climate for the some 2,000,000 people of the four provinces."

Much of the research has been done by trained professional staff. Some of it developed from annual conferences at which premiers, senators and members of Parliament join APEC members in studies of regional problems.

A special APEC committee went through reports of 38 royal commissions that studied various aspects of the Atlantic economy between 1940 and 2026. The committee analyzed these and published a "report on the reports."

HOW IT CAME

Mr. Mann says "APEC now has in its library the most exhaustive range of economic research studies available in the region." From here on, he says, the emphasis is to shift to applied programme.

Practical action was applied in some spheres while the research went on. APEC's power committee, made up of men from the area's chief electrical utilities, helped to set up in 1960 a new Nova Scotia - New Brunswick power grid—the first interprovincial network of its kind in Canada.

APEC trade missions have tapped the growing markets of northern Canada for some Atlantic businesses. They promoted the region's products in places previously neglected.

The council has never ceased hammering on the theme that Atlantic business should show more get - up - and - go in seeking new markets and serving those they have. Above all, its leaders have pleaded for an end to defeatist talk and crepe-hanging, to be replaced by "an optimistic and enthusiastic community spirit."

APPROVES RECORD LEVY

SARNIA (CP) — Lambton County council approved a record tax levy of $1,105,000, an increase of $212,000 over the 1961 figure. Of the increase, $210,000 is attributed to a road program approved earlier this year.

Orioles Sign Young Pitcher

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles announced Tuesday the signing of Howie Bedell, son of Syracuse, N.Y., a left-handed pitcher, for a bonus in excess of $90,000.

Bedell, 19, will report this weekend to Baltimore's Bluefield (W.Va.) club in the Class D Appalachian League.

WANTS BETTER CROWDS

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Tommy Richardson, president of baseball's International League, said Tuesday the league expected to continue to operate in Jersey City but he asked for increased attendance. "They're only drawing 800 to 900 people and we need between 2,500 and 3,000 to break even." Richardson said he had been in touch with Mainl interests about moving the franchise but said it would take a solid guarantee of advance ticket sales and a mutual agreement on rental before any move could be made.

CBC Gets Eastern Rights

'Sticks' to See Grey Cup

TORONTO (CP)—Dow Brewery Ltd. announced Tuesday that Eastern Canada television rights for the 1961 Grey Cup game have been transferred to the CBC and that delayed TV coverage of Big Four Football League game highlights will be provided to eight Ontario areas.

The company announced it will co-sponsor weekly Big Four programs in Fort William, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, North Bay, Timmins, London, Kingston and Cornwall. It is expected they will be carried on the Wednesday following the games but this may depend on time available on individual stations.

The second announcement said Dow purchased the rights to the Dec. 2 Grey Cup game from CFTO-TV in Toronto which had bought them from the Canadian Football League. Dow is co-sponsor of the Grey Cup in the East this year.

Big Four playoffs will be shown on CFTO-TV and on private TV stations in Montreal and Ottawa.

W. J. Beaupre, vice-president in charge of Ontario sales for Dow, said because of the great public interest in the Grey Cup game, the rights had been transferred to the CBC so that national coverage would be available.

CHANGED PLANS

"Originally our company had planned to duplicate its 1960 football coverage over the CBC's complete Ontario - Quebec network," Mr. Beaupre said, "but when complete network facilities were not forthcoming and we were restricted to a three-city, four-station network covering Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, we decided to ensure that wherever possible Ontario football fans not served by private stations would be able to retain association with their favorite sport."

Dow said the highlights will cover 37 games with Big Four teams, 10 of them involving clubs from the Western Conference in the new interlocking schedule. Eight will be night games.

The company said it will continue to co-sponsor the full game coverage over the three-city private network.

Slam Sam Qualifies For Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Sam Snead, playing his 13th and 14th successive rounds of competitive golf in 70 or better, successfully qualified for the U.S. open championship Tuesday.

Snead, who has played in every open championship but one since 1937 without ever winning the title, led the field in the Detroit section with rounds of 68-70—138, four under par.

The leader in Tuesday's qualifying as 85 players filled out the starting field of 150 for the open was Bob Goalby, who fired 66-68—134 at Oklahoma.

On Monday 44 players qualified in seven sections with scores of 135 by Don January and Bill Bisdorf the lowest.

Twenty - one players, headed by defending champion Arnold Palmer and the year's leading money - winner, Gary Player of South Africa, were exempt from all qualifying.

The big championship will be played at the Oakland Hills Club, Birmingham, Mich., June 15-17.

In the Cleveland section for 10 qualifying berths, one of the disappointments was Al Balding of Toronto, who shot a 74-72—146, not quite good enough for one of the 10 places. But as runner-up he is the first alternate.

Bill Ezinicki of North Reading, Mass., formerly of Winnipeg, was one of 20 who qualified.

WOULD RELEASE GARVER

BALTIMORE (AP)—Los Angeles Angels announced Tuesday that waivers had been asked on veteran righthander Ned Garver, 36, to make room on the roster for another pitcher. Russ Heman, purchased from Cleveland Indians. The waivers were sought to give Garver his unconditional release.

Lacrosse

BRAMPTON (CP)—Brampton defeated Niagara Falls 13-3 here Tuesday night in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A game.

Bob Dobie scored three goals for the winners and Mike Finnigan and Bert Naylor added two each. Arnold Thomas scored twice for Niagara Falls.

Minor Softball

The Bombers edged the Aces 15-14 in one extra inning in a close but free-scoring bantam softball game. It was 13-13 at the end of the regulation seven innings.

Three games in the Peewee "A" division saw the Redlegs down the Yankees 16-4, the Cardinals down the Senators 27-13 and the Braves defeat the Indians 18-13.

Clancy pitched the Redlegs' win while Cameron smashed a home run. L. Tripp hurled for the Yanks and D. Grant homered.

Larry Denard and J. Blakely toiled on the Card mound while Jim Barrett and Gary Hannah pitched for the Senators.

Bill Hazard hit two home runs and Wilson one to lead the Braves to victory while R. Normand and L. McKee pitched. Swan pitched for the Indians while Welbank and McCreary hit homers.

In the Peewee "B" grouping, the Twins ran wild to whip the White Sox by 43-8 score. They hammered six home runs among their 43 assorted hits. Charles hit a homer in defeat.

The Giants scored 17 runs in the last two innings but still dropped a 21-20 decision to the Cubs.

Bonus Baby Stars in Pro Start

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The long-awaited professional baseball career of bonus baby Jake Gibbs is under way. And the price may be right after all.

Gibbs, who banked $100,000 in bonus money from New York Yankees of the American League, made his debut with Richmond Virginians of the International League Tuesday night. He came up with five hits after shaking off the nervousness of being called out on strikes and muffing his first field attempt at third base.

"After I struck out and made that error I began feeling better," he said.

Gibbs, former all - America quarterback at the University of Mississippi, hit singles in the opener of a doubleheader that Richmond won from Toronto Maple Leafs 2-0 and 3-1. He got three hits, and a run batted in, in the nightcap before flying out in his final at-bat.

Bill Carr slammed a two-run homer that gave the Virginians their opening-game victory.

ALLOWED TWO HITS

Art Ceccarelli and George Haney provided the pitching prowess for the Virginians, the former giving only two hits in winning the opener. Haney allowed six in the nightcap.

Jersey City's five-game winning streak in the first game of a doubleheader with an 8-1 victory but lost the nightcap 9-5. Jimmy Coker's two homers and a double sparked Buffalo Bisons to a 6-5 win over Columbus Jets, while Charleston Marlins stretched their first-place lead to 2½ games with a 5-4 victory over Syracuse Chiefs.

Johnny Kucks' six-hitter beat Jersey City in the opener as Rob Johnson backed Kucks with a pair of homers. Jim Pendleton homered for the Jerseys in the nightcap as Dave Stenhouse won his fifth game of the season.

Coker drove in four runs, while Ted Savage and Jackie Davis also contributed to the Bisons' barrage.

Johnny Glenn's triple drove in the tying run for the Marlins and he scored the winner on Fred Whitefield's sacrifice fly to cap a comeback victory by Charleston.

WINS FEATURE

TORONTO (CP)—First Minister, the former stakes - winner claimed by Lennon Farm for $7,500 in his last start, won the featured Marylower Stake at Woodbine Tuesday. First Minister, defeated Credit Carp by more than a length. Count Page finished third.

First Minister ran six furlong in 1:11 1-5 and paid $7.30, $5.70 and $3.50. The quinella of Frosty Day and Sidville paid $29.80. The quinella of Mcnology and Lonna Linda paid $13.60.

So Kingston Says
We're Back in Hockey!

KINGSTON (CP) — Ontario Hockey Association officials will discuss the coming season and encourage new teams to enter the senior league at a meeting Sunday in Woodstock, it was announced Tuesday.

Last season, four teams disbanded because of lack of competition. The four were Belleville, Whitby, Oakville and Welland. All have shown interest in playing senior A or B hockey next season, as have Barrie and Kitchener.

In 1960-61, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen gave way to Kitchener Beavers of the Eastern Professional Hockey League and many of their senior players went to Galt, whose Terriers won the Allan Cup.

Galt had an intermediate team last season, having lost to the Junior A Flyers when owner Hap Emms moved his franchise to Niagara Falls.

St. Mike's to Withdraw
Irish Out of Hockey!

TORONTO (CP) — The withdrawal of Toronto St. Michael's College Majors from the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A Series was to be presented to the regular monthly meeting of the association's junior council here today.

The team, sponsored by Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League and for years a supplier of players to the NHL, made hockey history this year by winning its fourth Canadian junior championship for the Memorial Cup.

St. Michael's Principal Rev. Matthew Sheedy said Tuesday night it was with a feeling of "profound regret" that the withdrawal was announced.

He said the junior A program, with its long schedule and heavy arrangements, militates against effective school work.

HITS SCHEDULE

"This sometimes results in failure in school or lack of interest in a field in which achievement is a source of pride and a appreciable change seem to have met with no success and we feel we have no recourse but to withdraw from the league."

Fred Hauer, manager and coach of the team, said the "boys will continue at school if they wish. I think that is a good policy."

Harold Ballard, a director of Toronto Marlboros of the OHA junior A, said he will take steps to have the league review problems facing St. Michael's and have the school reconsider its decision.

"I think the OHA should make some concessions," he said. "They'll be sorry when the attendance starts to go down . . . the league will miss St. Mike's more than the school will miss it."

EIKME OPPOSED

Hap Emms, owner - coach of Niagara Falls Flyers, is opposed to making concessions to keep the colleges in the league.

"We've done enough for them in the last 10 years, including the institution of four - point games. Their main complaint is that they can't travel, yet they've gone on exhibition tours and went out West to play in the Memorial Cup."

St. Michael's, which first entered a team in the league by petition in 1908, has sought a shorter schedule for many years. The seven - team league played a 48-game schedule in the 1960-61 season and there has been talk of a 34- or 40-game schedule next year.

All Star Baseball Dates Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball will revert to the 1959 all-star game pattern this year with 25 - man squads for the contests July 11 at San Francisco and 25 - man rosters for the second game, July 31 at Boston.

Charley Segar, secretary-treasurer of baseball, announced the changes Tuesday.

The all-stars again will be picked by a vote of the players, coaches and managers in each league. The results will be announced Sunday, July 2.

The two managers, Paul Richards of Baltimore for the American League, and Danny Murtaugh of Pittsburgh for the National League, will select the remainder of the squads. For the second game each can add three players to take advantage of sudden injuries by men not named originally.

Each manager can change any or all of his pitching staff for the second game. Other than pitchers, not over 17 players remain on the squad. Of course, the pitchers, with the exception of the pitcher, must start each game and play at least the first three innings.

EEKS HONOR STUKUS

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference announced Monday the formation of an alumni association whose first act will be establishment of an Annis Stukus annual award for the best coach in Canadian football. Stukus, Eskimo coach through the 1949-50-51 seasons, is credited with a large share of the success in building the club into a power in the western conference. He works now at CFTO-TV Toronto.

The Trots

MONTREAL (CP) — Colona Hanover, a seven-year-old bay gelding from the Dania Dale Stables in Montreal, walked away with the $1,700 purse in the featured ninth race at Richelieu Park Tuesday night.

The pacer paced the mile course in a fast 2:01 4-5 to pay $3.30, $2.80 and $2.60.

DIDN'T QUALIFY

CLEVELAND (AP)—Al Balding of Canada missed out Thursday in his bid to gain a qualifying berth for the U.S. Open golf championship next week. Balding shot a 76-72—148 for the 36 holes and finished in 31th place, one stroke behind the last qualifier in an amateur field of seven. Balding is the first alternate and may yet compete in the event if any of the other 10 drop out.

Three Tag Team Bouts Here Friday

Looks like Frank Tunney's Wrestling Local No. 8474536 will be in town Friday night for a convention.

No less than eight — count 'em — eight of the big boys will pair off in sections for a survival of the fittest or vice-versa.

Four teams will square off in an elimination bassle. These are Ivan and Nikita Kalmikoff; Stan Stasiak and the Unmasked Marvel; Farmer Boy Townsend and Ten (Emperor) Jones and Les Lyman and Man Mountain Campbell.

There will be three-tag team matches in all. Just who will square off with who in the two preliminaries is not known. The winners of the bouts will have at it in the third match.

That is what present plans call for. Of course the mass meeting could end up just that way, with all the gladiators in the ring at once trying to split the evening's championships three ways.

GETS 'HOLIDAY'

NEW YORK (AP)—Manager Cookie Lavagetto Tuesday was given a one - week "vacation" and called home to discuss personnel changes in the slumping Washington Senators with owner Calvin Griffith. The club will be run by coach Sam Mele during Lavagetto's absence.

Griffith emphasized, "I am not calling him home to fire him. I just want to get him away from the club for a week." He added that Lavagetto definitely will resume a manager when the club returns from its current road trip June 13. They will plan golf together while discussing "personnel changes."

The Twins lost 11 straight, and 16 of their last 17 going into Tuesday night's game.

All in Sport

"I've only seen a few games, but I don't watch how I'm catch peanuts already!"

"Be careful putting out fires around here. You've just insulted an entire tribe."

Greenberg Strong Man

Won't Sell Sox Interest

CHICAGO AP)—Hank Greenberg emerged Tuesday as strong man in the Chicago White Sox front office as a budding sale of the club was spiked.

Sox vice-president Greenberg stated in a news conference that he owns only 54 per cent of the American League team's holdings would not be sold to a syndicate headed by comedian Danny Thomas for a reported $4,900,000.

The 46 per cent minority interest is held by sidelined Chuck Comiskey.

Greenberg further said Sox manager Bill Veeck and prominent stockholder Arthur C. Allyn "have designated me to represent them as the soli spokesman for the majority interests in all phases of baseball for both on and off the field."

Veeck, who has been the Sox leader since his syndicate bought majority control for $2,200,000 in March, 1959, thus moved out of the strong - man position because of illness.

Bernard Epton, a lawyer representing the Thomas syndicate, claimed earlier Tuesday he orally had an option to buy as of last Wednesday. But it was not signed and Epton asserted Greenberg upset the deal by demanding $100,000 instead of the preserved $1,000 for the option privilege.

Greenberg, some five hours after Epton had conducted his news conference, issued a terse "clarifying" statement in which he not only announced his No. 1 role in the White Sox organization, but said:

"I will not approve a sale of the majority White Sox) interest to the group headed by Mr. Bernard Epton."

Epton said his group might take legal action against the Greenberg-Veeck-Allyn group if purchase negotiations are not established within 30 days.

Rampaging Indians Take Over Lead

Eight-Game Win String

Schmidt, Assistant Manager

Associated Press Staff Writer

Jimmy Piersall is leading the American League in batting at .370, Johnny Romano is on a 21-game hitting streak and the bullpen is strong. Put them all together and Cleveland Indians are in first place with an eight-game winning string.

The Indians, winning 20 of their last 24 games in a climb from fifth place, broke on top by .006 percentage points with their biggest run splurge of the season, walloping Washington Senators 14-3 Tuesday night while Chicago White Sox drove Detroit to second place by defeating the Tigers 7-4.

Piersall had two hits, one a triple, and drove in three runs. Romano, third in the batting race at .338, was 4-for-5, drove in four runs and belted a pair of homers as the Indians matched the longest winning streak in the major leagues this season—eight.

Third-place New York Yankees closed to within three games of the lead by hacking Minnesota Twins a 12th straight loss, 8-3. Baltimore Orioles split a doubleheader with Los Angeles, losing 7-3 before Chuck Estrada pitched a five-hitter for a 2-0 decision over the Angels in the nightcap. Boston Red Sox defeated Kansas City Athletics 6-3.

EXPLODE IN SIXTH

The Indians turned a close game into a runaway with a seven-run sixth inning that best rookie Joe Grzenda. They sent 12 men to bat in the sixth, getting seven hits—Piersall's triple, a double by Willie Kirkland, three singles, two walks and an error.

Vic Power's solo homer had given Cleveland a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning. Gary Bell (4-4) was the winner with a three-hitter, relieving Bob Allen. Tribe relievers have been in on all but one decision in the eight-game streak and have locked up 15 of Cleveland's last 20 victories.

The White Sox, winning two consecutive games for the first time in almost three weeks, tripped the Tigers behind 5-3 (3-4) on Ron Kline's six-hit relief by Turk Lown. The right-hander eventually replaced starter Early Wynn with a run in, three men on base and one out in the seventh inning. He got out of the jam by retiring lower Jim Bunning on a pop out and striking out Jake Wood.

Al Smith had four hits, one a homer, and drove in three runs for the Sox, giving them the lead with a two-run single in the fourth.

Southpaw Whitey Ford (8-2) and Luis Arroyo combined for a three-hitter against the Twins, who were shut out on one hit for 8 1-3 innings.

MARIS PLATES FOUR

Roger Maris drove in four runs for the Yanks and regained the league home run lead with his 16th, a three-run shot, to break up a shutout duel with Ken McBridge (5-3) with a run in the fifth inning on Whitey Herzog's single.

Los Angeles wrapped up the opener in two innings on two homers — Kent Hunt's three-run shot and a second-slammer by Lee Thomas—off Milt Pappas (7-3). Zoi Orlon (5-4) won.

Thomas was hit in the head by an Estrada pitch in the first inning of the nightcap. He escaped severe injury, but McBride then received an automatic $50 fine when he threw at Estrada, firing a pitch between Baltimore's right-hander.

A two - run homer by Vic Wertz capped a seventh-inning rally for the Red Sox when they scored four runs and beat reliever Jim Archer (3-3). Bill Monboquette (5-5) won, giving up a 9th homer by Norm Siebern when the Athletics scored three unearned runs in the fifth.

Watson Named Bruin's Coach

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League have launched a major reconstruction program with a front-office shakeup and an accent on youth.

The club, which finished last in the NHL last season, Tuesday named temperamental Phil Watson as coach to succed Milt Schmidt, who becomes assistant manager.

Schmidt's chief assignment is to get the best young talent at any cost. Watson will prepare it for combat.

"The battle for hockey youngsters is getting more competitive each year," said Schmidt, who recently signed three 15-year-old prospects. "It's getting like baseball—bonuses and all—on a smaller scale.

"It's a real challenger. The Bruins are taking the band off the bankroll and giving me full power to spend whatever necessary to get the talent. I'm going around to see amateur youngsters and their parents."

WILL FINANCE

"The parents are most interested in the education of the boys. We tell them their education comes first. there is ample time to play professional hockey. We are signing them to an agreement by which the Bruins will finance their entire college education.

"We have batted other clubs, including Montreal, but have landed the first three boys we have gone after. I am authorized to tell the kids that if another club offers more money than we first discuss, the Bruins will top it."

Bruins president Walter Brown said "Our biggest fellow, outside of not winning the Stanley Cup, is not coming up with young players to make us a contender. Now we're going to try to sell the Bruins to young hockey players in Canada and the United States."

Watson, 46-year-old native of Montreal, was given a three-year contract by the Bruins after spending a year coaching Providence Reds, a Boston farm team in the American League. Previously he had led New York Rangers to the Stanley Cup playoff, in three of four seasons he coached them. He lost the Rangers job after a bout with ulcers.

"I'm delighted at the opportunity to prove I am a big league coach," said Watson. "We may not win too many games at first—I'm no miracle man. This is a complete rebuilding program and the Bruins are going along with the youngsters. But I'm going to insist on a pleasing hockey team which will get on the ice and fight.

LOVES A FIGHT

"I love a fight. I'm not going to have a bunch of boxers, but nobody is going to push us around. I never was a second-stringer. 'I'm proud of my hockey teams and of my hockey. Write what you think. I can't read English. Im in charge and I'll do what I know is right.

"I accepted the Bruins' offer without ever asking for how long and for how much. I know when I was with the Rangers you hated my guts. Did you think I was in love with you? I gave my best for the Rangers as a player and coach. Now I'm here to do the same.

"With me, my hockey teams come first, Watson and everyone else second. I think the best thing that ever happened to the Bruins was finishing out of the playoffs the last two years. It woke everyone up. Now let's get going."

The deal unites Schmidt and Watson, who battled fiercely for 20 years as players and coaches. Watson is a veteran of 13 seasons as a player in the NHL.

Schmidt, one of the league's greatest centers, played with Boston for 15 seasons and was appointed coach in 1954. He got the Bruins into the Stanley Cup finals twice—in 1957 and 1958—but each time lost to the Canadiens. He is 43 and is a native of Kitchener.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The other day on the more-or-less cluttered spaces of the Detroit River, Chuck Thompson, owner-driver of "Miss Detroit" eased up on the throttle with the muttered comment, "She is ready."

Thompson had piloted his crack hydroplane over the river runaway at a speed of 175 miles per hour. "And she wasn't going all out by a long shot," he said.

And unless something drops out of the wild blue yonder with better performance it looks very much like "Miss Detroit" will be the official American challenger for the Harmsworth Trophy on Prince Edward's Long Reach come August.

Thompson has been putting his boat through gruelling test runs and trials since he first applied to be the American challenger a short time ago. He knows what he is up against and wants his craft to be in the best condition possible to give the Canadian champion "Miss Supertest III" a real run for the Harmsworth more over Civic Holiday.

And there isn't much doubt now that "Miss Detroit" will be the selection of the Yacht Association of America, the United States governing body as far as the Harmsworth is concerned.

This was decided yesterday when officials of the Prince Edward Harmsworth Committee, also Bob Finlayson, past commodore and director of the Canadian Boating Federation, met Yacht Association directors in the Motor City.

Present besides Finlayson were Commodore Jay Sprague of the Prince Edward Yacht Club; Mayor Harvey J. McFarland, Nick Hart, secretary of the Prince Edward Harmsworth Committee; Jack Cole, chairman of the Pitcon Regatta Committee; Clyde Palmer, past commodore Detroit Yacht Club; John Carter, president Yacht Association of America, and Harmsworth Committee representative, Leonard Thompson, secretary of the Y.A., and Chuck Thompson himself.

Thompson is known as one of the toughest drivers on the American unlimited hydroplane circuit. Says T.A.A. officials, "he is one of the fiercest competitors we have who will give everything he's got to win, and push his craft to the limit to achieve victory. We could not have gotten a better challenger."

The Detroit owner-driver hurtled his "Miss Detroit" to a thrilling victory in the President's Cup race, top unlimited hydroplane event in the United States, and will receive the cup from President Kennedy within a few weeks.

Undaunted by stories of the "Supertest" power, Thompson says he is ready and anxious to put his best against the crack Canadian champion.

The meeting yesterday decided on three-mile course, which will be located inside the five-mile raceway on Long Read on which "Supertest" successfully defended the Harmsworth last year.

Three miles or five miles, it made no difference to the tough, wiry American driver. "In fact," he said, "I rather like the three-mile course as it won't give 'Supertest' as much chance to open up straight-away margins as does the five-mile affair."

"Miss Detroit" is said to be a sturdy craft, exceptionally well built and constructed to withstand the fierce demands of terrific engine thrust. She is powered with an Allison plant in accordance with the Harmsworth international rules.

In her trial runs since winning the President's Cup, the American boat, has shown outstanding performance, Thompson knows her every whim and caprice but as was quoted before says she is "ready right now for the Harmsworth."

"Miss Supertest III" is being put through her trial and test paces, too, by Canadian drivers.

Ken Hunter and Orv Atkins are taking no chances with the proud champion and want her at her best when she faces the American challenge in August.

The Yacht Association of America invited the top twelve American hydroplane owner to consider a challenge for the Thos. J. Car. Chuck Thompson is the only one to reply. And it is doubtful that other offers will be received. The greater majority of the crack Yankee boats will be racing in the Seattle Sea Fair Regatta on the same dates as the Harmsworth.

As T.A.A. secretary Leonard Thompson said yesterday, "unless something sensational drops out of the sky with better performances, which is doubtful, it looks very much like Detroit and 'Supertest III' for the two-boat classic."

If "Miss Detroit" lives up to advance notices and on her performances last year and to date, this inside of the Thompsons could develop into a much more thrilling series of nautical clashes than those of 1960.

Dodgers, Cards Win

Giants On Skids, Redlegs Tops

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cincinnati Redlegs still are top dog in the National League race and Los Angeles Dodgers still are just a ballgame behind. But what has happened to San Francisco Giants?

The Giants, all through the month of May has done nothing but wrong in June, losing five of six games this month in a skid to third spot. The Giants have won only two of their last 10 engagements. They dropped their second in a row to Philadelphia Tuesday night as the last-place Phillies grabbed a 13-8 decision.

Cincinnati clung to the lead by beating Milwaukee Braves, 7-3. The Dodgers kept the pressure on with an 8-7 comeback victory over the third - place Pittsburgh Pirates. St. Louis Cardinals defeated Chicago Cubs 6-2 in the first game of a doubleheader. The second game, called by curfew, ended in a 3-3, 10-inning tie.

Don Demeter and Clay Dalrymple each hit a home run and drove in five runs for the Phillies, who won cold-it 13-12. The Giants died hard, scoring five runs in the ninth inning.

O'DELL, LOSE 27

Billy O'Dell (1-3) was the loser, giving up a three-run double by Demeter in the first inning. The Giants scored three runs in the first of Juliant Frank Sullivan, in reliever Dallas Green then held them in check for his second scoreless bout at San Francisco, before needing Ken Lehman's help in the ninth inning.

A two-run homer by Gene Freese in the first lifted the Reds in the fourth inning against loser Carl Willey (3-3). Gordie Coleman scored in the deciding run with a sacrifice fly in the fifth. Bob Purkey (6-3) was the winner, but gave up 10 hits in 7 1/3 innings. Braves had seceded a one-inning mopup by reliever Jim Brosnan.

The Braves used relief hurler Claude Raymond of St. Jean, Que., in the seventh frame. He was the most successful of the relievers, yielding only one hit. The Pirates scored three runs behind three times against the Pirates and best reliever Elroy Face (3-1) in a three - run seventh, scoring the tying run on two-out pinch triple by Willie Davis and the winning run on a pinch double by John Orsino.

TWO RELATED HOMERS

Bill Virdon of the Reds and Norm Sherry of the Dodgers belted three - run homers off starters Roger Craig and Joe Gibbon. Southpaw Johnny Podres (6-1), out since May 19 with arm trouble, was the winner with a save by Larry Sherry.

The Cardinals replaced Milwaukee in fifth place behind the Dodgers by whipping Chicago 10 (6-6), who has won six straight games from the Cubs over three seasons. Bill White drove in three runs for the Cards, two on a homer, and broke a 2-2 tie with a sacrifice fly in the third inning. Lonnie Maxwell (1-0) singled home the Cubs' runs in the second. Ted Abernathy, the Cubs' manager, lost three hits off southpaw Ray Sadecki, but came from behind for the tie with three unearned runs in the seventh on an error, a walk and a homer by George Altman. Sadecki (5-3) got two of the Cards' 13-hits off Jack Curtis and Joe Schaffernoth and drove in a run.

Hell Drivers Thrill Crowd

A capacity crowd that spilled over into the bleachers and the infield saw "the Fords go by" at the Fair Grounds last night.

The Lucky Hell Drivers burned 18 another spectacular performance. It had all the thrills of previous years packed in new 1961 automobiles.

The star was brought to its feet on numerous occasions as dare-devil drivers hung precariously on the rim of accident or injury.

Three crack drivers of the troupe, headed by Bobo Campbell had the "Ooohs and Aahs" rolling back from the packed grandstand as they put their cars through spine-tingling performances. With Bobo were Johnny Thompson and Buddy Young.

"Wild" Bill Gowen, making an other appearance here, had the crowd in stitches with his droll humor, funny antics and comedy routines.

Riders perched atop speeding cars gave an outstanding exhibition of "Roman" riding.

A motor cyclist ripped through a flaming barrier at full speed and leaped seven prostrate bodies in another stunt.

Another stunt was slid through twelve feet of flaming track on a sliding pad at the rear of a speeding automobile.

Camp, Thompson and Young gave breath-taking exhibitions in ski-way driving in singles, double and triple tandem formations.

Lucienne Lamoreux, a daredevil driver, rolled a flashing car over once and one-quarter times on her first stunt and again rolled it completely over in the second attempt.

One of the real thrills of the night was the "T-Bone" drive. An ancient model was placed crosswise of the track and another drivable relic was driven full tilt at right angles smashing into the car with terrific force. The "remains" were offered for bid after each.

The feature of the evening was the "shooting" from a large cannon by a model car driven by Buddy Young.

The car approached the cannon at terrific speed and upon entering the "breech" a loud explosion and the car emerged from the cannon mouth to hurtle through the air and land safely on a ramp some distance away.

The show was co-sponsored by the Belleville Kiwanis Club/Ad the Large-Fetter Motors of Trenton.

Appreciation was paid to the Belleville Fire Department and the John R. Boak Funeral Home who were standing by with equipment "just in case."

circled the bases on two passed balls and a delayed steal to close the scoring in the ninth.

Hall got credit for taking the lead back in the sixth when the first two batters reached base on an infield hit and an error before the next trio went down in order.

Ray Caiglo, Claude Carr and Bert Faulkner each collected a pair of singles to pace the Real Estate hitters. Hull's homer, the hardest hit ball of the night, and a base clout by Gary Goyer rounded out the attack.

The RCAF hits were shared by Kibblewhite, Bung Corbett, Doug Alexander, "Bugs" MacDonald, Gill Girard and Corky Corscadden.

A number of debatable calls by McCurrie and Knack had the fans on their feet once and the teams complaining a great deal of the time but all in all they appeared to even out by game's end.

Joyces Defeat RCAF

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Joyce Real Estate moved into a points' tie with the Bobcats for first place in the Belleville and District Softball League by defeating the RCAF Flyers 7-2 behind the strong right arm of Bobby Hull in Trenton last night.

Hull, making his first start on the mound this season, hurled a masterful five-hitter, struck out 12 of the Flyers and smashed a tremendous two-run homer in the bargain. He issued three walks, never allowed more than one hit an inning and pitched himself out of minor jams in the fifth and sixth frames.

Meanwhile, portly Ken Kibblewhite, workhorse of the Flyers' five-man pitching staff, also pitched fine ball. He threw ball all night with five of the eight hits he allowed being infield singles. He struck out 12 and passed six. Five errors by his teammates accounted for the five-run spread.

Joyces scored once in the first, with hits by Goyer and Faulkner and an error, and once in the second, on a walk, error and a hit by Austin.

Kibblewhite threw hitless ball for the next four frames and the Flyers tied it at 2-2 in the fifth. A walk, an outfield error, another walk and Hughes' two-out double tied the game.

The winners went ahead 4-2 in the seventh with two costly errors, Goyer's and Hull's, and a couple of passed balls doing the damage. Hull himself came to deep left-centre, following a walk to Elliott, made it 5-2 in the eighth. Faulkner singled and

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — A blue and white trailer parked amid the towering grain elevators and cluttered piers of Toronto harbor is a haven of friendship for hundreds of seamen voyaging into the heart of North America from foreign ports every year.

A passerby might miss the new dockside jumble of trucks, crates, oil drums, ships and men.

But to seamen from Genoa or Yokohama, from Liverpool or Haifa, the Flying Angel pennant atop the trailer's mast signals church, library, advice bureau, recreation room and the gateway to a strange city.

Toronto's trailer is one of 90 Flying Angel establishments operated in ports around the globe by the Anglican Missions to Seamen Society. The oldest, in Britain, were established more than a century ago. The newest is a custom-built trailer in Hamilton which went into operation this year.

The mission's title was picked from the Bible's book of Revelation when the society was founded in 1856 — "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of Heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people."

To Canon Guy Marshall, Rev. Clifford Train and housewife Audrey Paton, the permanent crew of Toronto's Flying Angel, formal preaching of the gospel is secondary to the ship-by-ship boarding an incoming ship to welcome the crew to the city, organizing an intership soccer match, a dance or a trip to Niagara Falls, exchanging foreign currency for dollars, lending books or balling a bewildered seaman out of jail.

One warm afternoon this spring, for example, Mr. Train helped a young Irish seaman and his English mate from the Crystal Palace of London track down a friend through the Toronto street directory.

"Do you know how to get to Scarborough? Drop back tonight and watch TV. . . By the way, Stanley Matthews and Danny Blanchflower are playing soccer Saturday night at Varsity stadium—take a Bay street car to Bloor Street."

The work of the mission was assumed five years ago with a weekly dance in a hall of downtown Holy Trinity church by Canon Marshall, a tall exboxer and rugger player with grey - flecked black hair. Mr. Train is a burly former Toronto police inspector who went into the ministry after 36 years on the force.

The mission's work has expanded since the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway in 1958 brought an increase in ocean shipping moving through Great Lakes ports.

A grant from the Church of England in 1957 provided the 40-by-10-foot trailer, equipped with library, lounge and tiny chapel. Young volunteers now help the Flying Angel organize evening recreation for some 1,800 seamen of 28 nationalities who visit the mission annually.

Canon Marshall, who has been in the ministry for 20 years, feels some of his most valuable work is done in quiet chats with seamen who have family problems in their home ports. A letter from Canon Marshall to another Flying Angel halfway around the globe often succeeds in smoothing out the domestic upset while the sailor is still on his way home.

President May Be Requested To Settle Color-Money War

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy may be asked to step in and settle an emerging paper war over colors in which the Montreal-born woman who signs her name on American paper currency is sharply challenged by the man who prints it.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rudel Smith, treasurer of the United States, has proposed that coins and the Canadian practice, denominations of American currency be printed in different colors to make it easier for handlers to tell one denomination from another.

Not so, says Henry Holtzclaw, head of the federal engraving and printing division, who believes that adding ten inks and hues "would mean tremendous confusion and make it easier for counterfeiters."

"I've been in this printing and engraving business for 46 years," he told The Canadian Press, "and I believe chief reliance on colors for identification of different denominations of paper is very hazardous undertaking.

SAYS WRONG TIME

"This is also the wrong time for any change. It would make people think President Kennedy is printing a new type of money to pay for all his social programs and that is speeding up the printing presses."

At present, all American paper currency is printed in a light shade of green, somewhat similar to the Canadian bill. Mrs. Smith, who was appointed treasurer by Kennedy, says she has received many complaints this is confusing—that it is difficult to tell a five-dollar bill from a $5 bill unless you look closely at the figures.

Born and raised in Montreal, the daughter of an American industrialist, Mrs. Smith says she is impressed with the Canadian practice "where a $2 bill is a kind of peach color; a $5 bill is in blue; a $10 bill in mauve and a $20 in gold."

"I always keep some in my purse to show people when I go out when I go to Montreal," added Mrs. Smith who still has a passport but says her permanent home is in California.

FAVOR CHANGE

"My mail is running 4 to 1 in favor of a change in American currency. This is very gratifying to me. Several banks along the Canadian border have suggested that the American colors, if they are approved, be similar to the ones in Canada."

Mrs. Smith said in an interview she made her proposal to Treasury Secretary Dougla s Dillon who has adopted a rather non-committal attitude.

Those close to him said he is waiting for Kennedy to get a breather from world diplomacy to make a final decision.

At the Belle

The Original
"One-Eyed Jacks"

The unique thrills of Marlon Brando's self-directed romantic adventure drama, coming to the Belle Theatre tomorrow stems from a line of dialogue Brando speaks to his co-star Karl Malden. "You're a one-eyed jack, but I've seen the other side of your face." The reference is to a deck of playing cards, in which two of the four jacks present profiles, concealing half their faces (and by inference, half their personalities) and becoming "one-eyed."

Brando's Technicolor-Vista-Vision film is laid in the wide, open West, when the chief diversions were poker and faro, as practiced in colorful gambling saloons and dance halls. Both games have supplied a variety of expressions to the American vernacular, such as blue chips, hitting the jackpot, putting all one's cards on the table, saying that everything is above-board, ante up, back to back, a stacked deck, ace in the hole, poker face, showdown, four-flusher, and standing pat.

One of our most popular pasteboard-based phrases is "Don't try to muck." In pioneer times, the dealer of a hand of poker was obliged, after laying a knife placed on the table in front of him. He therefore had "the buck" because knife handles were made of buckhorn. If the player preferred not to deal, he was allowed to pass 'the buck' to the player at his left.

'Carte blanche' originated in the fifteenth century French cards was called 'carte blanche' [illegible] holder. The connotation of extra power has become the main meaning of the phrase as it is used today. Actress Marlon Brando, whose 'carte blanche' on "One-Eyed Jacks" included directing and starring as well as producing, since his own company, Pennebaker Productions, backed the Paramount release.

Day.

The February date was suggested as an appropriate holiday break between New Year's Day and Easter. It would have no significance in Macdonald's career.

However, the bill is 55th on the list of private members' bills now before the Commons, and is unlikely to be debated or acted upon this session. The pre-empt other pictures I was doing when they never did." I guess maybe the stockholders finally complained that the studio was losing money by not using me. So here I am.

Lana Turner Back at MGM To Pick up Her Pension

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lana Turner is back at MGM to pick up her pension, and finish off a succession that began in 1938.

"Twenty - three years!" she exclaimed. "I should be crazy to sing."

She isn't. Her return to MGM is sentimental journey, since that is where she grew up and flourished in an era when the studio was the capital of glamor. She is the main attraction at that glittering troupe (Garbo, Crawford, Shearer, Garson, Garland) who is still a top draw in films.

"Those were wonderful times," Lana said. "Especially the early years and during the war. That was when L. B. Mayer was running the place. Sometimes there was a change in administrations, and I wasn't too happy. They were making message pictures, and I didn't exactly fit into them."

Lana's whole message was somewhat different from what the new studio bosses had in mind, was given a string of duds movies. Though she is basically a contemporary girl, she was put into costume epics like The Prodigal and Diane. After the latter, she asked out.

"I was so desperate to get out that I would have promised them anything," she recalled. Finally we agreed that I would do a picture a year for five years at a low figure.

"That was in 1955, and now I'm doing the first—and last—picture under the deal. Every year I worried that they would

Michael Rennie Has Nice Things to Say About TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Rennie, the tall, poised Scotsman who plays the title role of Harry Lime in a widely syndicated TV adventure series, has only the nicest things to say about a medium so often criticized by its performers.

"It has been very good to me," said Rennie.

A successful British actor, Rennie had been enjoying a busy but quiet career in motion pictures in Hollywood for the last 11 or 12 years. He played substantial but not star roles: He rarely got the girl in the last reel.

Then along came television. Rennie, an experienced pro, became much in demand for dramatic roles.

STARRED IN SERIES

When an English company had the bright idea of adapting the Orson Welles' movie, The Third Man to TV purposes, Rennie starred in a season of shows. The series now is playing on more than 200 stations. Then he won the lead in this season's entertaining adaptation of The Scarlet Pimpernel in the family classics series, focussing more attention on himself.

Upshot was that he won a starring role in Jean Kerr's hit Broadway comedy, Mary, Mary, still playing to standing room. And this in turn is leading him back to much bigger and better parts in motion pictures. He has been picked to play in the Melvin Douglas role in the Frank Capra production of The Best Man, a real plum.

"It has worked out very nicely for me," Rennie conceded. "I like television very much indeed."

Former Home of Sir John A. Declared a Historic Site

By JAMES NELSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—"You'll never die, John A."

The words were shouted at an open-air political rally 80 - odd years ago by someone carried away with the oratory of Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister.

The rally came closer to reality in Canadian history yesterday, the 70th anniversary of his death, when Macdonald's old grey stone home, Earnscliffe, was declared a national historic site here.

Sir John A. was the guiding light and chief conciliator in the ticklish negotiations that brought about confederation of John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister, the provinces of Canada, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario into a single nation in 1867. He pushed the fledgling country into the northwest and brought British Columbia into Confederation.

When he died at the age of 76, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, famous opposition leader, said in the Commons Macdonald's 46 years in politics had been in fact the history of Canada.

In his first address to the electors, when he ran in 1844 as Conservative candidate for Kingston, in the old Union Parliament of Upper and Lower Canada, he declared:

"A British subject I was born; a British subject I will die."

Sir John A. was loved by his supporters, who forgave his weakness for wine and liquor and fondness for drink in rough political barbs. He was despised for his opponents who were frustrated by the procrastination that won him the sobriquet "the old boy" and awed by his political acumen.

He died in the master bedroom of Earnscliffe on June 6, 1891.

Since 1930, the house on the Ottawa River east of Government Hill has been the residence of the United Kingdom high commissioner.

Declaring Earnscliffe a national historic site will not affect its continued ownership by the United Kingdom government.

A bill introduced in the Commons last session by Jack Wratten (PC—Brantford) would declare a public holiday in February at Sir John A. Macdonald

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Thursday, June 8, 1961

General Tendencies: Now you have a day and evening when you can put into motion whatever new plans or arrangements are important to you and especially in winding up whatever you have already begun but which required a fresh new start in order to be successful. Study all original information to aid your advancement. Be outgoing now.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Rid yourself of any mistaken notion that you can make your life far happier now, particularly where personal interests are concerned, so be sure you get objective, realistic, improved and then seek out those persons who can also make you more successful in life. Be happy, gay, lucky.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Be sure you have made secretly and quietly. Also keep any future plans on the QT. Lend a helping hand where most needed in P.M. Then off to the theatre or other recreation or simply enjoy fine TV programs.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Make it a point to know in what regard associates and friends hold you and do all in your power to improve relationships that you can use your aims far more quickly and pleasantly. P.M. Go out for the recreation you need at this time.

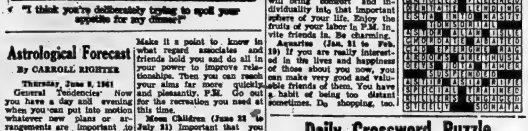
Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Important that you arrange for highest credit now and also that you impress the right people with the fine, respectable manner in which you conduct your life. P.M. Dine out elegantly and then take in a floor show or some good concert.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) It is possible to make many new contacts and friends today so be sure you get only those who can enrich your life, whether financially or ethically. Be sure you look into new outlets and systems so that you can branch out wisely.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Concentrate upon arranging your daily affairs so efficiently that you come to a full and fine understanding with associates and close ties. Evening is then ideal for romantic happiness and putting new meaning into your life.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Make every effort to reach greater rapport with associates today. Also, clear up any misunderstandings with competition and you will find that soon you will have real and lasting success.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A positive attitude and plan of action will get you much farther today than all the angling you can think of. Also, co-operate with co-workers happily and you can accomplish a great deal, beside being helpful to good friends.



Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Anything requiring personal thought and energy can be completed quickly and efficiently now. Then delve into new outlets that are rewarding-five and enjoyable. P.M. Important you are devoted to loved one or you lose out in many ways.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Your home requires attention and the addition of new furniture, art objects, etc. that will bring comfort and individuality into that important sphere of your life. Enjoy the fruits of your labor in P.M. Invite friends in. Be charming.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you are really interested in the lives and happiness of those about you now, you can make very good and valuable friends of them. You have a habit of losing too distant sometimes. Da shopping, too.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Imperative you take stock of assets and all indebtedness so that you know what your true position is, your exact worth, at this time. Then you can make investments after consulting with experts. P.M. Out for the recreation you must enjoy.

If your child is born today... this delightful youngster will be one of those people who will ever be fascinated by the new and progressive. However, teach to be discriminating and to know what is practical and what is only superficial impractical. Then the chart becomes a very happy and successful one, especially if your progeny is early taught to complete what has once been started. Give as fine an education as you can afford.

Mr. E. P. Taylor, chairman of the Board of The Carling Breweries Limited is shown unveiling the dedication plaque for the new Carling Brewery opened in Toronto Tuesday. The plaque dedicates the $12,000,000 plant to "Product Quality and Public Service."

E. P. Taylor Opens New Brewery

TORONTO — The most modern brewery in North America was officially opened yesterday by E. P. Taylor, chairman of the Board of The Carling Breweries Limited. As he formally dedicated this new brewery in Toronto Mr. Taylor told an audience of over 400 guests that he looked to the day when Canadian beer would be brewed and sold in all countries in the world.

Mr. Taylor was introduced to the guests by Mr. G. H. Hees, the President of The Carling Breweries Limited, who referred to the speaker as "the greatest living Canadian".

He pointed out that Carling was an outstanding Canadian company that has successfully entered the United States market where it now has seven breweries and ranks as the fourth largest brewery in that country.

The Hon. Robert Macaulay, Q.C. Provincial Minister of Energy and Resources cited Carling public service as "outstanding" and declared that without the support of such companies the life of the average Canadian would be much poorer. Referring to Sir John A. Carling, one of the original founders of the company who also founded the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph and the Federal System of Experimental Farms, Mr. Macaulay said: "The record of creative public minded men is one that Carling can be proud to live up to".

Following luncheon the guests — all of them public and political figures — were taken on conducted tours of the new $12,000,000 brewery.

Income Tax -Explained-

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an income tax office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor
Income Tax Department.

In some cases when a married couple have separated by a written agreement or court or judicial separation, they each will be given custody of certain children. For income tax purposes each party to the agreement will be treated as a single person. Such being the case if they support the children they have in their custody and control, each may claim the equivalent to married exemption on one child and the ordinary child's exemption for any other child.

If the husband is ordered by the courts to make payments to his estranged wife, he will deduct such payments from his income on the line indicated on page 1 of the return as "other deductions."

The wife will have to report this income on her return as separation payments received. A simple ruling applies in these cases. If one party is allowed to make the payment, it should be included as a deduction. The person receiving it must add it to his income and be taxed on it.

In some cases where a couple have separated, the husband is given custody of a teenage boy, but a young girl is given to the custody of the wife's mother. The husband is ordered to make payments on this child's behalf directly to the child's grandmother.

In such cases, payments made to a third party regarding any children of a separated couple do not qualify as a deduction for income tax purposes. Neither may the child be claimed as a dependent as the father does not have the custody or control of the child.

Question—I am legally separated from my husband. We each have custody of one child. He pays me $40 per month. Can I claim equivalent to married status on the child? Do I have to report the $40 per month?

Answer—Yes, you are allowed the equivalent to married on the child. The separation allowance from your husband is taxable in your hands.

Question—I am separated from my wife by court order. The children were given into the custody of my wife's mother. I am ordered to pay her $20 per week. Do I claim this as a deduction or do I claim exemption for the children?

Answer—Payments that are not made directly to your wife are not allowable as a deduction. You may not claim the children as you do not have the custody and control of them.

Air Pollution Linked to Cancer

REGINA (CP) — Dr. Morris Katz of Ottawa, director of environmental assessment for the federal health and welfare department, said Tuesday that there is a definite correlation between cancer and polluted air.

Dr. Katz, chief speaker at a conference on aspects of atmospheric pollution at the Canadian Public Health Association annual convention, said a 1952 study in Liverpool, England, established a correlation between air pollution and lung and stomach cancer.

Mr. K. Regards Berlin As Bone In Soviet Throat

Kennedy Reveals Nikita Thinks Castro Unstable

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has informed congressional leaders that Premier Khrushchev shared his views when he told him in Vienna that West Berlin is a bone that must come out of the Soviet, throat.

The president also reported Khrushchev indicated he regards Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro as unstable — and not a Communist.

Kennedy briefed influential members of both parties at a 90-minute White House conference Tuesday before he told the country in a television-radio broadcast a few hours later that the West is ready to maintain its rights to Berlin "at any risk."

The briefing, during which the president had the Soviet premier's transcript of some of the conversations, was said to have disclosed that Khrushchev was vitally interested in only two subjects at this time—Berlin and a change in the secretarial direction of the United Nations.

As reported by responsible sources, these were the only major topics discussed and the positions taken in the 12 hours of conversations between the two leaders:

Berlin — Khrushchev has not changed his position of more than two years' standing that he intends to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany. He fixed no date for this action. He told Kennedy that nobody but the United States still believes peace and freedom in Berlin can be reunited.

The only time Khrushchev raised his voice in the whole period of discussion was when he talked about Berlin and used the word in the throat phrase he has employed before. (Kennedy said in his broadcast report "there was no discourtesy, no lack of interest, and there was time for many by either side" during the Vienna conference.)

The Soviet premier offered again to give Russian and East German guarantees of continued Allied access to West Berlin.

Kennedy replied that the West is in Berlin legally, not merely by differences that intends to stay there. He said Berlin is a foundation stone in American security.

On other issues, Khrushchev contended the UN actions in The Congo, under the direction of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, were not neutral but were pointed against Russia's interests. Never again, he said, would the Soviet Union be content to let positions within its national security policies could be interfered with by the international organization.

This was the beginning, he indicated, of the kind of policy under which the Russians would operate — that is, unanimous vote of a three-man bodies on which the East, West and a neutral would have to be represented — on the actions of international commissions, including the United Nations.

Cuba — Khrushchev does not regard Castro as a Communist. But he told Kennedy "you are wrong in the way to making him a good one." The Russian leader indicated he regards Castro as unstable.

ACCUSED CALLED DEPUTY CHIEF OF PETERBOROUGH

Advised Officer How to Hook Club

TORONTO (CP)—The deputy police chief of Peterborough, once a raiding member of the provincial police gambling squad, testified Wednesday that a gambler advised him how to get a Hamilton, Ont., gambling house out of business.

Deputy Chief Jack Shields testified he resigned from the provincial force in January, 1959, to take his present job. He has been a corporal, second in command of the gambling squad.

Testifying in Supreme Court, he said Vincent Feeley, one of three men charged with conspiracy to bribe a policeman, called him in 1958 and "offered to provide me with information . . ."

Feeley, together with another of the accused—Kenneth McDermott—described themselves as "gaming tax returns as "gaming cera," it was disclosed earlier. The third defendant is Robert J. Wright, alleged gambling squad constable.

They are charged with conspiracy to bribe another member of the squad, Const. George Scott, who worked a double-agent gathering evidence for prosecution.

Deputy Chief Shrubb testified that Feeley called him about seven times during the summer of 1958, offering information about the Kennedy Club, then on Victoria Street, in Niagara Falls.

The policeman said the gambler suggested the police could break into a gambling premises, air shop and cut the drain pipe leading from the upstairs club.

"By placing a screen in the drain, we could catch the cards, the layout, the dice" as they were flushed down the toilet in the event of a raid, Deputy Chief Shrubb said Feeley told him.

He said he was also told there would be about $10,000 spread around "among the bosses" who might be on the premises and read out the names Dominic Migliori, Nicholas Migliori, Lalbourelli, Louis Iannuzzelli, Nick Vasile, Frank Iannuzzelli, brother-in-law," and Black Pete.

The gambling squad raided the club in 1958 while then Chief Shrubb was on holiday. Charges were laid against some persons.

TO BE MADE IN CANADA — Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced in parliament Wednesday that grain combines such as these will be made in Canada. U.S. Lifts Ban on Sale of Suction Pumps For Two Ships Carrying Grain to China

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States government has agreed to allow the export of certain grain handling equipment to be used by Norwegian tankers hauling Canadian grain to Red China, it was learned today.

In Ottawa Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the House of Commons today that the U.S. has agreed to let an American company sell 10 suction grain pumps to two tankers carrying Canadian grain to Red China.

A diplomatic informant said the agreement—in the form of an "accommodation" in the interests of Canada-U.S. relations —was reached after the U.S. state department called a number of emergency meetings to override the treasury department.

Under American law trade with Red China is prohibited. The treasury department had ruled that the suction equipment, known as "vacuators," could not be sold since the Norwegian tankers hauling the grain were under Red China charter.

Informants said a decision was reached to make an exception in this case and the decision had been conveyed to Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The state department Wednesday night gave the York Minster (cathedral) to get choice viewing spots for the Anglican ceremony.

The Queen, one of about 2,000 guests, watched her 35-year-old cousin wed to Miss Worsley, 28, by Dr. Michael Ramsay, archbishop of York and soon to be enthroned as archbishop of Canterbury, spiritual head of the Church of England.

Only royalty were members of the reigning or deposed houses of eight countries—for-

Buck Rogers Flying Belt Reality, Successfully Tested by U.S. Firm

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A practical, working belt which will soon free the pages of science-fiction has made a reality of mankind's age-old dream of flying with the birds.

A twist of a throttle, a turn of a lever, and man leaps from the ground with the personal rocket belt strapped to his back. He hovers in the air, he flies over rivers, he flits up a hill that would leave his breathless to climb.

His support is a twin-nozzle thrust of hydrogen peroxide steam.

All this was revealed today by Bell Aerosystems Company, which developed the belt—called the BELL ROCKET BELT device (BRBD)—for the army transportation research command.

Photos of a test engineer, Harold Graham, in personal flight with the rocket-belt showed him easily leaping a fire hydrant, handily swirling up a hill, casually jumping a stream. In successful flights this spring, Bell said, Graham achieved a speed of about 30 miles an hour. His longest, horizontal flight was 360 feet. He did not try for any great altitude, but the belt carried him up a steep, 30-foot-high hill with ease.

U.S. President Suffered Back Injury at Tree Planting

WASHINGTON (CP) — The White House disclosed today that President Kennedy has been suffering a back injury since May 16 when he hurt himself planting a tree in Ottawa.

Kennedy kept the injury secret from members of his staff.

It was known, of course, to his personal physician, Dr. Janet Travell.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said there is no connection between Kennedy's present back trouble and that injury which he had suffered previously and for which he underwent a delicate operation several years ago.

Kennedy suffered the new injury on Tuesday, May 16, the first day of his Canadian trip.

It occurred when he was lifting several spades of dirt while planting a tree at Government House, residence of Canada's governor-general, Georges Vanier.

Salinger called reporters into his office to tell them about the injury. He said Kennedy would appear today at press briefings.

But, even as Salinger was talking with reporters, the president telephoned Miss Travell to say he would not use crutches today but would wait at least another day to see how he felt.

Salinger disclosed that Kennedy did use crutches for two days while at Hyannis Port, Mass. This was just prior to his trip to Paris, Vienna and London.

Salinger said Dr. Travell described the injury as a lumbosacral strain.

Salinger said the doctor told him the president is suffering "constant discomfort, something

Commoner Weds Duke of Kent At York Minster

YORK, England (CP) — The Duke of Kent, eighth in line to the throne, was married here today to blonde commoner Katharine Worsley at the first royal wedding in this historic city in 535 years.

Crowds jammed the streets to catch a glimpse of the couple. Security sightseers closed out all of a three-mile borderline which the East, West and a neutral zone of Berlin separated — and the action of international commissions, including the United Nations.

Senate Committee Changes Controversial Tariff Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—The key section of the government's controversial tariff bill giving arbitrary powers to the revenue minister to make final tariff rulings was rejected today by a vote of 26 to 8 in the Senate banking committee.

The majority strength of opposition Liberal senators carried an amendment proposed by Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) to provide for an appeal to the tariff board for the minister's decision on customs or excise returns to the Senate for third and final reading. The Liberals have an overwhelming majority in the Upper Chamber.

Senator Croll's amendment made one concession to the government's argument that such tariff decisions must be made promptly. It specified that no appeal to the tariff board which showed him easily leaping a fire hydrant, handily swirling up a hill, casually jumping a stream. In successful flights this spring, Bell said, Graham achieved a speed of about 30 miles an hour. His longest, horizontal flight was 360 feet. SWIFT APPROVAL GIVEN BILL TO CONTROL DRUGS

First Centre Will Be Built in B.C.

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has left no doubt of its belief that Canada's existing narcotics laws have been a flop, despite the best efforts of RCMP undercover squads.

Justice Minister Fulton said Wednesday drug addiction still forms a large blot on Canadian society. This could only mean that federal laws were ineffective.

He said the country's 3,100 criminal addicts are caught in a degrading cycle of crime and prison, then crime again. He even admitted that to prevent drugs being smuggled to them while they are behind bars.

It was after hearing this frank assessment — and another by Health Minister Monteith—that the Commons gave swift and willing approval to the principle of newer, tougher federal legislation to handle the growing problem.

A central feature of the bill is that in future, addicts would be sent to specialized federal institutions and remain there until it appears they are cured — no matter how long it takes.

At present, the average lifetime of medical and psychiatric care.

The much federal centre will be built this year in British Columbia, he said. The government also stood ready to help finance construction of provincial drug-addict treatment centres.

The proposed legislation is designed to stamp out the supply and demand in the underworld narcotic trade, and to provide treatment but in harsher treatment of drug smugglers and

Lightning Bolt Kills School Girl in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Patricia Hagan, 15-year-old Northern Secondary schoolgirl, was killed by a lightning bolt today when she was struck by lightning while under a tree during a violent electric storm.

The other girl, Pat Latour, 14, was knocked unconscious.

Ann Bird, girl, was also struck but was not taken to hospital. She said she believed an route to school when the bolt struck.

Traffic was cut off to more than 100 homes, police reported after the storm dumped by the 1½ inches of rain which pelted down in the hour that the storm lasted.

Streams of water pouring into underpass at Bathurst and Davenport took up their positions at Parkdale April 22, before the cease-fire.

Britain, France And U.S. Balk As Truce Broken

Hope Gromyko's Return May Salvage Parley

GENEVA (Reuters) — The American, British and French delegations told Russia today they will not attend any further sessions of the deadlocked conference on Laos until they receive new instructions from their governments.

Malcolm MacDonald, British co-chairman of the conference, told Russia's George Pushkin that the delegations were conferring with their governments about the future of the talks following new leftist attacks on right-wing troops in Laos.

The American delegation was still waiting for word from Washington following what the United States described as a blatant violation of the ceasefire agreement.

The three big Western powers expressed the hope that the International control commission — made up of India, Canada and Poland—will send an "early report" on the new fighting.

The Canadian delegation also sought new instructions from its government.

REDS WANTED SESSION

No session of the conference had been arranged for today although the Communists wanted one. MacDonald said the end of the next meeting would be announced "in due course."

The Americans were hoping that the return here of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko tonight would salvage the crumbling talks.

The American, British, Canadian and other non-Communist delegations today issued strong protests for fresh instructions Wednesday after leftist forces in Laos launched right-wing troops out of one of their strongholds in what the United States described as a "blatant violation" of the cease-fire agreement.

The American, British and French delegates met this morning to discuss the serious situation in the kingdom and its effect on the talks here.

An authoritative source said the Americans were still "hanging on the hope" that Gromyko's return might lead to an effective cease-fire in the kingdom.

PROTESTS ATTACK

Chief U.S. delegate W. Averell Harriman protested Wednesday to acting chief Soviet delegate Georgi Pushkin against a "deliberate attack" by leftist forces on positions held by the pro-Western Laotian government at Padong, Laos.

Pushkin, the Communist Pathet Lao radio Wednesday night charged the United States with "gross violations of Geneva" by dropping the first right-wing troops in Laos since the cease-fire agreement was reached between the warring Laotian factions in May.

The U.S. statement denied the charge, saying the troops had took up their positions at Padong April 22, before the cease-fire.

BULLETIN

Main Spending Program Hiked $137,545,683

OTTAWA (CP) — Supplementary spending estimates totalling $137,545,683 were presented to the Commons today by Finance Minister Fleming.

The new appropriations requested, added to the main spending program for the year announced Jan. 26, bring total spending to a record $6,987,375,- 000 for the fiscal year which began April 1.

This total includes $624,370,- 000 for old age security pensions which aren't counted as part of budgetary outlays.

The spending program, which will be increased as the year progresses, already exceeds last year's record $6,670,273,064.

Presbyterians Pick Albertan As Moderator

TORONTO (CP) — The 87th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada took three ballots to elect a moderator from Western Canada at Knox Presbyterian Church here Wednesday night.

He is Rev. Robert L. Taylor of St. John's Church, Medicine Hat, Alta., 52-year-old father of five children.

Mr. Taylor was elected on the third ballot after he and Rev. Ross K. Cameron of Dovercourt Road Presbyterian Church, Toronto divided the votes of the assembly on the second.

WILL INCREASE AID

60 Clerks Worked 16-Hour Day Keeping Auschwitz Death Records

JERUSALEM (AP) — A Auschwitz she was chosen "haphazardly" as a clerk because she could speak German. She said she and a few other Jewish women worked in the camp administration office which registered the deaths and the live prisoners of Auschwitz transport.

Mrs. Kagan said there were forms even for punishment of prisoners, listing how many whip lashes were given to a prisoner or how much time he spent in the "bunker," where arrest cell in which he could stand only.

"We received certificates of death," she continued, "and in the next line to it we became clear to us that this was a camouflage, that in reality we were sent all sorts of diseases as cause of death such as pneumonia, general weakness and syphilis.

"When it said sudden death it meant killing. We never recorded a case that a prisoner was shot."

She told of one Jewish girl who escaped wearing an SS uniform and took with her documents.

REMANDED WEEK ON THEFT CHARGE

George Baptiste of the Tyendinaga Reserve was remanded for a week when he appeared in county magistrate's court charged with stealing $187 from Thomas Sweenor of Deseronto, May 30.

Baptiste requested legal aid. Earlier bail was set at $1,000.

WRESTLING FAN WILL BE CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

A charge of assault occasioning bodily harm will be laid against a Belleville man following an alleged attack on a wrestler during last Friday night's wrestling show at the Memorial Arena.

Police said that Terry Adams, 32 North, Front Street, would be charged with assault.

During one of the matches, one of the visiting wrestlers was said to have been kicked in the eye when he was temporarily out of the ring.

IMPAIRED DRIVING BRINGS $150 FINE

RCAF Cpl. Wilfred Eric Pinsky of Trenton today was fined $150 when he pleaded guilty in county magistrate's court to a charge of driving a car while his ability was impaired by alcohol.

His operator's permit was automatically suspended for six months.

OPP Const. Warren House testified that early last Sunday morning, he investigated a two-car accident on Highway 2, just west of the main gate of RCAF Station Trenton, in which damage totalled about $600. The driver of one car was Pinsky and the operator of the other was Raymond Percy F. Joyce of Belleville. There were no injuries.

He said Pinsky was unsteady on his feet and that although he didn't say much, what he did say was unintelligible.

A charge of careless driving was withdrawn.

Bowling Notes

Under ideal weather conditions the mixed doubles tournament was held on Wednesday afternoon on the greens of the Campbellford Lawn Bowling Club. The greens were lightning fast, the competition keen with nine rinks competing. Three rinks from the Belleville Club were in attendance, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Price, Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon and Ralph Hubbs, and high third Smith and Wally Laflin. Both of them brought home trophies and prizes.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Price won the second three game high for the tourney with a count of 679, one eight, while Mr. and Mrs. O. Nicholas of Campbellford won high three-game count with a score of 40 plus four. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Keller of Trenton, who won this particular trophy in 1936 and 1939 could not make it three in a row but were successful in winning the two-ball foursome with a record 42 plus eight. Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon and Ralph Hubbs of Belleville had a count of 33 plus two won the one-game event. Mrs. Milding Nash and Wally Lavergne were edged out of the two-game high total by one point.

At Kingston on Saturday the team of Smith and Laflin will go on a chosen to show their ability, when the McGregor-Goodfellow ball be bowled at the Kingston Bowling Club. This tournament, always drawn a large entry from the local district as well as outside centres, is a specialty in the Ontario Valley and the Brockville area. Some of the best bowlers in the Province will be competing for the hundred pound prize which is the first prize.

received a warm and encouraging response.

Eohl lodged a formal protest by delivery of a note in which he argued the equipment, made by an Illinois firm, was not loaded on a U.S. flag Chinese interests but would be retained by the Norwegian shipyard. The equipment is required to unload Canadian grain in Red China which apparently lacks sufficient unloading equipment of its own.

"One of the tankers is waiting to take off from Montreal," Eohl said. "I cannot see any reason to deny delivery of the equipment."

Roland Michener, Speaker of the Canadian Commons, said the issue likely will be discussed at today's meeting of the Canada - U.S. interparliamentary group. Two dozen members of Parliament and Senators from Canada will meet with their American counterparts in a two-day session to discuss trade, defence and diplomatic problems.

Michener, leading the Canadian group, said he did not consider the issue a matter of great importance.

However, American diplomats are known to be worried over the Canadian decision as the issue has registered in Canada and may have repercussions if it may have in cross - border relations.

The ruling against export of the equipment originated in the Canadian Foreign Exchange Control Board's assets control branch which polices the American Prohibition Administration's foreign trade. The view in Canadian and Norwegian quarters is that the decision had been taken by relatively minor officials without the advice of senior cabinet department administrators.

They said the normal diplomats were not consulted until the ban blew up in to a big issue Wednesday with the receipt of Canadian and Norwegian representations here. Then diplomatic manoeuvring began in earnest to upset the ruling.

Local Doctors At Postgraduate Medical Course

BOSTON — Amongst the four Canadian physicians attending the intensive post graduate course offered by the Harvard Medical School this week at the Peter Brent Brigham Hospital here are two from Belleville, Ont., Dr. Jeffrey Crook of 216 MacDonald Avenue, and Dr. Norvell D. Kerr are amongst the 126 physicians gathered from 28 states, the District of Columbia, Argentina, Canada and Greece.

This course, "Recent Advances in Internal Medicine," is directed by Dr. George W. Thorn, Theron Randolph Professor of Theory and Practice of Physic, Harvard Medical School, and Physician-in-Chief at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. Twenty-three of Dr. Thorn's associates, all of whom teach at the Medical School and are on the Brigham staff, are serving as instructors for this course. It is designed to provide basic science information for the benefit of consideration of considerable clinical experience who wish to keep their understanding of the fundamental biochemical and physiological processes underlying the diagnosis and treatment of disease.

During the week these physicians are attending lectures, participating in seminars and round-table discussions, and visiting the laboratories of the hospital and Medical School where clinical discussions on methodology are pursued.

Camera Club Names Officers For Next Year

The Belleville Camera Club held its annual election of officers for the coming year at the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday evening with the following results:

W. W. Kirkpatrick, president; T. Kinsella, vice-president; H. James, secretary, and E. Yateman, treasurer. P. J. Hubbard and F. Hinson are chairmen of the entertainment and decoration committees, respectively. In his closing remarks John Lewis, retiring president, pointed out that the club has acquired an impressive amount of darkroom equipment, plus T-square and projector for meetings. He felt that membership had learned a great deal from their connections with The Photographic Society of America, the Color Photographic Association of Canada and the Belleville Film Council. He also noted that there had been a considerable amount of visiting between members of the Belleville and Trenton camera clubs and hoped that all this would continue in the coming years.

The winners of the club print competition, "Summer Scene," were Hedley James for first prize and Mrs. Ruth Thompson and Edgar Buchanan for the color slide section. All prints entered were on display and the color slides were projected and the judges' comments on each one were passed on to the club by Mr. Lewis. Judges were from the Trenton Camera Club, which had acted as judges for the evening.

John Lewis won the Ansco print award for the best print, open to black and white print members.

The congratulations of the club members were extended to the Trenton Camera Club which recently won the second in the Canada-wide Stark Trophy competition sponsored by the Color Photographic Association of Canada.

Movie included "The World Cup in a March," which was produced by the National Film Board, and thoroughly enjoyed, as was another short film "The Ruby-Throated Hummingbird."

like a steady toothache."

Kennedy had felt an immediate pain while planting a tree in Ottawa, but made no mention of it.

Salinger said Dr. Travell had made extensive tests and felt no serious concern about the injury. He said the found no sign of a ruptured disc or of any infection.

"Dr. Travell is confident this [condition] will remedy itself," Salinger said.

In technical language, Dr. Travell described the injury to Salinger as a strain of the joint between the lowest lumbar vertebra and the sacrum.

The type of injury described by the physician is one that occurs frequently among weekend athletes and also is commonly caused by attempt tasks for which they are not in physical condition.

But in Kennedy's case, any back injury aroused more than normal concern because of his history of difficulties with his back. As a youngster he hurt it playing football.

And during the Second World War the back was badly wrenched when a Japanese destroyer rammed his PT boat and Kennedy commanded as a junior grade navy lieutenant in the Pacific.

The injury necessitated two back operations, one in January in 1943 and a second in 1954. The second left a disc out eight months of convalescence.

Co-ordination Council Holds Last Meeting

TRENTON — The final meeting until fall of the Community Co-Ordinating Council was held last night in the Legion Hall.

Three members of the council, president Tom Bedford, Gordon Carr and Russell McLaren, representing the Legion, and the secretary, H. B. Smith, were the only ones who attended and as they did not represent a quorum according to the council's constitution, no business could be passed. The council membership now is made up of representatives of local clubs, four service clubs (Rotary, Kinsmen, Kiwanis and Lions), the Business and Professional Women's Club and the Legion branch. It was proposed that they produce a motion at the September meeting and send a representative to form a quorum.

Mr. McLaren told the council members that the annual dance in the Legion Hall and the Legion would be held at the conclusion on Sunday, June 15, at 1 p.m.

Members queried the legality of town councillors being in office on occasion, on the Community Gardens and the Fiesta Day. Carr said that eight years ago council had passed a by-law allowing only those members of the municipal staff and nurses of the hospital to participate in the body. The floral trimmes were messy and varied tremtying to the committee, said Mr. Carr. Kennedy in the community.

Fred H. Avery of the Trenton United Church, conducted the service in the chapel of the Frederick Tribute Funeral Home on Wednesday afternoon. The chapel was filled to capacity with members of the medical staff and nurses of the hospital attending the body. The floral tributes were many and varied testifying to the popularity of Mr. Avery.

Interment Belleville Cemetery.

Mr. Kennedy was born in Belleville, he said, was concerned about the expenditure of money. On a further stipulation, Mr. Carr said, was that only two shows should be held on the same day. Kennedy said that these must be held at least 30 days apart.

As far as any co-ordination council member knew, the proposed circus was sponsored by any local group. The Legion branch is holding a similar event in August.

The secretary was directed to write Thomas Agnew to find out if the proposed circus was not sponsored by a service club.

Fiesta Day At Hospital

TRENTON — A profusion of lilies and tulips formed the background for the Fiesta Day tea convened by the Women's Auxiliary of Trenton Memorial Hospital held yesterday in the Legion Hall. The tea was termed successful, with the weather co-operating, and the many women attending taking advantage of the fine day for picture attractions, including a head-to-new hat bar and a "Trompe-l'oeil" booth for you wait" artist.

Receiving for the guests at the door were Mrs. Thorne Spear, president of the Auxiliary and Miss S. C. Rogers, hospital administrator. Tickets were taken by Mrs. L. Coward and Mrs. Tom Black.

Mrs. Harold Keeler, immediate past-president of the Auxiliary, and Mrs. G. L. McLintock were in charge of the tea room.

Kitchen conveners were Mrs. Gerald Weaver and Mrs. W. A. Gray. Other conveners were: Mrs. Stuart Bailey, bake table; Mrs. Ross Bowman and Mrs. Colin Frews, delicatessen; Mrs. S. O. Graham, candy; Mrs. Ross Bowman and Mrs. Clarence Saylor, white elephant and Mrs. W. Bothwell, candy table; Mrs. Rhen James, hat bar; Mrs. R. H. Mikel, in charge of the draw; Mrs. Ken Young, country store; Mrs. Ken Gerdon, decorating Pouring tea were members of the hospital staff, Mrs. C. Lowe, Miss I. Disley, Mrs. T. Gauthier and Mrs. E. Rouse.

Elect Officers

TRENTON — At Wednesday night's meeting of the Dufferin-Home and School Association the following officers were elected to serve in 1961-62: Mrs. Donald Sutherland; vice-president, Mrs. R. Clark; secretary, Mrs. L. Price; treasurer, Mrs. Walter Brown; immediate past-president, Sid Wilkes; executive officers, G. Greer, Mrs. J. Cochrane, Mrs. E. Steele, Mrs. R. Sherlowski.

Charles L. Hyde New President Senior Citizens

The monthly meeting of the Senior Citizens Club was held in the Belleville Recreation Rooms on Pinnacle St. on Wednesday evening.

The meeting opened in the usual manner with the National Anthem with the president, Mr. Harry Scales presiding and Mrs. Shirley at the piano. Mrs. Drummond, the secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting which were approved as read. Birthday greetings were extended to all members celebrating birthdays during the month of June. The treasurer's report by Mrs. Frederick was presented in typewritten form which indicated that the club's financial status to be in healthy condition and on motion was received and adopted.

This being the Annual meeting, Mr. William Gault, chairman of the Recreation Commission, and Mrs. Gault, graced the occasion with their presence and Mr. Gault was called upon to perform a very pleasant duty, namely the presentation of very beautiful trays, suitably engraved, to the two couples, who recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversaries in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Samain and each couple expressed their appreciation for the gift and to Mr. Gault for his very timely kind regards.

SUMS UP YEAR'S WORK

The president then summed up a resume of stewardship for the past year, expressing satisfaction at the results achieved, and requested Mr. Lloyd Doran, Belleville Director of recreation to preside for the election of officers for the coming year. Mr. Doran appointed Mr. Gault as chief election officer and his ballot scrutineers were Mr. Jas. Brennan, past president, Mr. John Thomson and Mrs. Ella Calhoun.

At the conclusion of ballotting, Mr. Gault announced the following were elected to the executive offices, President —Charles L. Hyde, Vice-President, John Preston; Secretary —Mrs. Margaret Drummond and Treasurer — Mrs. V. Bryan. The newly-elected officers were invited to the platform for official recognition and the president elect expressed a few words of appreciation. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Doran and Mr. Gault for their kind assistance.

A period of singing old familiar tunes was held under direction of Mrs. L. Adamsand chairs, assisted by Mrs. James Doyle as accompanist or accordion. A vote of thanks was also extended to Mr. and Mrs. Scales for their faithful services during the past year.

Arrangements were made for attendance at the annual district picnic, which will be held in Cobourg on the 21st inst.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of that committee and Mrs. Alkins won the door prize. The meeting adjourned in the usual manner.

Belleville Livestock

Trade was very active on all classes of livestock, with the prices on cows were keen. Calves and lambs were steady to strong with last week. There is a strong demand for cows for pasture.

Dies Suddenly

NEW YORK (AP)—Robert E. Griffith, 52, of the theatrical producing team of Griffith and Prince, died in a Port Chester, N.Y., hospital Wednesday of a heart ailment.

Griffith was stricken Tuesday while playing golf with director George Abbott.

He was co-producer of such Broadway musicals as The Pajama Game, Damn Yankees, West Side Story and Fiorello.

OUT HER VEINS

"The woman commander, Maria Mandel, demanded a spectacular punishment," Mrs. Ragan said. "But Maia (the girl) had succeeded in hiding a razor blade in her sleeve and cut out her veins during the roll-call.

"When an SS man walked up to Maia and mocked at her, she slapped his face with her bleeding hands and cursed him in heroine but you will die a dog'."

Maia died in the camp dispensary.

Mrs. Ragan said the staff of Jewish girls in the records office were from 30 to 60. In the end early 1943 the flow of deaths was so heavy, she said, that she worked from 8:30 in the morning until 9:30 at night."

Miss Esther Goldstein, an attractive blonde, said that when SS Dr. Josef Mengele made his tours of the camp to select women for extermination, the prisoners painted their cheeks to try and make themselves look healthy and thus avoid the gas chamber.

After Miss Goldstein's evidence, the prosecution began showing films of the death camps. The court was cleared of spectators but reporters and official observers were allowed to remain.

A spotlight from the ceiling cast a bright circle of figure of Eichmann in the glass-encased dock. He let his lips occasionally and swallowed heavily as the grim scenes of mangled bodies, crematoriums and gas chambers unrolled.

Former Solicitor Says Facts 'Grossly Misrepresented'

"Gross misrepresentation of the facts" in the presentation of his bill to council for legal services in connection with the collection of city business tax arrears, was charged today by former city solicitor R. A. Pringle.

Mr. Pringle said he would personally appear before council to explain the details of his bill for legal services and also to explain how misinformation from city hall had resulted in court action having been taken to collect tax arrears which had already been paid.

At Monday's council meeting council turned down a recommendation from the finance committee calling for payment of Mr. Pringle's bill.

Accompanying the recommendation was a letter from city treasurer C. J. Reader noting that in 1959 certain business tax arrears had been given to Mr. Pringle for collection. The letter stated that the actions advised and undertakers were detailed on Mr. Pringle's account.

LETTER FROM TREASURER

Mr. Bender's letter noted that judgment had been obtained on the accounts totalling $4,736.38 and of this amount $1,253.00 had been collected, along with costs amounting to $153.

These funds had been retained by Mr. Pringle and applied against his fees and expenses of $2,062 leaving a balance due him of $400.25.

Council turned down the bill with one alderman terming the bill "ridiculous."

Mr. Pringle says, however, that council was not provided with all the facts.

Actually, he says, a total of 137 tax arrear accounts amounting to $25,140.89 had been given to him for collection.

Tariffs Are Complicated

At the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, two Americans who now head Canadian companies agreed that Canada's tariff system is antiquated and that it needs a complete reappraisal.

We suspect that they are correct, but we also think that agreements in principle, like this, are going to be much easier to reach than agreements on details.

Wednesday, on this page, we reprinted an editorial from the Montreal Gazette, stressing the need for Canada to have a diversified economy and warning of the dangers lurking in speculation. In theory, the picture of a world in which every country produces precisely what it is best fitted to turn out, and then exchanges it for the produce of other countries produced under similarly favorable conditions, is alluring. In practice, though, as the Gazette pointed out, changing needs and processes could plunge a specializing country into deep trouble—and there are so many of these changes in today's rapidly evolving world that there would never be a time when some country was not in distress.

On the other hand, to insist that imported goods should never be sold at a price less than that for which they can be produced in the country of sale is to impose an unnecessarily high cost burden on the consumer. In the case of Canada, for instance, we suppose, could be produced in Canadian hothouses, while the scientist could probably grow blueberries in Florida—but it seems more reasonable to exchange them, in season. In lesser measure, this applies to manufactured goods. Every case, though, needs to be studied individually.

Even if with agreement on a given set of facts, there can be different interpretations. Dr. R. V. Yohe, president of B. F. Goodrich of Canada Ltd., said that a large proportion of the goods Canada imports from the U.S. do not compete with goods of Canadian manufacture, evidently regarding this as a sound reason why tariffs against such goods might be reduced. But he also said that B. F. Goodrich would not have built a new tire plant in Canada if it could import such tires and still sell them competitively in Canada with tires from any other country. One wonders whether arbitrarily instituted lowering tariffs against some U.S. goods might not induce the U.S. manufacturers to establish subsidiaries in Canada. And then, of course one recalls the already loud protests against the high proportion of U.S. investment in our industrial complex—so perhaps we do not want more subsidiaries of U.S. firms. The whole picture is terribly complicated, only the experts are really qualified to judge and the chances are, when they express their conclusions, we shall find no two of them agree in entirety.
